Mrs. Bell Clore sold several fryers to Conner this week. She has a nice lot of young chickens.

Ed Sandford played ball with the Patriot ball club Friday. They defeated the Cowboys, a traveling team.

There is talk of changing the name of our postoffice to Belleview, from Grant by which it has always been known. Often our merchants order goods by boat to Belleview and Bruns will send letters to the same address, which causes confusion and delay. There is no Belleview postoffice in this State.

To correct an error in our items of last week we send this item by request: Elizabeth Ryle was born in Boone county, March 16th, 1832, died May 17th, 1908; married to Wm. P. Ryle June 20th, 1861. She leaves 3 daughters and one son. She had been an invalid for 13 months, but she bore her affliction with patience until death came as a sweet relief to one who feared not to go. She also leaves one brother, John Ryle, of McVille.

The Burlington team came down Saturday and played the locals in an exciting contest from start to finish. The visitors were in the lead in the eighth inning, when Sandford's three bagger to center scored 3 runs and won the game for Belleview. The visitors went out in one, two, three order in the ninth. Result by innings:

Boones	0 0 0 0 0 2 2 3 0—7

Base hits—Presser 3, Stucky 1, Rogers 2, Sandford 1; two base hits—Botts, H. Smith; three base hits—Sandford 2. Burlington base hits—Brady, Clore, McGuire, Conner, Black, White; two base hits—McGuire; Errors—Belleview 6, Burlington 6; struck out—Conner 12, Sandford 8; base on balls—Conner 2, Sandford 1. Although there were several close plays Perkins umpired the game in a fair and impartial manner. A feature of the game was Sandford's terrific batting.

It Reached the Spot.

Mr. E. Humphrey, who owns a large general store at Omega, Ohlo, and is president of the Adams County Telephone Co., as well as of the Home Telephone Co., of Pike County, O., says of Dr. King's New Discovery: It saved my life once. At least I think it did. It seemed to reach the spot—the very seat of my cough—when everything else failed." Dr. King's New Discovery not only reaches the cough spot; it heals the sore spots and the weak spots in throat, lungs and chest. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

County Judge Polsgrove, of Frankfort, has decided that playing base ball on Sunday is contrary to law. The Frankfort base ball club had brought suit against the L. & N. railroad for $200 damages, because the railroad company failed to bring the Shelbyville club to Frankfort on time for a Sunday game after the road had contracted to do so. Judge Polsgrove decided in favor of the company on the ground that playing base ball on Sunday was contrary to law, and the contract was illegal and could not be enforced.

Several of the local base ball fans accompanied the club to Belleview, last Saturday afternoon.

Paris Akin spent Saturday night and Sunday in the Hathaway neighborhood. There seems to be some attraction for him over there other than teaching school.

Some people seem to be of the opinion that Uncle Sam was bluffing when he sent orders to the overseers of the roads that are traversed by the rural routes that their roads must be kept in repair or the service would be discontinued. Don't get that in your heads, boys, Uncle Sam is no bluffer, and he meant every word of it. When he tells you to do a thing you must do it, or there will be something else doing.

A press dispatch from Lexington says: "While the Tobacco Trust is not buying any more tobacco direct from the Equity Society, and in fact several months ago stopped further negotiations with the Society, it is stated by a prominent official of the Equity Society that the trust is now known to be operating through a line of brokers in various cities, who are placing large orders for pooled tobacco throughout the Burley district. Practically all of this tobacco it is stated, is for the trust, but the Equity people are making no kick, consoling themselves with the fact that they are getting Equity prices for every pound of the weed sold.

Lewis Clore, of Waterloo, was in Burlington, one day last week, making arrangements for assistance in putting in some new material at Waterloo telephone exchange.

As Natural as Life.

New York has been having an exhibition of nearly 200 dolls, collected from all nations, and representing centuries of doll development. Dolls are existence which date back to 4000 C. They were found in Egyptian raves, and are simply miniature mumies. But the oldest dolls of Mrs. Starr's unique collection are from Peking, and came from the palace of e dowager empress. Mrs. Starr has olls representing Dutch fishwives, omen from Lapland equipped with owshoes, Indian soothsayers, Mexan runners, French lacemakers and ew England country girls of a century ago. One Egyptian doll was made tirely of mud, except its hair. Another was constructed of a hamhock, dressed in a single garment, and ith a mass of long black hair. The th of a tree was carved into a charmg doll, and California seaweed was e material of another. A perplexed dy came to the teacher of her grandildren, says Youth's Companion, with weary plaint as to the indifference of e two little girls to the sound knowlge which interested their three others. "The boys love butterflies d stones and shells and plants, and ill read every book I give them on tural science. They are eager to ow about everything, from the stars the sky to the weeds by the roadde. But Mary and Nelly—what do u suppose is their one enthusiasm?" e asked, dejectedly. "Dolls, I guess," id the wise teacher; "and a healthy assion it is, too. We won't interfere th the course of nature, dear grandother-of-boys-and-girls; for until the rld turns the other way on its axis, d plants grow with their roots in e air and their blossoms in the ound, we may expect our girl babie love dolls!"

"Summer baseball" is a matter hich is already rousing the interest a great many high-school and colge boys, to some of whom will come cellent opportunities to earn money ring vacation by playing on professional or semi-professional teams. By e athletic rules now almost universlly in use, those who accept ch positions will be debarred m playing on any college team. he rule was established to keep llege sport free from professionalm, and has been regarded as wise. ter, however, a disposition to quesion its wisdom has been shown by minent college presidents and proessors. They point out that what is anted is to prevent college boys from ving undue prominence to sport. To s end it is desirable to keep professnal ballplayers from entering colge merely to play ball; but that is reason why a genuine student, der the necessity of earning his y through college, should not be left free to do it by playing ball as by aching school or selling hooks. The ange of feeling on this matter, says e Youth's Companion, is interesting showing a tendency to look at colge sport more sanely than has lately en the practice.

TEN KILLED IN A TROLLEY CRASH

EMPLOYE LOST CONTROL OF HIS MOTOR ON STEEP INCLINE.

CARS WERE CROWDED WITH PASSENGERS

In the Mad Struggle To Escape Many Women and Children Were Trampled Upon, About One Hundred Being Injured.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 25.—Awful in its result was a wreck of trolley cars on the Chestnut Hill traction line, about 12 miles outside the city, late Sunday night, and meager information is to the effect that ten persons are dead and nearly 100 injured.

The day was an ideal one, and all outgoing cars were crowded with pleasure seekers. At the place where the accident occurred there is a steep grade, and one car, from some unknown cause, left the track at the bottom of the grade. Right behind it were others. The derailing of the one seems to have knocked the nerve out of the motormen of these others. Five motormen lost control of their cars, and one by one, in quick succession, they crashed into the first, their precious freight having no chance of escape.

News of the disaster was at once sent to the city, and physicians, nurses and ambulances hastened to the scene. Meanwhile homes in the neighborhood were converted into temporary hospitals and every aid possible given by the citizens.

The current was cut off by the breaking of the trolley wires so that it was impossible to send relief cars to the scene. Owing to the distance and the difficulty of communication definite information is hard to secure.

One report is to the effect that the first car to be wrecked was derailed by a second car on a cross line crashing into it, but this can not be verified.

The wreck occurred on the Chestnut Hill branch of the Schuylkill Valley Co.'s line at Thorp's lane. In the mad struggle of the passengers to get out of the smashed-up cars, which were left in total darkness, many women and children were trampled upon, and it is these who constitute the majority of the injured.

Men who succeeded in escaping themselves were horror-stricken on learning that wives and children were still struggling in the cars and plunged into the mass of passengers again to save them. The cries and moans of the injured were heard by residents in the sparsely settled neighborhood, who at once went to their rescue.

PRIEST FELLED BY THE KNIFE

Salisbury, Mo., May 25.—Rev. Joseph F. Lubeley, pastor of St. Joseph's German Catholic church here, was probably fatally wounded at 11 o'clock Sunday morning, when he was twice stabbed by a parishioner immediately after he had finished singing high mass.

After attacking the priest, felling him with the second blow, the frenzied man, Joseph Schuette, a prosperous farmer and devout member of the congregation, turned his freshly sharpened knife upon Mrs. Barbara Ginter and John Gates, two of those who rushed to the priest's aid.

Mrs. Ginter was cut in the hand, while Gates received two wounds, one in the hand and another in the elbow. Neither Mrs. Ginter nor Gates were seriously hurt.

Father Lubeley, who is a native of St. Louis, and whose mother and two brothers reside here, was stabbed in the right temple and in the right side of the neck, the knife just missing a jugular vein by a hair's breadth.

The clergyman was attacked from behind just after he left the altar, and was standing in the church door, in full view of about 400 worshipers.

While officers rushed the farmer to the Salisbury jail physicians were hastily summoned to attend the wounded priest. He recovered consciousness quickly, and, despite the gaping wound in his throat, directed those about him

Three Persons Killed.

St. Louis, Mo., May 25.—Lightning, five wire and heart failure caused the deaths of three persons at games here Sunday. Joseph J. Howard, a wealthy sportsman and club member, was killed by lightning while golfing at Glen Echo club. Near him a caddy was thrown to the ground. John R. Perry, 25 years old, dropped dead while attempting to make a home run on a baseball diamond at South End park. William Stephenson, 8 years old, near O'Fallon park, while chasing a foul baseball, ran into a live wire and was electrocuted.

Church Burned.

Alton, Ill., May 25.—St. Michael's Catholic church, near Beltrees, north of Alton, was totally destroyed by lightning Sunday evening. Loss $8,000. Lightning killed a man at Tolles grove, near Godfrey.

Company Responsible.

Milwaukee, Wis., May 25.—By a court decision just handed down the Western Union Telegraph Co. is held responsible for the safe delivery of a message alleged to have been stolen by an employe.

AWFUL RAILWAY COLLISION AT CONTICH, BELGIUM.

Express Train Crashes Into Local Full of Pilgrims—The Injured Number About 100.

Antwerp.—One of the worst railroad accidents in Europe in recent times occurred at Contich, a station six miles southeast of this city on the main line, at eight o'clock Thursday morning. The exact number of victims has not been determined, owing to the difficulty of removing the bodies from the debris, but the latest estimate places the number at 60 killed 100 wounded.

The catastrophe appears to have been due to a defective switch where the main line crosses a local line. At this point a train, carrying a large number of pilgrims on their way to a local shrine, was standing. Into this the Antwerp-Brussels express dashed at a speed of 50 miles an hour, literally leaping on top of it. The heavy coaches of the express crushed the lighter train into splinters. The sides of the express cars were torn from their fastenings, the floors practically collapsing, thus precipitating the passengers to the side of the track uninjured, whence they fled, frenzied, across the fields. But for this fact the death roll would be much greater. Few of the occupants of the local train escaped alive. Those that were not killed were badly injured, many of them mortally. The engineer and fireman of the express were both killed at their posts.

Prince Albert went to Contich in the evening and visited the injured, having cancelled an engagement to preside at a banquet at Antwerp.

With regard to the cause of the collision, a railroad official stated that the switches were being repaired and that a workman who had been placed at the temporary hand switch appeared to have made a mistake or else the switch failed to act.

UNIVERSITY OFFICIAL QUITS.

Secretary Wade of Michigan Resigns Because of Charges.

Ann Arbor.—James H. Wade, for 25 years secretary of the University of Michigan, submitted his resignation Friday to the board of regents and it was unanimously accepted. The resignation followed an investigation of the university finances, which Attorney General Byrd has been pursuing for several weeks. The investigation centered around the alleged improper use of university property, such as coal and painting and building materials and workmen's time, to an amount estimated at about $5,000. Prof. Martin L. D'Oage was appointed acting secretary to sign this year's diplomas.

Chicago Jeweler Slain.

Laporte, Ind.—B. Kvasnicka, owner of two Chicago jewelry stores, died Friday afternoon at his country home, one miles northeast of North Judson, a small town south of Laporte, as the result of being shot at 10:30 o'clock Thursday night by an unknown person.

Albert Rouhik, who had been employed as a hired man by Kvasnicka, but was discharged Wednesday, has been arrested and charged with the murder, the allegation being based upon a deathbed statement made by Kvasnicka. Rouhik declares he is innocent.

Health Good in Canal Zone.

Washington.—By far the most favorable showing as to health conditions in the isthmian canal zone yet made is in the canal commission's report just received for April. It shows that the general death rate for the zone, including Panama and Colon, was 20.04 per thousand, against 40.97 per thousand in the previous April, the population this year being estimated at 116,178 against 97,815 last year. There was but one death from disease among the 9,000 American white people connected with the commission.

RAY LAMPHERE IS INDICTED.

True Bill Also Returned Against Mrs. Gunness, Though Dead.

Laporte, Ind.—In returning seven true bills against Ray Lamphere Friday afternoon, the Laporte county grand jury also indicted Mrs. Belle Gunness for the murder of Andrew Helgelein of Mansfield, S. D. No warrant was issued for Mrs. Gunness, as she was declared officially dead by the verdict of Coroner Mack, but in order to vote a true bill against Lamphere as an accessory in the killing of Helgelein, it was necessary to indict Mrs. Gunness as the principal. Lamphere now stands charged with arson, five murders and being an accessory in the Helgelein murder.

Separate bills were voted against Lamphere for the murder, in the first degree, of Mrs. Belle Gunness and her three children, Philip Gunness, Myrtle Sorenson and Lucy Sorenson.

The digging Friday under the direction of Sheriff Smutzer resulted in the unearthing of a human skull, which it was decided belongs to one of the bodies dug up in the chicken yard two weeks ago. At that time three skeletons were found in one hole, but there were only two skulls. The skull found was in a cess-pool, but why it was dropped there and the rest of the body buried in the little cemetery the authorities cannot explain. Long hair attached to the skull is considered evidence that it is that of a woman. One of the three dismembered bodies referred to was that of a female.

RUEF JURY DISAGREES.

Mistrial in Case Against Former Boss of San Francisco.

San Francisco. — After being out for 43½ hours, the jury in the trial of Abraham Ruef, the former political boss of San Francisco, and central figure in the bribery-graft prosecution, against whom wholesale indictments were returned, failed to agree upon a verdict and was discharged at five o'clock Thursday afternoon by Judge Maurice T. Dooling.

The specific charge against Ruef in the trial just closed was the offer of a bribe of $1,000 to former Supervisor Jennings Phillips to influence his vote favorably upon an electric railroad franchise applied for by the Parkside Realty company. The jury stood six to six upon the first ballot and remained so without a change during the 13 ballots taken. It was learned that the question upon which the jury split was the credibility of the witnesses. There still remain 111 indictments pending against Ruef.

Falling Girder Kills Workmen.

Detroit, Mich.—Thomas Hoin and Joseph Kulkie were killed Friday afternoon and three other workmen were seriously injured by being knocked from the Howard street bridge by a falling steel girder that was being hoisted to strengthen the bridge superstructure. The men were swept from the floor of the bridge and hurled to the Michigan Central railroad tracks 20 feet below. A workman named A. West, who was riding the girder as it was being hoisted, fell with it without being hurt.

Dr. Fullerton Elected Moderator.

Kansas City, Mo.—Rev. Dr. Baxter P. Fullerton of St. Louis was elected moderator of the Presbyterian church in the United States Thursday, to succeed Rev. Dr. William H. Roberts of Philadelphia.

Prof. Milukoff Assaulted.

St. Petersburg.—Prof. Paul N. Milukoff, leader of the Constitutional Democrats in the Duma, and editor of the Rech, was the victim of an assault Friday night at the hands of two editors of the Liberal organ, Russ, whom the Rech had accused of blackmailing banks and the improper conversion of popular funds. The editors were admitted to the office of the Rech and during a conversation with him, struck M. Milukoff in the face, knocking him to the floor, where they left him bleeding from his wounds.

MURDERER OF SIX?

DOWAGIAC (MICH.) MAN ACCUSED OF KILLING HALF DOZEN.

STORY OF WIFE BETRAYS

She Declares He Sought Her Life—Police Assert Prisoner Has Confessed to Slaying Two Men.

South Bend, Ind.—James Brimmingstall, aged 40, is under arrest at Dowagiac, Mich., 27 miles from South Bend, charged with six murders. The police say he has already confessed to two, and Prosecutor Bresnahan is confident the prisoner will admit the other crimes. His arrest followed an alleged attempt to make his wife his seventh victim. She escaped and appealed to the police. It is probable that Brimmingstall will be subjected to further "sweat-box" examinations, and that he will be held on a charge of murdering David Huff here last June.

The police say he confessed to killing a man in Kansas, who he had a grudge against, and was sentenced to ten years in the penitentiary. After his release he killed a companion and received a sentence of three years. He gave no names.

List of Alleged Victims.

The list of Brimmingstall's victims, according to the officers, is:

Man in Kansas (name not given), killed by Brimmingstall when 16 years old.

Two men sleeping in a tent in Missouri, names unknown to officers.

David Huff, Dowagiac, June, 1907.

Smith Hortium, Dowagiac, February, 1908.

Mrs. Brimmingstall, apparently distracted, appealed to Prosecuting Attorney T. J. Bresnahan for protection. She said that "Jim" was going to kill her; she could not go to sleep for fear he would break into the house and murder her. She gave hints that led to the discovery that her husband has a criminal record.

Deeded Property; Supposed Slain.

David Huff, an aged citizen of Dowagiac, went to the Brimmingstall home to live a year and a half ago. He deeded them his property on their proposition to support him for the remainder of his life. One night last June a scuffle was heard in an upper room of the house. Huff was found dead in bed with the bed clothing very much disturbed. Brimmingstall said that Huff had some sort of violent illness—colic or something like it, and accidentally choked himself to death with the bed clothing. The body of Huff was buried next day and the apparent haste occasioned some comment.

In February of this year Smith Hortium disappeared. There are several circumstances tending to connect Brimmingstall with the disappearance of Hortium. Hortium's body was found frozen in the ice of a near-by stream. His money had disappeared.

STRIKE MAY BE ENDED SOON.

Good Progress Toward Peace in the Cleveland Trouble.

Cleveland, O. — Greater progress in settling the street railway strike peacefully and by arbitration was made Wednesday than any day since the strike began. Both sides made material concessions.

President Du Pont of the Municipal Traction company stated that he would take back the old employes as new men. He insisted upon giving the present men at work the preference. This was objectionable to the union. In a later conference with the union the members of the state board of arbitration obtained a slight concession from the strikers. They agreed to have the men go back as new men as a temporary expedient. Coupled with this, however, was the further agreement to allow the future status of the strikers to be arbitrated.

Later it was stated that the company and the strikers had agreed and that the formalities of preparing the arbitration bill would proceed. Meantime, it was further stated, there would be an armistice and the strikers would be advised to return to work at once.

Violence ceased to be a prominent factor in the strike during the day and evening. Mayor Johnson issued a proclamation offering rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons placing explosives on the tracks.

Meets Predicted Death Bravely.

New York. — The fate that the physicians at the Pasteur Institute predicted for him on Monday overtook William H. Marsh of Brooklyn late Wednesday, when at his residence on Ocean avenue the well-to-do manufacturer of water meters died of hydrophobia. His end was peaceful, as he was put under the influence of opiates early in the day and was kept free from pain to the last.

Woman and Man Whipped.

Morgantown, Ky.—A band of masked men called at the home of Widow Haynes at Horse Mill, about 12 miles from here, in this county, and whipped her severely. They then went to the home of Crit Johnson and took him out of bed and whipped him.

"'There's nothing like our German students. You can't get away from that,' the German hoasted, and his face, all slashed from corps duels, beamed with pride.

"'No, you're right,' said Hummel. 'I once visited a German student in Heidelberg. As we conversed on dueling in the students' sitting room a waiter knocked, entered and said politely:

"'"The landlord of the Keg presents his compliments and wishes to know if you are thinking of stepping across this evening, sir?"

"'"What does he want to know that for?" the student inquired.

"'"Because, sir, if you don't," said the waiter, "it will scarcely be worth while to tap a fresh barrel to-day."'"

A traveler, finding that he had a couple of hours in Dublin, called a cab and told the driver to drive him around for two hours. At first all went well, but soon the driver began to whip up his horse so that they narrowly escaped several collisions.

"What's the matter?" demanded the passenger. "Why are you driving so recklessly? I'm in no hurry."

"Ah, g'wan wid yez," retorted the cabby. "D'ye think I'm goin' to put in the whole day drivin' you around for two hours? Gitap!"

County Seat Attractions

In living in the country, it is a decided advantage to live somewhere near the county seat. There is always an intense rivalry among the towns in every county as to which town shall occupy this proud eminence, and in the frontier states this "county-seat wars" have been distinctively and bloodily American. To live near the county seat is to reside close to the "hub" of county happenings; and to be able to attend all important trials which are held during the year, and in many other ways to keep in touch with local affairs and to enjoy the privileges of the county seat band concerts and other diversion. The county fair is almost invariably held at the county seat, and the horse races flourish there. Likewise the old soldiers' reunions are there found flourishing with greater vitality than elsewhere. And where we lived, the memory of the great battle to secure the county seat had not yet quite faded away from the minds of the residents of the county, and local pride still stiffened its bristles at the thought of the contest.

The county seat was situated among rows of splendid maples, and was guiltless of any modern fripperies of an effete taste such as paved streets. In the summertime a paralytic sprinkling-cart dribbled a few random squirts of water on the thick dust that blanketed the various thoroughfares of the town; but every passing wheel stirred up a cloud of it over the loungers on passersby. At the crossings there were walks laid, sometimes of brick, sometimes of stone, and in dry weather these were not entirely covered by the dust. In wet weather they were navigable, and that was about all.

There was not much architectural grandeur visible, even the courthouse, which was the monument of the triumph of the citizens, being a very moderately ornate structure. But as it was the house of the county archives, as well as the temple of justice, it served to point the moral of success and it was the scene of many hard-fought legal battles during the year. Court terms were about once every three or four months, and there were always one or two murder cases on the docket; and these could be depended on to bring nearly the entire county over to hear the evidence and listen to the eloquence of opposing counsel.

Court week was a real institution. The various restaurant keepers took on a more optimistic view of existence, and the farmers would even lay aside work in the fields to sit and listen to some one of the more celebrated local orators split the empyrean with his impassioned harangue. Sometimes these cases would last for a week, and the courtroom was always crowded to the very doors to hear the passages-at-arms between opposing counsel. The chief delight in a country audience is to listen to some lawyer who has a reputation for wit in the county, and his sallies are always greeted with hearty laughter that even the surly raps of the sheriff's gavel can only curb, but not suppress.

Men, women and children flock to these trials, and they even bring their lunches with them and eat them in the courtroom during the dinner hour, when some important trial is in progress, rather than to lose the chance of not getting their seats again when the trial is resumed in the afternoon. Some very dramatic battles were fought there during our stay on the farm, and once we attended a trial for two days where the relatives of the dead man, and of the defendant, sat looking daggers at one another from opposite sides of the seats reserved for spectators; or leaned forward listening hungrily to the charges and counter-charges that fell from the lips of the respective attorneys for the state and for the defense.

During court week the hotels at the county seat were always crowded, and at the most pretentious of these the judge always had his headquarters. The stray "drummers" who stopped off during this time were not so much in evidence as on quieter weeks, and they sat around mostly playing solitaire in the corners of the "corridor" at little desks that had been placed there, or stood on the street corners eyeing the crowds that drifted up and down the streets.

In the drug stores, on the corners, at the livery stables, at the hotel, and even in the courtroom itself there was constant debate on the rights and wrongs of the case that was being tried, and on the respective abilities of the men who were conducting the case. Each lawyer had his champions, and wonderful reports of one or the other's masterly eloquence were handed about with picturesque additions of assertion and emphasis.

It was something that stood in place of the drama, and to follow a murder trial from start to finish is much in the nature of some staged tragedy, only the court scene is stripped to the bare and harsh realities, and you feel that the waits between the acts hold more significance than the shifting of scenery, or the makeup of the actors.

The county seat also has the distinction (sometimes a doubtful one) of having the best band in the county. It always has a band, and sometimes it has the best band, and occasionally the best is not anything to boast of. On the public square in front of the courthouse, the band stand in the county seat had been erected, and architecturally it was not anything to speak of, but it was roomy enough to seat the band.

Concerts were on Saturdays, generally, and commenced in the afternoon and wound up about nine o'clock in the evening. Selections from the latest classic ragtime were mostly in demand, and while the music was not at all intricate, some of it was played very well, and with invariable earnestness.

Saturday afternoon at the county seat was always the social clearing house for the entire county; for if you owed anyone a call, and did not have time to go over and see him, you could count on it as almost a sure thing that you could find him in town Saturday some time, and usually in the afternoon. So the streets and corners were lined with men, and the stores were crowded with women who were not only doing their weekly shopping, but were meeting friends and neighbors and exchanging news and gossip of their respective neighborhoods.

In the summertime, too, the local baseball club held its celebrations, in the way of doughty contests with the nine of some nearby town; and the excitement was always intense among the adherents of the respective champions. As there were no street cars in this particular county seat, and no means of transportation to the scene of the fray except by one small "bus" the spectators generally went in buggies, or even by foot. There was just as much interest displayed as at a metropolitan game, and excitement was always at a white heat until the games terminated. The county seat papers had elaborate accounts of the games and the playing of this or that local favorite was gone over with the same attention to detail and the identical phraseology used as the dailies in the great cities used in their columns.

Shopping at the county seat was a great institution on Saturdays, especially in the afternoons; the farmers driving in from miles around to make their purchases. Most of the stores were general stores, with merchandise of all sorts, but there were some that stuck closely to one line of goods. I recollect being in one general store where they sold among other things stoves and carpets and hearing a farmer and his wife who had just bought a stove, discussing the buying of a covering for the floor on which the stove was to be placed. The wife wanted oil cloth, and the storekeeper, either to please her, or to get rid of the oil cloth, talked long and enthusiastically on the beauty and desirability of oil cloth for the room.

But the farmer was obdurately in favor of a rag carpet. To the remonstrances of the storekeeper and the protests of his wife he retorted with the remark, "Well, by gum, I ain't goin' to step around barefoot on no oil cloth with the thermometer pintin' to 15 degrees below zero, and make fires ever' mornin' an' git out ashes. I tried that one winter, an' I want a carpet, so'st I can make fires barefoot, an' climb back in bed till the old woman gits coffee ready." They compromised on rag carpet to please the old man.

In the summertime there are the horse races occasionally, and there is just as much juggling, and working in "ringers" at a county horse race, as there ever was at a big race track. I don't know of any easier way in the world to lose money than to bet it on a country horse race; unless it is to play poker with total strangers. There was a good track at our county seat, and the best way to enjoy it was to go out and see the horses run, and let the other fellows do the betting.

When the county fair came, there were all the old and time-honored institutions of the side show, the prize bull, the largest pumpkin, the three card monte man and the little pea that held the shell where you always guessed it wasn't. Here was pink lemonade and the harmless, necessary peanut; here were the proud and haughty stallions and curly-necked bulls. Here at any time you could hear the lowing of the herds, the crowing of roosters and the baaing of silly sheep. Here the farmers leaned over the pens and stalls, over the stys and boxes that held the cattle, hogs, poultry and various paraphernalia of the exhibits, and talked, gesticulated and affirmed loudly about the merits and demerits of different breeds and crosses.

In the evenings, the band, now occupying a position of local prominence, discoursed from their instruments the wild and fluctuating notes of various misfit strains, and the bearded lady and the headless wonder divided honors with the enormous python and the beautiful albino of the side tents.

"Barkers," blatant of voice and brazen of demeanor, tore off strips of verbal dissonance in praise of their wares or exhibits, and many a hard-earned quarter was beguiled to their cavernous pockets. Kerosene lights flared wildly, and all went merry as a marriage bell until time came to douse the lights and prepare for tomorrow. The marshal, an imposing spectacle with his glittering star and awful air of authority, drifted up and down through the crowds, and represented, with an imposing length of whisker, the inviolable majesty of the law.

At the county seat the oldest settlers always lived. Those who had been in the legislature with Lincoln; those who had listened to the antebellum debates. Old settlers, indeed; the grass itself was old on their graves, the mossy lichens were ancient on their tombstones.

At the county seat the revivals were usually held, and all the people from the surrounding country crowded in to hear the noted evangelists. Here, too, of course, the principal papers of the county were printed, one of them having been published by the same man for 50 years. A very ably edited paper, too. Its editorials were full of fire and energy, and its makeup, and selection of news denoted the possession of ability and journalistic prescience of a high order.

Here was also the hot-bed of political intrigue, for here the plans for the elections were consummated, and here the offices were distributed to the successful aspirants. The county seat had once been a manufacturing point, but its rival to the west had long since outstripped it in material power, and had manufactories that sent their products to the ends of the world. And each year this growing rival perfected little by little its plan to wrest away from the present county seat its importance as the real "hub," and there was a slow, insidious feeling in and about the town that eventually its hated opponent would capture the coveted honor and leave the present courthouse a mere barracks in the public square, a melancholy reminder of the days that were.

Every year the old soldiers held their reunion at the county seat, and their march past the courthouse, and their greeting in the evening was one of the occasions for oratory and the revival of the days when the call for volunteers came. But each year the line grows thinner; each twelve-month makes gaps in the ranks. And to the children of those who marched to the front the recollections of those times is dim indeed; to their grandchildren it is a holiday.

There is always, about a county seat which is losing its grip, some sense of self-preservation, some spasmodic attempt to revive public spirit, and send a current of action along the veins of the town. But no town can advance without a restless activity and a steady plane of public spirit, and in our county seat the spirit of Sleepy Hollow was rampant. Its streets were unpaved from year to year; its sidewalks barely kept out of the mud during favorable conditions; its electric service was sputteringly inadequate; its water works primitive and subject to breakdown; its revenues uncertain and insufficient.

And yet from the clarion-voiced columns of the one real paper in the town there was always the note of courage, the herald of warning, the tocsin of encouragement. But as it was in the beginning, so now, and so it should ever be that this county seat was doomed to dry out and disappear from sight as an entity and a social community, and sink into the shadows, a forgotten hamlet. It was off of the main traveled tracks of the steam highways, and it was far from any river that might give it a hint of reviving power. It was shunned of manufactories, and its commerce depended largely on its position as the county seat.

And yet inch by inch the encroaching advances of the nearby town came seeping and gnawing at the foundations of its power, and month by month its citizens either heedlessly or slothfully ignored the rising tide, and issue by issue the sentinel at the gate, the editor of the weekly paper, sought in vain to arouse a healthy flow of public spirit which should give the town a renewed vitality, and check the approach of its impending dissolution.

But with placid and cow-like complaisance the citizens ate, slept and put on clothes. They did not and do not now know the doom that encompasses them around about. We saw it with every day that dawned: for the election which deprives it of its courthouse means the funeral of the town.

For then will the "shouting of the captains and the tumult die" indeed within its precincts. Then will the gaudy trappings of the county fair and the spangled garishness of the street fakirs wither and be not. Then will the dust pile ankle high in the streets, and no dabbling of occasional jets of water disturb its muffled folds. Then will the courthouse be boarded up and left to the wind and rain. Then will their inhabitants creep Rip Van Winkle like from their gardens to their houses, intent only on the almanacs for their mental pabulum, and the church bells for their final summons. Then will the "glory of Ichabod," such as it was, be entirely departed, and legend and reminiscence only be left to tell of the departed activities of the deserted county seat.

First Memorial Day Celebration

LOOKING back through the vista of 38 years we recall the grand spectacle of the first observance of the ceremonies of Memorial day, under Order No. 11, of Gen. John A. Logan, then commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic. May 30, 1868, dawned gloriously, as if heaven had smiled propitiously for the day.

Unexpectedly to Gen. Logan the order elicited the heartiest co-operation of all loyal citizens with the Grand Army of the Republic in honoring the memory of the heroic dead, whose bodies lay "in almost every city, village churchyard in the land."

The survivors of the civil war were then a large part of the population in all communities. They seized with great enthusiasm the suggestion of commemoration of the names and deeds of their departed comrades. Generously assisted by patriotic people, the heaven-born ceremony was inaugurated with so much reverential eclat as to make an indelible impression on the whole nation and establish its permanency forevermore. So interesting were the ceremonies that congress made an appropriation for the publication of the reports of the proceedings at many places in almost every state and territory, as also in Old and New Mexico.

The most imposing and impressive exercises were those at Arlington, where then slept more than 22,000 heroic dead. Two thousand one hundred of that number are in the catacombs of the granite mausoleum upon which is inscribed "Unknown."

It may be of interest to many who have not visited this Valhalla of American patriots to read the inscription chiseled on this tomb:

"Beneath this stone repose the bones of two thousand one hundred and eleven unknown soldiers, gathered after the war from the fields of Bull Run and the route to Rappahannock. Their remains could not be identified, but their names and deeds are recorded in the archives of their country; and its grateful citizens honor them as of their noble army of martyrs. May they rest in peace!

"September 1, In 1866."

Surmounting the tomb are four rifled field pieces, one at each corner, and a stack of cannon balls. On Decoration day, 1868, floral shields formed the center of each side, and upon them were appropriate inscriptions. On the north side:

"On Fame's eternal camping ground
Their silent tents are spread,
And Glory guards with solemn round
The bivouac of the dead."

On the west side:

"Whether on tented field
Or in the battle's van,
The fittest place for man to die
Is where he dies for man."

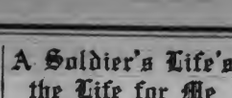
On the east side:

"Here rest the brave who sunk to rest,
By all their country's wishes blest."

On the south side:

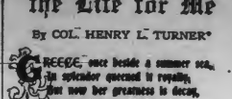
"The grave should be surrounded by everything that might inspire tenderness and veneration for the dead, or that might win the erring to virtue. It is not the place of disgust and dismay, but of sorrow and meditation."

In addition to the thousands in the mausoleum there are hundreds of graves in the grounds marked "Unknown." But few of the present generation know that the hallowed bones in the mausoleum and those in the graves whose headstones bear the melancholy word "Unknown," were, through the efforts of that incomparable, patriotic woman, Clara Barton, gathered from the many battlefields of Virginia and from isolated places in the forests around them, whither wounded soldiers had crawled and died, and whose bodies were undiscovered by the burial corps, who at best could do little more than cover over their fallen comrades with a few spadefuls of earth after the sanguinary struggle of many hours, before they were obliged to press forward to hold advanced positions. The springtime rains, the summer suns, the winter snows beat upon the hastily made mounds or trenches and laid bare the sacred forms which were soon naught save whitened skeletons.



Clara Barton conceived the idea of gathering them together and placing them in scientific hands so as to classify and inter them in Arlington. Congress adopted her suggestion and ordered the secretary of war to furnish transportation and detail men to accompany her on her mission of rescuing the remains of heroes from obliteration by further exposure to the elements.

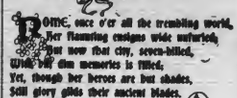
This sacred spot is full of historic interest. Once the property of the family of Washington, from whom it was inherited by Robert E. Lee—and when he deserted it to cast his lot with the confederacy—it curiously became the last resting place of those who had sacrificed their lives in the defense of the union, which Lee and his cohorts had tried to dismember.



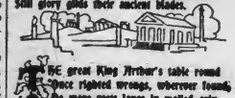
The program of May 30, 1868, for the decoration of the graves in Arlington was perfect. The president, his cabinet, the great captains of the army and [illegible] distinguished representatives of foreign countries in the persons of members of the diplomatic corps, many of the supreme court, the senate and house of representatives were present to participate in honoring the fallen braves, with the troops of the different branches of the service in and about Washington and the long line of ex-union soldiers who composed the Department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic. Under the direction of Prof. Scala, the marine and other bands played the Miserere, funeral dirges and appropriate patriotic airs at intervals

A Soldier's Life's the Life for Me

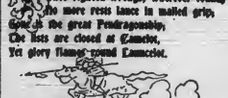
By COL. HENRY L. TURNER*



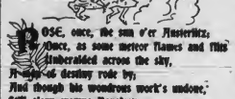
GREECE, once beside a summer sea,
In splendor queened it royally,
But now her greatness is decay,
Her mighty men but mouldering clay,
Yet down o'er many a century
Still glory glints Thermopylæ.



ROME, once o'er all the trembling world,
Her flaunting ensigns wide unfurled,
But now that city, seven-billed,
Whose all the memories is filled;
Yet, though her heroes are but shades,
Still glory gilds their ancient blades.



THE great King Arthur's table round
Once righted wrongs, wherever found;
No more rests lance in mailed grip,
Gone is the great Pendragonship,
The lists are closed at Camelot,
Yet glory flames round Launcelot.



ROSE, once, the sun o'er Austerlitz;
Once, as some meteor flames and flits
Emblazoned across the sky,
Napoleon's destiny rode by;
And though his wondrous work's undone,
Still glory crowns Napoleon.

THREE through our land, in dread array,
Battled to death the blue and gray.
But now the dead united lie,
Clasping hand in hand, pass by;
And though war's clamors sound no more,
Its glory gilds our country o'er.

A SOLDIER'S life's the life for me!
Soldiers achieved Thermopylæ;
Soldiers o'er many seas supremacy,
Clustered and lance made chivalry,
France' eagles won him victory,
And soldiers set Columbia free.

*Col. Turner served through the civil war as a volunteer officer. Some years ago he became connected with the First infantry of the Illinois National Guard and commanded that regiment during the campaign at Santiago, Cuba, in 1898. The poem is copyrighted by the author.

VISION OF GETTYSBURG.

Painted by a Little Girl for Her Soldier Grandfather.

"Some years ago an old man with silvery hair was led into the cyclorama of Gettysburg by a bright-faced little girl. Aged and feeble, he sat down, while the child described to him the features of the picture. Occasionally he asked her a question as in doubt of the accuracy of her account. She had described the charge of the confederate columns and the struggle at the stone wall, when he asked: 'But where's the artillery, May?' 'Do you mean the big guns? They're over there on the hill in a row.' 'All in a row?' he asked. 'Yes,' she said; 'there are some more down here, but they are all upset. I think they are bursted.' 'Is that where the men are coming over the hill?' 'Yes, grandpa.' 'Is there a grove of trees?' 'Yes, it seems to be full of men, but the smoke is so thick you can not see them.' 'Oh, I see them,' he cried.

"It was then noticed by some of the party near him that he was blind. The little girl answered: 'O, no, grandpa, you can't see them.' 'Yes, I can,' said the old soldier. 'I can see the men, the grove, and the broken cannon lying about.' The child looked at him in innocent surprise, and said: 'You are joking, grandpa.' 'No, my dear,' answered the old man. 'No, that was the last thing I ever saw. There was a caisson exploded there just this side of the stone wall, and that was the last terrible picture I ever saw, for it was then that I lost my eyesight, and I have never got the picture out of my mind.'"

Following is a portion of the order of the Grant county Democratic committee, under which the primary election will be held on the 1st day of next August: "If any candidate to be voted for at said primary election shall, either by himself or by his direction, or by his friends with his knowledge or consent, either directly or indirectly, give, loan or promise to any voter, or any one for a voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing his election, except by announcing his candidacy in the county papers, and by cards and posters, the vote of such candidate thus offending shall be thrown out and not counted, and on no account shall he be declared the nominee.

"This paragraph is intended to and does embrace this: That no candidate is permitted to hire any person or persons to work for him, or hire conveyances of any kind to carry voters to the polls, or to pay for meals, necessaries, commodities or luxuries of any kind whatever for any voter or persons working for him."

Discouraged farmers should remember the season of only twelve months ago. They, with every one else are apt to say that this is the most backward spring they ever saw, when a little reflection will show that they are entirely wrong. A year ago we had a very backward and discouraging spring. It is true there was not so much cold weather as at present, but the rain continued so long and was so persistent that every one claimed there would be no crop raised. Much of the corn was planted in June, and nearly all of the rest went in the ground late in May. Even under these circumstances a very good crop was produced, and only a small per cent of the corn was actually and wholly lost. A great deal of it never reached maturity, but even that was not a total loss. As dark as the outlook has been this spring, it is better than was afforded last year. So what's the use worrying? It will all come around right, and what will be lost by unavoidable circumstances can be made up in some other way if one only believes and wills it.

As Joseph Schwartz and son, of Hebron neighborhood, were going home from church at Florence last Sunday before noon, the horse attached to their buggy became frightened and began running and kicking as they came down the hill to Limaburg, and when it attempted to make the turn on the Hebron road at Limaburg, one of the buggy wheels gave down and the occupants of the vehiclewere thrown out, dislocating one of Mr. Schwartz's arms at the elbow and mashing his nose badly. The son was not hurt.

Editor Westover, of the Grant County News, is highly pleased with the new school law. He says: "After having read and thoroughly digested the new Common School Law of Kentucky, we are of the opinion that it is so far ahead of anything of the kind ever before adopted in the State, that if the Legislature had not passed another bill during the session their work was well worth their time and money."

In tracing a title to a considerable piece of valuable land in this county, one day last week, Judge Cason came to a gap, which, no doubt, was caused by some person failing to have a deed recorded. A deed should always be recorded in the County Clerk's Office as soon as possible after the party to whom the conveyance is made, comes in posession of it.

Burlington base ball team went to Belleview, last Saturday afternoon, where it was defeated in a very closely played game in a score of 9 to 7. Bellevue has not gone up against an aggregation this season that can entertain it. Black and McGuire, Burlington's new recruits, made a good showing for the beginning.

W. E. Vest, the real estate agent, of Walton, was in town, Monday, and closed up a deal whereby W. C. Evans, of Covington, purchased of W. C. Watts, of Bullittsville, his farm of 160 acres near Francesville, at the price of $8,000. Mr. Watts taking in part pay the Evans house and lot in Burlington at $1,800.

Just as some began predicting a considerable period of dry weather, last week, the showers began coming at night, and while not heavy enough to interrupt farm work, they kept vegetation booming.

Grant county has a lady candidate for the Democratic nomination for superintendent of common schools—Miss Anna R. Beasley, handsome and accomplished, and a factor in the contest.

A washing rain fell here at 3:30 o'clock, last Monday afternoon, doing considerable damage to plowed land, and delaying the work of planting corn.

There will be a business meeting at Bullittsburg Baptist church, next Saturday at 3 o'clock p. m. All the members are earnestly requested to be present.

The RECORDER would like to know if the Carrollton Democrat is still among the living. It has not appeared at this office in many months.

Farmers of Bracken and other counties who were compelled to leave the State by night riders are said to be preparing to file suits in the Federal court.

Crop Reports say a large part of the wheat crop in Southern Indiana has been ruined by excessive rains, while in Kansas the crop has been blighted by drought.

Week by week the number of candidates is increasing in Grant county. Can it be that the cutting out of the 1908 tobacco crop has caused the unusual number of aspirants for county offices?

Along the Wabash river in Indiana the bottoms have been under water so much this spring that the farmers do not think it possible to grow a crop this year, and are offering large numbers of live stock for sale.

The statement of the Cincinnati National Banks as of the 14th inst., shows that they had on deposit the sum of $63,079,398. One year ago their deposits aggregated $64,596,402, there being a decrease of $1,517,134 in the year.

The Democratic State convention will be held in Lexington on Thursday, June 11th, to select delegates to the Democratic National convention in Denver. The counties will select their delegates to the State convention by mass conventions held at the county seats on Saturday, June 6th. Boone is entitled to 10 delegates in the State convention.

In the United States farms average 150 acres, and plows and farm machinery weigh one-third less per implement on the average than English made implements, and farms there average 10 acres. About the same conditions as to implements obtain in France, and their farms average five acres. In India they still use crooked sticks for plows, and their farms are about half an acre.

Erlanger people still live in hope of some development soon, in their favor in electric road circles, but the road that on several occasions seemed about ready for construction to their city has not been extended a foot towards Erlanger since it reached Highland cemetery. At one time it looked like the electric car would reach Erlanger in a few months, but nothing is doing now to encourage the people there along that line.

With the time and place for the Democratic State convention being fixed, the contest for the office of State Central Committeeman for this the Sixth Congressional district, is coming to the front and considerable wire pulling is being engaged in. It is said that Joseph Pugh, the present member of the committee, desires to retain the position, while W. N. Hind wants to succeed him. The contest for the place will be interesting.

The question of good roads is claiming the attention of Boone county people as never before, and there will be considerable progress made along that line in the county in the next few years. Every mile of pike built in a neighborhood stimulates an effort in that direction somewhere else as in each locality are enterprising citizens who desire to keep pace with the advance made by their neighbors. This spirit will finally bring results, and the time will come when the principal roads will be converted into turnpikes, and Boone will take her place as one of the best counties in the State.

Judge A. R. Burnam and Lawson Reno have been engaged in an interesting newspaper discussion in regard to the Judge's attitude towards Senator Bradley's candidacy before the Republican State convention for a position as one of Kentucky's big four in the Chicago convention. It seems that Mr. Reno thinks Judge Burnam was suddenly overtaken by a change of heart towards the Senator and failed to act in good faith in the matter, all of which made the Judge somewhat wrathy, and he says it is ridiculous and untrue that anyone was deceived as to his attitude or believed that he would support Bradley.

There are several entries already announced in the congressional race, with one or two others understood to be in a waiting attitude. Joseph L. Rhinock, of Covington, who is serving his second term, is a candidate to succeed himself. D. Linn Gooch, of Covington, whom he succeeded three years ago, is anxious to serve in Congress again, and is an active candidate. Former Circuit Judge John T. Hodge, of Newport, has been studying the situation for some time past, and it is said, has concluded to try for the nomination. Clifford E. Nadaud, of Covington, has been stumping the district for several weeks. Grant county has two candidates in State Senator R. H. Ellis-ton and Dr. O. P. Hogan, and Carroll has two in J. A. Donaldson and John Gaunt, with Editor Smith, of Carrollton, as a possible. So says brother Moore in the Covington column of the Enquirer.

FOR CONGRESS.

Hon. Clifford E. Nadaud, of Kenton county, is a candidate for Congress from the Sixth Kentucky District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Hon. R. H. Elliston, of Grant county, is a candidate for Congress from the Sixth Kentucky District, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

Pendleton county, already a large producer of small cucumber pickles, will raise a largely increased acreage this year. Many farmers who have been raising tobacco will try the crop. It brings in considerable money, if properly handled, some growers realizing as much as $140 to $160 per acre.

The Recorder failed to mention last week, the manner in which Lloyd Weaver lead in the shooting match on the 16th. None of the other boys ever became dangerous competitors, his record being 21 out of a possible 25. Three of the other shootists broke 18 each.

W. P. Sullivan and three or four small boys had some fine sport with their hooks and lines down on Gunpowder, one day last week. Their catch, which was large, consisted of cats, suckers, sun fish and bass.

C. E. Clore, of Hebron, painter, paper hanger and decorator, came over last Friday to do some work on the residence to which Rev. Edgar Riley will move from Lexington in the next few days.

John Baldon brought his engine from down on Gunpowder, last Thursday, and is giving it a general overhauling preparatory to locating his saw mill on Middle creek near R. A. Brady's.

A horse belonging to Ransom Ryle, of Locust Grove neighborhood, died one day last week, but it was not long until he had replaced the animal with another.

In this county wool is generally sold before it is clipped, but not so this year, owing to the price being so low that the farmers are slow about accepting it.

The schedule for the carrying of the mail from Erlanger to Burlington has been rearranged, and the service has been very much improved thereby.

Potatoes that were planted early this year rotted badly, and some patches had to be broken up again, and replanted with seed that cost $1 25 a bushel.

Fisher, the liniment man, of Lawrenceburg, made a tour of this part of the county, last week. He sells a great deal of his excellent medicine.

Corn planted last week will come up without delay, and will grow rapidly. It will not turn yellow from an encounter with the cold weather.

The farmers will scarcely get their corn out of the way before the grain harvest will require attention, and it will be followed closely by the hay.

Frank Robbins, of Lawrenceburg, was in Burlington, last Friday. Frank will be a Kentuckian if he lives to be a 1,000 years old.

Clutterbuck Bros. made their first shipment of spring chickens, last Thursday. They gave 20 cents a pound for them.

Herbert Kirk, and Earl and Russell Smith went to Cincinnati, last Friday, to equip themselves for the base ball season.

The box owners of rural route No. 2 have been notified to number and put their names on their mail boxes.

Garden truck will grow now, and it will not be long before some will begin bragging about having fine gardens.

A great amount of work was done in the gardens, last week.

Globe-Wernicke Book Cases at Knorr's.

Next Saturday is Decoration Day.

The Anderson Ferry ball team is booked for two games here next Saturday, to be followed on Monday afternoon by Belleview. As the weather warms up new life is manifested in base ball circles.

A Californian's Luck.

"The luckiest day of my life was when I bought a box of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, writes Chas. F. Budahn, of Tracy, California. "Two 25c boxes cured me of an annoying case of itching piles, which had troubled me for years and that yielded to no other treatment." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

Herbert Kirk's bovine antagonist met him on the diamond at the base ball park again, one day last week, and a bloodless conflict ensued in which the bull came out second best. Herbert poured rocks into the beast's head and sides at a gatling gun rate, making it so hot for his would-be annihilator that he beat a hasty retreat to the opposite side of the 100 acre field, while Herbert shouted defiance at him. He does not anticipate any further trouble with that anti base ballist.

The Owenton Herald says: "Several pool houses in this county are receiving tobacco and the 1907 crop is showing up in fine style. The next three months will be a busy season with the handlers. Much encouragement has come to the growers lately on account of the heavy sales and the immediate prospects of an early distribution of part of the 1906 crop. The work is proceeding nicely along all lines and success is coming our way. The fight of three years is drawing to a close and the farmer will soon be the recognized leader in the tobacco world. He has suffered much, but he has also won much in the fight he has waged, and to him, and to him alone, belongs the spoils of the victory."

The mortal remains of Mrs. T. W. Barker, the beloved wife of Rev. T. W. Barker, a former pastor of the Methodist church in this city, arrived here yesterday morning and after funeral services at the Methodist church, conducted by Rev. D. W. Robertson, of Shelbyville, Revs. Clark, of Butler and Maxwell, of this city, assisting, the body was borne to its last resting place in Riverside cemetery.

During their residence in this city several years ago Bro. Barker and his entire family greatly endeared themselves to our people. Mrs. Barker was a noble, self sacrificing christian woman, a consecrated worker in the Master's vineyard and by her godly deeds and words was in truth a helpmate to her husband in his ministerial duties. Her death occurred in her 55th year at her home in Stanford at 5 a. m. on Monday, May 18, 1908. She had been an invalid for the past four years, suffering from tuberculosis of the bones, which finally caused her death.

Besides her husband one daughter and one son, Miss Myrtle and Brooks, survive her. The oldest child, Pearl, was called home to her Savior during her parents' residence here and her body rests beside that of her mother.—Falmouth Pendletonian.

MRS. C. C. CONNER DEAD.

Wife of Universalist Pastor Passed Away at Burlington.

Mrs. Sarah R. (Stedman) Conner, wife of Rev. Charles C. Conner, pastor of the First Universalist church of this city, died this morning at about eight o'clock at the Lakeview sanitarium, Burlington, where she went a little over a week ago for rest and treatment. The cause of death was functional disease of the heart.

She was born in Aurora, Indiana, February 3, 1860, and was the oldest child of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Stedman. She graduated from Aurora high school and received also a musical education in St. Louis and Cincinnati. She was married to Rev. C. C. Conner on October 20, 1880. Two children were born to them, Ellen, now Mrs. E. C. Gould of Palmer, Mass., and Ruth, who is in her second year in Goddard seminary.

As a minister's wife she sympathized heartily with the work of her husband and shared it earnestly, and he accords to her a large part of the success which has attended his labors. She was a faithful friend, a true and devoted wife and mother, and a consecrated worker for the church, for which she has, in a way, lain down her life.

Mrs. Conner had made a large circle of friends in this community, all of whom will join in extending heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. She was prominent in the work of the local church and in social circles also she took great interest, being a member of the Clover club.—Barre, Vt., Daily Times, May 18.

Mr. Conner has the sympathy of many friends here at his old home. The remains were brought to Aurora and interred in Riverview cemetery, last Thursday.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. The probability is that a section of the Waterloo and Rabbit Hash turnpike will be built this summer, and it is hoped that the work once begun will not stop until the entire road between the two points is piked. Once on a pike the people between Waterloo and Rabbit Hash will wonder how they put up so long with the dirt road.

The Board of Control of the Burley Tobacco Association of Grant county have managed their affairs well. All of the 1906 pooled crop has been shipped to Cincinnati and is now stored in the warehouses of the Farmers and Shippers Tobacco Warehouse Co. The 1907 crop is being delivered to the handlers in various parts of the county and is being hung preparatory to being redried. The growers are receiving five cents per pound on the amount of tobacco which they deliver to these various warehouses. In addition to all of this the Board at its meeting last Saturday made arrangements with the local buyers in Grant county that under a contract with them the buyers might go out into the county and buy of the farmers any pooled tobacco which has not been delivered to the Equity warehouses. Of course all of the tobacco so bought must be kept in the pool and stringent restrictions and regulations are thrown around its purchase and handling. The tobacco growers of Grant seem to be very well satisfied with the situation and apparently there is no friction of any kind.—Owen Democrat.

WHAT FOUR LEPERS DID

An Incident of the Siege of Samaria in Days of Elisha.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

Scripture Authority—2 Kings 6:24-7:1-20.

SERMONETTE.

Self-help leads to God-help.

The limit of human endeavor marks the borderland of God's power.

We must do before we can discover what God has done.

Many a soul is famishing in ignorance of the plenty which God has provided just outside the closed gate of the will.

Realization of a desperate condition is the first step in the direction of deliverance.

The one cast out by men may become the messenger of God.

The depth of human need is often God's recruiting ground.

The discovered good thing may become a curse unless it is shared with others suffering a like need.

God can make the food of the enemy feed his famished children.

God can turn the famine into a feast every time.

Samaria turned the lepers out to die, and the lepers returned with a message of life. Evil was returned with good.

God's blessings are best enjoyed when passed along.

Bearers of good tidings always find doubting hearts to question the truth of their reports.

The doubting heart is always ready with its plausible theory as to why it should not believe.

The doubting heart misses many a blessing at God's hands.

It was a simple test which the servants of the king suggested to prove whether the message of the lepers was true. It was just "let us send and see." This is the appeal of the Psalmist when he cries to the doubting heart: "Oh taste and see that the Lord is good." Jesus' invitation to the first inquiring disciples was: "Come and see." When Nathaniel doubted that the Messiah had come out of Nazareth, Philip responded with the simple test: "Come and see." The woman who met Jesus at the well cried to her fellow townsmen of Sychar: "Come and see," and this is the simplest, the quickest and the surest way of proving that Jesus has delivered the soul besieged by sin and has spread a feast for those who hear the glad tidings and "Come and see."

THE STORY.

IT WAS during the siege of Samaria by the mighty Ben-Hadad, king of Syria. For long, long months the city had been shut within its strong walls and the famine was pressing sore upon the people. The scant supply of provisions grew less and less and finally those who had not gold and silver to buy at exorbitant prices were unable longer to obtain food, so that many died.

Awful was the suffering of the people, and dark and terrible were the deeds which the people crazed by hunger were led to commit. It was no uncommon thing to hear of the eating of human flesh, the stronger prevailing over the weak and taking life that the life of the other might be sustained. Such was the condition in the city of Syria, where the king of Israel dwelt.

And without the walls of the city were four lepers suffering from the scarcity of food, but missing the awful sights and sounds which those within the walls had to endure. Now it had been that during the early months of the siege the friends of these leprous outcasts remembered them and cast food down to them from the walls. These food supplies which they had carefully stored and used as sparingly as possible were finally exhausted, and then they realized as never before that they were face to face with death. They knew they could not look for further help from their brethren in the city of Samaria, and they understood equally well that the enemy encamped all around the city would not listen to their cry for bread.

"Surely we have fallen upon evil days," exclaimed one, dolefully.

"Yea, as though our condition was not miserable enough there must be added this that we perish with hunger," responded a second, drawing his ragged mantle about his emaciated form. And then he added with an air of utter hopelessness: "But why should we desire to live? Is not our leprosy but a living death, even now?"

"Starvation is but a quicker road to the grave," grimly assented a third.

"True, and we are well on our way to the valley of dry bones," spoke up the fourth, and by way of emphasis he extended his arm which was mere skin and bones, the white spots of leprosy making it the more ghastly.

A deep and long silence followed this round of comment from the four forlorn outcasts. From their place without the walls the cries and groans and curses from within could be faintly heard, and occasionally a figure could be seen passing along the top of the ramparts of the city far above them. Far out across the valley could be seen the tents of the Syrians glistening white in the last rays of the afternoon sun. Long months they had been there, until the sight had become monotonous and uninteresting, and to-day, as on other days, these four lepers let their eyes wander out in that direction, because they had nothing better to do.

Smoke could be seen curling up lazily from the multitude of camp fires, bringing a suggestion of food and the evening meal. A wistful look came into the face of one of the lepers, as he meditatively said:

"There is no lack of food with the Syrians."

"Thou art foolish in the thought," came the sharp rebuke from the man sitting next him, "for dead men need no food."

"Well, we can die but once. Better to perish in the effort to get food than to idly sit still until we perish," was the retort.

"Yes, and soon we shall be so weak we shall be unable to move, even though we want to," spoke up another, encouragingly, and he struggled to his feet. "Why should we sit here until we die? Come, let us go out to the host of the Syrians. If they save us alive we shall live; and if they kill us, we shall but die."

Saying which, he started off with uncertain steps toward the distant camp. By this time the evening shadows were beginning to fall and by the time they had reached the outskirts of the Syrian camp darkness had come. A strange silence brooded in the air, but so intent were the lepers in creeping in unnoticed that they did not become conscious of the ominous silence until they had stumbled over some garments lying upon the ground and fell headlong into the very midst of one of the tents. In fear and trembling they lay quiet where they had fallen, expecting to be killed any minute for their abrupt entrance, but as the moments went by and nothing happened, they became conscious of the stillness which filled all the camp. Not a sound could be heard save the noise of their rapid breathing, and at last they grew bold to rise and investigate the tent into which they had so unexpectedly stumbled. Food and garments were scattered about in the utmost confusion, as they could tell even in the darkness.

Then followed a hurried investigation, the lepers as they went from tent to tent gathering up articles of value, and at last exhausted with their efforts they sat down to eat more leisurely, for in their astonishment they at first had only eaten a few mouthfuls as they went.

"We do not well," suddenly exclaimed one of the lepers, "for this is a day of good things, and we hold our peace. If we tarry till the morning light, some mischief will come upon us; come now therefore, let us return and carry the good tidings to the city."

That had been a wonderful day in Samaria. Wonderful, for the hungry had been fed as though from the very hand of God. All day long the people had streamed forth to the camp of the Syrians, and spoiled the tents there so that everybody had an abundance and to spare. Then with the coming of the evening came the hugle call for the closing of the gates of the city. The few last stragglers have come in and the gate keeper has begun the task of shutting the ponderous iron dors, when he notes a little group of men standing at some distance outside the gate and looking wistfully within. He heckons them to come, and there comes the answering cry:

"Unclean! Unclean!"

"What!" cried some one from within the gate, "are the lepers who brought deliverance to the city to be shut out?"

Again the cry sounds forth:

"Unclean! Unclean!"

It was at that moment that a figure was seen to press through the gate, and as the people noted his long hair and cosrse robe they whispered: "It is the prophet."

With rapid strides the prophet proceeded straight to the group of four lepers, not heeding the cry of "Unclean! Unclean!"

And that night when the gates of Samaria closed they shut within, not without, the four lepers who had so nobly served the city in its sore need.

Saloon Town Reformed.

"We've got a town on our road the boys call 'Hell.' If you want a real hard thing to try out the Y. M. C. A. on, put it there." This was the remark made ten years ago by a railroad president to an International Y. M. C. A. secretary, who had urged that this organization could better the conditions of living and the service on the road. "That suits us," said the secretary. The company put up $4,500 for an equipment that the citizens $2,500. At the end of a month saloon men protested that the new organization was ruining their business. One of them, who had the biggest paying corner saloon in town, said his monthly receipts had fallen off from over $3,000 to $700, and he or the association had to quit." Now a handsome Episcopal church occupies his corner. A brakeman who came back to the town after an absence of two years, hunted for his former associates in their accustomed seats in the saloon and found them in the Y. M. C. A. building.

THE MOTHER'S LAMENT.

My son, and only one, was battle slain,
And he was all the world, and more, to me;
I gave him at my country's sacred fane,
When Sherman marched his legions to the sea.

In danger's threat'ning cloud, at country's call,
He left my side, and parting said to me:
"If in the battle, mother, I should fall,
My country and her God will care for thee."

And now, throughout the fair and blessed land,
On love-ordained and sweet Memorial day,
We go, a flower-laden, faithful band,
To spread on hero graves the bloom of May.

But for my soldier-boy that solace is not mine;
Within a southern vale, afar, he sleeps,
And in my heart is twined the myrtle vine,
For him, and there rosemary droops and weeps.

AT A PATRIOT'S GRAVE

Grandmother's Memorial Day Speech

By DORA OLIPHANT COE.

GRANDMOTHER ADAMSON had reached into the depths of her rose-sprigged bandbox, but just as her fingers touched the stiff ruching in the front of her best bonnet her attention was arrested by a ring at the front door. As though suddenly petrified in her stooping position, grandmother waited while Susan Ann, her daughter, sreaked through the passage way leading from the kitchen.

At the first words of greeting grandmother straightened with a snap like a jack-knife, and an angry color flamed on her cheeks.

"Why, Marthy Ellen, what lovely roses! Did you ever see the flowers so handsome as they are this year? Come right in. It's dreadful hot, ain't it? Seems like I never knowed it to warm up as early as it has this season, but, then, it's been awful fine for the flowers. 'Pears like the roses and laylocks and pinies has just tried theirselves to see who could do the most bloomin'. Now, that's a pretty idee, ain't it, Mrs. Rayburn, that laylock wreath?"

"Yes; laylocks was Dick's favorite flower, and he set this hush out hisself, and I thought I'd make a wreath to hang on the cross on his tombstun."

The expression on Grandmother Adamson's face would have made a good study. From a blaze of anger it passed through all the stages of horrified scorn to a stony determination.

The development of the conversation beyond the paper-covered board walls collected her nebulous chaotic emotions into a stern resolve.

Susan Ann was stout, and she had grieved all the morning over the long walk to the graveyard. As she sank ponderously into a chair, she lamented:

"I get heavier on my feet every day I live, and the heat to-day is just awful on me. If mother hadn't had her heart so set on it, I wouldn't try to go to the cemetery. I just know I'll be sick."

"Couldn't she walk up with us?" Mrs. Rayburn asked. "We'll not walk fast."

"Oh, mother's as spry on her feet as you be. I hadn't thought of her goin' with any one else, but I don't see why she couldn't. It'd be a real help. She ain't got nothin' to carry, for she took a big basket of flowers up this morning, before breakfast. She's just that wrapped up in Decoration day I couldn't disappoint her about goin'. She's gettin' ready now. I'll go and see if it'll be all right."

But grandmother, with what was almost one movement, had stooped forward and slipped off her congress gaiters; at the same time taking from its box her bonnet. She slipped a hand through the round handle of a little basket and scurried down the passageway and out through the back door. On the step she delayed just long enough to put on her shoes; then, with her best bonnet carried more carelessly than ever before in its dozen years of use, she hurried out through the back gate.

The cemetery was being made bright with flowers when grandmother passed through the iron gateway, and her face hardened as she recognized some of the stooping figures and the graves over which they bent.

At a brilliantly-decked mound she stopped and, kneeling, said:

"I hate to do it, Jeremiah, but I know you'd want me to. I won't take them to any one else, though, Jeremiah, though I know you'd say fur me to, if you was here. But dearie, I've keered fur these things ever sence they was buds, jest as tender as if they'd a b'en babies, and jest so's you could have them to-day, and I jest can't see any one else have 'em. How would you like to look over these posies and see that laylock wreath a-hangin' on old Dick Rayburn's tombstun? You fought, bled and died almost fur nothin', Jeremiah, when that old copperhead gits jest as many flowers as you do."

Grandmother had turned up the skirt of her black alpaca dress and, into the receptacle thus formed, had put every flower that had lain on Jeremiah's grave. She carried them all over to a far corner of the cemetery and buried them under a pile of last year's leaves. Then she went back to the bare mound.

Soon the faraway notes of "Cover Them Over with Beautiful Flowers," told that the procession was coming. Grandmother heard, but she did not once lift her eyes. She sat directly upon the middle of the grave, her skirts spread as far as they would over the flowerless mound, and she was knitting as calmly as if she were seated on a little splint-bottomed chair in her own room. She paid no attention to the astonished group that stopped before her.

"Ahem!" coughed the master of ceremonies, Henry Blake.

Grandmother looked up. "Howdedo Henry." Then, looking down again, "one, two, three, wlden; one, two, three, turn."

"We've come to decorate Comrade Adamson's grave," hesitated the puzzled Blake.

"Comrade Adamson's grave don't need no decoratin'—five, six, narrow; one, two—"

"You hain't forgot it's Decoration day, have you?" questioned the...

"If I have, I've been the only one that has." A flourish of her needle indicated the flower-decked mounds.

"But Comrade Adamson was a hero, and he—"

"Because he was a hero is why I don't want him decorated. That's the only way to distinguish him from them as ain't heroes."

With a little sweep of her skirts, grandmother rose to her feet.

"It's jest because Jeremiah was a hero that his grave ain't goin' to be strewed with flowers jest like the ones where the babies and copperheads lies. The babies might a-growed up to be heroes, if they'd had a chanst, but they didn't, and they's three hundred and sixty-four and a quarter other days in the year to decorate their graves in. It's almost a insult to—"

"THERE AIN'T NO MEMORIAL DAY NO MORE."

"Well, this day don't mean nothin' no more. It used to be set apart that we might honor the nation's dead, but the day, like me and some of the others here, has outlived our usefulness and our time. Let it be Decoration day, if you want to, but don't call it Memorial day any more. It's just a holiday for the young folks to have ball games and picnics, and the older folks to put flowers on the graves of their dead.

"Jest look through them trees. Can you tell which is the graves of soldiers who fought, bled, and died for this beautiful country? If this day was what it was named fur, there wouldn't be a flower in this hull graveyard exceptin' on a soldier's grave. I reckon it's little enough we do, even when we set aside a whole day out of a year to them as give their hull lives, and mighty promisin' lives some of 'em was, too.

"Take your flowers. Put 'em on any grave you happen to see. It don't matter. This is jest Decoration day. There ain't no Memorial day no more."—Los Angeles Times.

Memorial Day.

No pages of a nation's history are more interesting to its people than those which record the brave deeds of its soldiery and no nation ... of the earth has established so beautiful a custom as that which is contemplated by Memorial day, the strewing of spring flowers over the graves of her departed soldiers.

May the full meaning of the day come to us with all its solemnity and all its beauty, and with the patriotic lesson it presents.

SUMMED UP THE SITUATION.

Whole Sermon in the Tramp's Concluding Remark.

"Good morning, madam," said the seedy stranger, as the lady of the house opened the door in response to his knock.

"What is it?" demanded the lady of the house—a square-jawed, sharp-eyed, firm-lipped woman, with her hair in a little knot on the top of her head.

"Madam, I'm traveling incog, so to speak," explained the seedy stranger, with a brave attempt at a winning smile. "I am gathering material for a sociological book, and, of course, must gain my data from my experiences at the home of wealth and culture, one of which I readily perceived yours to be."

Not a smile from her. She coldly looked him up and down, closed the door slightly and inquired, icily:

"Is that all?"

"Ah, madam, if I could only interest you in my idea—my idea, if I may term it. I have so far been unable to find a young womsn worthy to figure as the heroine of my novel. Now, if your daughter could be described as the heroine, it would not only reflect credit on you, but pay a deserved tribute to the charms which I am sure she has inherited from—"

"We haven't any daughter. You may as well he going along."

"Then, madam, one word more. As you can readily understand, some of the most interesting portions of my book will deal with the food and lodging I received during my researches. Now, if you would oblige me with a meal—"

"Not to-day."

"Or even a-er-what is slangily termed a 'hand-out,' by the gentry of the road."

"We eat at the restaurant at the corner. So, of course, I haven't any cold victuals to hand out."

"Then, madam, if you could give a pair of your husband's old shoes—"

"My husband wears my old shoes."

And then she shut the door, and the student of sociology gazed at it for a moment, then turned and walked slowly to the gate, where he turned and looked back at the house and remarked, solemnly:

"And he deserves to."—Midland.

Lighter Then.

"You say Atlas held up the world?"

"I did."

"Carried it on his shoulders?"

"Yes, sir."

"He must have been a remarkably strong man. No man could do that nowadays."

"But things are different now."

"In what way?"

"Well, you see, there was hut a small part of the world discovered when he held it up."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

More proof that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saves woman from surgical operations.

Mrs. S. A. Williams, of Gardiner, Maine, writes:

"I was a great sufferer from female troubles, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound restored me to health in three months, after my physician declared that an operation was absolutely necessary."

Mrs. Alvina Sperling, of 154 Cleybourne Ave., Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I suffered from female troubles, a tumor and much inflammation. Two of the best doctors in Chicago decided that an operation was necessary to save my life. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely cured me without an operation."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

WHEN HE CAME HOME.

Mobile Youth Evidently Not One to Trifle with Truth.

Booker T. Washington, Tuskegee's famous head, said recently in New York that the thought the closing of saloons of the south would be a good thing. And to an objection he replied, with a smile:

"Oh, what a vague objection! Vaguer than the answer of the Mobile woman's son.

"A youth of twenty or so, he celebrated Easter in the uncloseed saloons by drinking large quantities of eggnog.

"The next morning he came home to breakfast red-eyed and pale. He ate nothing. He only tried, with many grimaces, to swallow a cup of coffee.

"'John,' said his mother, severely, 'what time did you come home last night?'

"The vague youth answered:

"'Bed time.'"—Los Angeles Times.

WAIT TILL HE SEES THE BILL.

"My husband has promised to allow me to choose what I want for my birthday."

"Oh, then there'll be no surprise this year."

"Won't there! I'll bet you there is, only he'll get it instead of me."

DR. TALKS OF FOOD

Pres. of Board of Health.

"What shall I eat?" is the daily inquiry the physician is met with. I do not hesitate to say that in my judgment a large percentage of disease is caused by poorly selected and improperly prepared food. My personal experience with the fully-cooked food, known as Grape-Nuts, enables me to speak freely of its merits.

"From overwork, I suffered several years with malnutrition, palpitation of the heart and loss of sleep. Last summer I was led to experiment personally with the new food, which I used in conjunction with good rich cow's milk. In a short time after I commenced its use, the disagreeable symptoms disappeared, my heart's action became steady and normal, the functions of the stomach were properly carried out and I again slept as soundly and as well as in my youth.

"I look upon Grape-Nuts as a perfect food, and no one can gainsay hut that it has a most prominent place in a rational, scientific system of feeding. Any one who uses this food will soon be convinced of the soundness of the principle upon which it is manufactured and may thereby know the facts as to its true worth." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

GALLANTRY.

Weary William—Excuse me, miss, but I see that you have had a tiff with your lover, and he has left you. Allow me to escort you home instead.

Saved From Being a Cripple for Life.

"Almost six or seven weeks ago I became paralyzed all at once with rheumatism," writes Mrs. Louis McKey, 913 Seventh street, Oakland, Cal. "It struck me in the back and extended from the hip of my right leg down to my foot. The attack was so severe that I could not move in bed and was afraid that I should be a cripple for life.

"About 12 years ago I received a sample bottle of your Liniment but never had occasion to use it, as I have always been well, but something told me that Sloan's Liniment would help me, so I tried it. After the second application I could get up out of bed, and in three days could walk, and now feel well and entirely free from pain.

"My friends were very much surprised at my rapid recovery and I was only too glad to tell them that Sloan's Liniment was the only medicine I used."

The Soft Answer.

Senator Tillman at a banquet in Washington said in humorous defense of outspoken and frank methods:

"These people who always keep calm fill me with mistrust. Those that never lose their temper I suspect. He who wears under abuse an angelic smile is apt to be a hypocrite.

"An old South Carolina deacon once said to me with a chuckle:

"'Keep yo' tempah, son. Don't yo' quarrel with no angry pusson. A soft answah am allus best. Hit's commanded an', furthermo', sonny, hit makes 'em maddah'n anything else could say.'" by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Truth and Quality

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS

FARMER SHOT TO DEATH.

Raid of Riders May Have Been Connected With the Tragedy.

Frankfort, Ky.—N. B. Hazelipp, prominent farmer of Shelby county, was found dead in the road near the Franklin county line, and a prospective raid by night riders is believed to have been connected with his death.

A wound from a shotgun in his chest and a cartridge near the body show how his death was caused, and neighbors believe that he was a member of a band of tobacco plant bed raiders and was killed by a grower whose bed night riders sought to destroy.

A pistol was in his hand when found. Near by were a blanket and a Springfield rifle cartridge, such as is used by the militia now scouring this section for lawless bands.

Following a report that raiders were planning depredations, Adjt. Gen. Johnston secretly sent a detachment of the local militia into Shelby county.

After riding all night they returned here worn out.

It is not known whether or not they had any connection with the death of Hazelipp, but Gen. Johnston is making a rigid investigation.

WOMAN SLAYER CONVICTED.

Kentucky Mountaineer Gets Twelve Years For Murder.

Lexington, Ky.—Isaac Wallace in Pike county was sentenced to the penitentiary for twelve years, having been convicted of the murder of Rebecca Sykes.

Mrs. Sykes was found dead in her bed last summer and her aged husband, who had a splendid civil war record, was discovered dead in the yard with a bullet hole in his head.

It was first believed the old soldier had killed his wife and then committed suicide, but later developments caused Wallace's arrest. Wallace in making his defense tried to prove that Sykes killed his wife.

Wallace is said to have been implicated in other crimes in the mountains of Kentucky.

Big Fire in Western Kentucky.

Mayfield, Ky.—Fire of incendiary origin started in the rear of the transfer barns of Cooley & Gordon, and in less than an hour the fire had swept down a large building of this company, one of the largest planing mill plants in Western Kentucky, a coal and woodyard, and two fine residences belonging to George H. Kennedy, also two cars of coal on a siding of the I. C. road. Loss about $100,000.

Will Lose Positions.

Frankfort, Ky.—The members of the board of control of the charitable institutions of the state are considering the abolishment of a number of positions at the state asylums and Feeble-Minded Institute. The republican members say they will not vote to remove any person unless for incompetency.

Held Captive On a Boat.

Hickman, Ky.—After nine months' search, Edward Roy, of Decatur, Ill., found his 14-year-old daughter near here. Will Fleming, a married man, it is alleged, stole her last August from her home. Fleming was arrested here, and, it is said, has confessed. The girl was found on a boat three miles above this place.

Young Carnegie Hero.

Louisville, Ky.—One of the youngest of the Carnegie medal winners, Paul Childers, 16, received the praises of his friends. The lad received $2,000 and a gold medal for his bravery of October 31, 1906, when he rescued a two-year-old boy and a girl 4 months old from a burning building on Irvine street.

Offer Was Not Made.

Frankfort, Ky.—Judge W. H. Yost, attorney for defendants in the Hollowell night-rider damage suits at Paducah, while here, said there was no truth in the statement that $50,000 had been offered as a compromise. He added that the defendants altogether could not raise $12,000.

Planting Under Way.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Farmwork has been retarded by continuous rains, but now the farmers are putting in every minute getting their crops in. The larger portion of the tobacco crop has been set out. Wheat is heading out nicely. Corn is being planted rapidly.

Parr Will Case.

Louisville, Ky.—The jury in the Parr will case failed to agree. The contestant, Will D. Parr, a son, sought to subtract $250,000 left for Parr's Rest, a home for old women, and to divide it among Mrs. John H. Sale, Mrs. Birdie Parr Marshall, sisters, and himself.

Awarded Verdict of One Cent.

Newport, Ky.—The slander suit of Marion Souston and Malcum Meades against Mrs. Boehmer, widow, for $10,000, came to an end in the circuit court, when the jury brought in a verdict for the plaintiff for one cent.

Drowned While Fishing.

Lexington, Ky.—Thomas Alexander, a wealthy business man of Danville, while fishing in the Dix river with a party of friends, fell into the water and drowned. The body has not been found.

AT RIFLE RANGE

State Troops Will Camp Instead of Having Brigade Gathering.

Frankfort, Ky.—Unless there is a change in the plans now outlined by the adjutant general's department the militia of Kentucky will not go into annual encampment this year, but instead each regiment will encamp at the rifle range and rifle practice will be held at the same time. The range for the Second regiment and companies east of Louisville is located a few miles from this city; the range for the First regiment is near Louisville, and the range for the Third regiment will be at Earlington.

Adjt. Gen. Johnston and Capt. W. N. Hughes, army officers stationed in Kentucky, are making an effort to raise the guard to the footing required by the Dick bill. Capt. Hughes will start on inspection tours June 1.

SHOT THE FAMILY.

Mountaineers, on a Rampage, Didn't Even Overlook the Baby.

Pikeville, Ky.—Sam and Tilburn Followay, Van and Sherman Clay and Liss Hensley are charged with having broken into the house of laborers and shot and fatally wounded two men and seriously wounded a woman, a boy 7 years old, a girl 4 years old and another girl 2½ years old.

The purpose is said to have been robbery. The assailants procured $14 and a lot of clothing. The Clays and Hensley escaped into West Virginia. The Followays were apprehended and landed in jail here. Judge Kirk will impanel a special grand jury to investigate. Officers are on the trail of the three men who escaped.

Not Afraid of Maud.

Louisville, Ky.—Seizing a runaway mule by the bit, a dainty young woman, whose name could not be learned, stopped a runaway at Shelby and Madison streets. She ran into the street, and, catching the bridle rein, threw the big animal almost upon his haunches. Then she quietly departed.

To Overthrow Liquor Traffic.

Lexington, Ky.—The Kentucky State Holiness association, in convention here, adopted a resolution pledging its members to work for the complete overthrow of the entire liquor traffic as to manufacture, sale, exportation, importation and transportation.

Drove Her Mad.

Lexington, Ky.—The Associated Charities made recommendation that Mrs. Allen Day, a young mother of three small children, deserted seven weeks ago by her husband, be sent to the insane asylum. The family came here from Nicholas county.

Masked Men Apply the Lash.

Morgantown, Ky.—Masked men called at the home of Widow Haynes, at Horse Hill, near here, and whipped her. They then went to Crit Johnson's, and after trying to get him out of the house and failing, went in and took him out and whipped him.

Riders Arrested.

Kuttawa, Ky.—An authoritative report from Livingston county is that four night riders have been arrested. It is said the prisoners will be taken to Crittenden county, where they are charged with three raids, and then taken to Trigg county.

Greensburg Got College.

Glasgow, Ky.—Greensburg has been decided upon as the home of Alexander college. As soon as the legality of some questions pertaining to the school are settled the erection of a school building, together with dormitory, will begin.

Changes Suggested in Asylums.

Frankfort, Ky.—The board of control of the state charitable institutions met and the republican members suggested a number of changes in the three asylums. The democratic members took the recommendations under consideration.

Bracken Camp Reduced.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Frankfort soldiers who have been on duty in Bracken county returned home relieved. Col. Lillard came with the men, having private business here. Adjt. Gen. Johnston said the situation is quiet.

Points To Incendiary.

Lexington, Ky.—The largest tobacco barn in Mercer county, belonging to Mrs. Lizzie Burros, was burned. There was an order of coal oil near the barn, and the people say it was the work of night riders.

One Hour Longer.

Paducah, Ky.—An order went into effect increasing the hours in the car department of the Illinois Central shops from eight to nine a day. About 700 employes are affected.

Uncle Can Hear Again.

Glasgow, Ky.—J. F. Taylor, postmaster, was notified by P. V. DeGran, fourth assistant postmaster general, that unless the roads are put in condition within 90 days rural free delivery on five routes will cease.

Old Officers Re-Elected.

Louisville, Ky.—The Fidelity Trust Co. held a meeting here at which all the old officers were re-elected. John W. Barr is president; John Stiles, chairman of the board of directors, and J. F. Speed, treasurer.

Don't Poison Baby.

FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have PAREGORIC or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and A FEW DROPS TOO MANY will produce the SLEEP FROM WHICH THERE IS NO WAKING. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labelling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given to your children without you or your physician know of what it is composed. CASTORIA DOES NOT CONTAIN NARCOTICS, if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. J. W. Dinsdale, of Chicago, Ill., says: "I use your Castoria and advise its use in all families where there are children."

Dr. Alexander E. Minlie, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria and have found it a reliable and pleasant remedy for children."

Dr. J. S. Alexander, of Omaha, Neb., says: "A medicine so valuable and beneficial for children as your Castoria is, deserves the highest praise. I find it in use everywhere."

Dr. J. A. McClellan, of Buffalo, N. Y., says: "I have frequently prescribed your Castoria for children and always got good results. In fact I use Castoria for my own children."

Dr. J. W. Allen, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I heartily endorse your Castoria. I have frequently prescribed it in my medical practice, and have always found it to do all that is claimed for it."

Dr. C. H. Glidden, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "My experience as a practitioner with your Castoria has been highly satisfactory, and I consider it an excellent remedy for the young."

Dr. H. D. Benner, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have used your Castoria as a purgative in the cases of children for years past with the most happy effect, and fully endorse it as a safe remedy."

Dr. J. A. Boarman, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria is a splendid remedy for children, known the world over. I use it in my practice and have no hesitancy in recommending it for the complaints of infants and children."

Dr. J. J. Mackey, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I consider your Castoria an excellent preparation for children, being composed of reliable medicines and pleasant to the taste. A good remedy for all disturbances of the digestive organs."

WRITER OF REAL TALENT.

Evidently the Bushby Clarion Had a Genius on Its Staff.

The editor of the Bushby Clarion leaned back in his chair and surveyed his visitor with a solemn and unwinking gaze. "You want to know if there's any good reporter in this town?" he said, impressively. "Well, there is. There's Gid Hobart."

"What sort of work can he do?" asked the visitor.

"His capabilities haven't had their full chance yet," said the editor, slowly, "but he's getting on, and I'm afraid we shall lose him before long. Why, last week that fellow wrote a two column account of a fire that was thrilling, I tell you!"

"Farmhouse, old mother, grandfather born there, and so forth, I suppose?" said the visitor.

"No, sir!" said the editor. "It was a deserted hen-house, that's what it was. I can tell you, that takes talent! We can't expect to keep Gid with us always."—Youth's Companion.

NO SKIN LEFT ON BODY.

For Six Months Baby Was Expected to Die with Eczema—Now Well —Doctor Said to Use Cuticura.

"Six months after birth my little girl broke out with eczema and I had two doctors in attendance. There was not a particle of skin left on her body, the blood oozed out just anywhere, and we had to wrap her in silk and carry her on a pillow for ten weeks. She was the most terrible sight I ever saw, and for six months I looked for her to die. I used every known remedy to alleviate her suffering, for it was terrible to witness. Dr. C—— gave her up. Dr. B—— recommended the Cuticura Remedies. She will soon be three years old and has never had a sign of the dread trouble since. We used about eight cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment. James J. Smith, Durmid, Va., Oct. 14 and 22, 1906."

An Indignant Editor.

Saturday evening after sewing two patches on our Sunday trousers and cleaning and pressing them we hung them out to dry. An hour later we found that they had been stolen. This will explain why we were not in our accustomed place in church on Sunday. The human being who will deliberately steal a pair of trousers from the editor of a weekly paper, and knowing that they are his only pair for church-going, deserves a worse fate than our indignation will allow us to mention. It seems to us as if civilization had been turned back half a century.—Homctown (Pa.) Banner.

Prof. Chas. S. Chambers, who has charge of the writing classes in the Covington schools, spent Friday and Saturday here with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Chambers. He contemplates a trip to England and France next month on pleasure and business.

Joseph Hughes, of Richwood, one of the prime movers in the success of the pooled tobacco movement in this county, was here last Thursday and paid out about $1,000 of the money received from the recent sales, leaving the money in the hands of Robert C. Green, the local secretary, for distribution.

Dr. B. W. Stallard, Dr. and Mrs. J. G. Slater and little daughter, and Miss Pauline Curley, enjoyed the pleasures of a trip down the Ohio river from Cincinnati to Louisville, last Thursday on the excursion steamer, Island Queen, and were guests of Dr. and Mrs. Thomas H. Baker at Louisville while there.

S. L. Edwards, our popular postmaster, and his pretty daughter, Miss Lavinia, left Tuesday for East Liverpool, Ohio, to attend the commencement exercises of the high school there, where his [illegible] will graduate [illegible] Miss Edwards is one of [illegible] young ladies and [illegible] will be a member of the [illegible] class.

Miss Ethel Hall, of Cincinnati, after visiting here the guest of Miss Nina McKean, left Monday for Pittsburg where she will also visit before they return.

Miss Nina McKean, a pretty and pleasant young lady of Covington, is spending the month here with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. F. Chambers, and enjoying the pleasures of the country. Miss McKean is taking a collegiate course at the collegiate school for girls, Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, and comes out to Walton in the evening, returning to school in the morning.

Dr. W. W. Evans, of the Presbyterian church, who preached the baccalaureate sermon at the Walton Baptist church, Wednesday evening, May 20th, was greeted with a very large congregation, the commodious auditorium being filled to its utmost capacity, and Rev. Evans rewarded the congregation with a magnificent discourse that was well timed, appropriate and most impressively delivered.

The Walton High School base ball club played the Walton Stars at the ball park here Saturday. It was quite an interesting game. The High Schools defeated the Stars by a score of 10 to 11. Two men were out when they made the winning run. The general features of the game were good. The High Schools made 9 hits and the Stars 8. A. B. Tompkins umpire. Attendance 125. The Standard Oil team, of Cincinnati, will play here next Saturday afternoon.

Married—Floyed L. Frakes and Miss Anna A. Hoffman were united in the bonds of holy wedlock at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hoffman at Atwood, Kenton county, Wednesday, May 20, in the presence of a large circle of friends, Rev. Samuel M. Adams, of the Baptist church tying the nuptial knot in one of his beautiful and impressive ceremonies. The handsome young couple will make their home at Atwood where the groom is a prosperous farmer.

W. E. Vest, the enterprising real estate agent, of Walton, made another big sale last week. He sold the farm owned by Nicholas Blau, consisting of 100 acres near Petersburg, to Ed and Cornelius Rushmeyer, of Cincinnati, for $6,000. This farm was bought by Mr. Blau from Stanley Crouch through Mr. Vest's agency, last fall, and he took possession the 1st of March, but Mr. Blau's health being very broken he concluded to sell the place and will take his wife to Colorado in July, giving possession of the farm July 1st.

Nellie, little daughter of A. Kirtley Johnson, was struck on the head with a small stone from a rubber sling, thrown by a boy at the school building, last Wednesday evening, as the school children were preparing to march to the Baptist church to hear the baccalaureate sermon. The wound bled profusely, and the little one was taken to Dr. Jone's office, where the injury was dressed, and she soon recovered. The wound was the result of the careless shooting on the part of some boy whose identity was not discovered.

The rooms of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth grades of Walton High school entertained the public at the chapel hall, Thursday afternoon, May 21st, with a well selected program of literary merit. The pupils acquitted themselves most creditably, and demonstrated the careful training they had received at the hands of the excellent teachers, Misses Jean Chambers and Anna Hudson. There was a large attendance of the public generally, showing that the work of the teachers is appreciated, and that the interest in the cause of education is not abating.

The Q. & C. Railroad is expending considerable money in raising the roadbed in the center of the town, in the vicinity of the bridge crossing over High Street. A number of years ago the road bed was lowered in this section two feet. Water settled in this quarter and it was impossible to have a solid road bed in consequence, so it was necessary to raise it to obviate the trouble. Bridge warners for the protection of brakemen on top of high cars have been erected on each side of the bridge in conformity with the law. It will take some time to complete the necessary work but traffic will not be interrupted.

The Commencement Exercises of the Walton High School were held last Friday night in the Chapel Hall under the most auspicious conditions with the exception of the weather being very warm and the auditorium being crowded to almost suffocation. The stage was very prettily arranged and decorated with the class colors, surmounted with the motto of the class and "1908" in blue and gold. Prof H. C. Wayman called the assemblage to order and Rev. Sam M. Adams invoked the blessing of God on the gathering, the exercises and the graduates. Miss Mayme Northcutt brilliantly executed Polka de-la Rein on the piano, and Miss Cecile Ella Menefee most entertainingly delivered the Salutation, followed by Miss Elizabeth Wiella Hance with an oration on "Life's Enigma," most pleasingly delivered; Miss Rachael Conner charmed the assembly with the piano selection, "Gallop de Concert," and Wayne Duncan Hyland in the oration, "The Soldier Citizen or Citizen Soldier" won praise on every hand. "The Price of Success," an oration by Miss Jane Rouse Hance was a gem of thought and reasoning. "Tyrolienne, [illegible] was faultlessly played by Misses Sara Conner, Mayme Northcutt and Rachael Conner. The oration, "Emancipation of Woman," by Miss Virgie Lee Cluster, was splendidly received as it was a subject well handled. "Ignorance the Badge of Mental Slavery," by Miss Mary Lucile West, was an oration that gave much food for reflection and was very helpful to the cause of education. The vocal solo, "If I were a Rose," was beautifully rendered by Miss Bessie Houston. The oration, "Respect for the Law," by Miss Mamie Haley, was one of the best of the evening and many excellent thoughts were elucidated, and it was most appropriately followed by "Power of Knowledge," by Miss Viola Helrs Richey, an admirable, thoughtful oration, delivered in a masterly manner. "Valse Brilliante," a piano selection was attractively played by Miss Sara Conner. The Class Prophet, Robert Garnett Huey, made a great hit with a cleverly prepared paper in which he predicted what the members of the class would be doing thirty years hence. The Valedictorian, Earl Robinson, made a splendid address and left a fine impression on everybody. County Superintendent D. M. Snyder, of Burlington, made a short address giving words of encouragement and approval for the splendid school work being done at Walton. Prof. N. S. Cox, principal of the Covington High School, made a fine address on the practical side of "Does Education Pay?" Dr. A. N. Jones, president of the school board, in a few well chosen remarks presented the diplomas to the graduates, and promised even more efficient work by the school the ensuing year. Rev. D. T. Buck, of the Christian church, pronounced the benediction, and the large concourse of people dispersed for their respective homes with words of praise for all the teachers, graduates and participants in a program well rendered in every particular, there not being a faulty number in it. Besides the excellent work of the graduates, Walton naturally has reason to be proud of the young people as all have an individuality that is indeed praiseworthy, and are lovable young people with a bright future before them.

THE FINE YOUNG JACK,

EQUITY

Will make the season of 1908 at the Daniel Bedinger Farm on the Richwood & Beaver Lick pike, 3 miles west of Richwood, and 2 miles east of Beaver Lick, Boone county, Ky.

EQUITY is a black jack, white points, 3 years old, 15 hands high, large head and ear, heavy bone, and fine style and action. Foaled June 15, 1903, sired by Readmore's Big Jack Dewey, 15½ hands high. Dam, a fine black jennet, 15 hands high by Riddells & Bodle's famous jack, Mike, by Mogul, etc.

TERMS—Equity will stand at $10.00 to insure a live colt, money due when colt is foaled. Any one party breeding two or more mares and getting two or more colts will be entitled to a discount of $1.00 on each colt.

Any one disposing of mare after being bred forfeits insurance and the season becomes due. Care taken to prevent accidents, but no responsibility should any occur.

BEN F. BEDINGER,
Richwood, Ky.

CLOVER LEAF STOCK FARM,

UNION, KY.,

Presents for public service the fine young harness stallion,

Foaled June 15th, 1905, by Col. Willis 37706 by Col. Kipp 15877, by Kenwood 15876. Dam, Salina Collins by George Willis 17777. 1st dam, Golden Strand by John Burdine 7217, by Almont 33; 2d dam, Flora W. by Almont Boy 4308; 3d dam, Beulah by Tom Crowder.

ROBERT WILLIS chestnut stallion, 16 hands high, coming 3 years old, good bone, flue style and action and is absolutely sound. Robert Willis will make the season of 1908 at [illegible] Leaf Stock Farm, 1 mile north of Big Bone Grange Hall on the Burlington & Big Bone Grade and will be allowed to serve 15 approved mares at $10.00 to insure a living foal money due when the colt is foaled or mare is parted with.

Robert Willis is a well bred horse, his breeding dating back through some of the best horses Kentucky has ever produced. Breeders will do well to call and see this horse before breeding elsewhere.

Care will be taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur.

The Great Imp. German Coach Stallion, PLUTARCH 3183

THE IMPORTED GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH, will make the season of 1908 at L. A. Conner's Stable at Burlington, Ky., at $20.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

Any one party owning and breeding two mares and getting two colts from this horse shall be entitled to $5 discount on the two seasons—paying only $35 for the two colts, but should only one of the mares get in foal the regular full season $20 will be collected.

This Stallion is a Mahoghany bay, 16½ hands high, weighs 1400 pounds, and needs no introduction to the people of Boone County as his colts speak for themselves. A ring of this Stallion's suckling colts was shown at Florence Fair last fall and was pronounced to be the best ring of colts ever shown at the fair. Besides this special ring, these colts were shown in other classes against other Stallions' colts and received almost every tie they were shown for, which proves this horse to be a great breeder and sure foal getter.

Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

THE FINE BLACK JACK,

Jerry H. K. Glass,

Owned by Geo. Blyth, B. W. Adams, A. B. Rouso and L. T. Clore, will make the season of 1908 at Geo, Blyth's stable at Burlington, Ky., at $8.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due should a mare be parted with after being bred.

DESCRIPTION AND PEDIGREE:

Is black with white points, fine length and bone, good style, is 10 years old, 15½ hands high, and a quick, ready foal getter. Was sired by Ben Glass, owned by F. M. McDonald, of Carroll county. He is given up to be the finest breeder in Northern Kentucky; formerly owned by John Elliston, of Grant county. Ben Glass was sired by R. B. Lee's fine jack; he by William Nichols' and Warnick's imported Spanish Jack, which cost $4,000. His dam was sired by Younger Pitts' Jack which cost $4,000. Ben Glass' dam was a Pioneer and Mountain Leader Jennet; she was sired by Kennedy's Sampson, g-d Compromise; he by Mohawk. Jerry H. K. Glass' dam, Black Betty, the property of John and Jabe Elliston, a big, fine jennet; she was sired by Black Dictator, 15 hands high; he by Mohawk (the finest breeding jack of the age, and sold for $5,000) out of a large premium jennet; g-d Old July, a fine jennet owned by Haden Kendall, of Williamstown, Ky., sired by Black Jumbo, and is 15½ hands high; he by Black Bob; he by Ralston's fine jack, Black Bettie; 3d dam was by Old John; he by Old Mammoth; he by Imported Mammoth; 4th dam by Old John out of a jennet by Copage's Beuna Vista and out of a Pioneer and Mountain Leader jennet, the dam of Black Hawk.

A return season will be given the best colt, regardless of sex, of the 1908 get of this jack. Positively no business done on Sunday.

GEORGE BLYTH, Manager.

WILLIAM PENN.

Sired by Frank L. 2.14½, a sire of extreme speed, having sired Lady K. 2.12½, Ella Belle 2.22, David H. Rea 2.15, Edison (tr) 2.28, etc., by Sentinel Wilkes 2.20½, sire of Vallean 2.12, Texas 2.10½, Frank L. 2.14½, and 25 others in 2.30, by George Wilkes 2.22, the sire of 88 in 2.30, by Hambletonian the sire of 40 in 2.30. 1st dam of William Penn is Silver by the great show horse, Eureka, shown 42 times, winning 40 first premiums. 2nd dam by Stockbridge Chief the sire of Shepherd Girl 2.29, etc. 3d dam by Mambrino Patchen 58, the sire of 25 in 2.30.

WILLIAM PENN is a seal brown with fine mane and tail, is 8 years old, 16 hands, 1 inch; and weighs 1 250 pounds. He is a horse of superb finish and action, with the best of feet and legs. He has plenty of substance, and for bone and muscle is unsurpassed.

In offering William Penn for public service at the small fee of $10, we believe that we are presenting to the public a rare opportunity of obtaining some of the best blood in a horse that will transmit to his get quality, disposition, size, speed and magnificent conformation. He is an exceptionally fine saddle horse, going all the saddle gaits in a very attractive manner. He is a quiet, fearless driver that has speed enough at either the trot or pace to make a race horse. He is a very handsome horse with a disposition that is perfect. We could take up more space in giving a long description and pedigree of his ancestors, and what they had done, but William Penn will prove for himself that he will transmit to his get the rare qualities that he possesses. Pasture furnished at $2 a month.

MIKE, Jr.,

The breeding jack, is black with mealy points, 8 years old, 15 hands, and a sure foal getter. Sired by Mike, 16 hands (the Bodle jack) dam, Bourbon Belle by Bourbon Chief, 16 hands.

MIKE JR., is a show Jack and the sire of more high priced mules than any other jack in the county. He has a very heavy bone, an excellent ear, and has always proven himself to be a breeder that produces the best results, his mules being always high plenty of style and a finish that makes them sell readily; his get topped the market last year, as they have done for several years past. He sires 80 per cent. mare mules and his mules have never been defeated in the show ring.

WILLIAM PENN, the handsome combined stallion, and MIKE JR., the breeding jack, will make the season of 1908 at our farm 3½ miles southwest of Union, Ky., each at $10.00 to insure a living foal.

We cordially invite public inspection of our stock at any time, and we feel sure that you will find them to be exactly as represented.

Due care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur.

Parties breeding mares and parting with them will be held responsible unless otherwise agreed.

HIGH VINE, No. 2733

PROPERTY OF

High Vine Horse Company,

WALTON, KY.,

W. L. Gaines, President.

HIGH VINE, No. 2733,

High Vine No. 2733, Chestnut Stallion, coming 4 years old, weighs 1100 pounds, stands 16 hands high, and is a picture of symmetry and beauty.

A number of prominent citizens of the locality of Walton, realizing the need of a fine saddle horse for breeding purposes, and desiring to maintain the reputation of Kentucky for raising fine saddle horses, associated themselves together as a live stock company, and bought the best saddle horse they could find, and High Vine, No. 2733, proved to be their choice. The horse was bought from Georgetown parties for $1,500 cash, and his services will be offered to a limited number of good mares at $20.00 to insure.

High Vine was shown at various county fairs, last fall, and was a prize winner at all of them, taking first in the Sweepstaks Saddle and Harness ring at Erlanger, and defeating the great Chancellor gelding at Sanders. He has proved to be a fine breeder, and his colts will be ready sellers at fancy prices. Inspect the horse and you will be pleased with him. It will be well to make engagements ahead, as his services will be limited.

For the accommodation of those at a distance, W. L. Gaines has agreed to pasture mares at $2.50 per month, and has the best of facilities for their care and keeping.

A premium of $20 (the season) will be given the best colt foaled from breeding of 1908, the time and place of the show to be announced later.

Miss Marry Baker, who has been very ill, is some better, and she will recover. Dr. Baker, of Louisville, has been called twice to see her.

This community was shocked, last Sunday afternoon, by the announcement that one of its most prominent citizens, Capt. Z. T. Baker, was dead. Mr. Baker was, apparently, in his usual health on Saturday, and was looking after his farm interests. Sunday he was in good spirits and conversed pleasantly with J. P. Hamilton and R. F. Miskell about 9 o'clock, the last time he was seen alive. It was about 5 o'clock in the afternoon when Mr. Hamilton, who rents land of Mr. Baker, went to feed his team, and discovered Mr. Baker sitting in his chair on the porch, dead. From the condition of the body it is evident he had been dead several hours. For some time Mr. Baker had been annoyed with a weak heart, and it is supposed that failure of that organ caused his death. He was one of the county's best and most substantial business men; one whose hand and pocket book were always open to the needy, and for deeds of charity he was noted. He will be sadly missed by this part of the county where he was loved by all. He was a bachelor and wealthy.

HOPEFUL.

Dr. W. S. Yeager formerly one of Crescent's boys, will be a graduate of the Ohio Medical College this week. He is a young man who has made many warm friends, and has our best wishes for success in his profession.

Mrs. Alice Connely had for her guests, Saturday, the following: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brownfield and little daughter, of Ft. Mitchell; Phillip Warrington; Miss Ann La Grosskordt, of Covington; and Miss Nellie Connely, of Newport, and Emile Rivard.

Thinks It Saved His Life.

Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Me., says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years, for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complaints, and would no more be without a bottle than I would be without food." For nearly 40 years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia, and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's Drug Store, Erlanger. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Gun That Makes No Noise.

There is surely a terrible responsibility resting to-day upon the shoulders of Hiram Percy Maxim, the son of the inventor of the machine gun. So writes P. Harvey Middleton in the Technical World Magazine. For he has patented a gun which will kill a man with no more noise than the hissing of a snake. Armed with this silent weapon a murderer could shoot down his victim without attracting the least attention, and only on examination would the cause of death be revealed. On the other hand a single policeman using the noiseless gun could disable every member of a gang of burglars before they recovered from their surprise. It is an invention which may lead to the reequipment of the armed forces of the world, and the revolutionizing of modern methods of warfare—will perhaps even hasten the happy day when there will be no war, for the very best safeguard against war is the invention of weapons of such terrible power that armies will never dare to stand against each other. "War," said Bismarck, "is the greatest enemy of war, and will eventually put war out of existence." In the next great war skirmishers may use noiseless rifles, enabling them to creep along an enemy's front and shoot down unsuspecting pickets one after another, and not until their dead bodies were discovered would the alarm be given. The extended front of a whole army, concealed in the underbrush or behind rocks, could work terrible havoc among the opposing forces before its position could be located. To the big game hunter the silent firearm will open up new horizons.

Perch Fishing.

And the other fishing days when you got up before dawn and stole down-stairs to the dim kitchen. A crink of milk, a doughnut, and a triangle of pie, then you stole out quietly to the barn and got the spading-fork. Then the search, armed with fork and tomato-can, under the broad leaves of the rhubarb bed, back of the henhouse and down by the cow barn, until you had enough worms for the day's sport. Then, of course, you left the fork sticking in the ground—you never would learn to put things away—and started off. Through the garden and orchard, stopping long enough for a handful of currants and a pocketful of sopsyvines—over the pasture bars, eating a handful of huckleberries or low-bush blackberries here and there. Into the wood road—very dark and still in the dawn—where you stepped along very quietly so as not to disturb the bears. You knew perfectly well there were no bears, writes a contributor of the Atlantic, but you rather enjoyed the creepy sensation. Then out through the deep wet meadow grass to the river, where the sun was now beginning to burn away the wisps of mist, and the red-winged blackbirds were making a tremendous fuss over their housekeeping. You reached the river bank at the pout hole, or the big rock, or the old willow (of course, you know the exact place), and then you started fishing.

State universities, at the request of their professors, are to benefit by the Carnegie pension fund. Ten million dollars were originally given as an endowment for pensions for professors in unsectarian colleges. Colleges supported by churches and by the states were omitted, on the ground that if pensions were to be provided, they might well come from those who maintain the institutions. Many colleges, nominally denominational, have given evidence that they are unsectarian, and have been admitted to the benefits of the fund, and the National Association of State Universities petitioned for the enjoyment of the pension provisions. It set forth four reasons, the chief of which were that in the absence of pension allowances the state universities would find it difficult to compete with the other colleges for first-class professors, and that the prospect of pensions paid by the states was remote, as it would involve the acceptance of the policy of pensioning state officers. Mr. Carnegie has admitted the force of their argument by adding $5,000,000 to the original fund, so that the state institutions may benefit. But professors in such universities will not be pensioned unless the state legislature and the governor join in the application that they be admitted to the foundation.

"Always ready for sea duty, but afraid of sochus ...ties," is the way the wife of Admiral Evans recently characterized her distinguished husband. Medical science would probably agree that the admiral has discovered which is the greater danger of the two.

The Tacoma Ledger has discovered that "the art of letter writing has suffered with the introduction of picture post cards," but it isn't noticeable yet in the divorce courts.

STRANGLED WAS THE NOTED ARTIST

ADOLPH STEINHEIL BY ROBBERS, WHO RANSACKED HIS HOME.

HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW ALSO A VICTIM

Wife, Bound and Gagged, is Found By a Servant—Crime Planned By Model, Whose Voice Was Recognized By Mme. Steinheil.

Paris, June 1.—A double murder was committed here during the early hours of the morning that for absolute brutality would be hard to parallel. The discovery was made by Steinheil's man servant, who arose at 5 to prepare breakfast.

Hearing groans coming from Mme. Steinheil's sleeping room, he entered and found her lying bound hand and foot on the bed. A gag of cotton wool, which she had succeeded in ejecting from her mouth lay on the floor. A thin cord was around her throat.

In the passage he found the painter dead. He was resting on his knees and the body was bent backwards. He had been strangled by a whipcord similar to that around his wife's neck. His features were blackened and his limbs were already stiff.

In another bedroom was the dead body of Mme. Steinheil's mother, Mme. Japin. She also had been strangled and the body was fastened to the bed.

Every room in the house had been ransacked and a large number of articles stolen. The wife, who had escaped death, related in broken accents what she recollected of the tragedy. She declared that about 2 o'clock in the morning she had been awakened by the entrance of three men and a woman, who sprang upon her like wild beasts and tied her to the bed. Evidently they had taken her for her 16-year-old daughter, who was absent in the country, as one of the men said:

"Your father had an exhibition sale of pictures; tell us where the money is." The woman pointed to a drawer in a bureau and meanwhile muttered: "Kill her quick. Why are you sparing her?"

Mme. Steinheil, struck by the voice, looked at the woman and seemed to recognize her as one of her husband's models. Beyond this statement the police have no clew to the murderers, and no arrests have been made up to midnight. They believe that the murderers entered the house by means of false keys.

Adolphe Steinheil was the son of the celebrated portrait painter, Louis Charles Auguste Steinheil, who died in Paris in 1885. The younger Steinheil was about 50 years of age, and was born in Paris. He was a grand nephew of Meissonier. He had painted the portraits of a host of distinguished men, including Francois Felix Faure, president of France, who was his intimate friend.

SLAYER'S FACE PHOTOGRAPHED

On Murdered Woman's Eyeballs, the Authorities Believe.

St. Louis, June 1.—The picture of a bearded, crooked-nosed man, on the eyeball of an unidentified murdered woman, whose body was taken from the Mississippi river, near Hartford Ill., may be the clew to the mystery.

The woman died from a broken neck and was not drowned, it was shown at the autopsy in Alton by Dr. L. A. Yerkes and Coroner Streeper. The absence of water in the woman's lungs proved that she was thrown in the river after she was murdered.

The theory that the dying gaze of a murdered person upon the slayer will fix a picture permanently on the eye caused the authorities to adopt this, in the absence of any other clew, in the effort to learn the identity of the murderer. A photograph of the dead woman's retina was made.

Rescued From Drowning.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 1.—Passengers aboard the yacht Olga were given the thrill of their lives when the yacht was hifted up two miles at sea to rescue Miss Bessie McLaughlin, who had fought for three hours against death in the ocean. Speechless and unable to give an alarm, the young woman was still feebly paddling to keep herself afloat when she was spied by Capt Conover. The girl had been swept out to sea while bathing on the beach, and her rescue is rated the most remarkable one recorded.

Return To Frisco.

San Francisco, June 1.—The first division of the Atlantic fleet under Rear Adm. Sperry, consisting of the Connecticut, Kansas, Vermont and Louisiana returned from Tacoma and dropped anchor in man-o-war row, by the side of the Maine. The ships were accompanied by the hospital ship Relief.

Eighteen Drowned.

City of Mexico, June 1.—Floods have wrought great damage in the neighborhood of the city of Pachula the past two days. Eighteen people are said to have been drowned and the village of Pachula entirely wiped out of existence.

Took Poison Route.

Kansas City, June 1.—Mrs. Mildred Settle, aged 18, of Amarillo, Tex., committed suicide here by drinking poison. She is a daughter of Richard L. Long a real estate dealer, of Ft. Worth Tex.

CONSPIRACY CHARGES LIFTED BY CHICAGO JURY.

Former Chief of Police Collins and Frank D. Comerford Are Acquitted After Long Trial.

Chicago.—Former Chief of Police John M. Collins and Frank D. Comerford, police attorney under the Dunne administration, were found not guilty by a jury in Judge Chetlain's court Wednesday of conspiracy to defraud the city of Chicago by diverting the services of the police to political work. The verdict was received with enthusiastic clapping of hands, and the former chief at once became the center of a storm of congratulations. The verdict ended one chapter of the prosecutions growing out of the last city campaign.

Two indictments still pending against Collins, one charging the collection of campaign funds from the police and the other the mutilation of public records, it was announced, might be brought to trial in their regular order so far as the plans of the state's attorney have been formed. But State's Attorney Healy was not at all positive about this. The first-named indictment is also pending against William L. O'Connell, former commissioner of public works, and E. H. Roche, former city purchasing agent.

When the spectators in the court room were quieted Attorney Nathaniel Sears arose and thanked the jurors.

"I want to thank the jurors and the court for the absolute fairness with which this case was tried."

Comerford also expressed his thanks "I also want to thank the court and individual jurors for the expression of justice."

The former chief of police individually thanked the jurors and then hurried into the judge's chambers and notified his family of his acquittal. Former Mayor Dunne was also notified of the verdict.

TWO DROWNED; FIVE SAVED.

Disaster Overtakes Launch Off Santa Catalina Island.

Avalon, Island of Santa Catalina, Cal.—Capt. A. Crist of the launch Zeus of Avalon, and C. E. Hoolihe, ordinary seaman on the United States converted cruiser Buffalo, were drowned, and E. E. Easton, wife, two small children and colored nurse were rescued by the Buffalo on the high seas Tuesday night, after drifting helplessly for two days in a small launch.

Capt. Crist was lost from the launch Sunday night several miles off Avalon in a mysterious manner. Seaman Hooline was lost overboard from the Buffalo in effecting the rescue of Mr. Easton and his party.

Admiral Crowninshield Dead.

Washington.—Funeral services over the body of Rear Admiral A. S. Crowninshield, retired, of the navy, who died in Philadelphia Wednesday will be held here Friday and interment will be at the National cemetery at Arlington. Full military honors will be accorded the dead officer. Admiral Crowninshield served with distinction during the Spanish-American war when he was in charge of the bureau of navigation.

Pastor Saves Son, But Drowns.

Jacksonville, Ill.—Rev. S. H. Glasgow, for many years pastor of the Woodson (Ill.) Presbyterian church, was drowned Tuesday afternoon at the village, after rescuing his little son, who had been overcome by cramps while bathing.

Florida to Be Torpedoed.

Washington.—The next of the destructive tests to be made upon the monitor Florida is fixed for June 10. On that date the Florida will be taken from the Norfolk navy yard to a suitable spot in Hampton Roads, where the depth of water probably will not exceed 20 or 25 feet, and there will be attacked by an American Whitehead torpedo, which will be directed against a spot on the hull about six or eight feet below the water line, inside of which will be located a special form of bulkhead.

CURRENCY LAW IS ASSURED.

House Passes Compromise Bill and Senate Will Do Same.

Washington.—An emergency currency is assured. The currency question held its place Wednesday, as practically the only subject of consideration at both ends of the capitol, and when both houses adjourned the compromise bill which was drafted by the Republican conferees had received the sanction of the house and had been presented to the senate, where it was announced it would be taken up for consideration Thursday, and where it will also be passed when the vote is reached.

The day began with a continuation of Tuesday's conference between the Republican representatives of the two houses. This resulted in a complete agreement which, being later presented as a matter of form to the Democratic conferees, was shortly after two p. m. presented to the house. There it was taken up at three o'clock, discussed for one hour and passed by a vote of 166 to 140.

The house had no sooner recorded its verdict in favor of the bill than it was hurried over to the senate, shortly before five o'clock, with the announcement of the approval of the house.

The conference report was read, and after the reading had been concluded Mr. Aldrich announced that Thursday, after routine business, he would move to take up the report and continue its consideration until it was disposed of.

Senator La Follette refused to outline his probable course further than to say that he would vote against the new bill. He was in consultation with Democratic leaders at different times during the day, and his bearing was such as to lead to the conclusion that if the Democrats would agree to fight the measure he would assist them.

REPORTS ON PAPER TRUST.

Majority Urges No Action Until Matter Is Probed Further.

Washington.—The special committee of six members of the house appointed upon the complaint of the American Newspaper Publishers' association to investigate the wood pulp and print paper situation in relation to the tariff and with regard to an alleged conspiracy in restraint of trade, Thursday submitted a majority and a minority report.

The majority report, signed by Representative Mann of Illinois, Miller of Kansas, Stafford of Wisconsin and Bannon of Ohio, recommends that legislation be not enacted before the committee has investigated further. The minority report, signed by Representatives Sims of Tennessee and Ryan of New York, recommended the passage of the Stevens bill to place wood pulp and print paper on the free list.

Sacrifice to Medical Science.

New York.—In the hope of discovering a preventative and cure for tuberculosis, Frank Merritt, who about two weeks ago, volunteered to surrender his body in the interest of humanity and medical science, has permitted a physician to innoculate his system with the germs of the dread disease. An examination showed that already the disease has made considerable progress since the innoculation a week ago.

ASYLUM FOR THAW

RELEASE ON HABEAS CORPUS WRIT IS DENIED.

DECLARED STILL INSANE

Justice Morschauser Says No Injustice Has Been Done White's Slayer—No Appeal Is Expected.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — Harry K. Thaw has accepted, apparently with resignation, the decree of Supreme Justice Morschauser that he is still insane and that the interests of the public will be best served by denying him his liberty. Pending the signing of the papers of re-commitment, which probably will not be done before a week from next Saturday, Thaw will occupy Sheriff Chandler's suite in the county building here. In the meantime an effort will be made by Thaw's attorneys to induce District Attorney Jerome to consent to the commitment of the prisoner to one of the state hospitals other than Matteawan. It is said that in the event of Mr. Jerome giving his consent to such a change no appeal will be taken from Justice Morschauser's decision. Even if an appeal were taken, it would not be argued before fall.

attorneys are decided against him. The justice declares that the prisoner is insane and should not be allowed at large, and that the commitment to the asylum by Justice Dowling after the second trial of the murder case was legal.

Decision of the Justice.

Following is the decision: "Upon application duly made a writ of habeas corpus was allowed by which Harry K. Thaw was directed to be produced in court. In the petition it is alleged that Thaw is illegally imprisoned and restrained of his liberty by Amos T. Baker, acting superintendent of Matteawan state hospital, a state institution for the insane.

"Thaw's detention is attacked upon the grounds:

"First. That he is now sane.

"Second. That the act under the provisions of which he was committed and detained is unconstitutional and the court was without jurisdiction to issue the order of commitment, and such order was null and void.

"The return to the writ alleges that said Thaw is now insane and that the statute providing for the confinement of said Thaw is constitutional and valid, and that the court had jurisdiction to make the order of commitment.

"The proof and evidence on the part of the respective parties have been ably presented and the matter has been submitted.

"Thaw, at the time of his trial for homicide, as a defense, pleaded insanity and presented proof to show his insanity at the time of the killing of White, and, by the proof offered on his behalf, the jury was convinced that he was insane and acquitted him upon that ground. I am satisfied from the evidence adduced before me that the mental condition of Harry K. Thaw has not changed, and I find that he is now insane and that it is so manifest as to make it unsafe for him to be at large.

No Injustice to Thaw.

"I believe no injustice has been done to Thaw or will be done to him by depriving him of his liberty until such time as he can be discharged by the method prescribed by law. Bearing in mind that the usual punishment for the act which led up to the detention of said Thaw is death, or a long term of imprisonment, and that said Thaw escaped the consequences of such act solely by reason of his existing mental condition, I do not deem it proper to allow Thaw his freedom, suffering as he is from some form of insanity with the possible recurrence of an attack similar to that which the jury believed he was suffering from when he killed Stanford White. In view of the existing mental condition of said Thaw, the safety of the public is better insured by his remaining in custody and under observation until he has recovered or until such time as it shall be reasonably certain that there is no danger of a recurring attack of the delusion or whatever it may be. The writ is dismissed. The order remanding the said Harry K. Thaw can be settled on notice pursuant to stipulation."

Evelyn Withdraws Suit.

New York.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, through her counsel, Tuesday withdrew the suit she instituted some time ago for the annulment of her marriage to Harry K. Thaw.

Immediately following the dismissal of the action Daniel O'Reilly, personal attorney for Mrs. Thaw, issued a statement in which he declared that Mrs. Thaw had been an unwilling party to the proceedings from the first. It was only because of pressure on the part of her husband's relatives that she had any part in such a proceeding, said Mr. O'Reilly, and that she withdrew the action because she believes her husband's present position demands her loyalty.

Fatally Shot by Robbers.

Rochester, N. Y.—Charles Higgins, supervisor of Montezuma, was shot by two highwaymen while returning home Tuesday night. The robbers secured $60 and left their victim unconscious. Higgins will die.

Angry Citizen Put Ordeal Up to Street Car Company.

Not long ago there entered the office of the superintendent of a trolley line in Detroit an angry citizen, demanding "justice" in no uncertain terms.

In response to the official's gentle inquiry touching the cause of the demand, the angry citizen explained that on the day previous as his wife was boarding one of the company's cars, the conductor thereof had stepped on his spouse's dress, tearing from it more than a yard of material.

"I can't see that we are to blame for that," protested the superintendent. "What do you expect us to do, get her a new dress?"

"No, sir, I do not," rejoined the angry citizen, brandishing a piece of cloth. "What I propose is that you people shall match this material."—Harper's Weekly.

THE FIRST TASTE

Learned to Drink Coffee When a Baby.

If parents realized the fact that coffee contains a drug—caffeine—which is especially harmful to children, they would doubtless hesitate before giving the babies coffee to drink.

"When I was a child in my mother's arms and first began to nibble things at the table, mother used to give me sips of coffee. As my parents used coffee exclusively at meals I never knew there was anything to drink but coffee and water.

"And so I contracted the coffee habit early. I remember when quite young, the continual use of coffee so affected my parents that they tried roasting wheat and barley, then ground it in the coffee-mill, as a substitute for coffee.

"But it did not taste right and they went back to coffee again. That was long before Postum was ever heard of. I continued to use coffee until I was 27, and when I got into office work, I began to have nervous spells. Especially after breakfast I was so nervous I could scarcely attend to my correspondence.

"At night, after having coffee for supper, I could hardly sleep, and on rising in the morning would feel weak and nervous.

"A friend persuaded me to try Postum. My wife and I did not like it at first, ... ever when boiled good and strong it was fine. Now we would not give up Postum for the best coffee we ever tasted.

"I can now get good sleep, am free from nervousness and headaches. I recommend Postum to all coffee drinkers.

Winter Days

When the fall came we began to get ready for winter. Early in November the "shuckers" had started in to strip the corn fields, and the tattoo of flying ears had sounded dully through the distance for many days. Down in the woods the flame of the red maples had dwindled away to ashes, the torches of running vines and sassafras had been smothered by the frosts, and the grass curled and crisped to a more rusty brown as the chill winds swept by. Only the blue-jays, crows, hawks and an occasional redbird were seen, except when quail burst from the thicket or corn field to whizz over the space between them and the thickest cover.

In the edges of ravines that encroach on corn fields, and on pasture slopes and in woods adjacent the hickories and walnuts, stripped of their leaves, showed somberly. On the ground under them the nuts lay, and even in their branches, especially the limbs of the hickories, a myriad nuts clustered and clung. In some timber there were butternut trees, and under these the butternuts lay, conically sheathed in thick and oily green coverings. We had located a number of promising trees, and as soon as the frost had dropped the nuts, we were early with bags and sticks, and besieged these forest fortresses. The walnuts were easiest gathered, but as they were encased in their heavy hulls, like the butternuts, it was quite a job to get them ready to be carried home. By laying them in piles, and pounding them with a thick stick, and then tramping on them with hob-nailed shoes, the hulls could be nearly all worn off, and then by removing the rest with our hands the process was completed.

But despite the use of old gloves, our fingers and hands quickly took on the stain of walnuts, and long before we had gotten a bushel of them we were quite ready to lay aside the bungleosome gloves and go to work bare-handed. A lovely mahogany tint, warranted to last for months, now developed on our hands, and we were careless of it so long as the bags became heavy with spoil. The hickory nuts were gathered easier, as the frosts for the most part had shaken off the hulls as the nuts dropped, and the only difficult thing about hickory-nutting was to climb the trees and shake down those nuts which still clung to the trees. As a shell-bark or scaly-bark hickory has bark which juts sharply down and out, climbing a tree of this kind is much like climbing a liberty pole wound solidly about with barbed wire. However, with much laceration of trousers and "coveralls" the feat was usually accomplished. Around the hickory tree the fox squirrels divided the honors with us, and we saw them nearly every day during the late fall months getting ready, like we were, for winter.

When we got our store of hickory nuts, walnuts and butternuts home (and I did the long and the short haul part of that part myself), we spread them out in the garret and dried them gradually until they were just right for cracking. To go up into a windy garret on a cold winter day and bring a big bowl of assorted nuts down into the kitchen, is something which is nearly indispensable to the eternal fitness of things on a farm. Where we were, along the river, there were also pecans, and we had over a bushel of these packed away with the rest, waiting for the "blowy" days.

Apples we had gathered and bought, and we had these packed away in barrels in the cellar. The sound ones had been carefully selected, and every once and awhile we up-ended these barrels (at least I did) and sorted them over by candle-light so as to get out those which showed signs of rotting. One apple which has begun to get bad will quickly contaminate the ones which are in close contact with it. Like apples, like men. We had Jennatins, Ben Davises, Northern Spys, Winesaps, and some others.

We had put away a little kindling in the cellar for emergencies, but for the most part, our fires, both in the kitchen stove and the front room stove, were going all winter, night and day. We used soft coal, mined within half a mile of us, and costing two dollars a ton delivered. The whole country in that part of the state is honeycombed with big and little veins of coal, and as one travels along the roads, in every direction will be seen the little plank entrances to the mines, some of these mines being mere holes in the ground. We had wood, too, for variety, and this was split up stove-length size, and corded away in a dry shed. Wood was 75 cents a cord.

With the cellar packed with vegetables and apples, with a barrel of cider in one corner, "doctored" so that it would remain sweet all winter, and not get "hard," with coal, wood and kindling all in, there was nothing to do but say "let her blow," so far as winter was concerned. I had built raised plank walks to the sheds, smoke-house and chicken-house, where we had stored some things, so that when the deep snows came I could improvise an impromptu snow plow with a scoop shovel and have high and dry paths in every direction necessary in very short order.

Generally in November the snows begin in that locality, and when the snow did come we were thoroughly prepared for it. From the tenth of November to the twentieth of December the quail season was on, and squirrels and rabbits could be shot at that time also, and as game of this kind was very plentiful, not only on the farm there, but on all the adjoining farms, it was the easiest matter in the world to keep the larder always stocked with game. Rabbits dressed and hung up for a few days in the cold will turn as tender as chicken, and then is the time of the year when they are literally rolling in fat. Squirrels, unless you get young ones, are tough muscled as athletes, and require from a couple of days to three weeks' stewing to render them "chewable."

But the quail were there in plenty. Lenore called them "cuckoos," and she displayed a most lively interest in my comings and goings with the gun, as she was very fond of "cuckoos." The bevies ran from 15 to 40 birds, the larger bevies being probably where two bevies had mingled. I hunted entirely without a dog, and it was simply pitting my long experience against the cunning of the birds. I never needed to shoot more than three or four birds at the outside, and did not do so unless hunting on a neighbor's farm, and then I would shoot him some birds for his table. The ominous signs of "keep out" and "No hunting allowed" stared at me from every side, but as I was a simon-pure "neighbor," these signs were not so much intended for me as they were for hunters from the towns or cities. I had gotten acquainted with nearly all of my neighbors within a radius of a number of miles, and when they saw I was not hunting to slaughter game, they were very generous in their willingness to let me shoot over their farms.

Some of them, though, did not want any quail shot on their places, and it was sore temptation when hunting rabbits on these farms to have a bevy of quail spring out from under my feet, in easy range, and dart into nice cover a little ways ahead. Many a time I would sight on some fat bird and say to myself "dead bird" as the quail sailed off, but refrain from pulling the trigger. I did not shoot because the man relied on my promise to let his quail alone if I came on the farm to hunt, but I wanted to, mightily, every time I had the chance. But I did not kill the quail where I had promised not to, and I went on no man's land without his permission. I do not believe it is as bad to desire strongly to do a forbidden thing, as to do it.

'Tis one thing to be tempted, Horatio;
Another thing to fall."

We took long walks in the winter days even when the weather was cold, striking across fields and pastures, and going into the timber and along the ravines. Winter woods are always beautiful, and by bundling up warm even women and children will enjoy these tramps. Sometimes we went on sled-rides, wrapping up warm in old coverlets and blankets and climbing into "low-sot" "bob-sleds" and spinning around on the country roads. The jingle of sleigh-bells was an almost inevitable accompaniment of winter nights when snow lay thick and hard on the highways, and often when we were in bed, we would hear them sound faint and far, and then near and nearer until they clashed past the gate in a

"Tintinnabulation of the bells, bells,

to fade out in the distance and leave the silence less than sound when they were gone.

We read a good deal during the winter days and evenings, and Cecile read the Bible clear through one winter from cover to cover. I wonder how many women have really read the Bible through? Or men, either, for that matter. I devoted some considerable time to the Encyclopedia Britannica, and refreshed my memory with my old favorite books. The old literary landmarks! How they shine steadfast and serene while everything else seems to diminish and wane.

"Books were his chiefest friends; in them he read
Of those great spirits who went down like suns,
Yet left upon the mountain-top of
A light that made them lovely."

In the really blustery and disagreeable days, when the winds roared in the chimney, and the atmosphere was gray with shifting snows, we generally retired to the kitchen. The kitchen of a farm-house, it may be remarked in passing, is the really comfortable and ultra sacred precinct of the entire establishment. If you are on terms of real friendship with a farmer, you will be admitted to his kitchen. If you are just an acquaintance, you will be ushered into the front room. The kitchen is where the barriers of etiquette are let down, or ignored, and where folks put their feet on the kitchen stove, and the old-time spirit of utter American democracy finds fullest expression. Here is the sphere of the cow-hide boot, the "overall," the hickory shirt, and the cheerful expression. Here is the spot where comfort does not masquerade in strange attire nor with a forced smile.

To sit around a good fire in a kitchen of a farm-house, with a raging snow storm snarling at the doors and windows, with a pitcher of cider which can always be refilled, with plenty of hickory nuts and walnuts on hand in the garret, with apples from the cellar on broad-brimmed plates, and with cookies or doughnuts to fill in any stray abdominal crevices, is to enjoy life. And of course, now and then, a rollicking tune from the fiddle. There is something in a climate where the rigor of the year closes in for a spell that appeals very keenly to me. There is anticipation in the message and farewells of late autumnal days, and the signs on the window panes of the advance guards of the north.

When we went into the pastures and around the feed-lots where the cattle crunched their cornstalks, the snowbirds would scatter in dusky bands, and watchful crows in the timber cawed warily and swung from their airy perches as we approached. Along the rail fences the tracks of field mice showed, and around the shocks of corn in the fields where the men had been "shucking" out the corn there were the tracks of rabbits and quail. The slate-colored juncos and chickadees flitted infrequently above garden and orchard, and stray hawks sailed past toward the river bottom.

From the window we could see the teams go past to town, some wagons loaded with coal, some buggies carrying a lone driver. From the nostrils of the horses the frosty breath puffed and curled plainly in the nipping air, and the wheels of the wagons squeaked audibly over the close-packed drifts. The mail carrier came regularly so long as the roads were passable, but when infrequent thaws rendered the highways an impassable morass, we waited and watched for him in vain. School children went by night and morning, swinging straps with a hook in maybe, or carrying their pails or baskets with which they had taken their dinners to school. The drifts piled in to the fence corners, and the landscape beyond and all around us was etched against the distant horizon as clear and sharp as a cameo. The sunsets were magnificent; the starlight nights indescribably brilliant. The dawns came cold and red, and red and cold the sun went down. It was a strange, still, trance-like time, where you were thrilled with pictures of a snowy fairy-land, and yet where the warmth of a fire was like the greeting of your best friend.

Everywhere one looked on a frosty morning there were the thin, wavering columns of farm-house smoke ascending into the gray dome above. Signals of life and endeavor; mute heralds of greeting from house to house.

Some days I would take my skates and wade through the snows down to the lake, and where I could find, as I sometimes did, a clear space which had been swept by the brooms of the wandering wind, I would skate by myself among the shadows cast by blanketed tree trunks and withered vines. Sometimes I would find in fine traceries of almost impalpable snow the sign-manual of others who had come and gone with their skates, leaving the silent spaces more silent for their going.

Along this lake, and further in to where its swampy edges backed in towards the river, there were the tracks of mink and rabbit, of raccoon and prowling fox. Once I saw a fox, but it was for the fraction of a second only, and his red brush disappeared like a shred of trailing autumnal vine before a winter storm.

Cloistered as we were in this temple of the most retired of all the seasons, we nevertheless found a thousand ways of enjoying both indoors and outdoors, and as the months drifted from November to February we scarcely felt the rigors of the time. There were days, of course, when the air was like a knife; when an open door meant a blow in the face from the wind; when a neighbor stamping in brought an icy breath from outside that chilled to the very marrow almost before the doors could be closed. But for the most part the winter weather was merely bracing and invigorating. It always brought with it the necessity of resistance; the feeling that something was to be met with and overcome. It drove the languor out of the system, and while it roughened lips and cheeks, it sent the blood spinning through one's veins.

Even when the January thaws gave a false feeling of early spring to the air, there was somehow a menace of the last month's javelins to come. And when February had stormed and captured the last withered leaves of the oaks in front of the house; when the Canada geese flew north in trailing and wedge-shaped flocks; when the ducks followed, dropping into the fields to search for stray ears of corn among the tumbled stalks that still remained; when there was a softer blue in the skies above when later the earliest blue bird quavered; when the first violet bloomed; when spring came on as softly as the moss about the roots of oak and maple—even then we felt the enchantment of winter with us, and mourned the passing of the sheeted and ghostly snows.

LIVES LOST IN TORNADOES

TEN ARE KILLED AND TWELVE HURT IN OKLAHOMA.

Severe Storms in Nebraska and at Quincy, Ill.—High Wind Causes Wreck of Circus Train.

Wichita, Kan.—Ten dead, 12 injured, several fatally, hundreds of head of cattle killed, a vast acreage of crops destroyed, ruin and desolation, are the results of a series of tornadoes that visited Alfalfa county, Oklahoma, Tuesday night.

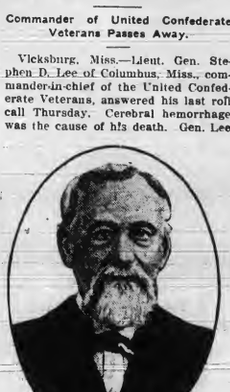
The dead are: Mrs. Guy Hutchison and baby, Peter Rudy, wife and two children; Mrs. Elliott, Mrs. Parker and baby, R. C. Atchison.

Omaha, Neb.—A severe storm, accompanied by a wind which destroyed everything in its path, struck the north end of the city early Wednesday.

Three Nebraska towns were visited by small tornadoes. At Hastings the barns of James Rallston and Frank Kellar were razed and their homes badly wrecked. No person was hurt. At Chadron a storm with tornado features occurred, wrecking small buildings. Two persons were injured. At Fremont a small tornado demolished the cribs and sheds of the McCaull-Webster Elevator company and destroyed the elevator at Wood Cliff.

Quincy, Ill.—A severe rain and windstorm prevailed here Wednesday interfering with steamboat traffic and blowing down many shade trees throughout the city. George Werner, a cupalo tender at Sheridan Stove works, was killed by lightning, which ran down the elevator cable.

Jackson, Minn.—A special circus train, carrying 26 cars and pulled by two engines, was wrecked in an extraordinary manner two miles west of Alpha on the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road Wednesday. Five empty box cars on a siding were started in motion by a terrific wind and running into an open switch, struck squarely upon the main track. The empty cars then rushed down the steep hill and crashed into the approaching circus special.



Chicago.—One of the severest electrical wind and rainstorms in years struck Chicago Thursday evening, doing immense damage in the city and suburbs. The greatest destruction was done to Forest Park, a large new summer amusement resort just built on the western edge of the city and which was to have been opened Saturday.

St. Joseph, Mo.—Reports from Maryville, Oregon, Tarkio and other northwest Missouri towns are to the effect that thousands of acres of lowlands have been flooded. Most of this land had been planted to corn and the damage is heavy.

Snell Will is Set Aside.

Clinton, Ill.—At one o'clock Friday morning the jury in the Snell case, after having been out six hours, brought in a verdict setting aside the will. The jury was unanimous in declaring its belief that Col. Snell was of unsound mind. The $2,000,000 estate will be divided as in cases where no will is left.

Denies Marrying Anna to Helie.

New York.—Justice of the Peace William Budenbender of Hoboken, whose name had been mentioned in connection with reports that Prince de Sagan and Mme. Gould were married in New Jersey, denied positively Monday that he performed the marriage.

Union Pacific Shops Closed.

Grand Island, Neb.—An order was posted in the Union Pacific shops here Thursday closing down work in the machine, blacksmith and sheet iron departments entirely until further notice by bulletin.

Dam Bursts; Three Drowned.

Toronto, Ont.—A special from Port Arthur says the civic dam on Current river burst, causing a disastrous flood. The loss of three lives and a money loss estimated at $500,000 is reported.

Round About the State

What Is Going On in Different Sections of Kentucky.

CAPITOL COMMISSION

Approves Architect Andrews' Plans For Completing State Building.

Frankfort, Ky.—Frank M. Andrews' plans for the power house, lighting plant, electrical fixtures, retaining wall and furnishings for the new Capitol were accepted by the capitol commission, and Andrews will continue to be architect for the building.

Olmsted Bros., of Brookline, Mass., will be retained as the landscape gardeners, but in every other detail Mr. Andrews will be in charge, subject to the order of the commission. Andrews will receive a commission of 5 per cent on all the work except the furnishings, on which he will receive 2½ per cent.

The recent legislature passed a bill appropriating money to complete the new capitol, with a provision retaining Andrews in charge of the work. The governor vetoed that section of the bill, and left the matter of employing an architect in the hands of the capitol commission.

CYCLONE STRIKES HAMLET

Destroying Tobacco Barn and Scattering Contents Many Miles.

Frankfort, Ky.—For the second time within a month this section was visited by a cyclone.

The twister swept through the hamlet of Switzer, seven miles from this city, and demolished the large tobacco barn of John W. Scott.

The 7,000 pounds of tobacco was scattered over a radius of several miles. The tobacco was in the burley pool and was uninsured.

Poles and wires on the Frankfort & Versailles electric interurban line for several hundred yards were swept away. Traffic was blocked for a few hours.

Fighting the Tax.

Frankfort, Ky.—Whether medicinal compounds containing intoxicating liquors will continue to pay the one and one-quarter cent per gallon tax required of the rectifiers and compounders will be settled in deciding the suit filed here by the Dr. C. Bouvjer Specialty Co. against Auditor F. P. James, asking that he be restrained from collecting the taxes from them under the revenue act of 1906. The company claims that its remedy is made of buchu and gin.

Fifty Plucky Girls.

Frankfort, Ky.—Lightning struck the flag pole on Stewart's sanitarium. There was no panic among the 50 girl inmates, though the building was set on fire. John Wright, a watchman, was the only person hurt. A bucket brigade saved the building.

Claybrook Out.

Louisville, Ky.—Maj. J. P. Claybrook, city engineer, resigned. The board will choose a successor at competitive examination. Maj. Claybrook built the Mexican Central railroad, and, after graduating from Annapolis, was a captain in the confederate navy.

Alleged Forger Arrested.

Lexington, Ky.—J. Bates, charged with forgery in Virginia and in various parts of Kentucky in the mountain districts, was arrested at Hindman, Knott county, on a charge of forging a check on the bank of Hindman.

Mrs. Hollowell Pardoned.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson granted a pardon to Mrs. Mary Lou Hollowell before her trial in the Caldwell county circuit court on an indictment charging her with being an accessory to the scraping of tobacco plant beds in that county.

Republicans Get Half.

Frankfort, Ky.—Some changes of officials in the charitable institutions of the state will probably be made July 1. Several places will be abolished and there will be a shake-up in the three asylums and the feeble minded institute.

Kentuckian Fatally Shot.

Augusta, Ky.—In a dispute over a woman Grover Bess shot Ace Gill through the head, inflicting a fatal wound. The men were in the pike in front of the Bracken County infirmary. Both of the men are unmarried.

Two Special Judges Appointed.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson appointed D. D. Sublet, of Salyersville, special judge in Morgan circuit court, and Sampel Holmes, of Carlisle, special judge of the Greenup circuit court.

Heavy Hailstorm.

Lexington, Ky.—The heaviest hailstorm in years raged in Scott county, destroying crops, several barns and severely injuring stock. The hail in some places piled 18 inches high.

Case is Affirmed.

Frankfort, Ky.—The court of appeals affirmed the case of the city of Covington vs. Thomas W. Webster. Webster stepped in a hole in a sidewalk and recovered $775 for the injury sustained.

Star Girls Got Coin.

Louisville, Ky.—Star Day for the benefit of the Wesley home netted $1,500 here. The system was to hail passers-by and pin paper stars on their coats for the payment of any sum from a penny to a dollar.

INDICTMENTS RETURNED

Against Persons Alleged To Have Been in Elmburg Raid.

Shelbyville, Ky.—The grand jury of Shelby county returned into circuit court 18 indictments against persons alleged to have been in the Elmburg raid in this county on March 25 last. The indicted parties are residents of this county and of Franklin county, which adjoins. They are well-known farmers of their sections. The Shelby county men appeared in court and each gave bond in the sum of $500. The indicted men are accused of destroying a lot of tobacco canvas at Hall Brothers' store at Elmburg. On this charge they were dismissed in the county court a week ago. They are accused of banding together and confederating for the purpose of destroying property. The grand jury continues in session here and more indictments will likely be returned, as Commonwealth Attorney C. H. Hanford, of Newcastle, says he proposes to have every night rider in his district prosecuted.

LIABLE FOR SAFE DELIVERY

Of Parcels Are Transportation Companies, It is Decided.

Frankfort, Ky.—Transportation companies are responsible for the safe delivery of goods and other articles placed in their hands, is the decision of the court of appeals in an opinion written by Judge Barker in the case of Stiles against the L. & N. railroad. The court in this case reversed the judgment of the Nelson circuit court. Gaddie Stiles shipped 30 head of horses from St. Louis to New Haven. The horses were destroyed by fire at Louisville, and Stiles brought suit for damages. The railroad company contended that it was not responsible for the fire, and therefore was not liable for damages, but the court holds that the carrier is responsible for the safe delivery of goods in cases like this one.

Caught at Last.

Lexington, Ky.—It is stated by an officer of the experiment station at the state university that a disease which has been destroying so many cattle in Kentucky is due to a germ that has just been discovered and a cure found. The officers declined to discuss the matter further than to say that State Veterinarian Eisman would make announcement from Louisville shortly.

Believe Farmer Committed Suicide.

Lexington, Ky.—When Taylor Whitaker, 60, a farmer of Madison county, went to work he carried a gun with him, saying he intended to kill crows. As he did not return for his dinner a search was made, and his body was found in the field. It was discovered that he had been shot in the neck and it is believed that he committed suicide.

Desire Added Dignity.

Frankfort, Ky.—When the judges of the court of appeals move into the new capitol it is likely they will adopt black gowns to be worn on the bench. They are now considering adoption of this uniform. An inquiry has been sent to the supreme courts of other states as to the custom of wearing gowns.

Want Tax Reform.

Louisville, Ky.—In folders scattered all over Kentucky the State Development association discusses tax conditions in the state. It declares they are unbearable and antiquated, and growing worse every year. The association hopes to have every citizen of Kentucky on its mailing list, with a view to a campaign of education.

New Point Decided.

London, Ky.—In dismissing a damage case of Vaughan against Woman's Home Mission society of the M. E. church, South, Circuit Judge Faulkner held that a charitable society conducting without profit an educational institution is not liable for damages resulting from accidental injuries.

Taylor Appointed.

Washington.—The most important Kentucky patronage question now pending has been settled, although there will be no formal announcement until after congress adjourns. The president has decided to appoint J. Frank Taylor, of Glasgow, surveyor of the Port of Louisville.

Banks Paying Up.

Frankfort, Ky.—The national banks in Kentucky are now paying back taxes on government bonds in their possession and on their capital stock and surplus at the rate of 80 per cent on the dollar, under the agreement [illegible] and the board of valuation and assessment.

Wheeler Out For Good.

Paducah, Ky.—Former Congressman Chas. K. Wheeler denied the report that he will be a candidate for democratic national committeeman for Kentucky. He reiterates his former declaration that he is out of politics for good.

Banker Suicides.

Lexington, Ky.—W. C. Smith, 35, a former president of the National Exchange bank, of this city, committed suicide by shooting himself behind the right ear. Despondency is the cause assigned. He was wealthy.

BOONE CO. RECORDER.
W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

The fire loss in Kentucky last year was $2,214,525.90.

The State Capitol Commission has retained Frank M. Andrews to continue as architect of the new State building which was designed by him.

A large decrease in the general business of the Kentucky Fire Insurance companies is shown in the annual report of the Insurance Commissioner, C. W. Bell.

The luckiest member of the House must be Congressman Ralph D. Cole, of the Eighteenth Ohio district, who has twice secured his nomination as a Republican candidate by the flip of a coin."

Gov. Willson pardoned Mrs. Mary Lou Hollowell, who was under indictment in Caldwell county on the charge of scraping a plant bed. Mrs. Hollowell and her husband were driven from the State by night riders.

There will be 1,086 votes in the Democratic State Convention to be held in Lexington on June 11th. The Sixth Congressional district will cast 96 votes, as follows: Boone 10; Campbell 28, Carroll 8; Grant 8; Kenton 29; Pendleton 7; Trimble 6.

Secretary Taft is not only the most traveled man in official life in this or any other country, but he has broken records of professional globe trotters. Since he first became the right-hand man of President Roosevelt he has journeyed about the world no less than 100,000 miles.

The number of pencils manufactured in the United States each year, according to the Forest Service is at least 315,000,000 for the production of which 75,000,000 feet, board measure, of wood are required, the greater part of which is red cedar. Four pencils for each inhabitant seems a very conservative estimate.

Walker Duncan and Riley Harrod, well-known Shelby county farmers, were indicted on the charge of killing Newton R. Hazelett, whose body was found on the road near Jacksonville. Duncan admitted the killing and took all responsibility for the act. He said he was expecting a raid by night riders and had asked Harrod and another neighbor to assist him in defending his property. He said he only fired at Hazelett in self-defense.

The national banks in Kentucky are now paying back taxes on Government bonds in their possession and on their capital stock and surplus at the rate of 80 per cent on the dollar, under the agreement made with the Board of Valuation and Assessment. In a short time every national bank in the state will have paid claims which they had resisted when the old board taxed them 100 cents on the dollar. There will be collected altogether about $250,000, some of which has been owed to the state for four years.

There will be no liquor sold in the convention auditorium in Denver where the National Democratic Convention meets in July. Application was made to the Committee on Arrangements in charge of the convention for a concession for a bar in a section of the auditorium which is near the committee rooms and some distance from the assembly hall where the delegates will meet. A large sum was offered for this concession by several firms experienced in catering at conventions, but the committee unanimously voted to refuse any concession for a bar or other means of selling liquor on the auditorium premises.

Reports from all the counties in the western district of the Black Patch, both through the buyers and the growers, are that one-fourth to one-third more tobacco will be raised this year than last. In Marshall county almost as much as was raised last year has been planted, and there is much more to go in the ground. Efforts to curtail the planting in the dark district have been unavailing, even among association men. About every four years a bumper crop is anticipated: All conditions combine this year to presage a big yield. The high prices of the last two years have made the crop profitable, and planters are putting in an extraordinary large acreage to reap the benefit of it.

A farmer in Bath county made up his mind to raise tobacco this year. He thought that by flying the stars and stripes over his plant bed no night rider would have the boldness to disturb it for he reasoned, any insult to the flag would put Uncle Sam on the trail of such offenders. His plants came up beautifully and he congratulated himself on his prospects and began to crow over his neighbors who had decided to cut out their crops. But his self-gratulation did not last long, for one day some one left the gate open and his two fine short horn bulls got into the field where his plant beds were. Seeing the red of the stars and stripes, waving in the breeze, the bulls accepted it as a challenge to combat. Lowering their heads they made a charge on the "red rags," and in less time than it takes in the telling had pawed up the plant bed and destroyed the flags. In this way he was forced to join the no-crop movement.

The New York Times says: "Owing to the rarity of hydrophobia, many myths have grown up around it. Indeed, what passes for common knowledge of it is almost all false. The "mad" dog does not froth at the mouth, he does not hate water, he is no more a product of summer heat than of winter cold, and he has no inclination to bite except in blind resentment of any interference with the motionless hebetude which characterizes one phase of the malady or with the impulse to constant and purposeless flight which marks the alternative manifestation. The dog that acts as rabid dogs are popularly supposed to act can confidently be held to be suffering from some other and more common disease. The symptom that should most quickly excite suspicion is a notable and otherwise unexplained change in the animal's disposition, a calm dog becoming excitable or a lively one dull. In neither case is rabies proved, but in both the dog should be carefully confined and watched, and expert advice should be secured."

The Democratic party in Kentucky will settle, in the next few days, who shall be its leaders in the State, and upon that selection depends the party's success for the next several succeeding years. The experiences in the last few years demonstrate that a new deal all around is imperative if anything is to be accomplished, and that there must be a getting together of the Beckham and the anti-Beckham elements in the State, and unless the delegates who constitute the State convention at Lexington act with an eye single to party benefits instead of the advancement of individuals, the party's condition will not be benefitted by the convention, but, on the other hand, will be put yet further in the hole. It is apparent that some of those who have held the position of leaders for several years, but have only proved their inefficiency, desire to retain their present offices and will resist with all their might and effort to displace them. These leaders ought to be anxious any willing to step down and out and let new men be placed at the helm, but they do not see matters in that light.

Suit has been filed in the Kenton Circuit court in Covington in which James and Charles E. O'Hara, Williamstown, citizens, seek to recover $5,495 95, which they claim they paid over as alleged blackmail. J. T. Scott, Katie Martin, D. W. Hall, J. W. Lancaster, J. W. Webb, E. K. Wilson, Robert Childers, J. W. Shields, Henry McMillan, D. S. Clay, Wm. Stroud, J. Glasscock, G. S. Webb, R. T. Dickerson, F. A. Cunningham and M. S. Clark are named as defendants in the action. The petition sets forth that on and before July 23, 1907, the defendants represented to the plaintiffs that they had control of the Grant county courts and threatened to prosecute the plaintiffs in the Criminal court, unless certain sums of money were paid them. The plaintiffs allege that on July 23, 1907, they paid over $5,494 95, which they seek to recover, and which the petition characterizes as "blackmail." James O'Hara is a druggist at Williamstown and Chas. O'Hara is a well known lawyer. James O'Hara, it is alleged, was threatened with prosecution on the charge of illegally selling liquor and the money is alleged to have been paid over to stop the action. —Times-Star.

The RECORDER is in receipt of a card announcing the graduation of James Preston Coleman, at Topeka, Kansas. He is the son of Chiles Coleman, who, many years ago, went from Burlington to Kansas, where he ranks with the ablest lawyers of the State, having held the office of Attorney General. Here is wishing young Coleman success.

Albert Conner was hauling hay out on the East Bend road, one day last week, when he got stuck in a mud hole near Bennie Kelly's. It took about a day's hard work, in which ropes and blocks were brought into use, to release the load. This happened within two miles of the county seat, and on one of the principal dirt roads in the county.

Geo. E. Rouse, of Limaburg, is an up-to date farmer in every particular but one—he will have his corn dropped by hand instead of using a check-row or a drill. This is probably because he is a man who believes in having a place for everything and seeing that everything is in its place, and having a place at which to drop his corn he wants to see that it is there.

Aurorraites are suffering from a new disease which closely resembles grip, but so far the physicians have been unable to relieve the sufferers. A lawyer offers this cure: "Get a half gallon of rye, go home, hang your hat on the foot of the bed, lie down and drink until you see two hats. Patients are cautioned not to drink until they see three hats, but they must at least see two.—Bulletin.

The Democrats of Boone county should not neglect to attend the county mass meeting in Burlington next Saturday for the purpose of selecting delegates to the State convention to be held at Lexington to select delegates to attend the national convention at Denver, Colorado. There are not many loaves and fishes in sight, but that fact should not keep members of the party away from their primary meetings.

The cutting out of the 1908 crop of tobacco will result in quite a number of people in this county not having as steady employment this year as usual, which should give overseers of public roads an opportunity to secure enough labor to do more work on the roads than they have been in the habit of doing in past years. Indications are hands will be seeking work before the snow flies again in order to provide for winter wants.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. It accepts deposits from one cent to one million dollars, and pays four per cent on time deposits remaining one year and three per cent if left six months. Try us; we can help you in many ways. Mail deposits especially solicited. Come and see us.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom Moore, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

As a result of a cloud burst on the headwaters of Dry Creek, last Friday afternoon, there was a mad rush of water down that stream which caught an old lady named Vance and her driver in the creek near Constance. Both horses were drowned, and the man and woman had a narrow escape, she being unconscious when rescued. They were carried down stream a considerable distance in the floating wagon bed before it was caught in the bushes.

Tobacco growers of the Burley district who had the courage to pool their tobacco in 1906 and 1907, in spite of the fight and threats made against them by the trust, will reap a larger profit than they expected, for the members of the Burley Tobacco Society have decided to increase the price of the tobacco they now have in the pool. To what price the tobacco will be increased is not known at this time, but it is definitely decided that the average will be raised, and instead of the growers getting 15 cents a pound for their tobacco it is likely that they will get 18 or 20 cents a pound.—Blue Grass Clipper.

The soreing price of corn should suggest to the farmer the planting of a considerable crop of pumpkins this year. Pumpkins are an old stand-by and are produced at comparatively no expense as they can be planted among the corn, the cultivation of which will be sufficient for them. Two or three seeds planted in every third hill of corn or six or eight feet apart in drilled corn, will make an enormous yield, and do not, apparently, interfere with the yield of the corn in the least. Most any kind of livestock will eat of them and do well. Hogs relish them; milch cows are anxious to eat of them, and many horses are fond of them. There is nothing equal to them as a substitute for corn, nor can any other crop be produced with so little labor and expense. Give the pumpkin a chance and see what a corn saver it is.

Lim Jucklin on Lawyers

By Opie Read

A lawsuit had been tried on the veranda of the crossroads store, and when it had been settled Limuel Jucklin, who had watched the proceedings, took the home-made chair, vacated by the justice, leaned back against the wall and remarked: "Rather bad, this thing of goin' to law. And ain't it a peculiar state of society that educates men to stimulate quarrels? We may say that they ain't trained for that purpose, but unless there are misunderstandin's the lawyer's work is cut off, and he's got a little too much of Old Adam in him not to look out for his own interest."

"That is just about what I expected you to say. But grantin' to the lawyer all he can claim for himself, it must after all be allowed that the bickerin's and shortsightedness of the human family give him the most of his excuse for livin'. A perfect state of civilization would argue perfect honesty, and if such were the case the lawyers would be powerful scarce. There is no denyin' of the fact that some of the greatest men have been lawyers and that the most of our presidents have practiced law. And so have some of the immortal geniuses been soldiers, but if man had been just and peaceable there never would have been any need for the soldier."

"According to your view, then," said the lawyer, "there is no real need for anybody that—"

"That doesn't build up." Limuel broke in, winking at his former friends. "Every man ought to produce somethin'. If he don't he's livin' on somebody that does. The only real occupation is the one that makes the world better. Understand, now, I have nothin' against anybody's callin'. I'm just expressin' my opinion and it must be taken for what it is worth. But the lawyer shows us one thing if nothin' more—how keen a man's mind may be whetted. I recollect once that a fellow sued me. We had swapped horses—"

"And you had got the better of him, eh?" said the lawyer.

"Well, that's the way it looked to him. The horse I let him have died that night. He asked me if the horse was sound and I said I never had heard any complaint, and I hadn't. He had never been under the care of a doctor so far as I knew. His appetite was good and he'd hat his eye when you motioned at him. I might have seen him fall down—have seen men fall, but I didn't think that they were goin' to die. I told him a man could drive him. A child did drive him out of the garden that day. Well, we swapped, and, as I say, his horse was taken sick in the night and died before day. He came back to me and swore that I had swopped him a horse that I know'd was goin' to die. I told him that if he'd show me a horse that wa'n't goin' to die I'd give him my farm. I felt that he had the worst of it and I would have evened it up the best way I could, but before I got through havin' fun with him he got mad and went away and hired a lawyer to prove that I was a liar and altogether the worst man in the community.

"I never got such a scorin' in my life. I felt sorry for my wife and children. I didn't think that anybody would ever speak to me again, and I told the lawyer that I would make it a personal matter between me and him. I expected the justice to decide dead against me, but he didn't. He had been a horse trader himself.

"Well, after the thing was over with I took the horse I got from the feller and went over to his house about ten miles away and turned the nag loose in his lot. I did it not because I was sorry for him, but because I was afraid of myself—afraid that I conldn't sleep, and I was workin' hard and needed rest. Well, sir, that night the nag that I'd turned into the lot ups and dies, and the feller swore that I had hauled him there after he was dead, and hanged if he didn't sue me again. He got the same lawyer and he made me out a worse man than I was before. Made it appear that I had poisoned the horse and dragged him over there. Then I swore that the whole county couldn't hold me back from takin' it out of his hide.

"So the first chance I got I went to town to see the lawyer. I went over to the courthouse and he was makin' a speech, and I wish I may die dead if the feller he was a skinnin' this time wan't the very man that had sued me. I never hearn anything like it. Tiptoed and called him all sorts of a scoundrel; said that he had defrauded me, as honest a man as lived in the state. I couldn't stand that, I walked on out and after a while he came along and held out his hand and called me 'Uncle Lim,' just as if I was his mother's brother. Then he clapped me on the shoulder and you could have heard him laugh more than a mile. He said he was a comin' out to go a fishin' with me.

"Well, I let him off, and after we had got to be right good friends, I asked him how he happened to he engaged against my enemy, and this is what he said: 'Oh, I wasn't. Some of the boys told me you were comin' into the house and I knew that you were troublesome when you set your head to it, so as court wasn't in session I started in to makin' a speech against the fellow so you could hear me,' and he clapped me on the shoulder and you could have hearn him laugh more than two miles this time.

"Get a lawyer with fun in him and he's all right. Once I had some business on hand—the settlement of my brotber's estate—and I went to old Tom Cantwell and asked him how much he would charge me, and he almosttook my breath with the amount he named. I knew he was a man of a good deal of ability—liked fun, and I says to him like this: 'Tell you what arrangement to make, colonel. I've got a mighty fine chicken out at my house and if you can fetch out one to whip him I'll engage you and pay your price, but if my chicken whips yourn, why you do the work for nothin'.' He was a man of ability and he agreed. Ah, me, there ain't such lawyers about here these days. I recollect once he—"

"But did the fight come off?" someone inquired.

"Oh, that fight? Yes, held tallow candles for it one night, and you'd have thought it was a snowin', the air was so full of feathers. My wife kept on a callin' out: 'Limnel, what are you a doin' there in the smokehouse,' and I always answered: 'I'm diggin' up a rat. Go on to bed. I've most got him now.'

"'I don't know how long they fit—other roosters were crowin' all around the neighborhood when they got through. But my chicken crowed last, and the colonel gave me his hand with feathers a stickin' to it, and says, says he: 'Lim, you've got me and I'll take care of your business.'

"Best settlement I ever made. He took care of the business right up to the handle, and when he had got through he 'lowed, he did, that he could find a bird that could whip mine for the estate—said he'd put up his law books and his house and lot against it, but it looked too much like gamblin', so I backed down. Oh, he would have done it.—Ablest lawyer in the county. It's a pity all lawsuits couldn't he set tled somewhat in that way—as fairly, I mean.

"I was just a thinkin'," he added after a few moments of silence, "how much trouble the old world has been put to tryin' to govern man. Every year or so the legislatures meet and make laws and unmake them, always experimentin' with man. The trouble with him is he don't know what he wants and don't know what to do with it after he gets it. And the lawyer is the outgrowth of his restlessness and his ignorance."

"Think there will ever come a time when there are no lawyers?" the young advocate inquired, and the old man scratched his head.

"Oh, yes, that time will come, but it will be the time when there isn't anything. The lawyer has come to stay as long as the rest of us do. He's a smart man and a good feller for the most part, and is nearly always willin' to forgive you when he has done you a wrong, and I want to remark right here that this argues the extremest of liberality."

I'VE BEEN THINKING

By Charles Battell Loomis

I ONCE knew a millionaire who always carried his money around with him in bills. There were some one dollar bills, more ten-dollar bills, and many hundred and thousand dollar bills. He always carried them in a suit case with an ordinary lock and key, and he told me that he was happy just because he had the actual money.

His brother hardly ever handled money at all. He was a millionaire, too, but he did all his business with checks, and seldom had more than $20 on his person, and he was miserable and dyspeptic.

Now, of course, there are persons of imagination who go through life using checks and feeling rich, but it takes a good deal of imagination to do so, and for me the pretty green ten-dollar bill means ten times as much as the check for ten dollars.

Of course, checks have their uses, and I use them myself. When a bill for some prosaic thing, like repairs to the coal chute, comes in, I send out a check in payment, but if I am buying a book that I have long coveted, you may be sure that I hand out real money for it. The book represents something tangible, and I will not insult the book dealer by sending him a cold, unfeeling check.

If I wanted to bring happiness to a widow, whose husband had died leaving her destitute, do you think that I would send her a check for a thousand dollars? If you do, you don't know me.

If I were going to do the thing at all I would go to her house with one crisp and crisp dollar bills, and I would receive her thanks for each one. But it is a queer thing about gratitude. Her thanks for the first bill would be heartfelt, but by the time I had reached the first hundred she would have grown tired of thanking me, and I verily believe that before I had handed in the last bill she would have asked me if I couldn't be a little more expedient. Thus usage dulls the senses.

On the other hand, do you suppose that if I were sued for a thousand dollars I would pay the complainant in good green money? No, a thousand times, no. I would purposely buy the smallest blank check that I could find, and in my most minute chirography, and with an autograph that was barely good, I would sign it, and thus I would feel that I was getting off cheap.

In some things most of us are intensely mean, and among the expenditures that offend men's souls are those paid into a railroad company's grasping maw. I hold myself no better than the rest, and, if possible, I always travel in company with another, and before we start out I give him money to cover the expenses, and he buys the tickets and I feel that I have not spent so much.

One objection I have to royalties is that they always come in the form of a check—when they come at all. One time, though, my publisher varied it; instead of sending a check he sent a bill. You see, I had given at least ten copies of the book at Christmas time, and, of course, the balance was in his favor. Do you know, I really enjoyed the thing for a change.

By the way, that receiving of royalties, even if they are paid in check form, is a good game. You sell your stories for so much, and then, when they are all printed, you are induced to make a book of them. Well, you have already been paid for them, so that you stand to gain, whatever happens. It may be only ten dollars that will come of you, but it may be $10,000, and the joy of looking forward to royalty day is one that cannot he expressed in words. You do not hear much about the sale of your book; your friends say nothing about it, but perhaps they are keeping its phenomenal success a secret from you. You live in the country, and you never see the Bookman, so you do not know what the six best sellers are, but you have your suspicions. At last the fateful day arrives, the familiar envelope of your publisher comes to you by mail, and as you open it a check flutters out. You remember the stories of du Maurier and "Trilby," and how his publishers sent him several thousands over and above the contract agreement.

To be sure, it is only a check, and not money, but, after all, any bank will convert a check into money if you are known, and your book has doubtless made you known through the wide world.

You pick up the check and close your eyes until you are holding it right in front of them. "The Second National bank of New York. Pay to the order of yourself $47.50. Harp, Scrib. & Co."

It isn't quite what you thought it would be. The book is not one of the six—yet. Still, after the first disappointment is over, you reflect that it is all clear gain, and you go to the bank and have it converted into new dollar bills, and then you go down town to the bookstore and you buy thirty odd books that you have wanted for years.

No, you don't. You know very well you don't, for the same mail that brought the check brought its antithesis in the form of a bill from the gentleman who raised the price of beef on you, and the other gentleman who charged you eight dollars a ton for coal, and like a good little man you sit down and you write out two checks which take up 42 of the dollars.

But take my advice and get the better of fortune by taking the five-fifty that is left—and your wife—and going into town for a small jamboree. Remember that a jamboree, small though it be, remains in the memory long after the memory of a paid bill has left you.

Pay the bills, but save enough out of the cost of your clothes for a little jamboree. Clothes warm the body, but jamborees warm the cockles of the heart, and a man who neglects the cockles of the heart to put Jaeger underwear on his lusty limbs has failed in his duty toward himself—and his better half.

NO "GOOD TRUSTS"

SECRETARY TAFT'S ARGUMENT A PALPABLE FALLACY.

'Cost Reduction" Through Combination, If True, Has Proved of No Benefit to the American People—Whole Theory Wrong.

Secretary Taft seems to have got into trouble over his late remarks to the railroad conductors at Chicago. The Socialists quote what he said with satisfaction as admitting "the fact of the class struggle." The secretary declares he was misquoted, and that what he did say was this:

"That unless laborers united into organizations, the laborer would stand no chance in that inevitable controversy that we always hope will he peaceful, but that must exist—that inevitable controversy as to how labor and capital shall share the joint product of both."

The effort of Secretary Taft to allay the dislike of labor to him, on account of his former injunctions when judge, in the interest of employers, and against the strikers, will require more than such a small tub that he has thrown to the labor whale.

But whatever may come of the controversy between Mr. Taft and organized labor, there is another statement he is reported to have made in the same speech that no Democrat can indorse, because it does not agree with notorious facts. "Combinations of capital," said Mr. Taft," within the bounds of the law are necessary for business expediency and for cost reduction." Mr. Taft evidently believes with President Roosevelt that there are "good trusts" which through monopoly can produce "cost reduction." It would he interesting to know how these eminent Republicans explain the fact that although the steel trust by combination virtually controls the steel production of the country and has undoubtedly reduced the cost of production, yet persists in maintaining the price of its products at the top notch. "Cost reduction" of trust products is but of little service to the American people if they do not participate in the reduction by buying cheaper goods. As the trusts by combination may reduce the cost of their products, why should not the people who use them participate in the reduced cost? From the restricted views of Secretary Taft and President Roosevelt, a trust that produces cheaper than independent manufacturers can, is a good trust, but from a Democratic standpoint the whole theory of trust combinations is based on monopoly, and the tariff which protects the trusts is the chief cause of their existence.

Cost reduction without reduction in price to consumers is but an absurd Republican fallacy.

There can he no trust or combination unless there is some kind of monopoly back of it. Therefore, there can he no combinations that are good for the people. Those trusts that are protected by the tariff would soon become comparatively "good" if the tariff that protects them was reduced to a revenue basis so that the competition they have smothered at home by combination would he revived hy competition from abroad. If by combination under free competition the trusts, he it the steel trust or any other trust, can then by "cost reduction" sell their products cheaply to the American people, there would he some ground for saying such a competing trust is a good trust. But there never can he a good trust as long as it is so protected by the Republican policy of tariff protection that it can charge more for its products here than it sells such products for in foreign countries.

If the trusts have any hargain counter propositions to offer, they should he first offered to the American people.

Trusts in the Senate.

That eminent Republican, United States Senator Guggenheim of Colorado, although when elected to the senate he resigned as president or director of the smelting trust, is still evidently looking after the interests of the trust. On April 28, the Congressional Record discloses the fact that he submitted to the senate an amendment to the sundry civil appropriation bill proposing to appropriate $75,000 for the transportation of silver dollars hy registered mail or otherwise. As such an appropriation will allow the treasury to pay the freight by express or otherwise on silver dollars for such hanks as can use silver, it should add to the demand, and thus help to create a demand for silver dollars, and thus put up the price of silver which the smelting trust controls. It comes mighty handy for a trust to bave a United States senator ready and willing to do it service.

An Important Bill.

The senate almost unanimously passed the very important bill of Senator Overman of North Carolina, designed to "curb the power of inferior federal court judges in issuing injunctions against state laws, hy requiring that all applications for such injunctions shall he heard hy at least three judges, two of whom must be above the grade of district judges." The bill, if it becomes a law, will restrain the power of the federal judiciary in taking cognizance of cases which would otherwise go to state courts. It aims to limit the issue of injunctions restraining the operation of state statutes and thereby make it harder for federal courts to assume jurisdiction in a given case.

PUBLISHERS AND THE TARIFF.

Warranted Criticism of Attitude of Republican Newspapers.

A number of Republican newspapers in the United States, which have steadfastly maintained the principle of protection as adapted to the needs of our producers and repudiated the principle of free trade as inimical to those needs, have joined in demand, spirited and bordering on the hysterical, that the duty on wood pulp and print paper be abolished immediately, because they think such abolishment would cheapen the product they consume. It is an attitude at once inconsistent, cowardly and insincere.

In the main the demand for free pulp and free paper is promoted by free traders. The publishers who are most active in the movement are either outspoken free trade Democrats who consistently profess the belief that protection is robbery, or else of that less honest and tolerable cuit who mask their free trade under the specious guise of "tariff reform" and run their papers for free trade all the time except for the three months immediately preceding a presidential election, when they support the Republican platform and nominees. Of these two classes nothing else, perhaps, is to be expected than that they would embrace every opportunity to show that protection is a fraud and is to he supported in all cases where it does not touch the supporter's own pocketbook.

But it is the most palpable kind of folly and dishonesty to support a tariff for protection and then to advocate a suspension of its application to one's own business. If the tariff on pulp and paper adds to the cost of paper without a corresponding and justifiable benefit to domestic producers, then upon what ground can it be maintained that any any other item in the tariff should be maintained for the benefit of the producer when it adds to the price paid by the consumer?—Indianapolis Star.

Prospects of Tariff Reform.

The Washington Herald has been studying recent Republican declarations for tariff reform, only to he discouraged, considering the last, the Pennsylvania utterance, which it thinks marks no advance whatever over McKinleyism or Dingleyism at their worst. It says:

"There is observable, with the approach of the presidential campaign, a progressive degeneration of Republican tariff revision sentiment. Everybody now declares for revision, but not for the sort of revision that was originally demanded by the tariff reduction wing of the party. Each state platform gets farther and farther away from the tariff reform idea and bolder and bolder in advocacy of a bald and naked protectionism, until in the Pennsylvania document is promised the true and unadulterated gospel of standpatism. If the Pennsylvania delegation forces from the national convention the privilege of dictating the Republican tariff plank, what encouragement will that plank afford to the large number of independent Republicans who believe that the protective system contains some hoary wrongs that ought to he righted."

Effects of the Tariff.

The Albany Argus, urging the need of tariff reform, calls attention to the present status thus:

"It is a very old rule of supply and demand that when business is slack, and we are in a period of depression, the prices of commodities will drop automatically to a lower level. Thus, there is a certain law of compensation. But at the present time there is no drop in prices, but on the contrary the prices of food, clothing, building material, etc., are maintained on the same war basis which they reached in the highest period of the preceding flush times. This is due to the fact that the Republican party has enacted and kept unrevised on the statute books the tariff schedules and other special privilege and class legislation under which monopolies and combines and corners of all sorts have been created, superseding the natural laws, so that even a panic, widespread idleness and lack of employment, and a most serious abatement of business all over the country, have not changed the prices of trust products which the consumer must buy in order to live."

"Brutal Finance."

In the face of a declining revenue the Republican majority in congress has dug into the great treasury surplus at a rate which will make the treasury $125,000,000 worse off by June 30, 1908, than it would he if last year's conditions were duplicated this year.

And yet, with all this lavish outpouring from the treasury, it still holds more than $200,000,000 for which there is no present use, the taking of which from the pockets of the people has needlessly helped to impoverish them.

As Ellis H. Roberts, former treasurer of the United States, has said, such brutal finance would not he tolerated in any other civilized country on earth. It could not be practiced in this country by any other organization than the Republican party.

Time to Call a Halt.

The center of trust power is in the east, and the kings of finance have no respect or use for the pleadings of legitimate industry. To them the great producing western states are merely a field for exploitation. The American people are mere hewers of wood and drawers of water.

There are unmistakable signs that this "leeching" process will he halted by the people's ballots.—Chicago Journal (Rep.)

JEHU AND ELISHA

Warrior and Prophet Share in the Fulfillment of the Divine Plan.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

Scripture Authority—2 Kings, chapter 9.

SERMONETTE.

Elisha, in the anointing of Jehu, carried out the commission which had been given to Elijah over 20 years before. Thus are we reminded that God's plans extend beyond the life-span of any one man, and we also find illustration of the words of Jesus: "I sent you to reap that wherein ye bestowed no labor; other men labored, and ye are entered into their labors." Paul was conscious of how the Divine transcended the human when he wrote to the believers at Corinth: "I have planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth any thing, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase."

God reveals his plans only to those of his servants who in faith and patience can wait God's time of fulfillment.

The wicked house of Ahab, and that wickedest of wicked women, Jezebel, the wife of Ahab, must have been a grievous trial to the prophet Elisha. It must have taken a vast amount of the grace of God and of faith to have waited through those long years for the coming of the righteous judgment of God upon such wickedness. How often perhaps during those years the impatient impulse must have seized Elisha to go to Jehu and tell him of God's plan for him, so that it would hasten his efforts to seize the kingdom. But as often would come the consciousness that man must wait the fullness of God's time, and that to attempt to force the hand of God, as one might say, would be to invite not only failure, but shame and dishonor. No, the prophet must patiently bide God's time. He must wait through the years and slowly but surely see the wickedness of the house of Ahab come to its full fruition. Persecution, trial, famine and the pestilence of war must be endured. With the Psalmist, Elisha could say: "I had fainted, unless I had believed to see the goodness of the Lord in the land of the living." But at last—there is always an at last with the Lord—the time comes when God speaks and the prophet acts. Then is that fulfilled concerning which God had spoken so many, many years before, and the warrior Jehu who so unconsciously had been growing and developing through the years to fit into God's plans, suddenly flashes forth as the avenging hand of God's judgment upon the wicked.

Jehu showed a commendable zeal in behalf of moral and religious reform in Israel, but in his personal life and conduct he fell short of the measure of God's desire for him, as does many another modern day reformer. It is recorded of Jehu that notwithstanding his courageous and energetic crusade against the great evils that were cursing the land of Israel, he "took no heed to walk in the law of the Lord God of Israel, with all his heart." It is a great thing to be identified with a great reform, but how sad at the last to be shut out from fellowship with the God whom position and ability has enabled one to serve.

THE STORY.

THE prophet Elisha returned from Ramoth-Gilead disappointed and perplexed. He had gone thither under the confident expectation of anointing Jehu king over Israel, but no word had come from God directing such action. He had waited impatiently for several days looking for Divine light and leading, but no Divine message came, and at last he had returned home, as we have said, disappointed and deeply perplexed.

Years before when Elijah was about to be taken from him into heaven he had laid the solemn charge upon him to anoint Jehu king over Israel, telling him how the Lord had spoken to him in the mountain and had told him that Jehu was to become king in the room of Ahab.

At that time Jehu was a mere youth—promising, to be sure, but only beginning his career in the army—and Elijah had understood that the time had not arrived to anoint Jehu. When King Ahab had been killed in the battle with the king of Syria, the prophet Elijah had not been surprised or disappointed when Ahab's son Ahaziah had come to the throne, notwithstanding the fact that the young warrior Jehu had returned from the battle with a glorious record for valor, and had proved himself a leader of great ability. Elijah had felt that the time had not yet come when the word of the Lord was to be fulfilled by the anointing of Jehu.

But when the wicked, iniquitous reign of two years had ended in the ignominious death of Ahaziah as the result of his fall during a drunken revelry, and Joram, another son of Ahab, had come to the throne without any apparent opposition, Elijah had indeed been disappointed.

It was then that he had spoken to Elisha of the commission God had laid upon him to anoint Jehu king over Israel, and only a few short weeks after that he had been snatched from earth to heaven. And ever since that hour Elisha had been watching intently the course of events in Israel, conscious of the solemn responsibility which Elijah had placed upon him of fulfilling the commission to anoint Jehu king over Israel. But as he had waited through the years there had come no word or sign from God, and his spirit was sore vexed by the delay. Then had come the war with Syria, and the well-nigh mortal wounding of King Joram. Then Elisha had said:

"Now is the time come when Jehu shall be anointed king over Israel, and the judgment of God will fall upon the wicked house of Ahab."

In obedience to this conviction, Elisha had hastened to Ramoth-Gilead and was there when Jehu and the other captains of Israel's army returned. Day after day he had waited, momentarily expecting the death of King Joram, and the arrival of the auspicious moment when God's word would come to him to anoint Jehu. But Joram, to the surprise of everyone, grew stronger and was finally able to go to Jezreel to regain his full health and vigor, and at last, as we have said, Elisha had left Ramoth-Gilead for home, disappointed and perplexed.

Then what a struggle ensued in the heart of the prophet. Impatience and doubt strove for the mastery, and feverishly the prophet watched events at Jezreel and at Ramoth-Gilead. The reports from the former place were that Joram was fast recovering from his wounds, and the fact that Ahaziah, king of Judah, went down to Jezreel to visit Joram indicated a continuation of the alliance between the two kings which would strengthen the hands of both.

King Joram at Jezreel also received reports from Ramoth-Gilead which were favorable; his captains to all outward appearances remaining loyal to him. In fact they had sent repeated messages to the king wishing him a full recovery and a speedy return to Ramoth-Gilead. True, there was smoldering in the breast of each captain of the king's hosts the fires of disloyalty, but each was fearful to show his hand and be the first to take the step of revolt. And while each professed loyalty to the king and sent messages to the king at Jezreel, each was watching for the opportunity which would give him the balance of power.

Thus matters stood when Elisha had visited Ramoth-Gilead with the burden of desire to fulfill his commission, but as he had waited there had come no word from God and at last he had departed from Ramoth-Gilead.

And what of Jehu during these days? While no hint had ever come to him of the Divine word which had been spoken concerning him there had grown up within him an irresistible ambition to rule over the nation.

"But," said he to himself, for he dared not trust his confidences to any man, "if this thing is to be it must be because God is in it, and I must wait for him to open up the way. I know the wickedness of the house of Ahab and I know the judgments which God has spoken against them by the mouth of his prophet."

The presence of the prophet in Ramoth-Gilead had filled him full of expectancy, but when news was brought him that Elisha had finally left and gone to his own city his hopes were dashed to the ground, and he summoned the other captains that they might plan for the return of the king. "for," said he, "the king is making good recovery and Ahaziah, king of Judah, hath gone to visit him at Jezreel."

"We are with thee in this thing," they all exclaimed with one accord, when they had come together. But scarce had they begun their meeting when there burst abruptly into their midst a young man of most unusual appearance, his manner and dress betokening that he belonged to the sons of the prophets. Every eye was fixed upon him, as he exclaimed:

"I have an errand to thee, O captain."

Jehu felt the hot blood rush to his head as he suddenly realized that his call had come, but he managed to blurt out:

"Unto which of us all, seeing we be all captains of the king's hosts."

"To thee, O captain."

And he went with him, and when he returned the consciousness that the anointing oil from God was upon him made him bold to execute all that it was God's purpose should be brought to pass.

New Material for Walls.

Much complaint has always been made by occupants of houses in Calcutta on account of damp walls, especially in the rainy season of the year. To remedy this it is proposed to use a new kind of damp-proof paper, made of "raw copper," and varying in thickness from 0.0012 of an inch to 0.006. It is said to be capable of being worked into all sorts of patterns. It is claimed to be insect-proof and damp-proof, and can go six or seven years without being cleaned. It is used in the same way as wall paper.

FISHERMAN ACTIVE AT 88.

The Swampscott has again come into to the limelight because of the fact that the design has been favored by the United States navy to replace some of the present designs in small boats, says the Boston Post.

Capt. Brackett, the original designer of the dory, is still hale and hearty, though he is 8 8 years old, and he devotes almost as much attention to fishing as ever.

In fair weather he usually leads the fleet of shore fishers who put off from King's beach every morning. He still retains his skill and among the younger fishermen there is always a pleasant rivalry to see who can get as many fish as Capt. Brackett.

Fifty-six years ago Capt. Brackett, then a young man of 32, had built from his own designs the dory which has since made Swampscott famous.

The dory then in use was the "lapstreak," a boat floating low, a hard boat to row, a slow sailer and with a strong inclination to "turn turtle" without warning. Frequent capsizing and the slowness in getting home after having a good catch led to his desire for a safe and better sailing dory.

Always on the lookout for a dory built on new lines, he came across one down on the "cape" and from it he got his ideas.

After drawing his plans he met with an unexpected difficulty—he found no one cared to build such a "freak" craft, but finally James Knowlton said he would try it.

The frame having been set up and partly planked, it was seen that the new craft had rather a narrow bottom and very round hilges, which was enough in the fishermen's eyes to stamp her as a failure. Even when finished and the good lines were seen, very few but who agreed that the new boat was in no way equal to the "lapstreak."

However, Capt. Brackett had confidence in his boat and she was entered in all the races and made good.

Flocked to See Duchess Skate.

Promise that a duchess would waltz on skates on ice was enough to draw a crowd to Prince's park, London, the other day, when an exhibition was given for the benefit of a society that befriends dumb animals. The duchess of Bedford was the titled shower of skill in figure skating. She wears a silver medal of the National Skating association.

The duchess waltzed on the ice with Grenander, who calls himself former champion skater of the world. When she had finished a pony drawing a sledge made a tour of the rink, collecting a rich harvest of gold and silver from the crowds on the "hanks." Women of rank sold programs, skating with their wares among the spectators.

Era of "Fly" Clothes at Hand.

"This business of flying through the air is going to give the tailors some new problems to work out," said a dealer in men's clothes. "A number of persons have come here lately for information in regard to the proper togs for an aeronaut to wear. So far we haven't given much thought to a distinctive aerial costume, but it will soon be time to decide upon something. Cyclists had their appropriate costume, autoists have theirs and now that flying is about to become a popular sport real and prospective, aeronauts are demanding that proper attention be given to their attire."

New Professor for Columbia.

Dr. Max Verworn, professor of physiology and director of the physiological institute of the University of Gottingen, has been appointed by Kaiser Wilhelm professor at Columbia university for the year 1908-'09. The appointment was made upon the recommendation of the Prussian minister of education. Prof. Verworn is expected to arrive in New York late in August. He is one of the most distinguished of living physiologists and has received high honors in Germany.

A KENTUCKY CASE.

That Will Interest All Suffering Women.

Mrs. Della Meanes, 328 E. Front St., Maysville, Ky., says: "Seven years ago I began to notice sharp pain in the kidneys and a hearing down sensation through the hips, dull headache and dizzy spells. Dropsy appeared, and my feet and ankles swelled so I could not get my shoes on. I was in misery, and had despaired of ever getting cured when I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. One box helped me so much that I kept on until entirely cured."

BAD ITCHING HUMOR.

"Some two months ago I had a humor break out on my limbs below my knees. They came to look like raw beefsteak, all red, and no one knows how they itched and burned. They were so swollen that I could not get my shoes on for a week or more. I used five or six different remedies and got no help, only when applying them the burning was worse and the itching less. For two or three weeks the suffering was intense and during that time I did not sleep an hour at a time. Then one morning I tried a bit of Cuticura. From the moment it touched me the itching was gone and I have not felt a bit of it since. The swelling went down and in two days I had my shoes on and was about as usual. George B. Farley, 50 South State St., Concord, N. H., May 14, 1907."

In the Same Boat.

"We get some sad cases," said the attendant at the Lumpton lunatic asylum to the interested visitor, and opened the door of the first cell.

Inside was a man sitting on a three-legged stool, gazing vacantly at the wall.

"His is an unhappy story," said the attendant. 'He was in love with a girl, but she married another man, and he lost his reason from grief."

They stole out softly, closing the door behind them, and proceeded to the next inmate.

This cell was thickly padded, and the man within was stark, staring mad.

"Who is this?" inquired the visitor.

"This?" repeated the attendant. "This is the other man!"—Tatler.

"Helpful Hints" That Hinder.

Many of the "helpful hints" followed by our mothers are now proved utterly useless, if not more harmful than helpful. For instance, no one now uses moist tea leaves to clean a carpet or rug, because of the inevitable staining. And salt used on a carpet collects dampness and rusts the tacks. Newspapers, dampened and torn, answer the purpose much more satisfactorily. Rugs should be shaken from the sides, for the strain of the weight on the end is very apt to loosen the weft.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

HELPFUL ADVICE

You won't tell your family doctor the whole story about your private illness—you are too modest. You need not be afraid to tell Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., the things you could not explain to the doctor. Your letter will be held in the strictest confidence. From her vast correspondence with sick women during the past thirty years she may have gained the very knowledge that will help your case. Such letters as the following, from grateful women, establish beyond a doubt the power of to conquer all female diseases.

Mrs. Norman R. Barndt, of Allentown, Pa., writes:

"Ever since I was sixteen years of age I had suffered from an organic derangement and female weakness; in consequence I had dreadful headaches and was extremely nervous. My physician said I must go through an operation to get well. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I took it and wrote you for advice, following your directions carefully, and thanks to you I am today a well woman, and I am telling all my friends of my experience."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

"And who were the people who first thought of music, auntie?"

"Why, child, they are considered to be prehistoric."

"Oh, auntie, how well you do remember!"

Rev. J. T. Betts spent Sunday at Warsaw, holding services at the Baptist church there by invitation of the congregation, who contemplate employing him as the pastor of the church. Rev. Betts may preach at Mt. [illegible]eon as that church is without a pastor and he may be called there.

The program of the Union League of Christian Endeavors, which was published in the RECORDER of May 20th, will be rendered Friday, June 5th. All who are on the program are especially requested to be present, and everyone is invited to attend, as the meeting has been postponed for the different school entertainments until the present time.

Benj. Mylor, a prominent farmer of Gallatin county, near Ghent, visited friends here a day last week. Mr. Mylor is one of the Board of Control of the Society of Equity of Gallatin county, and manager of the creamery at Warsaw, and also finds time to manage a couple of hundred acres of fine river bottom land that he owns near Ghent. He is a great admirer of J. G. Tomlin of this place.

Last Saturday, decoration day, the Stacy base ball club, of Covington, played 2 games here with the Stars. In the morning Stacys defeated the Stars 8 to 4. Yarnell, of the Stars struck out 6 men, and Frances, of the Stacys, 4; hits—Walton 9, Stacys 11. In the afternoon's game the Stars retaliated and defeated the visitors 7 to 6. Struck out by Holder 6, by Putnam 2; hits—Walton 10, Stacys 7; umpire, Kipp; attendance 200.

J. W. Hubbard, clerk of the telephone construction company, who has been making a change of the American Telphone Company's lines here, has been promoted to the position of cashier at Boston, Mass., and he left for that place Saturday. Mr. Hubbard is a resident of Grayson, Carter county, this State, and is deserving of the promotion to this good position, for he is a fine young man of good business characteristics and gentlemanly deportment.

Hon. J. G. Tomlin headed a subscription list with $25 toward raising a fund of $600 t[illegible]d in sprinkling or oiling the main street of Walton, and to get rid of the aggravating dust that annoys the general public during the long summer months. The dust as a rule is destructive to house furnishings, the merchant's stock and the general health and peace of mind, and sprinkling to allay the dust would be a beneficent blessing and it is to be hoped the movement will be successful. So far about $150 has been raised.

Quite a number of Walton people attended the ordination of the four deacons at the South Fork Christian church, last Sunday. There was a very large attendance, and a splendid dinner was served. Rev. James W. Rogers, of Walton, preached the missionary sermon, and Rev. Edgar Riley, the ordination sermon. The four deacons ordained were John Stahl, sr., Wm. H. Ross, Wm. B. Ambrose and John W. Eubank. The choir of Walton Christian church rendered some excellent music, about 34 members of Walton church attended. $65 was raised for foreign missions.

The Great Imp. German Coach Stallion, PLUTARCH 3183

THE IMPORTED GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH, will make the season of 1908 at L. A. Conner's Stable at Burlington, Ky., at $20.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

Any one party owning and breeding two mares and getting two colts from this horse shall be entitled to $5 discount on the two seasons—paying only $35 for the two colts, but should only one of the mares get in foal the regular full season $20 will be collected.

This Stallion is a Mahoghany bay, 16½ hands high, weighs 1400 pounds, and needs no introduction to the people of Boone County as his colts speak for themselves. A ring of this Stallion's suckling colts was shown at Florence Fair last fall and was pronounced to be the best ring of colts ever shown at the fair. Besides this special ring, these colts were shown in other classes against other Stallions' colts and received almost every tie they were shown for, which proves this horse to be a great breeder and sure foal getter.

Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Both banks closed last Saturday to observe Decoration day.

For Sale—One sow and 8 pigs, and 20 small shoats. Apply to J. M. Craven, Limaburg.

The Union creamery is making itself felt as a local institution now, turning out 400 lbs. of butter daily.

Clark, the jeweler, will save you 25 per cent on a new watch or clock; also his repairing is cheaper than elsewhere.

Dr. Geo. F. Smith was defeated in the recent Democratic primary election in Dearborn county, Indiana, for the nomination of coroner, which office he has held several years. The race was very close.

It is with sorrow that the RECORDER heard of the death of its loyal friend, Z. T. Baker, of Big Bone, which occurred at his home at Big Bone last Sunday. For particulars see Big Bone communication.

A good horse belonging to Hubert Bachelor, who lives out on Gunpowder, got one of its hind legs broken, one day last week, while in the pasture and had to be killed. It is not known how the accident happened.

All persons who have their wool pooled are requested to meet at Bullittsville next Saturday at 2:30 p. m.

BASE BALL.

The Burlington and Constance base ball teams hooked up at the Burlington park, last Saturday for two games. The morning contest was the closest and, therefore, the more interesting, the features of the game in the morning being the nice work of Allie Walton at third base and Mike Clore at short. Following is the score by innings:

Hits off of Brady—Vance, Tanner, Zimmer, Hankins, Graves, Walton—6; off of Hankins—Black, Brady 2, Slayback, Conner, Clore 2, Kirk, White—9. Struck out—by Brady 7, by Hankins 7. Both pitchers kept the hits well scattered except in the second inning when the Boones got next to Hankins for three hits, putting two runs across the plate. The visitors got a bad start in the afternoon game, the first three Boones up each making a hit off of Walton, scoring two runs. Nothing was doing on either side until the third inning, when a hit, backed up with two errors by the visitors, scored three runs for the Boones. After this Phelps Walton settled down to his old time form and allowed only one more hit in the remaining six innings. Conner also held the visitors easily up to the fifth inning, when after two men were gone he gave Phelps Walton his base on balls. Walton stole second, when along came Mike Clore with the only hit in the game by the visitors and scored Walton. When in tight places Conner was in his old time form. McGuire and Black, the Boone's new men played a good game. Following is the score by innings:

Hits off of Conner—Mike Clore—1; off of Walton—Smith, Slaybnck, Brady 2, Black—5; struck out by Conner 9, by Walton 3. Hogan and Roberts umpires.

A very exciting and closely contested game of ball was played at the local park, last Monday afternoon by the Burlington and Belleview teams, the game going twelve innings, but when the final break came in the twelfth inning the Boones had runs to spare, a surplus run going over the plate with a man on third and only one man out. Following is the score:

Batteries—Brady and Slayback; Sandford and McCarty. Base hits off of Brady 11, off of Sandford 9; struck out by Brady 9, by Sandford 12; base on balls Brady 2, Sandford 2. Two base hits—Chas. Sandford 3, H. Smith, Ed Sandford, Conner. Umpires—Hogan and Roberts.

The Walton team will play the Boones at Burlington park next Saturday afternoon.

PETERSBURG.

The Petersburg High School Commencement Exercises held in Mr. E. T. Kruts's hall, June 4th, were the finest entertainment ever witnessed in Petersburg, was the unanimous verdict of the vast assemblage that filled the spacious hall to pay tribute to the efficient work of Prof. and Mrs. E. C. Rice, who have labored with us three years and have been engaged by our efficient Board of School trustees for the coming school year, which means the children of Petersburg and surrounding territory will have the very best money can secure for nine more months. It is due Prof. and Mrs. Rice to say they are tireless workers in the cause of education, and although their work has been slightly handicapped at times they have clearly demonstrated to the thinking citizenship that they had but one object in view and that to uplift, both mentally and morally, holding ever before their pupils and pointing to him as a model the lowly Nazarene—Christ Jesus. A day's work was never begun without a half hour spent in devotion. A chapter read from the Sacred Word. A sweet song or so, then an earnest prayer from the lips of Prof. Rice asking God to be with each one through the day. The brilliant manner in which each graduate acquitted himself or herself demonstrates the high class work and high ideals taught in the Petersburg High School. Each graduate pleased, instructed, won completely the hearers. The orations were of great length and required much study in preparation, but they were so well executed they were greatly appreciated by the vast assemblage. Each graduate received a distinct ovation, to which they were justly entitled. To use the words of Rev. Offut, the Lawrenceburg Minister, who delivered the class address, "I have heard hundreds of orations, but never in my life better than these I have just listened to, and I say this not in a spirit of flattery, but from my heart." The music was rendered by the Schipper—Hubbard Orchestra, of Aurora, an organization of high class musicians, 12 in number. The large stage was handsomely decorated with palms, flowers, vari-colored lights and the class colors, old rose and green. The ushers were the following beautiful young ladies: Miss Leilah Thompson for Miss Susie Helms; Miss Henrietta Geisler for Miss Eunis Stephens; and the Misses Nellie and Norra McWethy for Stewart Berkshire. Each was handsomely gowned and presented a picture of grace and lovliness as they passed through the audience collecting the many valuable presents received by the graduates. Petersburg people are proud of their splendid school, and we predict that before another year rolls around it will find Petersburg's school rooms taxed to their utmost capacity. PROGRESS.

DEVON.

The Commencement Exercises of Notre Dame Academy where they have 300 day scholars and 40 boarders will take place June 23-24. Mrs. J. Melman will visit her parents so as to be present at the commecement where she has two pretty children who are attending this famous school.

The barn loft dance given by the Misses Melman, a mile below Erlanger, was greatly enjoyed by 200 of our best people. Mr. and Mrs. John Melman chaperoned a gay crowd of young folks and all report a lovely time. John Melman with his silk beaver hat cut quite a figure. The dance would not have been complete without John as his jolly ways afforded much merriment for the crowd.

LIMABURG.

Several in this neighborhood are harvesting clover hay.

M. T. Beemon is suffering from an attack of heart disease.

In a recent letter from H. O. Rouse, of Spring Place, Ga., he states that the prospects for a good crop is not at all flattering.

Children's Day Exercises at Ebenezer, last Sunday, were witnessed by a large and attentive audience. The program consisted in a variety of music and recitations, which were very beautifully rendered by the little ones, and a very interesting and instructive address by Pastor Waltrick. At the conclusion of the exercises the superintendent, B. C. Surface, asked everybody to remain in the church while the ladies spread a bountiful dinner, which had been very tastefully prepared by the good ladies of Ebenezer church. The afternoon was devoted to a song service and sermon by pastor Waltrick.

HERE AND THERE.

For Sale—Sow and pigs. Apply to Hewett Bros. on upper Woolper.

Ben Hewett, of Cleves, visited home folks on upper Woolper a couple of days last week.

This writer attended church at Petersburg, Sunday, and listened to an excellent sermon by Rev. Carter.

A merry crowd of Petersburg folks spent Saturday night and Sunday at Ben Hensley's. An outing at Uncle Dudgeon's is always sure to be a pleasant one.

F. M. Voshell and wife spent Saturday and Sunday at Moores Hill. Mr. Voshell attended I. O. O. F. meeting there Saturday night and witnessed the initiatory degree conferred upon a candidate.

Twelve members of Boone Camp No. 11718 M. W. of A. chartered the Pauline, Sunday, and went to Aurora in response to an invitation to attend memorial services with the local camp at that place. From the wharf at Aurora they proceeded to M. W. A. hall, corner Main and Front streets, where they were met by 70 members of Aurora and Lawrenceburg camps. After a greeting of welcome and a few well chosen remarks, a line of march was formed, and headed by a brass band of 12 pieces, the principal streets of the town were paraded, the line of march ending at the old brewery building at the lower end of town, where they repaired to the four large livery busses in waiting and were driven to Riverview cemetery near the mouth of Laughery creek, one of the most beautiful and well kept cemeteries in Indiana, where due respects were paid to the departed members of the society. They were then driven back to the lower edge of town and there formed a line and marched back to the hall, where, after a few appropriate remarks by some of the leading members of the society, all departed for their homes feeling that it had been a day well spent.

GRANT.

The festival Saturday night was a success and the ball boys cleared a nice sum for their treasury.

Sheldon Flick has returned from a Cincinnati hospital, where he was operated on for tonsilitis. He is getting along nicely.

Mr. Irl Leek, of Petersburg, and Miss Stella McCarty, of McVille, were married at Petersburg, Saturday, June 6th by Rev. Cook. We extend congratulations.

Thursday night 10 of the young America of our town went out on Cherry Hill to fill up on the large, sweet cherries that grow there in abundance, but just as they had all gotten up the tree and were reaching for the ripest and biggest fruit, out from the wheat field near the tree came a flash of fire and the report of a revolver and bullets began to clip the twigs over their heads. The scene that followed can be imagined but not described. Every fellow in the tree no matter how high up, let loose and dropped to the ground, and when he struck terra firma was on the run. Down through the woods they ran with the bullets still cutting the branches over their heads. Down into James Rogers' pasture they went, pell mell, onto a bunch of cattle, which became frightened started to flee, and the boys thought they were after them, when ensued another foot race to the toll gate where they sat down to recover breath and talk it over. Al Rogers and Chas. Snelling heard the boys plotting before they went to the hill and followed them just to have some fun. After flinging their heads they ran up to the tree, but all that was left of the crowd was five hats, a coat aad a copy of the Recorder. These articles were brought back to town where they were claimed by the boys Friday. The boys say they thought some one had taken them for a gang of night riders. They say they climbed five fences going out but coming back, "narry" fence did they see.

Z. T. BAKER.

In memory of Z. T. Baker, born December 4th, 1848, died May 31st, 1908. Christ has said in the greatest sermon the world has ever known, "Blessed are they which hunger and thirst after righteousness for they shall be filled." This text could be appropriately applied to the life of this man. A good man is known by his love of God and his kind treatment toward his fellow man. No man exemplified these attributes more fully than did Z. T. Baker. With his conviction of right and with a desire to be a righteous man in the full meaning of the term. With the struggles against the temptations that mortalflesh is heir as long as life last, none knew, but the Christ of the deep significance of this life. His name was a synonym of kindness and good cheer; a helping hand was extended to all who needed it, and in his home precinct where he was a central figure, where his kindness and generosity was most felt, his death will be a loss which only time can heal. And may the places which will know him no more, the relations and friends which knew him well, learn a valuable lesson from this life which was spent in unselfishness, kindness and love.

"Sunset and evening star,
And one clear call for me;
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

For tho from out are bourn of time and place,
The flood may bear me far.
I hope to see my Pilot face to face
When I have crost the bar."

ONE WHO LOVED HIM WELL.

PETERSBURG.

Mrs. Wm. Alloway is very ill.

The school commencement was attended by a very late crowd.

Hubert Walton sold his fine black horse in the city, last week for $225.

Mrs. Stanley Crouch has had her father as her guest for several days.

Mrs. John W. Berkshire entertained several of her relatives, Sunday.

A large crowd attended Colorado Grant's show here last Wednesday night.

Mrs. Thos. Hinds, of North Bend, Ohio, was here last Monday, guest of her parents.

Quite a crowd of our citizens expect to take in the transfer excursion next Sunday.

Bro. Carter preached to a large congregation here last Sunday morning and evening.

The Farmers Bank building will be torn down to make room for a much larger and more modern banking house.

John Wells and wife, of Lawrenceburg, were here Sunday, guests of his parents. William Rector and wife were there also.

Mr. and Mrs. Stephens and daughter, Miss Lizzie, of Erianger, were guests of his son, E. K. Stephens and wife, a few days last week.

Ed Keim and wife and Jule Hoff man and wife, were guests of Benj. Heuleby and wife, on Woolper, last Saturday night and Sunday.

Mr. Earl Lock, of this place, and Miss Stella McCarty, of McVille, were united in marriage, last Saturday afternoon, by Rev. Pilo, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Al Nixon.

Next Sunday the Odd-Fellows will hold memorial services at the cemetery here. A good band from Aurora will discourse music for the occasion. The brethren are requested to be on hand and take part in the beautiful and impressive ceremonies.

While digging a hold on James Jarrell's lot, one day last week, this writer found 30 inches below the surface, 16 Indian flints. They were pointed at both ends, were about 3 inches wide in the center, and ranged in length from 6 to 12 inches. They were lying in the shape of a star. They are fine specimens of workmenship.

GASBURG.

Wheat is very promising and harvest will begin in 10 or 12 days.

An army of chinch bugs were around Hogan Wingate's, Sunday.

Your reporter sold Wingate & Thompson two cows and calves. Consideration too little to quote.

Apples have dropped badly and there will be but a small portion of a crop. The peach, pear and plum crops will be good.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Hitzfield and Miss Lizzie Parker, of Home City, Ohio, and Henry Terrill, of Lexington, visited at your reporter's, Saturday and Sunday.

A Grand Family Medicine.

"It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electric Bitters," writes Mr. Frank Conlan, of No. 436 Houston St., New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications; while for lame back and weak kidneys it cannot be too highly recommended." Electric Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at Beutler's Drug Store, Erlanger. 50c.

Colorado Grant's show exhibited to a good sized audience in Burlington, last Friday night. The show is far ahead of many of the shows touring the country districts at this time of the year. It is well equipped with educated dogs, horses and ponies, the educated horse Keno giving an exhibition that is worth the price of admission, while the target shooting of Mr. and Mrs. Grant is sensational. The jugglers do several difficult and pleasing stunts, while the reproduction of the cow boy scenes in the wild west is decidedly exciting. In fact it was a good show from start to finish, and the people with it conducted themselves in a manner that gains the confidence and respect of the public.

On Friday May 22nd in Cincinnati, Ohio, Mr. Theron E. Wirt, of this city was married to Miss Caroline Freidman of Boone County, Ky. The wedding was a surprise to the friends of the young couple here. Mr. Wirt had gone to Jacksonville to attend the meeting of the Association of Embalmers, and instead of spending any time in Jacksonville he went on through to Union, Ky., where his bride-to-be resided. They went from there to Cincinnati where the wedding took place, and arrived here Monday night. The bride is one of Boone county's fairest daughters and while visiting the family of Mr. L. C. Tanner of this city and has made a host of friends who will be glad to welcome her here permanently.

Mr. Wirt is a son of our honored citizen and furniture dealer Mr. J. L. Wirt, and has by his energy and attention to business assisted his father in building up a fine trade in their line.—Bartow (Fla.) Courier Informant.

Notice—Having sold out my store at Constance, all those indebted to me are requested to come forward and settle by note or cash.

G. R. Hoppins, of Harrison Ohio, in renewing his subscription sent a new subscriber along for good measure. Thanks, brother, and may many others follow your example.

Misses Jonette and Pattie Revill, arrived home, last Thursday, from Georgetown, where they had been attending college. Miss Jonette brought her diploma home with her.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Stephens, who reside on the Lexington pike near the Five Mile House, were guests at Mrs. Babe Ridd-ll's, last Sunday afternoon. Their automobile got out of order and gave them considerable trouble before they got it started on the return trip. Mrs. Stephens was a daughter of the late Calvin O. Utz.

FROM CITY TO FARM

"Ye who listen with credulity to the whisperings of fancy; who pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow; —attend to the history of Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia."

The Sources of Rural Discontent

In our two years' sojourn on the farm we gradually became acquainted with the conditions surrounding us, and learned much of the inner strata of life as viewed from the stand point of the farming community. Discontent is so much of an inevitable accompaniment to existence, wherever human beings are situated, that the problem of life is simply to reduce that characteristic of human nature to its minimum, and call the result happiness. So far as living on a farm was concerned, we were as much removed from the din of the cities as any of our neighbors; so far as society was concerned, we had a very few friends in the adjoining town who occasionally drifted buggyward in our direction; so far as the sources of discontent about us went, we gradually became conversant with many new phases and it was interesting to note their ramifications.

To begin with, the more intelligent among the farmers feel that the railroads and trusts are giving them the worst of it. The farmer, by reason of his being able to raise his own meat, make his own butter, have his fresh vegetables, milk, fruit, etc., is independent of prices as far as that goes. But when it comes to clothing, groceries, tobacco, coal oil, farm machinery, barb wire, nails, lumber, hardware, twine, flour, and a thouaand other articles, he finds that prices have risen tremendously. He cannot figure that the price for corn and oats, for wheat, rye, broom-corn, hay, cattle, hogs and farm produce generally, has kept pace with these increased prices. Perhaps, as in broom-corn, raised in favored localities, or alfalfa, or timothy, or clover seed, he may make a "killing" on some particular year, but, year in and year out, the farmer has seen prices for him remain very much the same. If crops are good everywhere, the freight rates have kept him under; if crops are poor he has so much less to sell.

And so, deep in his heart, and possibly with very much reason, the farmer believes that he has the tarred end of the stick to hold, and hence the far-reaching and firmly-rooted distrust of the great cities among farming communities, which seem to them as the lairs of capitalists who conspire to get the best of all small fry, and especially of the farmer. In mediaeval days, the barons sallied out from their castles and carried away the cattle from the lowlands. In modern days they sit in their offices in the large cities, and by means of subtle combinations, accomplish the same ends; at least, so it seems to the farmers.

The remains of the roads built by the Romans still exist in Great Britain, and the roads on the continent generally are the wonder and despair of American travelers.

Even if only a number of trunk roads, good broad highways, were built through the great agricultural states, the farmers could come in from the side roads through the mud and get on these trunk roads and make their market with a tremendous saving of time and labor. The mud they would bring in on their wheels would not amount to much; it would wash off solid-built highways the first rain storm. But only to one who has lived in the country can the utter helplessness of an early spring or mid-winter country road be imagined. Think of cruising for four hours and a half in a buggy with two splendid horses hitched to it, to travel four miles. A mile an hour, with the horses literally jumping their way to town. Generally we preferred to walk cross-cut through the fields when conditions were like this, and city-bred as I was, the patent inquiry of these surroundings was something to marvel at and absolutely condemn.

The government could at least establish good post roads, wherever rural delivery was handled, thus helping the farmers out to some considerable extent; and then, along with its donations to deep waterway and irrigation projects, give to the different states that need it most, substantial aid in building rock-bottomed trunk roads, or government "pikes," without toll-gates.

Of course the inevitable weather came in for a steady case of gnar—on the part of the farmers. If it rained too much it was bad for something or other; if it was a "dry spell," something else went wrong. As in the cities, the weather suited very few individuals and delighted none. If it was perfect, the general run of farmers will look up and say doubtfully: "Yep, she's all right to-day, but it ain't a-going to last." Or "we'll ketch it for this in a week or so." This pessimism is a sort of inherited failing. Only once in two years did I hear a man say: "Isn't this a beautiful day?"

There is not so much mental discontent among the adult farmers now as there used to be. They are more busily engaged in making money than they formerly were, and as a rule, are not overly interested in topics that do not touch directly on business. Politics is not such a burning question with them as it used to be; and when they attend a meeting to hear some notable orator talk, it is more with the idea of being entertained than instructed. The great city dailies are not taken through the country as freely as they used to be, and semi-weekly papers from the cities, with special "farm knowledge" parts, are the most popular. The county seat paper is taken by most of them, and occasionally you will find some alert farmer who takes three or four papers, big and little, but he is in advance of his neighbors, and is watching the markets for business purposes.

As for magazines and periodicals, unless farming magazines, and weeklies devoted to farm life and interests, they are not nearly so much in evidence as in former years. Business principles and the commercial instinct has steadily pushed aside the purely literary and substituted for it the eminently practical, and as time goes on, the more strictly utilitarian the publication, the more it is likely to succeed in the rural districts.

The discontent among the boys is more nearly restricted to that period of their existence when they are 20 years and 264 days old. "When I'm my own man" is the waking and dreaming thought of most of them. "Paw" can do pretty much as he pleases with them until they are of age, and their earnings go into the parental hopper without so much as "by your leave or rest your soul." But on the magic day when they shake off the shackles of youth and enter the gladsome and perturbed state of manhood, the "winter" of their discontent becomes "glorious summer" on the very instant.

It was a pretty tough proposition for the boys. A boy on the farm can do, or at least he does work when he is from eight to ten years old. Not hard work especially, but he can "chore" around and help do hard work. When he gets along to 12 he is betting "big" and can do many things. When he is 16, he is set to doing man's work. And so he serves a long and arduous apprenticeship before he can earn his own wages, and he gets about his board and keep, and when he is getting along to 17 or so, maybe "Paw" will let him buy himself a buggy.

While the child-labor movement is being agitated for the factories—and a good move, too—why not give the farm boys a chance? Why should a boy work on a farm from dawn to dark before he is 16, if it isn't right for them to work in factories before that age? Why not give a farm boy a chance to get a thorough common school education, and even a small chance for a boyhood before he goes into the harness? That is the question a lot of these boys are asking, and that is one of the reasons for the drift to the cities.

Some of these boys, ambitious, nervy lads, strike out for the smaller towns or even for the great cities, and especially to the towns where there is work in the manufactories, figuring that the five years from 16 to 21 in a shop will leave them with better than a red-topped buggy, and maybe a horse, for all their toil. You cannot change nor can you blame their fathers. THEY worked until they were 21, and the system is a sort of religion with them. The idea of sharing real money with the boys is something that would seem ridiculous to most of them. Of course there are some of the wiser and broader-minded ones who DO share, and where they do the root of the discontent is removed for that boy, and driven deeper in for those who know the circumstances.

With some of these boys ambition urges them on so keenly that no plowhandles can hold them, and they go into the professions and hammer their salvation out with the energy and determination that no discouragements can chill. The records show what they have done in every channel of human endeavor. Neither in the fields nor in the garrets can some spirits be checked or blighted.

So, too, the irksome sadness of rural work often sends some of the bolder spirits away to seek the "bubble reputation at the cannon's mouth." And many a boy slips away to the larger towns, enlists in army or navy, and from some far off portion writes home that he is now a member of Uncle Sam's household. And great is the lamentation, usually, on the receipt of these letters. And sometimes the boy comes back, weary of the glamour of military or naval life, and plows happily in the fields with his old service cap or broad-brimmed military hat on his head. But when he comes back, he's his "own man." And if he has saved his money during a three-year service, he has got $300 or $400 anyway. Then, too, he has "seen the world," at least a part of it. If he doesn't get back, however, that's a different matter. An unknown grave in the jungles, or over the side of a ship in a weighted shroud of canvas.

The reasons for discontent among the girls in the country is largely confined to the non-marriageable age. After they have attained the dignity of young ladies, when the season arrives for keeping the boys in hot water about them, they manage to find life pretty comfortable, thank you. Of course if they should miss a big circus, that would be a tragedy, but mighty few of them but what don't see it. Of course a girl that is trailing along about 12 or 14 years old, is sort of side-tracked, as it were, but when she gets to 15 and on to the "sweet 16" period, look out for her. She is coming fast, and it will not be any time at all when she will be riding around in a red-wheeled buggy with some boy, with her hair flying and her cheeks as red as a winter apple, and she will be getting valentines, and going to fish-frys, and attending camp meetings, and seeing the circus, and going on Saturday afternoons to the band concert in town, and eating ice cream and drinking ice cream soda, and playing the organ Sunday nights, and attending the dances, and being at the "box-socials," and all the other social doings.

She is vastly interested in ribbons and side-combs and hats and dresses and gloves and becoming shoes, and candy and perfumery and fellows, and all that sort of thing. And when some fellow gets to be 21 and goes in and gets a license, and there's a notice in the paper from "Our Libertyville Correspondent," about her and this fellow getting married, well you can wager that old Uncle Discontent will not reach her for awhile yet. But he will get her, all right, in time. You remember about Eve, don't you? Nothing to do in Eden week in and week out, and yet Eve had to go out and swing on the gate with the blue racer just because things got monotonous.

For our own individual sources of discontent in the country, they were subtle and rather more in the way of an intangible desire to be nearer the flame of the candle of civilization. It's particularly the fine play was on at the theaters we used to attend, we missed it. If there was some picture at the art galleries where we once attended, and that picture was really worth seeing, it was something of a disappointment not to be able to come in and see it. Two hundred miles or so is quite a distance from "the maddening crowd's ignoble strife," and car fare was something of an item, too. The daily paper from the city, which reached us the same day of its appearance, recorded some things which we missed and many things which we were glad to escape. But the music, the theaters, the pictures, the old book stores, the best of what the city afforded, we missed that, of course. One cannot have one's rural cake and eat the cake of urban baking at the same time; at least, not from a distance of 200 miles.

And then, too, there were a few people with whom we would have liked to cross palms with occasionally from the city we had left. We missed these fellows.

And gradually, after all our delight in the wild and untrammeled scenery about us, the changing glories of the seasons, the really idyllic charm of much of the life that we were leading, there came conviction to us that there were places where all this could be had in the same degree we were enjoying it and at the same time be near to the cities for us to run in whenever we wished to see or hear what was so essential to our city-sharpened tastes and fancies.

Of course, the hunting and fishing which I had so far away from the city could not be duplicated close to any western city. I could not expect to shoot ducks across the fence from my door-yard, or flush quail from my garden, jack-snipe could not be expected to come into the fields just across the way, nor squirrels to play about in numbers all around us. It was evident that if we made a change in our plans and left our present location to settle down in the country near some city, I would have to "hang up the fiddle and bow" so far as hunting and fishing was concerned; at least to a great extent.

The mere fact of not seeing the best acting, or the best pictures, or in not hearing the best music, was not so essential a deprivation as the tantalizing fact that we were where it was almost impossible to get in for that purpose. If we had been near enough to run in by taking an hour to going and the same time for returning, we would have felt that we could come or go as we chose. But to feel that something really worth one's while, from an intellectual standpoint, is on the tapis, and that you are "let out" from enjoying it whether or no, that is the sting that baffles consciousness, the worm that never dies. Quite possibly, if we had been in the city, we should have neglected to go to a number of these events; quite probable, also, that if we had been in the country near enough to run in handily, we should have set aside the opportunity in some instances, proudly conscious that we COULD have gone if we had wished to. But to want to go, and not be able to, that was cruel.

So it was evident that if we left our present stamping-ground, the burden of the sacrifice must fall on me, for I could no longer hunt or fish every day in the year, and with almost unvarying success. I would have to depend on occasional and uncertain sallies into the woods and marshes. I would have to chastise the Indian in my nature. The little rift in our complete joy was gradually widening. Like the crack that Quintus Curtius (I believe that was his name) jumped into, nothing would close it but a sacrifice. It was up to me: Would I jump?

FROM SMALL TOWNS

HUNDREDS OF MILLIONS OF DOLLARS TAKEN ANNUALLY.

THROUGH MAIL-ORDER SYSTEM

Views of a Banker on the Situation During the Recent Monetary Stringency Well Worthy of Consideration.

The president of a bank at Minneapolis, during the recent financial stringency, called attention to one source of financial drain upon the country towns which should be taken into consideration, and a remedy applied.

"In this remarkable situation," he said, "when everybody is prosperous and there is not enough currency to go round, it is important that every dollar possible should be kept at home until the banking business is again on a cash basis. In the cities this is being done with a good deal of success, and the clearing-house certificates and cashier's checks prevent a serious embarrassament. But out in the country, where there are no clearing houses, every dollar hoarded or sent away from home counts double.

"At this time the patronage of the foreign catalogue houses is a factor that ought to be considered seriously. By their own reports two of these catalogue houses, which deal in almost every commodity of use to the home or farm, do a business of $90,000,000 a year. This is $300,000 for each of the six business days of the week. This money comes largely out of the country towns. These catalogue houses do not sell to people in the cities where they are located. It is from the farmers and residents of towns of less than 5,000 population that 95 per cent. of their business comes and at least a third of it is from the northwest. And remember, too, that there are other catalogue houses, and that the combined business done by them is at least $200,000,000 annually.

"I am informed that all through the state of Minnesota this competition of the foreign catalogue houses has been very seriously felt by the merchants of small towns, to such an extent that some have been driven out of business entirely.

"If this has been the case during the great prosperity of recent years, when money was circulated freely, what must the effect be now when the currency is needed at home? Money spent with the local merchant is disbursed in the locality, at least the profits of his business are, but money sent away is lost from local circulation.

"Without going into the home-trade question it seems plain to me that those who buy from a foreign catalogue house at this time are directly injuring themselves, for this question of keeping money in home circulation involves people of all conditions."

Ideas for Market Days.

That the "market day" idea is becoming decidedly popular in the country is indicated by the fact that the merchants of dozens of western towns have adopted the plan lately. Reports from these places, which have been giving the "market day" plan a trial, indicate that it is giving satisfaction to dealers and to their patrons. Like any other innovation the success of the establishment of a market day depends almost entirely upon the interest which it evokes and the sustained energy that is employed in giving it a distinctive value to producers. The merchants will get out of the plan no more nor less than they put into it. If the arrangements made afford the assurance that patrons will find improved facilities for the disposal of their products it is certain to prove a drawing feature. If it is employed simply as a plan for drawing a crowd of farmers to town to spend their money, it is equally certain that the ultimate result will be unsatisfactory, if not seriously detrimental to future business relations. It is good policy not to go into a scheme of this kind until satisfied that conditions are right for its success, and once undertaken, to push it for all it is worth. Make it worth while for customers to come from a distance for the day, so that they will be ready to assist in the perpetuation of the plan. A great deal depends on "starting right," and, once having popularized the idea to keep up sustained enthusiasm by providing improved facilities for caring for the increased trade which it develops.

Manners.

Manners are not like clothes. It's a bad thing to have two suits of them —one for best and one for everyday. Wear your best manners all the time. They suffer more by being put away than by constant use. If you keep your best manners for company they will fit you ill, and your visitor will suspect they were put on for him. Second best clothes may be worn at home, but not second best manners. To whom is it worth while to be courteous if not to the people you love best?—Home Chat.

Immense Food Receptacles.

At a recent municipal celebration in Covina, Cal., in which a barbecue was given to mark the advent of an electric railway, coffee was served from an urn holding 250 gallons, or 5,000 cups; beans were cooked in a pot holding 200 gallons.

Heavy Imports of Foodstuffs.

In 1906 the imports of wheat and wheat flour into the United Kingdom were 28 per cent. of the total supply. In 1905 the imports were 35 per cent. and in France three per cent. In the United Kingdom in 1906 the imported supplies of meat were 47 per cent.

LEARNED A LESSON.

One Farmer Finds Out Something Through Buying a Mail-Order Stove.

The Wayne (Neb.) Herald recites the story of a Wayne county farmer who was caught by one of the catalogue houses. He learned the lesson and paid dearly for it. Mr. Farmer had seen the stove picture in the catalogue and had sent on his good $29, adding $2.90 for freight. Then the stove came to the depot. The farmer came to town, loaded up the junk and drove up onto the business street. Then to some friends, he confided:

"That stove cost me $29 and $2.90 freight, and I'll bet it is half sheet iron. I have been waiting for it for over two months and my wife is nearly crazy about it. I could have done better by buying of the Wayne hardware dealers. The catalogue fellows can go to hades in the future."

This is a lesson that people of Nebraska and other states are being taught every day in the year and it is a pleasure to know that they are getting their eye teeth cut in the most artistic and approved style. They are ordering from the catalogues and in return they are getting a miserable lot of junk, paying much higher prices than they would have to pay for first-class goods sold in the home stores.

The catalogue houses live and grow fat off just such people as the man at Wayne. These men are constantly looking for the big end of the bargain. The catalogue houses are doing the same thing. It would look as though it would be "When Greek meets Greek," but its nothing of the kind. The catalogue concerns have all the advantage. They have gotten the money of the individual and then they send him out any kind of an old lot of junk, knowing that he has no recourse. These catalogue houses have been doing this thing for years and find plenty of suckers, for you know there is something recorded about a sucker being born every second. Perhaps they do not get the same sucker a second time, but they catch some that came along in the new crop.

HANDLING FARM PRODUCTS.

Improved Methods Practiced in Many Agricultural Towns.

Every farming community turns trade to the town where best prices are paid for the minor products which the farmers have to dispose of. The prices paid for butter and eggs, quite often, decide the business life of a town. The general practice in many places is for individual merchants to take produce in exchange for goods. The lowest market price is the rule in these towns. Should one merchant pay a cent a pound more for butter, or a cent more a dozen for eggs, the farmers conclude that the difference is made up in the quality of goods or the quantity they receive in exchange.

To overcome the annoyances occasioned through unwholesome competition in the buying of farmers' products, the business men of many agricultural towns, during the past few years, have undertaken the operation of co-operative produce establishments. These establiahments generally consist of a commodious warehouse with cold storage appliances. The merchants of the town are the stockholders in the concern. A manager is employed on salary and is intrusted with the buying and marketing of all produce. The storekeepers refer all farmers who have produce for sale to the produce house and the highest market price is paid and due bills given which are payable in goods at the stores in the town.

This method has proved highly satisfactory everywhere it has been tried. Not alone have the merchants found it advantageous, but the farmers as well. Another feature worth consideration is the fact that farmers are not compelled to trade at any particular store, but can make their purchases in any store in the town. Then again much trade is saved to the community that might go to the mail-order houses of the larger cities.

During the Summer Months.

The summer time is the time the retail merchant must keep things moving at a lively pace in his store. Generally the warm weather season is dull with retailers and the period from June to September is generally regarded as a time when there is little doing.

Here is where the retail merchant must not allow himself to take a wrong view of things. The fact that this stretch of three months has been generally regarded as a period of inactivity is just the very reason why he cannot afford to allow it to be one. There can be no periods of inactivity for the merchant of to-day. He must keep a full head of steam up all the time, and it is even more important that he should do this on the up grade, when he is working against the forces of gravitation than on the level, when the business rushes almost of its own momentum.

The live merchant will make up his mind that there will be no periods of inactivity in his store. He keeps things moving—all the time—there is something doing every day and he doesn't give people a chance to forget for a single day that he is selling the best merchandise at the lowest possible prices.

It is these periods of inactivity on the parts of retail merchants which have given the retail mail order houses their opportunity to make inroads on their trade. With the mail order houses there are no periods of inactivity, and during the summer months they will hustle harder than ever for trade, because they "need the money." The retail merchant must prepare to meet aggressive competition on the part of the catalogue merchants and it is up to him to hustle and see well to his local advertising.

QUEEN OF ACTRESSES PRAISES PE-RU-NA.

MISS JULIA MARLOWE.

"I am glad to write my endorsement of the great remedy, Peruna. I do so most heartily."—Julia Marlowe.

Any remedy that benefits digestion strengthens the nerves.

In other words, Peruna goes to the bottom of the whole difficulty, when the disagreeable symptoms disappear.

Mrs. J. C. Jamison, Wallace, Cal., writes:

"I was troubled with my stomach for six years. Was treated by three doctors. They said that I had nervous dyspepsia. I was put on a liquid diet for three months.

"I improved under the treatment, but as soon as I stopped taking the medicine, I got bad again.

"I saw a testimonial of a man whose case was similar to mine being cured by Peruna, so I thought I would give it a trial.

"I procured a bottle at once and commenced taking it. I have taken several bottles and am entirely cured."

Curious Indian Custom.

The following curious custom is recorded by J. Owen Dorsey in his monograph on the sociology of the Omaha Indians:

"In the spring when the grass comes up there is a council or tribal assembly held to which a feast is given by the head of the Hanga geno. After they decide that planting time has come and at command of the Hanga man a crier is sent through the villages. He wears a robe with hair outside and cries as he goes. 'They do, indeed, say that you will dig the ground! Hallo!' He carries sacred corn, which has been shelled and to each household he gives two or three grains, which are mixed with the seed corn of the honschold."

After this it is lawful for the people to dig up the soil and plant their crops.

Kangaroo as a Food.

Twenty or 30 years ago the back country squatters, in order to destroy kangaroos, used to dig huge pits at the corners of their paddocks, running yards of calico along their wire fences and then drive the kangaroos into the pits, clubbing and shooting them. In those days kangaroo skins were of no value; now that they are almost extinct, there is a great demand for them. The flesh of a young kangaroo is by no means to be despised, and kangaroo tail soup is a delicacy now hardly to be obtained.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

LAST DAYS OF ELISHA

The Prophet Proveth King Joash.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. E. Edson.)

Scripture Authority—2 Kings 13: 9-25.

SERMONETTE.

Last days come to all, but to none do they bring such comfort and sweetness as to the one who has walked with God.

Last days are not necessarily fruitless days, for even from a sick bed the servant of God may prove the mouthpiece of God speaking words of admonition and prophecy.

Physical pain and the ebbing of life's current cannot prevent the true child of God from rounding out his mission in life.

During the long years of service as prophet in Israel Elisha had seen a steady and sure decline in the religious and moral tone of the people, and he knew of the ultimate national calamity which was to come with the scattering of the people through all the nations about, but notwithstanding all this he saw the final triumph of God and his righteousness; he realized that though men failed, God would not; he understood the eternal truth that man's wickedness might delay, but could not thwart the Divine will, thus was he able during those dark days of spiritual decline to keep cheerful and hopeful. And it is this realization on the part of the servant of God of the ultimate triumph of the Divine will and purpose in the world which makes of them optimists instead of pessimists.

Not many years ago a woman who had been an earnest and faithful and efficient worker in the slums of New York took her own life, owing to the depression which had come to her because the task of uplifting the people seemed so utterly hopeless. How different it would have been had she seen with God's eye and realized that beyond the span of the human life, and above the plans of the human mind God rules and moves. We all need with Browning to "see that God is in his heavens, and that all is well with the world." Not well in the sense that the best has yet been realized, but well in the sense that God is slowly but surely working out his glorious purposes in the world which are to find their ultimate culmination in the coming of the Christ again to the world to rule as the world has never yet been ruled.

Deathbeds are piteous, indeed, when the dying one realizes that he has lived apart from God and has played a losing game. He has not builded with God in this life and has no place with God in the life to which the soul is soon to pass.

But when one's heart and his purposes are linked with those of the Divine, life is made full with the eternal mission which death does not end, but only enlarges.

THE STORY.

THE king had seen people die before, but never had he beheld such a deathbed as that. He had stood by the couch of his father, Jehoahaz, as he had passed from this life to the great beyond. He had seen that helpless, haunted look in the deep-set eyes over which the misty film of death was gradually creeping. He had heard the words of regret over the life lived and those of fear in the face of impending death. There was nothing of hope or comfort there. Only darkness and despair.

But how different was the deathbed of the prophet Elisha. Word had come one day all unexpected and sudden that the aged prophet was sick, and the king had gone thither. Little contact had he had with the prophet during his life. He had treated him with indifference and disdain, content to live his life of wicked pleasure, and unmindful of the rebukes and entreaties of this aged servant of God.

To be sure he was familiar with all the wonderful history of Elisha's services to Israel, of how time and time again, when famine and war menaced the life of the nation, the prophet had interposed in the name of his God and brought deliverance. But free from any serious troubles in his own kingdom and at peace with all the nations about, King Joash had seen no occasion to bother himself about the prophet.

The only time he had ever known his father, Jehoahaz, to humble himself before Elisha had been when the Syrian hosts had threatened to destroy the nation, and well he remembered how in the strength of the promise of the prophet his father had gone out and won a hard-earned victory over the forces of the king of Syria. But no such dangers had threatened him to drive him to the prophet, and so he had, as we have said, treated the prophet with indifference and disdain.

But when the messenger had come saying that the prophet Elisha was dying and that he wished to see him, there swept over him a realization of what the nation would lose with the passing away of this man of God. He had had a contempt for his religion, but not for the stirring part he had played in the history of the nation from before his grandfather Jehu's time down to the present. The story of how the prophet Elisha had sent the word and the anointing oil which had encouraged Jehu to seize the kingdom from the house of Ahab had been told him over and over again by his grandfather as he had stood at his knee when a boy, and now as word came that the prophet was dying there swept over him a sense of loss to the nation which almost made him tremble. Thus moved, he had gone.

What a scene and experience that had been. With the memory of the death of his own father fresh in his mind he had gone to the death chamber of the prophet expecting to find again that gloom, that despair, that hopelessness which he had somehow come to think was always part of the death scene, but instead he had found cheer instead of gloom, expectancy and hopefulness instead of despair and hopelessness. Physical weakness there was, and it was plain to see that the sands of life were running out fast, but there was a moral strength there which told only too plainly that that fleeting life was conscious of being linked with the eternal and that though earth was passing the things which the life had stood for would go on after he had passed away.

King Joash had run over in his mind the comforting things he would try to say, but as he had entered the room where the old prophet lay and had felt those quiet, earnest, searching eyes fixed upon his face, he had forgotten everything except that here was a man who rose above physical weakness, and in that instant there came to his mind a faint realization that it was the character behind a man after all, and not physical strength or worldly position, which counted.

Intuitively he felt that the true man stood revealed in the presence of death, and in that first moment in the prophet's chamber there swept over him the contrast between his own father, fearful and helpless, and in terror of death, and this man of God who, just on the borderland of eternity, gave no sign that he feared for himself, but rather that he was not only master of himself but of others. There was that quiet serenity and confidence which betokened a mysterious source of power, and instead of the king commiserating with a dying subject and speaking words of comfort, he rather felt like a child in the presence of its teacher receiving instruction.

To relieve the tenseness of that moment, he burst out with the cry:

"O, my father, my father, the chariot of Israel and the horsemen thereof."

And throwing himself by the side of the couch he gave way to weeping.

He wept, but not for the prophet, as he had expected, but for himself. There came to his heart a sense of personal weakness and need which he had never felt before, but which the morally weak, stripped of superficial self-confidence, always feel in the presence of goodness and moral strength. He remembered afterwards thinking that if the coming into the presence of the prophet of God could affect him so, what would it be to come into the very presence of God?

But that it was not time for idle tears was evident, for in commanding voice the prophet bade him rise, and, pointing to the corner of the chamber, said, sternly:

"Take the bow and arrows."

Submissive as a child obeying its parent, the king reached forth and took the bow and arrows in his hands, and turned and looked at the prophet with wondering eyes.

"Put thine hand upon the bow."

He did so, and the prophet raising himself upon his elbow, laid his grizzled old hand upon that of the younger man, and then with a sudden earnest intensity he exclaimed:

"Open the window eastward and shoot!"

In a mechanical sort of way the king shot, little sensing the significance of the act until the prophet cried, eagerly:

"The arrow of the Lord's deliverance, and the arrow of deliverance from Syria; for thou shalt smite the Syrians in Aphek till thou hast consumed them."

The prophet eyed him with a searching look and seemed disappointed that the king did not manifest an enthusiastic spirit, for almost impatiently he exclaimed:

"Take the arrows and smite upon the ground."

Never did King Joash forget the words of reproach and grief which the prophet spoke when he had smitten three times and stayed, and years after when the third victory over the king of Syria had been won he realized the significance of the prophet's words: "Thou shouldest have smitten five or six times; then hadst thou smitten Syria till thou hadst consumed it; whereas now thou shalt smite Syria but thrice."

WANT TO LIVE IN TOWN.

Factory Workers Don't Appreciate Appreciate Joys of Country Life.

Here is a story worthy the consideration of those interested in the congestion problem. Since the new tunnels under the East and North rivers have been opened, large numbers of persons have expressed the opinion that it would henceforth be possible for the crowded multitudes in the lower part of the city to live in the country, in Long Island or New Jersey, and travel back and forth to their work. A factory owner who has a large plant in New Jersey says he has tried vainly for some time to induce his workers to move out of their New York tenements and live under more comfortable conditions near the factory. In spite of various considerations offered, only a few were persuaded to move. "But now," said a friend of the manufacturer, "I suppose you will have no trouble in getting them out, since the tunnels are in operation."

"Humph!" grunted the employer, "the theory is very well, but it works the other way. The tunnels simply make it easier to get back and forth, and as a result, even the few families who went out to New Jersey are already moving back to New York. When they can get to and from their work in so short a time now, why is the name of all that's sociable about them they not live in their cherished tenements? No, suburban exile for them, thank you!"—New York Times.

Why He Was There.

The occasion was the annual reunion of the survivors of the —th regiment, volunteer infantry, and it took place in a thriving city in one of the western states. Among the veterans in attendance was a soldierly, erect old man, with the fire of youth still in his eye, who had journeyed across half a dozen or more states in order to meet once again his comrades of the long ago. It came his turn to address them. He rose and began:

"I have traveled seventeen hundred miles—"

Here the memories of the old days overcame him, and his voice broke. Recovering himself with an effort, he tried again:

"My dear old friends and comrades, I have traveled seventeen hundred miles—"

Once more his emotions mastered him. Dashing the tears from his eyes, he made a third attempt.

"I have traveled seventeen hundred miles," he blubbered, "to do the crying for this whole regiment!"—Youth's Companion.

The Night Before.

"James," said the young master, turning a fagged face to his coachman, "I feel as if I overdid things a little last night. Where did you drive me after the club dinner?"

"We stopped at every saloon along the way—but you did the driving, sir."

"What do you mean?"

"Nothing would suit but that we should exchange hats and coats and you took my place on the box and I yours inside the coach, sir."

"Gad! And where did we end up?"

"You drove to Miss Browning's, sir."

"Great heavens—my betrothed! I was expected there. Well, I suppose I made a fool of myself there?"

"You made a fool of the girl and me, sir. As a joke you conducted me into the house and left me there to entertain the lady sir."—Illustrated Sunday Magazine.

FIVE MONTHS IN HOSPITAL.

Discharged Because Doctors Could Not Cure.

Levi P. Brockway, S. Second Ave., Anoka, Minn., says: "After lying for five months in a hospital I was discharged as incurable, and given only six months to live. My heart was affected, I had smothering spells and sometimes fell unconscious. I got so I couldn't use my arms, my eyesight was impaired and the kidney secretions were badly disordered. I was completely worn out and discouraged when I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, but they went right to the cause of the trouble and did their work well. I have been feeling well ever since."

WHERE THE DANGER LAY.

Listeners in Greater Peril Than Was Ambitious Musician.

There was never a more conscientious young man than Eben Soule, and when he found how much absorbed he had become with the mere idea of playing in the town band, he consulted his minister. "Do you reckon I could give up all that time to music without falling from grace?" he asked, anxiously.

The good old Methodist had a saving sense of humor. He saw that his parishioner was much distressed between his wishes and his conscience, but the minister smiled on him, nevertheless.

"It's the horn you're asked to play, I hear," he said. "Ever had much experience with it, Eben?"

"Never tried it but once, but I like the sound of it first-rate," said the young man.

"M'm!" said the minister. "Well, I think you needn't be afraid of falling from grace on account of it, but I do hope you'll manage things so your family and neighbors won't have to pass through the fiery temptation of hearing you practice too often, Eben."—Youth's Companion.

UNUSUALLY BRILLIANT.

Lady—Your little brother seems to be bright for his age, doesn't he?

Little Maggie—Well, I should say so. Why, he knows the name of almost every player in the big leagues.

Little Lesson for Rufus.

Uncle Erastus had been polishing his musket for half an hour; at last he gave it a final love-pat, and turned to his grandson. "Chile," he said, "does you see dat bottle about 30 yards over dere?"

"Shore I does," Rufus agreed.

The old man threw up the musket and balanced it rather shakily. "Whang!" it bellowed. "Now does you see dat bottle?" the old man demanded.

"Yes, I does, granddad."

"I's powerful glad to hear dat, Rufe," the old man said, calmly. "It's been afeard from de way you sorted taters lately dat your eyesight was falling—but hit ain't. You's good fo' several yeahs yit, Rufus."

Using the Telephone.

It was the first time she had ever used a telephone and the drug clerk detected the fact by the nervous way in which she held the receiver.

"Dear me," she exclaimed, timidly, "why are all those sievelike holes in the mouthpiece?"

"They are there for a purpose," replied the drug clerk, solemnly.

"What purpose?"

"Why, so you can strain your voice."

And she was so embarrassed she forgot the number she was to call up.

BUILT UP

Right Food Gives Strength and Brain Power.

The natural elements of wheat and barley, including the phosphate of potash, are found in Grape-Nuts, and that is why persons who are run down from improper food pick up rapidly on Grape-Nuts.

"My system was run down by excessive night work," writes a N. Y. man, "in spite of a liberal supply of ordinary food.

"After using Grape-Nuts I noticed improvement at once, in strength, and nerve and brain power.

"This food seemed to lift me up and stay with me for better exertion, with less fatigue. My weight increased 20 lbs. with vigor and comfort in proportion.

"When traveling I always carry the food with me to insure having it."

DAD AND HIS MEMORY.

Old Gentleman Really Had Very Little to Brag About.

It was a severe trial to Mr. Harding that his only son's memory was not all that could be desired. "Where in the world he got such a forgetful streak from is beyond me," said the exasperated father to his wife on one occasion.

"What has he forgotten now?" asked Mrs. Harding, with eyes downcast and a demure expression.

"The figures of the last return from the election on the bulletin-board," and Mr. Harding inserted a finger in his collar as if to loosen it, and shook his head vehemently. "Looked at 'em as he came past not half an hour ago, and now can't tell me.

"As I said to him: 'If you're so stupid you can't keep a few simple figures in your head, why don't you write 'em down on a piece of paper, as I do, and have done all my life long before I was your age?' "Youth's Companion.

How Things Went.

Elliott H. Peabody is one of the best-known men at the Worcester county courthouse. At one time he and a few others were interested in a business deal which they expected to put through on a certain day. He was unable to be there, so the next day telephoned to a Mr. H—— for particulars. A lady answered the phone, and said that Mr. H—— was not at home. Mr. Peabody, supposing it to be Mrs. H——, said: "Well, perhaps you can tell me what I want to know. I only wanted to inquire how things went last night."

The lady, in a cheerful, reassuring tone, said: "Oh, nicely! Mrs. H—— is doing fine, and the baby weighs six and a half pounds. I'm the nurse."—Lippincott's.

Grandma's Occupation.

Bobby and Johnny were digging in the sand under my window. Johnny says: "My grandma's dead; she's gone to Heaven; my mother says so."

"I know it," replies Bobby, in a matter-of-fact way. "Bobby," says Johnny, "what do you s'spose she's doing up there?" Without an instant's hesitation came the reply: "Oh, standin' up, lookin' round, I guess."

TORTURED SIX MONTHS

By Terrible Itching Eczema—Baby's Suffering Was Terrible—Soon Entirely Cured by Cuticura.

"Eczema appeared on my son's face. We went to a doctor who treated him for three months. Then he was so bad that his face and head were nothing but one sore and his ears looked as if they were going to fall off, so we tried another doctor for four months, the baby never getting any better. His hand and legs had big sores on them and the poor little fellow suffered so terribly that he could not sleep. After he had suffered six months we tried a set of the Cuticura Remedies and the first treatment let him sleep and rest well; in one week the sores were gone and in two months he had a clear face. Now he is two years and has never had eczema again. Mrs. Louis Beck, R. F. D. 3, San Antonio, Tex., Apr. 15, 1907."

Might Miss Something.

Edyth—I told him there was no use wasting his time, as I didn't intend to marry him and that if he wrote to me I would return his letters unopened.

Mayme—Oh you shouldn't have done that. He might have inclosed matinee tickets in some of them.

This woman says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved her life. Read her letter.

Mrs. T. C. Willadsen, of Manning, Iowa, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I can truly say that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words. For years I suffered with the worst forms of female complaints, continually doctoring and spending lots of money for medicine without help. I wrote you for advice, followed it as directed, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it has restored me to perfect health. Had it not been for you I should have been in my grave to-day. I wish every suffering woman would try it."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

BOONE CO. RECORDER.
W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

Ed Callahan, ex-Sheriff of Breathitt county, has been granted a divorce from his wife. They had been married over 20 years.

President Roosevelt's record with the last Congress shows that he made 421 out of a possible 1,000 points, less than 50 per cent.

On several important positions to be filled by the Lexington convention, tomorrow, there is a very large number of uninstructed votes.

An Eastern philanthropist has offered a contribution of $50,000 to Berea College for the colored branch on condition that the college raises an equal amount.

All kinds of statements have been made as to what is to be expected at the Lexington convention tomorrow but nothing out of the ordinary is liable to happen.

The Chicago convention will have nothing to do but ratify the nomination of Secretary Taft, while the Denver convention will pursue the same course as to Mr. Bryan.

It seems that Senator Foraker, of Ohio, has not become reconciled to Secretary Taft's candidacy for the Presidential nomination, and will be at Chicago with his fighting clothes on.

The balance in the State Treasury for the month ending May 31 was $200,755.15, made up of sinking fund, $133,061 78; school fund, $102,393 77; general expenditure fund (deficit), $34,700 40.

A week of violent storms in the South is believed to have been attended with the loss of 500 lives. The damage was done partly by hurricane, partly by tornadoes, often, though wrongly called cyclones.

It is said that half of the automobiles manufactured by the Studebaker Bros., of South Bend, Indiana, are sold to farmers. That shows pretty conclusively that farmers are beginning to use a great many autoes.

There are all kinds of predictions as to what will happen at the Democratic convention that assembles at Lexington tomorrow. Some say it is to be a genuine love feast—a kiss-and-make-up social, while others predict it will be one of the stormiest in the history of the party in Kentucky.

A campaign to educate the people of Indiana to use only the flour that is manufactured from wheat grown in that State was launched at the closing session of the Indiana Miller's Association. Resolutions declaring that the wheat raised in Indiana is the best in the world were unanimously adopted.

There is a prosperous merchant in Chicago who owes his success to his donation of a $5,000 organ to a church at a time when he didn't have money enough to buy a hand organ. This donation was a case of bluff, pure and simple, but the bluff worked and resulted in the subsequent wealth of the lucky bluffer.

Probably no branch of dairying has received so much attention as the feeding question, not only in the hands of the skilled breeder, but scientific men have been of untold value to the dairymen, in that they were able through analysis to detect and find out the most digestable protein feeds, such feeds as would not tax the digestible organs of the animals too heavily and yet would give the very best results at the milk pail.

Lexington is making extensive preparations to entertain the State Convention and no effort will be spared to assure the comfort of every person who attends. The whole city is taking the greatest interest in the matter and all of the details are in the hands of committees composed of representative citizens. There is every prospect now that the convention will be the largest in the history of the Democratic party in Kentucky. One of the most encouraging features of the situation is the fact that there is a disposition in every part of Kentucky for the Democrats to get together, bury all of their factional differences and unite for a great Democratic victory.

Hold Your Receipts.

Winchester, Ky., May 28.

To the Members of the Burley Tobacco Society:

The Executive Board of the Burley Tobacco Society recommends that no member of the Society shall sell his Warehouse receipts or transfer his tobacco to any one:

1st. Because our tobacco is selling radidly; we have to this date sold at market prices 24,000 hhds. out of the 52,000 hhds,

2nd. Because we have but little tobacco left of grades below 16 to 30 cents,

3rd. Because the 1907 crop will grade much higher than the 1908,

4th. Because the 1908 crop has been eliminated beyond our highest expectation.

This advice is given to protect those who may not be informed.

EXECUTIVE BOARD OF THE BURLEY TOBACCO SOCIETY.
Clarence Lebus, Pres.

The biggest farm—if "farm" it can be called—is that owned by Don Luis Terrazas, in the state of Chihuahua, Mexico, which measures from north to south 150 miles and from east to west 200 miles, or 8,000,000 acres in all. On its prairies and mountains roam 1,000,000 head of cattle, 700,000 sheep and 100,000 horses. The "farmhouse" is probably the most magnificent in the world, for it cost $400,000 to build it and is more richly furnished than many a royal palace. On the homestead alone are employed 100 male servants. The gardens are superbly laid out, the stables more magnificent than those of the German Emperor, and there is accommodation for 500 guests if necessary.

The more that is learned about the affairs of other counties the more evident it becomes that Boone is the best county in the State. Of financial affairs in Owen county last week's Democrat says:

"The bottom has dropped out of the County Treasury. There is not a dollar with which to pay expenses, interest on the floating and founded debt, maintenance of paupers and bridge and road repairs. Little claims for eight or ten dollars are being hawked about the street, going at a discount with no takers. People who ought to know say that this is the first time in the history of the county that its credit was at so low an ebb. All official salaries, road and other claims against the county will have to be held up until the Sheriff commences to collect the 1908 taxes."

It is said that there is a desire on the part of some of those who want the Democratic nomination for county offices to be voted for in this county at the November election, 1909, that a primary election be held some time this fall. That there is any desire on the part of the voters for a primary this fall does not appear, and it is their will instead of that of candidates that should be considered. The nomination of candidates a year in advance of the election at which they are to be voted for is a bad policy and should not meet the approval of the voters. Nominations for District, State nor National offices are never made so long before an election, neither should they be for county offices. On one occasion nominations for candidates in this county were made on the day of the regular November election preceding the November election at which they were voted for. This was done believing a larger Democratic vote would be brought out thereby, but there was no appreciable increase in the vote polled, and before the day upon which the nominees were to be voted for came, many of the voters had forgotten who they were, and no interest was taken in their election. Four or six months is a sufficient period to intervene between the date of the nomination and the election.

As usual each of the factions in the Democratic party in Kenton county, will knock at the doors of the Lexington convention tomorrow and ask recognition and admission. Louisville sends a single delegation. It is harmony with a big H. down there.

If sheep are fed sulphur with their salt at all times it is not only a preventive for worms, but flies will not bother them so much during the hot days of summer, nor will ticks or lice stay on a sheep that is smelling strongly of sulphur. We do not believe that wolves would be as apt to tackle them either, but that is hard to determine.

Wheat harvest will be here in a few days.

Birds have been very busy in the cherry trees for several days.

Farmers were so very busy last week that very few were about town.

There have been numerous tobacco seasons in many localities, this year.

Meadows promise a good crop of grass this year, but some of them are weedy.

There is an abundance of fine grass growing about the alleys and some of the streets in Burlington.

Some fine weather for fishing last week, and several took advantage of it, but caught only a few fish.

J. J. Walton, of Beileview, was in Burlington, last Thursday. He reported a scarcity of tomato plants in his neighborhood.

The squirrel hunters have not been killing many this spring, Jas. Slayback being the only one who has kept up his record.

It is said that work on the Hebron and Limaburg pike will be resumed at an early date, and will be pushed to a completion.

The man who claims to be an up-in-G gardener has no excuse for a weedy truck patch, as he has been given a most excellent opportunity to clean it up.

Waller Ryle, of Beech Grove neighborhood, called at this office, last Thursday and looked over the new press on which the paper is now printed.

The local strawberry crop has been nothing to brag of this spring. The fine large berries that are generally brought to Burlington, have not showed up this year.

In some localities in the county they were needing rain badly at the first of last week. The showers had been local up to the middle of the week, many farms having been missed.

The weather last week was the finest kind for work in the fields, and the farmers were a very busy set of men, and made considerable headway in disposing of their delayed work.

Keep your rural mail box nicely painted and lettered and numbered. It gives strangers a better opinion of your tendency to neatness. Mr. Geo. Thomas is a good hand to touch it for you.

Papers are in circulation soliciting aid to pike the road leading from the Burlington and Florence pike to Hopeful church. That piece of road was never known to be as bad as it was this spring.

The delivery of wool here, last Friday, made things a little livelier than they had been about town for several days. Several thousand pounds of 19 cent wool was received by Huey & Hicks.

Edward Botts, of Sorrel Horse Stock Farm, had one of his fine young steppers on exhibition in Burlington, last county court day. It was a very symmetrical animal and attracted considerable attention and favorable comment.

There will be an all day meeting at Union Baptist church on the third Saturday in June and a basket dinner and a roll call on that day. All the members are requested to be there and answer to their names. L. J. Riley, Clerk.

Two game wardens are hovering about the streams and woods of Dearborn county watching to see if some farmer or sportsman will be tempted to violate the hunting or fishing laws. Squirrels and bass are mighty tempting these days.—Press.

Miles Woodward Smith, son of H. W. Smith, of Erlanger, was one of the Woodward graduates this year. The commencement exercises were held at Music Hall, Cincinnati, last Friday evening. He is a young man with a bright future before him.

C. W. McFee, of Francesville neighborhood, has about rounded into his old target shooting form. He has participated in two big events with noted gun clubs, recently, and was among the best shots. In a two days' contest he got second place. No one handles a gun nicer than Mr. McFee.

Quite a number of buyers of wool were in Burlington, last county court day, and did a great deal of caucusing, but they did not have nerve enough to go above the 20 cent mark, in fact none of them reached it.

John Baldon requests the Recorder to say that he will go over his old route again this season with his threshing machine notwithstanding reports to the contrary. He will be out early and stay as long as there is any wheat he can get to thresh.

T. G. Willis, of Bullittsville, called at this office, one morning last week. He is expecting to put out six acres of tomatoes for the Petersburg cannery this season. He reported that some of the planters are short on early plants, and that may reduce the crop it was originally intended to plant in the Petersburg territory.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold," writes B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

The good road sentiment is growing in Boone county and communities in which very little interest has heretofore been taken in public roads are becoming aroused. The county roads are the farmers' most important thoroughfares, a fact they are beginning to realize as never before, and a new era in the matter of roads is dawning in this particular section.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom Moore, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

Several Belleview boys went out coon hunting, last Thursday night, and in their traveling through the country they came upon a large, sweet cherry tree which was ladened with ripe fruit. The hunters were soon in the boughs of the tree gathering and eating of the cherries, and having a jolly good time, which was brought to a very sudden close by loud shouts and the discharge of several guns or pistols. Instead of climbing down, holts were loosened and the boys fell to the ground, a promiscuous mass. As soon as they could regain their feet they fled in every direction, scaling wire fences, penetrating hedges and going over embankments in the most careless manner. It was very late in the night when some of the members of the party reached home, all of them more or less lacerated by barbed wire and hedge thorns, and considerably bruised by falling over logs and into gullies. The panic was caused by a party who discovered the raid on the cherry tree and decided to have some fun at the expense of the raiders.

Fallen Asleep.

Florenda, daughter of John and Mary Vickers, was born May 22, 1826, in Boone county, Ky. She was married to Jacob M. Robinson, January 28th, 1845, who went before in the year of our Lord, 1873.

Her widowhood and declining years were comforted by her four sons and eight grand-children, her only daughter, Mrs. J. C. Gibbs, having passed away in 1895. She united with the Mount Pleasant Baptist church in 1895, having for long years been a devout worshipper there.

Grandma was an affectionate sister, a faithful wife, a loving mother, a kind neighbor and a true friend. No greater monument can be erected to her memory than the love and reverence given by those who best knew her.

On the afternoon of May 22, 1908, the eighty-second anniversary of her birth, surrounded by those nearest and dearest, she fell asleep to awake where pain and sorrow and partings are no more.

The services were held at the late residence in Boone county and interment was made in the family cemetery, on the McKay farm. A large number of friends were at the home to pay her the last respect. Rev. J. C. Reed, of Blanchster, O., preached the funeral sermon, and Rev. R. H. Carter, of Point Pleasant church, and Geo. A. Jones, Ludlow, offered the commitment and benediction at the grave.

The deceased leaves behind, four sons, eight grand-children, a sister and a brother to mourn her loss. The remains were borne to the grave by three sons and three grand sons.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. It accepts deposits from one cent to one million dollars, and pays four per cent on time deposits remaining one year and three per cent if left six months. Try us; we can help you in many ways. Judge J. M. Lassing is the owner of the Owenton Telephone system. Monday he concluded a deal with James A. Johnson by which the entire plant and all of its property was turned over to him. The purchase price was not given out but it is understood to have been between $12,000 and $15,000. Judge Lassing will at once put a good man in charge of the property and the work of putting it in first class condition will be begun. He told the Democrat before leaving Owenton that he would make this one of the best local systems in the state and would give direct connection with Cincinnati, Louisville and all other points and proposed that the service rendered should be the very best in every regard.—Democrat.

A dispatch from Lexington under June 6 says:

As a result of a conference between F. R. Toe Water, of this city, manager of the Kentucky leaf department of the American Tobacco Company, R. K. Smith, of New York, managing director, and a number of purchasing agents of the company, the American Tobacco Company has concluded a deal with the sales committee of the Burley Tobacco Society by which they will purchase immediately 1,000,000 pounds of the pooled tobacco at the regular prices fixed by the society. This purchase embraces all of the pooled tobacco of the 1906 crop below the $14 grade. The pooled crop of 1906 above this grade was not included in the purchase, as the Burley Association desires to give independent manufacturers another chance to make purchases for supplying their wants for the ensuing year. The cheaper grades of tobacco which were sold by the deal to-day to the American Tobacco Company have been in great demand by the independent manufacturers, but a member of the executive committee said to-day that the independents had been given a fair chance at these grades and the society could not afford to hold them longer, as the growers are becoming insistent for money. Besides these grades can be supplied from the 1907 crop, not a pound of which will be sold until the 1906 crop has been entirely disposed of. It is rumored here to-day that the American Tobacco Company is now attempting to arrange a deal by which it will purchase the entire pooled crop of 1907 and that after the independent manufacturers have been given a fair opportunity to buy the remainder of the 1906 crop, and to then supply their needs from the crop of 1907, the Burley Society will close out to the American Tobacco Company the entire holdings of pooled tobacco.

The Road to Content.

It is frequently said that a family can live for much less in England than in America, although the details are seldom given in support of the statement. A committee of representative English workingmen, which visited America not long ago, has reported that there is practically no difference in the price of food in the two countries, and that in some parts of England provisions are more expensive than in New York. Rent is higher here than in Great Britain. But even with the greater rent the American workingman is better off, for his wages are so much higher than those paid on the other side that, as the committee has reported, the American can save two dollars as easily as the Englishman 50 cents. The contented workman is the one who saves 50 cents or two dollars, rather than the one who complains that his wages are so small that he can save nothing. The newspapers noted the death the other day of a man in Scotland who had never earned more than eight dollars a week, yet had educated two of his five children well enough for them to enter the learned professions, and had a surplus of movable property worth $2,000. There is in a New England town, relates the Youths' Companion, a shoeworker who, when he was a young man, resolved that he would save enough out of his wages to he able to retire and live on his interest at the age of 60. He retired at the age of 58, with a home and a competency; yet he never received more than $15 a week. It is men of this type the world over who are the bone and sinew of their respective countries. In democracies such as England and America they control in a real sense the national policies. The cost of living does not trouble them very much, for they have schooled themselves to adjusting their immediate wants to the necessity of providing for a future when they may rest from thier labors.

Small sympathy need he expended on the New Yorkers who were taken in by fake pictures, which they imagined were works of art over which old masters had labored, whereas they were copies by art students. If a New Yorker or anyone else desires to spend his money for age rather than for art let him do so, but if he admires the pictures of the old masers for their great beauty and superior merit, where is the harm if he gets one of the same kind, only more beautiful and several hundred years fresher? Indeed, we have long thought that the printing presses should be started up, so that everybody who desired them could have the old masters. We do not see why a line of old masters should not be put on the market which would make the originals look as if they had been dragged from a second-hand store.

On the other hand, Canon Jephson, a member of the Mosely commission, which recently visited the United States, controverts the statement of Sir William Henry Preece that the American boy is mentally two years ahead of the European boy. According to Canon Jephson the American boy's progress is retarded by the American system of co-education and the preponderance of American women teachers. This is rather hard on the American schoolmarm, though we have lately heard the same idea expressed on this side of the water by some of our own educators. So, remarks the Boston Herald, the Jephson utterance can scarcely he termed a casus belli.

Benefits from the American rule in Cuba continue to be manifested. Dr. Doty, health officer of the port of New York, has just returned from a visit to the island, which he reports in exceptionally clean and healthful condition, so that certificates from the physicians in charge in Havana will be sufficient to admit passengers from that city to New York without inspection at the latter port. Cuba under present rules and regulations is no longer a standing alarm against serious and death-dealing disease.

The South Orange (N. J.) council has passed an ordinance making it a misdemeanor for a dog to bark between midnight and sunrise. Isn't the South Orange council a little unreasonable? How can a dog be expected to watch the calendar with sufficient care to be able to determine what minute the sun will rise day after day?

If the investor who claims to have discovered the secret of manufacturing gold expects to get people to accept his product the real thing he will have to seek out some almost inaccessible and wholly desolate region in which to establish his plant.

The man who failed in his effort to predict an earthquake should not be discouraged. Earthquakes are mighty hard to predict, being notoriously large and unwieldy and difficult to tame.

MANY WOMEN AND CHILDREN

WERE RETURNING FROM SUNDAY-SCHOOL PICNIC

Motorman Warned of the Dangerous Curve Where the Accident Occurred, But Says He Forgot the Warning.

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—One man was killed outright, several others fatally injured, and practically all of the 93 passengers on board were hurt more or less seriously when an east-bound Creve Coeur car jumped the track at a curve 200 feet south of the city limits late Sunday night and pitched 10 feet over an embankment.

Six of the passengers were so seriously injured that they will die, according to the physicians who were called to the scene. The conductor was dragged out from beneath the motor box, with his chest crushed in and both legs cut off.

The motorman was pitched from the platform several feet away from the car. He was knocked unconscious, but not seriously injured.

Half of the passengers on the car were women and children, returning from Sunday-school picnics at the lake. Many women were pulled from under the wreckage of the car, unconscious and bleeding from various wounds. The throat of one child was cut from ear to ear by being shoved against an iron bar over the window and it is feared died to death.

Up to midnight it was impossible to learn just how many had been killed. The reports received from the scene of the accident ranged from one to 12 killed.

E. B. Smith, of No. 6435 Olive street, who was one of the first men on the spot after the car jumped the track, said that there were ten dead or so badly injured that they could not live.

Ten thousand people from Delmar garden, only three blocks away, rushed to the scene of the accident and carried people out from under the wreckage. Telephone messages were sent to the nearby hospitals and 200 physicians were on the scene within 20 minutes after the accident.

Night Chief Gillespy ordered every ambulance at the disposal of the hospitals and the dispensaries sent at once to the car sheds at DeBalliviere and Delmar avenues, where the injured were being taken.

The motorman, Francis McEndre, was arrested soon after the accident and made a statement in which he says he was on his first trip on the Creve Coeur line. He admits he had been warned about the dangerous curve where the car was wrecked, and says he forgot the warning. He has been a motorman nine months.

EMPTY WAS PARACHUTE

And the Watching Father Knew That His Son Had Been Killed.

Springfield, Ill., June 8.—A balloon drifting across the sky, with the parachute hanging empty, brought the first tidings Sunday evening to L. M. Jones, of St. Louis, that his son, Luther Edward, aged 27, had been dashed to death at Mildred park.

Knowing that the young aeronaut was to make the ascent at 6 o'clock the father, who had gone to the Alton depot to take a train for St. Louis, had watched the sky in the direction of Mildred park.

Young Jones was dashed against the branch of a dead tree a second after the big balloon was let go from the ground. His skull was fractured.

Without uttering a cry the lifeless body was hurled downward nearly 40 feet into the midst of a crowd of over a thousand persons.

Shot Was Fatal.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 8.—Lemuel Daggett, foreman for the American Bridge Co., who was shot Saturday night at Ambridge, died Sunday. Frank Adanus, an Italian, is accused of firing the shot. Daggett believed Adams was a neighbor who had been asked to clean up his yard, but who ignored the request. Daggett, it is said, threatened the Italian before he fired the fatal shot.

Was Jealous; Kills Herself.

St. Louis, Mo., June 8.—While under the delusion that her husband had married another woman, having seen in the papers notice of a similar name, Mrs. Eliza Snyder, 3730 Lucky street, killed herself. Her husband was guiltless. William Schneider, of 1415 Farrar street, and his bride, whom Mrs. Snyder thought her husband, are on their honeymoon, ignorant of the tragedy caused by the notice of their wedding.

Kills Wife and Self.

San Francisco, Cal., June 8.—George Scott, formerly of Chicago, a drug clerk, 23 years old, Sunday night shot and killed his wife Blanche, 19 years old, and then committed suicide.

Oldest Member Dead.

Lawrence, Mass., June 8.—Brother Lawrence, said to be the oldest member of the Augustinian order in the United States, died here Sunday. He was 98 years old. He was admitted to the order in 1847 at Villa Nova.

INTO THE COLD, COLD WORLD!

GOING TO HUNT IN AFRICA

PRESIDENT WILL LEAVE WHEN HE GOES OUT OF OFFICE.

Statement from White House Puts Quietus on Third Term Talk—Kermit to Accompany Father.

Washington. — Important significance in connection with President Roosevelt's determination against a third term is contained in the admission made Friday for the first time, that the president is making definite plans to leave the United States in April next year for Africa, where he will pass a year hunting big game. Rumors that Mr. Roosevelt was to leave the country at the conclusion of his term of office have been printed heretofore, but when confirmation was sought at the White House the answer has been that no definite conclusion had been reached as to the president's plans.

But Friday it was stated positively that Mr. Roosevelt, with his son Kermit, would sail from New York, for Cairo in April, 1909—just as soon as the necessary arrangements for the departure could be made after March 4. It is the desire of the president to bring back at the end of the year from the wilds of Africa specimens of every species of big game to be had on the dark continent. He will visit no other country, it is stated.

The outfit for the expedition will be obtained on reaching Africa, but an active correspondence in this connection already is under way. The exact size of the hunting party—number of guides and retainers, animals, etc.—has not been determined on. The president, however, will take with him an assortment of arms which he will require in the variety of hunting contemplated. This outfit will include, of course, guns of the highest power. During the absence of Mr. Roosevelt in Africa Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the family will remain at the family home at Sagamore Hill, Oyster Bay.

MRS. W. B. LEEDS LOSES.

Must Pay 60 Per Cent. Duty on $340,000 Pearl Necklace.

New York.—Customs duties of 60 per cent. must be paid on the $340,000 pearl necklace imported from France by Mrs. William B. Leeds, under a decision rendered by Judge Lacombe in the the United States court Tuesday.

After the necklace was purchased in Paris the pearls were separated and brought to this country as individual gems in the belief that they would be admitted upon the payment of ten per cent. duty, which the law provides for individual pearls. The collector of the port ruled, however, that as the pearls had been used as a necklace, and were intended to be used in that form again, the full duty of 60 per cent. should be levied.

President Has Narrow Escape.

Washington. — President Roosevelt had an exceedingly—narrow escape from a serious accident while horseback riding in Rock Creek park. His horse reared and fell backward with him into a creek. Mr. Roosevelt was uninjured and continued his ride.

May Solve Old Ohio Murder.

Bellefontaine, O.—After 11 years the mystery surrounding the murder of aged David Detrick and his wife in this city may be solved through alleged admissions made by a convict in the California state penitentiary, whose name is withheld. Recently Logan county officials went to the coast and it was to them, it is stated, the confession was made. The mutilated bodies of Detrick and his wife were found in their home by a daughter, August 11, 1897, an ax having been used. The house had been robbed.

EIGHT KILLED; MANY HURT.

Terrible Collision on Electric Railway Near Annapolis, Md.

Annapolis, Md. — In a head-on collision between two special cars on the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis electric railroad shortly before eight o'clock Friday night, eight persons were killed outright and a score of others were seriously injured, some of them perhaps fatally. The collision was due to confusion of orders, as the line has been running several extra cars each way in connection with the commencement festivities at the Naval academy.

The disaster occurred just beyond Camp Parole, which is the first station after leaving this city. Both the wrecked cars were specials, one of them bound from Baltimore for Annapolis, the other running from here for Washington. The latter carried few passengers, while the other was well filled. The impact was terrific and both cars were wrecked, that bound for this city being thrown from the rails. As quickly as possible aid was sent from here and the dead and injured were brought to this city. Of the injured, General Traffic Manager William E. Slaughter of the Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis was in the worst condition.

NEGROES KILL A SHERIFF.

Oklahoma City Official Slain in Trying to Make Arrest.

Oklahoma City, Okla.—Sheriff George W. Garrison of Oklahoma City was shot and killed, an unknown deputy wounded and a negro was shot in a battle which took place three miles east of Hitchcock at seven o'clock Friday evening.

According to reports received by the local police department, seven negroes were in a party that opened fire on the sheriff when he attempted to arrest Alf Hunter, alias James Kingsbury, who killed Susie Pride in Oklahoma City on the evening of May 19

BURLINGTON ROAD FINED.

Convicted of Violating Regarding Live Stock in Transit.

Springfield, Ill.—The federal government won a notable victory in the United States district court Wednesday when the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad company was found guilty on two charges of violating the 28-hour law which provides that live stock shall not be confined in cars over 28 hours without being taken out for a period of five consecutive hours for the purpose of giving them rest and feed and water. The company was fined $100 and costs on each of three counts.

Edward Goes to Visit Czar.

London.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and Princess Victoria started for Reval, Russia, Friday night for a visit to the emperor of Russia. A large suite accompanied the royal party. The party reached Port Victoria at 11 o'clock and boarded the royal yacht Victoria and Alhert, which sailed at four o'clock Saturday morning.

Gorgas Heads the Physicians.

Chicago. — Col. William Crawford Gorgas, A. B., M. D., Sc. D., member of the isthmian canal commission and chief sanitary officer of the canal zone, was elected president of the American Medical association Thursday at the final meeting of the house of delegates of that organization.

Packers Pay Their Fines.

Kansas City, Mo.—Three packing companies and one railroad company convicted in 1906 of rehating and sentenced to pay fines aggregating $61,000, Friday handed to the clerk of the United States court a check for the total amount of their fines, plus costs.

Steps on a Tack and Dies.

Des Moines, Ia.—Mrs. W. Van Werden, wife of Dr. W. Van Werden, a prominent physician of this city, died Friday from blood poisoning, caused by her stepping on a tack.

FOUR TARS KILLED

BOILER TUBE ON THE CRUISER TENNESSEE BURSTS.

TEN OF THE CREW INJURED

Rear Admiral Sebree and Other Officers Have Narrow Escapes—Vessel Was on Speed Trial Near San Pedro.

San Pedro, Cal. — A terrible accident occurred on board the United States armored cruiser Tennessee at 11:30 o'clock Friday morning while the ship was steaming at 19 knots on a speed trial off Point Ruenene, Cal., a steam pipe in the starboard engine room bursting under 235 pounds' pressure, killing four men and injuring ten others—all of the men in the compartment at the time. The explosion, the cause of which is unknown, occurred only a few minutes after Admiral Uriel Sebree, Capt. F. B. Howard and Chief Engineer Robertson had left the engine room on a tour of inspection.

Names of the Victims.

Fatally injured: S. Stematis, first-class fireman, Norfolk, Va.; F. S. Maxfield, second-class fireman, Toughkenamon, Pa.

Men Scalded with Steam.

The tube, which is four inches in diameter and inclosed with water inside the boiler, blew out, driving a torrent of scalding steam, coal dust, cinders and hot ashes through the ash pit and showered the half-naked men. A blast of white steam from the ventilators told those on deck of the accident, and Lieut. Commander S. S. Robinson, the navigator, instantly sounded a general alarm and dropped 20 lines of hose ready for instant use in case of fire.

Within the doomed fire room, amidship on the starboard side, the surviving seamen were fighting for life. Reinhold and Meek were stricken dead at their posts. Boggs and Wood crawled or were dragged into the adjoining fire room, and died almost immediately. The other seamen, all of whom received some injuries, acted with the greatest heroism in aiding their unfortunate mates.

Close Call for Sebree.

Rear Admiral Sebree himself escaped death or serious injury in the fated fire pit by a mere moment's time. He had left the room where the explosion occurred not 50 seconds before the fatal blast. The admiral stood in the engine room adjoining the fire room with Chief Engineer Robertson and Capt. Howard. His first intimation of the tragedy was as he mounted the ladder and a half-naked fireman leaped past him suffering from severe scalds.

When the smoke came from the fire room, the fire call was sounded and all the crew went to their stations in perfect order and in a few seconds 15 to 20 lines of hose were ready to turn on the fire. Several of the crew behaved with heroism and will be reported to the department later.

The ship was undergoing inspection by the commander of the second division and had been under way for over two hours, the engines, boilers and all machinery working perfectly.

Was on a Speed Trial.

Big Steamer's First Trip.

Black Hawk Veteran Dead.

Creston, Ia.—Daniel Ritchey, aged 90 years, is dead at Corning. He was a veteran of the Black Hawk war. He kept a hotel in Adams county in 1855, and when John Brown and Jim Lane were running slaves north into Canada, his hostelry was a rendezvous for them. He was also a Mason, and perhaps the oldest one in the state at the time of his death.

Bubonic Plague at Trinidad.

Port of Spain, Trinidad.—There have been two cases of bubonic plague here, both of which proved fatal. No new cases have been reported and every precaution is being taken to prevent a recurrence of the disease.

Pawnee Chief to Be Married.

Guthrie, Okla.—Stacy Matlock, chief of the Pawnee tribe of Indians, and Miss Blanche Will, a Pawnee girl, will be married at Carlisle, Pa., where the young woman is attending the government school.

AGAIN DECLINED WITH THANKS.

Would-Be Contributor "Up Against" the Misanthropic Editor.

The editor looked up as the caller came forward, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

"Sir," said the latter, "you objected to the meter of the spring poem I submitted to you the other day. Because of this I have for the present dropped poetry and turned my attention to the art of the essayist. Here, sir, is a paper on 'Woman and Her Defects,' which I trust you will find to your liking."

The editor stared hard at the title of the essay.

"'Woman and Her Defects,'" he repeated. "Are you a married man, sir?"

"No," replied the caller, "I am not married."

The editor laughed harshly.

"You should choose subjects," he said, "with which you have had an opportunity to become familiar."

And he handed back the essay on "Woman and Her Defects."

Libby's Food Products

Peerless Dried Beef

Unlike the ordinary dried beef—that sold in bulk—Libby's Peerless Dried Beef comes in a sealed glass jar in which it is packed the moment it is sliced into those delicious thin wafers.

None of the rich natural flavor or goodness escapes or dries out. It reaches you fresh and with all the nutriment retained.

Libby's Peerless Dried Beef is only one of a Great number of high-grade, ready to serve, pure food products that are prepared in Libby's Great White Kitchen.

Just try a package of any of these, such as Ox Tongue, Vienna Sausage, Pickles, Olives, etc., and see how delightfully different they are from others you have eaten.

Round About the State

What Is Going On in Different Sections of Kentucky.

FOUND DEAD IN BATHTUB.

Minister Is Asphyxiated While Visiting at Home of Kentucky Preacher.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The Rev. E. M. Gordon, a missionary from Mungell, India, was found dead in the bathtub in the home of the Rev. H. D. Smith, whom he was visiting.

It is believed the minister opened a gas jet to a heating stove in the room by throwing a towel against it. He was asphyxiated.

Mr. Gordon was sent to India by the Church of Christ of this city. He had only recently come home on a furlough to visit his former congregation.

He was a member of the Disciples denomination. His father was a British army officer. He leaves a widow and child, who are in Philadelphia.

DAMAGES AWARDED

To Woman Who Was Injured On Her First Railroad Trip.

Frankfort, Ky.—While taking her first ride on a railroad train Mrs. Mary Lorton, of Burnsides, Pulaski county, was injured by a window of the coach falling and mashing her hand. She secured $325 damages from the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific Railroad Co. in a judgment in the Pulaski circuit court. This judgment was affirmed by the court of appeals. The court in rendering the decision says: "It is the duty of railroad companies to keep and maintain their passenger coaches, including the windows and doors, in a good condition for the safety, convenience and comfort of its passengers. A failure to do so makes them liable for damages."

Treasury Balances.

Frankfort, Ky.—The balance in the state treasury for the month ending May 31 was $200,755.15, made up of sinking fund, $133,061.78; school fund, $102,393.77; general exenditure fund (deficit), $34,700.40. The balances in the treasury for the month ending May 31, 1907, were: Sinking fund, $627,359.54; school fund, $37,119.46; general expenditure fund (deficit), $432,454.84. Balance in treasury, $232,024.16.

The Girls Went Snipe Hunting.

Frankfort, Ky.—An old trick was the means of a practical joke played on a party of society girls here by a number of young men on a camping trip. The girls were taken snipe hunting and held the bag in the chilly atmosphere. It took an hour and a half for the girls to discover they had been duped, and they indignantly started for home—the men in the party following at a safe distance.

Must Mend Their Habits.

Frankfort, Ky.—George Davis, city prosecuting attorney, received through the mails a notice that he must change his habits at once, or the visiting committee would call upon him. The note says that the night riders are planning a raid on Frankfort, and that not only Davis but other young men here must change their habits or else they will be lashed.

Extradited Prisoner Escapes.

Frankfort, Ky.—Authorities here learned that Nelson Halbert, arrested at Mangum, Okla., and wanted at Beavers Creek, Floyd county, on a charge of killing Albert Begley, is at large again, although Gov. Willson had issued a requisition for his return to this state.

Noted Educator to Retire.

Lexington, Ky.—Prof. John H. Neville, A. M., LL. D., 80, and for 60 years a teacher in public institutions, announced that he had put aside the harness and would retire from the classroom. He has made application for a pension from the Carnegie fund.

Prisoner Paroled.

Frankfort, Ky.—The prison commission paroled Henry Turner, of Breathitt county, sentenced to three years in the penitentiary on a charge of murdering his father-in-law, Elijah Howard. The family of Howard petitioned for the parole.

Now Sayre College.

Lexington, Ky.—The Sayre Female Institute, one of the oldest educational institutions in the south, and representative southern Presbyterian school, at a meeting of trustees had the scope enlarged and the name changed to Sayre college.

Engine Turned Over.

Louisa, Ky.—A passenger train on the Big Sandy division of the C. & O. Railway turned over six miles above Louisa and the engineer, Andrew Berry, was badly scalded and will probably die. The fireman and the baggagemaster were also injured.

Will Enforce the Law.

Louisville, Ky.—Mayor J. F. Grinstead, in an address to the Mutual Protective Association, commended the association for its work toward elevating the saloons, and declared hat the law would be enforced.

Kentuckian Seeks Death.

Huntington, W. Va.—Robert E. Lee, prosecuting attorney of Lawrence county, Ky., and prominent in Eastern Kentucky politics, took morphine with suicidal intend. There is small hope for his recovery.

CROP WILL BE INSIGNIFICANT.

Burley Tobacco Production in Kentucky May Reach 5,000,000 Pounds.

Frankfort, Ky.—From reports received from nearly all the counties which compose what is known as the burley tobacco district, the Commissioner of Agriculture, M. C. Rankin, estimates that the crop of tobacco which will be raised this year all over Kentucky will bo not more than 5,000,000 pounds, and the greater part of this will be grown in counties which are outside the burley district proper.

The estimates are that about one per cent of the usual crop in the burley district will be planted this year, but in some other counties in Kentucky Burley tobacco is grown in small quantities and this will run up the total.

The total acreage will be, according to the commissioner's information, about 5,000 acres, although it is believed that this will be too high. The total acreage last year was about 125,000 acres.

COURT INFESTED

With Hangers-On, Declares Louisville Police Judge.

Louisville, Ky.—Following his amendment of the witness oath by striking out "So help me God." Police Judge J. Wheeler McGee instituted a campaign against "grafters."

He ordered one man out of the courtroom for good because he had been seen talking to a prisoner in the cage. McGee said that the police court is infested with men who have no legitimate business in it, and he will try them for contempt if they come back a second time.

As soon as Criminal Judge Prior overruled a demurrer to an indictment against Dr. S. A. Bradley, former meat inspector, he was notified by Attorney Frank Hagan that a change of venue would be sought. Bradley is accused of bribery and embezzlement while in office.

King of "Shiners" Converted.

Frankfort, Ky.—Howard Collins, of Clay county, the "King" of the Eastern Kentucky moonshiners, placed in the Franklin county jail several weeks ago, has been converted by the Salvation Army. Howard is a fearless mountaineer, and has the reputation of being one of the best shots in Eastern Kentucky. He has several men to his credit, but says that when he gets free of the charge now pending he will return to the mountains and spend the remainder of his days preaching the gospel.

Thirteen Want Fortune.

Louisville, Ky.—Thirteen American relatives of Alexander McGaw McKay filed suit to contest his will. The man, who was a recluse, left $150,000 to a niece in Scotland, Margaret Wallace Bigham. The Americans charge that their Scotch cousin plied undue influence on the old man when he made a trip to Scotland in 1906.

Will Be Tried In October.

Jackson, Ky.—Beach Hargis' case was continued to the October term because in the Republican primary election of June 20 the circuit judge and commonwealth's attorney will each be candidates. No bail will be asked for Hargis and he will remain in jail during the summer.

First Measures Up.

Louisville, Ky.—Complete inspection of the First Kentucky Regiment was made here by Capt. W. N. Hughes, United States Militia Inspector. He gave no official intimation of what his report would be, but told an officer that the regiment measured up with any he had seen.

Methodists Conferred.

Louisville, Ky.—The Methodist Episcopal Church South held its district conference in South Louisville. Twenty-five churches were represented. Four delegates and four alternates to the state convention in Owensboro in September were elected.

Kentuckian Is Appointed.

Lexington, Ky.—R. M. Allen, of this city, secretary of the National Pure Food Association and head of the Kentucky State Department of that association, was appointed a special assistant United States Attorney by Attorney General Bonaparte.

Spicer Acquitted.

Lexington, Ky.—The jury in the Roger Spicer case, at Jackson, Ky., returned a verdict of not guilty. Spicer was charged with the murder of James Johnston.

His Father's Lawyer.

Jackson, Ky.—Attorney Will A. Young, of Morehead, is here to undertake the defense of Beach Hargis. He was in several feud cases the chief counsel for the late James Hargis, the defendant's father.

Colonel Sam Stone Ill.

Louisville, Ky.—Bladder trouble made Col. Samuel H. Stone take to his bed. He was about to act in his capacity as special commissioner for the eastern district of Kentucky in railroad rates cases when stricken.

FOUR YEARS MORE?

SHALL THE PARTY OF MONOPOLY BE KEPT IN POWER?

Time Now for the Voters to Determine to Put an End to Legalized Robbery by Tariff-Protected Trusts.

As wages are falling and meat and bread are costing more, with many people out of work, it is time to take stock and reckon how to provide for the future. The panic and present business depression have demolished the Republican theory that the tariff which protects the trusts produces prosperity. The high prices the trusts have charged for their products was one of the chief causes of the panic, and although the trusts made money other people had to pay it as long as they could, but even the game of boosting prices cannot prevail indefinitely, and the inevitable collapse came, much to the confusion of the Republican politicians. What is called business can adapt itself to almost any political conditions or laws, but it requires time to recuperate from a breakdown of confidence, and confidence cannot be restored until the business world begins to make money again and has surplus profits to invest in new undertakings. That the cost of living still remains so near the high point shows the absolute control of the trusts of most of the necessities of life. After former panics there has always been a period of low prices, which compensated for reduced wages and smaller incomes, and increased consumption, though cheaper goods set the wheels of industry again turning.

The steel trust, the beef trust, the sugar trust, the agricultural machinery trust, the coal trust, the paper trust, and many other trusts are still charging the same high prices for their products as before the panic. The railroad trust, indeed, has already determined to advance freight rates, which will naturally compel merchants to add to the price of the goods they sell, and groceries and provisions being heavy goods, will be the first to suffer. Freight on dry goods and clothing, although very high, does not add so much to their cost. Over-stocked merchants are selling better bargains in dry goods and ready-made clothing, but families with reduced incomes can hardly take advantage of it.

Monopoly and tariff protection, upon which the Republican party is standing pat, allows these things to be, and competition, which has always been relied upon to regulate prices according to supply and demand, is hardly longer among the forces to be reckoned with. It amounts to very much like suspending the force of gravitation and expecting things to keep in their right places.

Conditions are aggravated by private monopoly in conjunction with the government tariff favoritism. Cold-storage trusts and milk trusts all keep up prices. In spite of the law private car lines and refrigerator car combines still tax the consumer, and the producers and growers do not get any of the benefit.

Many people have regarded the present administration as reformers. But what has been done to relieve the people from trust and corporation plundering? Has anything been made cheaper or better or more lasting from the laws that have been enacted? The chief cause of high prices—the tariff—has not been touched. The same percentage of extra tariff profit is still being collected by the trusts and combines, and the Republican congress still stands pat, and no prodding from the White House on the tariff issue, other than on wood pulp and paper, stirs it to action.

The nomination of a president and congressmen is now taking place, and unless there is a new deal the same old pretense of "doing things" and yet standing pat will be continued for the next four years. You may adapt your circumstances to the present unsatisfactory conditions, as the business of the country undoubtedly will, but why not persist in reforms that you know you will benefit by? Are you willing to be plundered forever by the tariff-protected trusts?

St. Louis Wants a Rest.

The business men of St. Louis have organized the National Prosperity association and their motto, "Give us a rest and sunshine," indicates they are Republicans tired of Teddy. These prosperity boomers will find that prosperity is not to be had by saying it is here, though that may encourage some of the members to try and overcome that tired feeling, the result of Republican policies. Those who look behind the scenes and see somewhat how the political game is played are not calling for a rest, but, like the Democratic members of congress, are trying to stir a do-nothing congress to activity. For over ten long years the trusts have had a rest from competition and a Republican warrant to plunder the people through the tariff an average of over 50 per cent. Honest men should therefore, instead of crying for a rest, pitch in and fight for their rights—equal rights to all and special privileges to none. Prosperity for the trusts and combines has had a long lease, and it is either foolish or criminal to delude the people into taking a rest until the tariff that protects the trusts is revised. It will require the most active efforts of a good majority of the people working overtime until after election to curb the trusts and corporations whose depredations have given those St. Louis boomers that tired feeling.

GRAFT IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Exorbitant Salaries Paid to Officials in the Islands.

The Inter-Island News of Zamboango, Mindanao, publishes a statement from the Manila Review of Trade and Price Currents, from which we learn that in the Philippines, official salaries are nearly twice as high as they are in the United States. In the Philippines the secretary of the interior, secretary of the treasury, secretary of commerce and superintendent of public instruction receive $15,000 apiece, while in this country the secretaries of the interior, the treasury and commerce and labor get $8,000 apiece and the commissioner of education $3,500. Nor is that the worst feature of extravagance in the Philippines.

The writer of the article referred to adds:

"But the worst feature of the situation is that fully double the number of public servants needed are employed. This, together with the exorbitant salaries paid, show what might be accomplished in the way of public improvements if the revenues of the islands were economically expended. While the business men of Manila do not favor any reduction of revenue, they do favor a substantial cut in the exorbitant salaries of officials and other sources of leakage which will enable the government to borrow at least one hundred million of dollars, gold, with which to build highways, railways and other necessary public improvements. This would open up these islands from end to end and increase production a hundredfold. Recognizing this fact, the business men of the Philippines are willing to pay every cent they can stand for this purpose, but they are tired of wearing themselves to their withers paying exorbitant salaries to public officials who know little and care less about the commercial interests of the archipelago.

"They see the civil government here expending practically $5,000,000, local currency, on what is known as the Benguot road—and for what purpose? Solely for the benefit of a few public officials who may take a junket over it once or twice during the course of a year. If this official boulevard incidentally opened up an acre of productive territory, the business men would applaud the action of the government. But it does not. Absolutely no material benefit whatever will or ever can accrue from its construction. This amount of money expended upon highways in any direction from Manila would have opened up a vast and productive territory teeming with population."

What Standpatting Costs.

Every month's delay in placing wood pulp on the free list, the Chicago Journal points out, increases the difficulties in adjusting the sources of wood pulp supply. It continues:

"For instance, the Ontario government has just laid down the principle that, in selling wood pulp limits, there must be a proviso that the pulp is manufactured into paper within the province. This is to benefit Canadian labor. The province will welcome American capital into converting spruce trees into paper, but the work must be done on Canadian soil. We have previously noted growing restrictions, on similar lines, by the provincial governments of Quebec, New Brunswick and British Columbia.

"While yet these new barriers are being raised, our tariff 'standpatters' calmly ignore the pressing demand from all sections of the United States for the removal of wood pulp duties. They are not unaware of Canada's readiness to take advantage of present delay. The more rapidly our own forests are depleted the more profit does Canada expect from her coming bargain to supply our deficiencies. This is but one instance of what American consumers must pay in order that their tariff overlords may build up great private fortunes."

Republican Extravagance.

As long as the boom in business continued there was not much notice taken of the extravagant appropriations by congress, but now the boom has busted and Republican prosperity has vanished, and the receipts of the government are running at the rate of $60,000,000 behind the outlay, one would think it was time to economize. But the present congress is more extravagant than ever and seems determined to leave the national cupboard bare for the incoming Democrats, as the Republicans did under similar circumstances in 1884, when President Cleveland was first elected. The fact is the Republican managers are good business spenders, like gamblers, but what is now needed and what the country must come to is careful spenders, who while providing all revenue necessary for the government will not waste the substance of the people.

A Possible New Issue.

It is reported that a number of foreign diplomats have been invited to attend the Republican national convention at Chicago, June 17, and that they have accepted the invitation. This is a new departure in American politics. Most of the diplomats are monarchists—representatives of European or Asiatic kings. Their influence at a convention of Republicans would be distinctly evil. The president, as the head of his party, should forbid their attendance, and no doubt would do so, if he were not himself a monarchist at heart. There will be no imperialistic ambassadors at the Denver convention. That convention may see fit to condemn the presence of such ambassadors at Chicago; and that may raise a new issue in our politics

MAJOR DREYFUS IS SHOT

MILITARY WRITER WOUNDS THE NOTED FRENCH OFFICER.

Louis Gregori Says He Fired Bullet as Protest Against the Glorification of Emile Zola.

Paris.—Just at the close of the ceremonies attending the interment of Emile Zola in the Pantheon Thursday, when the president of France, the premier and a host of ministers of state were taking their departure, Louis Anthehne Gregori, a military writer of note, drew a revolver and fired two shots point-blank at Maj. Alfred Dreyfus, for whose liberty Zola fought and won.

Men distinguished in all walks of life filled the Pantheon and when the shots rang out there was intense excitement in fear that the president had been assassinated, but even the attempt on the life of Maj. Dreyfus created a profound impression. Soldiers speedily surrounded Gregori and he was taken to jail, bruised and bleeding, with his clothes almost torn from his back.

The affair has created a tremendous sensation in Paris and the motive of the would-be assassin is the cause of much mystification, for Gregori, instead of being an ordinary fanatic, such as is carried away by the political passions of the moment, is a man of mature age, having been born in 1844, and was highly esteemed in the circles where he was known.

Some do not hesitate to express the opinion that he may have been the tool of a little clan of Royalists, who, under the name of l'Action Francaise, have never ceased to insist that the court of cassation illegally prevented an appeal of the Dreyfus case, nor abandoned hope of seeing a revision favorable to the contentions of the Nationalists.

Maj. Dreyfus was not seriously injured. A bullet entered his forearm, but did not injure the bone. At a late hour the official statement was made that his condition was very favorable and that no complications were feared.

Gregori made a statement to the police directly after his arrest and during a second interrogation Thursday night he said: "I did not wish to kill Dreyfus. It is true I aimed at him, but I only wanted to graze him. My object was to protest against the participation of the army in the glorification of Zola and the rehabilitation of Dreyfus. My blow was aimed less at Dreyfus than at Dreyfusism."

A curious feature of the ceremonies in the Pantheon was the absence of many of the foreign ambassadors. It is understood that the Turkish ambassador was the prime mover in the plan to induce the members of the diplomatic corps to abstain from going to the Pantheon.

ACCOUNTS SHORT; KILLS SELF.

New York Bank Teller Commits Suicide After Writing Confession.

New York.—On being questioned by the bank's officers Wednesday about an apparent discrepancy in his accounts, Charles T. Muir, paying teller of the Forty-second street branch of the Corn Exchange bank, asked to be excused until he could obtain a deposit ticket to explain the matter, went to the basement and, after writing a brief confession that his accounts were short, shot himself in the head. He died within an hour at the hospital. Vice-President Frew of the Corn Exchange bank said that Muir's shortage was $9,068.

VICTORY FOR TAFT FORCES.

Alabama and Arkansas Contests Decided in Their Favor.

Chicago.—Without roll calls the Republican national committee Friday decided the contests from Alabama and Arkansas, involving 24 seats in the Republican national convention, in favor of the delegates instructed for Secretary Taft.

The victory for the Taft forces was sweeping, not even a division being required to determine the will of the committee.

School Pupils Starving.

New York.—Emergency measures for the relief of hundreds of pupils in East side schools who have been found to be suffering from lack of food have been adopted by the committee of East side school board members, organized as a result of the serious conditions which the reports of school principals in the section revealed.

At a conference late Wednesday the committee decided to arrange for the speedy opening of two kitchens on the lower East side at which the hungry children may be fed.

Two Die in Auto Crash.

Brunswick, Germany.—A fatal automobile accident took place near here Friday. Lieutenant Commander Assmann and First Lieutenant Johannes Fritzsche were killed and First Lieutenant Elmanhorst and the chauffeur, a man named Ecke, were severely injured.

Camden's Slayer Identified.

Austin, Minn.—The real name of "James Montague," who shot and killed A. P. Camden of Chicago in St. Paul, is James Flood, and he lived in Austin until recently. His parents now live in Lyle, nine miles from Austin.

Oklahoma Bank is Robbed.

Tulsa, Okla.—Robbers cracked the safe of the Bank of Fairland at Fairland, Okla., Thursday and obtained $10,000. The robbery was committed by three men.

Hand your news items to Mr. D. B. Wallace at the Walton Equitable Bank and Trust Co.'s building. He is also authorized to receive subscriptions and collect other accounts.

C. P. Adams spent Monday in Cincinnati on business.

Dr. A. N. Jones and John Fink spent Saturday in Cincinnati.

Mrs. J. G. Tomlin was quite sick the fore part of the week, but she is improving.

Dr. H. C. Black and Miss Virginia Graham were visitors to Cincinnati, a day last week.

J. E. Roberts, a prominent young gentleman of Verona, visited friends here last Friday.

Attorney John L. Vest attended a meeting of the Kenton County Bar Association at Covington, Monday.

Mrs. Hattie Stephens, one of our beloved ladies, who has been quite ill for several weeks is much improved.

The Walton Stars were defeated by the Burlington base ball team 10 to 1 on the ground of the latter, last Saturday afternoon.

Mrs. H. C. Redman, while picking cherries Sunday, fell from the roof a shed a distance of about 12 feet, and hurt herself slightly.

Mrs. Mary E. Fields returned last Saturday evening from a week's very pleasant visit with her daughter, Mrs. Otis Acra, at Ludlow.

Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Adams spent last Friday in Cincinnati. Mr. and Mrs. John G. Adams spent Saturday with friends at Beaver Lick.

Dr. J. M. Stallard, of Sparta, spent Monday here attending his brother, Dr. B. W. Stallard, who was quite sick with nervous prostration.

Miss Willeve Tillman returned home here last week from a delightful visit to Erlanger where she was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cobb.

Squire Frank P. Mann, of Morning View, Kenton county, who has charge of the Equity Tobacco Warehouse here, spent last Friday here with his many friends.

Dabney A. Ramsford spent Monday in Williamstown attending county court day sales, and sold a good horse. There was a poor lot of stock on the market and trade was dull.

W. E. Vest, the real estate agent, sold to Jacob Bettle, of Erlanger, the Wm. Stephens place at Atwood, Kenton county, consisting of 36 acres, dwelling house and store room, $3,000.

R. J. Corley, of Kenton county, Superintendent of the Covington and Lexington turnpike, was here, last week, having a new culvert put under the street at the Walton Brick Company.

John F. Stephens, an old and highly esteemed citizen of Kenton county, spent Monday here with friends. He has passed his 80th milestone on life's highway, yet he is remarkably spry and vigorous and as active as many young men.

Scott Chambers has been making a number of sales in fancy horses. He sold another 7 year old general purpose mare to Thos. Garrison at a good price, and sold a good harness mare to Alvin Berry and bought a fine saddle horse from him.

Mrs. R. E. DeMoisey, one of our highly esteemed young ladies, who has been quite ill for some time, has about recovered. Her sister, Miss Alice Carpenter, of Richwood, has been here the past couple of weeks attending to her and looking after her household.

Mrs. Sallie B. Rice, of Georgetown, spent part of the week here, guest of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Tomlin, returning from Alexandria, Campbell county, where she has been at the bedside of Mrs. M. E. Martin, who formerly resided at Walton, and is seriously ill of cancer of the stomach.

Bradley Adams went to Indianapolis, last Sunday, and rode back to Walton on a fine saddle horse Hon. J. G. Tomlin had bought from his brother, Dr. Wm. Tomlin, of that city. Bradley enjoyed the journey very much as he took it leisurely and passed through some very pretty country.

C. E. Stephens and wife, of Columbus, Ohio, arrived here Sunday on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Hattie Stephens, who remains seriously ill. Mrs. Stephens has returned home, but the remained for a longer period, having a vacation, being a conductor on a freight train that runs out of Columbus.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Smith spent Friday in Cincinnati attending the commencement exercises of Woodward High School at Music Hall. Mr. Smith's nephew, Miles, son of Bentley Smith, of Erlanger, graduated on this occasion. The exercises were very elaborate and a large class graduated.

Prof. Charles S. Chambers, expert penman in the Covington public schools, spent Saturday and Sunday here with his parents, T. F. Chambers and wife. Prof. Chambers will leave on the 18th inst. for an European tour, stopping in New York City for several weeks before sailing for Liverpool.

Rev. Everett Bellinger, who is the valedictorian at Bellewood Seminary, at Smithtown, was a visitor here Saturday on his way to Richwood to visit his old home and friends. He has reached four score of years and is still an active worker in the Master's vineyard, and his usefulness is not near at an end.

L. A. Johnson, of Gwenton, was a visitor here last Thursday on business. Mr. Johnson owned the Owen County Telephone lines, and he sold that property to Judge John M. Lassing, last week. Mr. Johnson expects to go to Seattle, and other points on the Pacific slope on a prospecting trip next month and may locate there.

Rev. J. W. Rogers attended the dedication of the new Christian church building at Beskin, Grant county, last Sunday. About 800 people were present to hear the fine dedicatory sermon delivered by Rev. F. M. Raine, of Louisville, Secretary of the Foreign Mission Board. The debt of $6,000 on the church was overcome by $1,250 being raised.

Robt. A. Knox, of LaGrange, who is for the Bastenville, Indiana, Basket Company, was here Monday, en route to Columbus, Ohio, to attend a session of the Ohio union of which he is in charge of his company's display at the convention. He leads the list of the company's many salesmen, and because of his many excellent qualities he was selected to represent the company's interest at Columbus.

The lawn fete given by the ladies of the Christian church on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Crowe, was a brilliant success. The ladies were outdoing in their efforts to make it so and were rewarded by a large crowd and receipts. All the refreshments were sold. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated, and the Walton brass band discoursed sweet music. Taken all in all it was a grand success.

Levi Allen, of Richwood neighborhood, celebrated his 40th anniversary on the 1st inst. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Moses Williams, Mr. and Mrs. John Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Williams, Mrs. Joe Cotton, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Smith and son, Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Eubanks and children, Mrs. Charles Riley and children, Miss Emma Ellis, Miss Nannie Allen, Miss Emma Allen, Miss Mattie Allen, Wesley Williams, Maley Wilson, John Gabbard and Frank Allen.

Several of Walton's disciples of Isaak Walton spent the past week on Licking river at Bryan's Ford, enjoying an outing and camping out on that beautiful stream. The party was composed of Chas. W. Ransler, Geo. J. Grubbs, Harry Dahling, Ben Stansifer and Harry Houston. The boys had a delightful time and made a large catch of fish, but as usual one of the largest got away (?) The boys returned home, Friday, sunburned, and highly pleased with the three days' outing.

LOCAL HAPPENINGS.

Burlington people will patronize a show.

The larger number of Kentucky fairs are held in August.

The colored folks are building a vestibule to their house of worship.

Eld. Steers will preach at Salem next Saturday at 2 p. m. and on Sunday following at 11 a. m.

Mrs. Morgan Beemon, of Limaburg neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, yesterday.

J. B. Rouse was doing considerable moving about with his transfer wagon, the latter part of last week.

Marce Riddell is aspiring to leadership among local gardeners, and he is making headway in that direction.

The shower Monday afternoon provided a good season for setting out cabbage, potato and tomato plants.

Considerable corn land remained unbroken the first of this week, much of it covered with a rank growth of weeds.

All the exchanges that come to this office are carrying in their fair dates, an announcement of a fair at Burlington—it should be Florence.

Mrs. Acklin Riggs, of Crescent Springs, Kenton county, and Mrs. John Reed, of St. Louis, Mo., are guests of their sister, Mrs. George Hughes.

W. C. Goodridge came to town Saturday morning and took a new mower home with him. He has a fine crop of grass that will soon need attention.

The Consolidated Time Lock people sent their man out last Monday to give the time lock on the safe door in the Boone County Deposit Bank its annual cleaning.

W. F. McKim, who moved from Burlington to Latonia, where he engaged in the grocery and drug business, has disposed of his business there and will move to Los Angeles, California.

In the county court, last Saturday, N. E. Riddell was appointed and qualified as administrator of the estate of Z. T. Baker, deceased, and James Taylor, W. F. Moore and John L. Jones, were appointed appraisers.

Among the political "warhorses" in Burlington, Saturday, were J. W. and B. H. Berkshire, of Petersburg; T. F. Curley, of Walton; J. W. Kennedy, of Union; W. W. Grimsley, of Big Bone, and Richard Stephens and R. M. Wilson, of Rabbit Hash.

Geo. Kreylich was in Florence, Monday, having his pleasure vehicle retired with rubber. He claims that a buggy that has rubber tires will run easier and last longer, and he ought to know, having been using that kind of tires for about 20 years.

The Live Oaks are said to be confident that they will succeed in taking the scalps of the Burlington team next Saturday afternoon. No doubt but what it will be a good game, but from whose belts the scalps will dangle remains to be seen.

The attempt to burn the barn of C. B. Mason, of Big Bone church neighborhood, several nights, since, resulted in the destruction of his harness which hung in the corner of the barn, where the attempt was made to start the fire. The fire went out before any other damages was done.

The Great Imp. German Coach Stallion, PLUTARCH 3183

THE IMPORTED GERMAN COACH STALLION, PLUTARCH, will make the season of 1908 at L. A. Conner's Stable at Burlington, Ky., at $20.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due when colt is foaled or mare parted with.

Any one party owning and breeding two mares and getting two colts from this horse shall be entitled to $5 discount on the two seasons—paying only $35 for the two colts, but should only one of the mares get in foal the regular full season $20 will be collected.

This Stallion is a Mahoghany bay, 16½ hands high, weighs 1400 pounds, and needs no introduction to the people of Boone County as his colts speak for themselves. A ring of this Stallion's suckling colts was shown at Florence Fair last fall and was pronounced to be the best ring of colts ever shown at the fair. Besides this special ring, these colts were shown in other classes against other Stallions' colts and received almost every tie they were shown for, which proves this horse to be a great breeder and sure foal getter.

Care taken to prevent accidents, but not responsible should any occur. Positively no business done on Sunday. Parties breeding must follow up the season.

About half the voting precincts were represented by the 25 or 30 Democrats who met in the circuit court room in Burlington, last Saturday afternoon, to select delegates to the State convention which will assemble in Lexington tomorrow. The meeting was called to order by J. A. Duncan, chairman of the county committee, and Hon. J. W. Berkshire, of Petersburg, was chosen chairman, and N. E. Riddell, of Burlington, secretary. Resolutions were adopted indorsing Hon. W. J. Bryan for president; Hon. John M. Lassing as one of the delegates at large to the Denver convention; Hon. R. B. Brown of Gallatin county as one of the delegates from the sixth congressional district to the national convention, and A. B. Rouse for member of the State Executive Committee. The following were appointed delegates to the Lexington convention: J. M. Lassing, Everett K. Stephens, J. W. Kennedy, J. W. Berkshire, Ben H. Berkshire, O. K. Whitson, R. H. Stephens, J. B. Cloud, Joe Cleek, Chas. Mauer, W. W. Grimsley, W. H. Rice, T. G. Willis, D. E. Castleman, N. E. Riddell, T. F. Curley, B. W. Adams, R. M. Wilson, B. B. Hume, A. B. Rouse.

The county has ten votes in the convention.

H. G. Blanton, the Erlanger undertaker, and his assistant, George Jeffers, passed through Burlington, last Friday, with the remains of Mrs. William H. Buckner, who died the day before at her home in Erlanger, in her 82d year, leaving one son and one daughter. The deceased was a sister of the late Thomas C. Graves, and the remains were taken to Bullittsburg for interment.

Presly Adams, of Walton, passed through Burlington, last Friday, en route home from Indianapolis, on horse back. When in that city a few weeks ago Atty. J. G. Tomlin, bought a horse of his brother, Dr. Tomlin, and sent Presly Adams for it, and he decided to ride it home and get a good view of the country.

Owen Hodges, of Rabbit Hash, was among the visitors to Burlington, last Monday. He and the local base ball manager held a "fanning bee" in which the gentleman from Rabbit Hash gave out considerable base ball dope. He did not hesitate to dish out considerable dope along other lines also.

The Harvest Homers are working up their premium list for the next exhibition, which will be some time early in September, probably about the second or third Saturday in September. The exhibition will be along the lines of those of the past.

Mr. Frank Aylor and Miss Mae Kilgour were united in marriage, Tuesday evening, June 2d, at the Lutheran Parsonage, Florence. The ceremony was performed by the pastor, J. H. Walterick.

This is said to be the month of weddings and roses, but while there are plenty of roses the number of weddings appear to be falling short of the usual number.

The crop of fried chickens is being harvested. The first on the market brought gilt edged prices, and could be used only by the "fine hared."

Hear it said that Edgar Berkshire has sold nearly 5,000 quarts of strawberries this season, and his crop is not exhausted by considerable.

Supt. D. M. Snyder gave his office a renovating yesterday, and he is now ready to receive callers on official business.

The rain that fell last Monday afternoon was a great vegetation booster, and the gardens responded to it in great shape.

Dr. J. G. Furnish, of Covington, came out yesterday to visit his mother. He was in town but a short time.

Rev. Stith made the RECORDER a brief call, last Monday. He is a very pleasant gentleman.

The time locks at both the banks were given an overhauling and cleaning yesterday.

Born—On the 9th inst. to James Strouse and wife, of Limaburg, a daughter.

Jailer Adams has been repairing the hitching racks about town this week.

Dr. Sam Adams, of Walton, has been a very sick man for several days.

BASE BALL.

The Walton aggregation of ball tossers came down last Saturday and in the afternoon engaged the local aggregation in a game. The home team took the lead in the first inning and never allowed the visitors to become dangerous, although they put up good ball in several innings. Cleveland Snyder, who held down the third sack for Burlington did some nice work, especially in running bases. Following is the score:

Hits—Smith 2, Slayback 3, Brady 1, Snyder 2, McGuire 1, Conner 1, Kirk 1, White 1, Clore 1—12. Walton—Watson 1, Stansifer 1, Holder 1—3. Three base hits—Slayback, Watson. Two base hits—Slayback 2, Smith 1, Conner 1. Struck out—Conner 9, Holder 5.

Following was the line-up:

A small crowd witnessed the game.

The 82d rooters with the visitors had but little to do.

White and Clore each got in that timely hit again Saturday.

The Live Oaks, of East Bend, will play the Boones at Burlington park next Saturday afternoon. Game called at 2:30.

The Burlington club is not drawing the crowds to the local grounds that they are entitled to. A ball club is a good thing for the town, and the citizens ought to turn out to the games. Good crowds encourage the players and keeps the management out of the hole financially.

Thinks It Saved His Life.

Lester M. Nelson, of Naples, Me., says in a recent letter: "I have used Dr. King's New Discovery many years, for coughs and colds, and I think it saved my life. I have found it a reliable remedy for throat and lung complaints, and would no more be without a bottle than I would be without food." For nearly 40 years New Discovery has stood at the head of throat and lung remedies. As a preventive of pneumonia, and healer of weak lungs it has no equal. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's Drug Store, Erlanger. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Don't forget the game of ball at the park next Saturday afternoon. Live Oaks vs. the Boones. The Oaks are going to give them the battle of the season.

Bonds for Sale.

July 1st 1908 the Consolidated Telephone Company will issue bonds to the amount of $8,000 and the company will receive bids for the purchase of any number of said bonds at its office in Burlington, Ky., until noon June 17th, 1908. Grand Chief's third dam by White's Blue Bull, sire of the grand dam of My Star 2:03 3-4.

A premium of $10.00 will be given the best colt, regardless of sex, of Grand Chief's 1908 get, to be shown in Burlington, Ky., the first Monday in September 1909.

No business done on Sunday.

Burlington and Waterloo Horse Co.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB!

Owned by E. S. Graves, Holland Goodridge, Yancy Clore and M. I. Baker will make the season of 1908 at Wm. Graves' stable, one mile northeast of Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky., at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Lanky Bob is black with white points, fine length and bone, 8 years old, 15½ hands high, and is a quick, ready foal getter. Was sired by Ben Glass, owned by F. M. McDonald, of Carroll co. He is given up to be the finest breeder in Northern Ky.; formerly owned by John Elliston, of Grant co. Ben Glass was sired by R. B. Lee's fine jack; he by Wm. Nichols' and Warnicks' imported jack, which cost $4,000. His dam was sired by Younger Pate's jack which cost $4,000. Ben Glass' dam was a Pioneer and Mountain Leader jennet; she was sired by Kennedy's Sampson, g. d. Compromise by Mohawk.

Lanky Bob's dam, Black Betty, was a fine, big jennet, by Black Dictator, 15 hands high; by Mohawk (the finest breeding jack of the age, and sold for $5,000) out of a large premium jennet; g. d. Old Juiy, a fine jennet owned by Hayden Kendall, of Williamstown, Ky., sired by Black Jumbo, 15½ hands high; he by Black Bob; he by Ralston's fine jack, Black Betty.

The following premiums will be awarded the 1908 get of this jack—$10 for the best mare mule; $10 for the best horse mule, and $5 for best mule regardless of sex. To be shown at Burlington, the first Monday in Sept. 1909.

The Premium Harness Horse.

Black horse, foaled May 14, 1897, sired by Oscar Williams, 2:11½; he by Simmons, 2:28; he by George Wilkes; 1st dam, Stockbridge; 2d dam, Sail's Denmark; 3d dam, Copper Bottom; 4th dam, Tom Crowper.

OSCAR WILLIAMS, Jr., is a show horse of finestyle and action, 16 hands high, and weighs 1100 lbs. As a three year old he made six shows and won five first premiums, as a two year old he was never beaten. In 1908 he showed 12 times in his class and took 10 first premiums and 2 seconds.

He will be found at my stable at Bullittsville, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10.00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Care taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur

COMMISSARY.

(AND EVERYWHERE.)

A man doesn't mind being fooled if he does it himself.

We are under obligations to D. M. Snyder, of Rosedale, for some good reading matter.

Irvin Rue serenaded the town of Rosedale on the eve of the 12th with his graphophone.

Walter Goodridge is home after a visit of two weeks with friends in Hebron and vicinity.

Perrin Louden, Scrapville, spent Sunday with his aunt, Mrs. Nannie McGuire, of Idlewild.

Millard Fleek and wife, of Erlanger, visited his parents of Mt. Nebo, last Saturday and Sunday.

Geo. Blythe, of Rosedale, has beautified his premises by whitewashing his fences and out buildings.

John Slayback, near Francesville, spent last Saturday night with his uncle, Omer McGuire, of Idlewild, and Sunday with his best girl on Ashby.

Ed Loniaker, of Egypt, was awarded the contract for carrying the mail from Ludlow to Idlewild, and will enter the discharge of his duty the first of July.

Miss Permelia Corbin, who resides with her sister, Mrs. D. M. Snyder, of Rosedale, has returned home after a three week's visit with her sister near Petersburg.

Ye scribe was a guest Saturday night and Sunday of J. A. Feeley, keeper of the Hebron and Dry creek toll gate above Idlewild, and Sunday night of Omer McGuire of Idlewild.

We extend to Earl Leek, of Petersburg and Miss Stella McCarty, of McVille, who were married at Al Nixon's, last Saturday, our wish that they may have a happy and prosperous journey through life.

The Editor of the RECORDER says, "that all the exchanges that come to his office are carrying in their fair dates an announcement of a fair at Burlington," and says, "it should be Florence." What is the matter with you Mr. Editor? The exchanges have it right, for Burlington has a fair every court day—a show of her fair ladies.

Marve Smith, of Bellevue, was calling on his best girl on Woolper, a few evenings since. The girl's father went into the parlor and said, "young man my daughter can never be yours." "I am glad of it," said Harve. Why, asked the astonished father. "Because I want her to be my wife," said Harve. Harve always has an answer ready.

J. A. Feeley entertained with a dance last Saturday night. Parties were present from Bullittsville, Hebron, Francesville and Addyston, Ohio. All had a pleasant time. It is seldom, if ever we attended a dance where there were so many pretty ladies as at the Feeley dance near Idlewild. We use to think the vicinity of Commissary couldn't be beaten for pretty girls, but we don't know about it since Mr. Feeley's dance and attending the fairs at Burlington.

A number of friends met at the home of Mrs. N. J. Swimm, on the 12th, in honor of her birthday. The day was pleasantly spent in social chat and listening to music. The hostess had prepared a tempting feast of good things, to which all did justice. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Walterick, Mrs. N. Rouse, Mrs. Loucinda Weaver, Mrs. Ella Tanner and daughter, Mrs. Clara Tanner and daughter, Mrs. Fannie Clutterbuck and Mrs. J. Clarkson.

Children's Day Exercises, last Sunday, was a grand success in every particular. The program was well arranged and consisted of music and recitations which were well rendered and the little ones deserve much credit for the way in which they recited. Supt. J. S. Surface and Chorister, E. K. Tanner, did their parts well in arranging the exercises. Some very pretty solos were sung by Misses Coreta and Lena Tanner, Murl Vaughn and others; a beautiful mall quartet by Hopeful Quartet. The music was excellent in every respect. Pastor Walterick delivered a very interesting address on the Orphans' Home. The offering was large. The program rendered was as follows: Song by the congregation; reading and prayer by the pastor; song by the school; welcome address, Harry Barlow; recitations—Wilfred Tanner, Harry, Cecil and Mebel Tanner, Dink and Addie Lee Tanner; song by the children; recitations—Ineta Tanner, Rosie Barlow; duet—Emma Bentham, Lena Tanner; recitations—Lloyd Tanner, L. FROM CITY TO FARM

"To who listen with credulity to the whisperings of fancy; who pursue with eagerness the phantoms of hope; who expect that age will perform the promises of youth, and that the deficiencies of the present day will be supplied by the morrow: — attend to the history of Rasselas, Prince of Abyssinia."

Pulling Up Stakes

We had been in the country close on to two years. Straight from the heart of a city to the seclusion of a farm. There could have been no more vivid contrast; no more radical change. We had gone from the clang of gongs, the tolling of bells, the shriek of locomotives, the blare of brass bands, the doleful piping of corner bands, the cries of newsboys, and the oboe honk of the automobile horn to the piping of crickets and the matins of thrush and robin, the warbling of bluebirds and orchard orioles.

We had been thoroughly forgotten by our friends in the city, and had stepped tacitly to an unrecognized place in the human procession where there was no possibility of our being numbered with those who are supposed to lead "the strenuous life." Society, so-called, was merely an abstraction; we were like those who have been lodged on some secure shelf on a cliff where they could see the flood go by while they watched and waited. Two years before we had been of that clamorous and unreflective mob. We had never lived for the days as they came, but always reached out for some beckoning tomorrow. We had yearned for repose, but the every-day grind of trivialities had burned up our time and eaten away our vitalities.

Insensibly, in the city, we had learned the lesson of imitation. For however men and women hold fast to their individuality, a constant attrition of numbers of their kind will wear them to a certain extent alike, as all pebbles are worn smooth by the water's action. Custom, custom, how that artful tyrant cows even the boldest. How many a jeans-clad congressman succumbs at last to the Simian contour of the dress suit! The days are very much alike in a city, always the frame presents the identical grays and blacks, the hard, bald finish of metropolitanism.

The happiest natured take their pleasures sadly there. The Mephistopheles of cynicism mocks them with the old refrain: "Eat, drink, and be merry, for to-morrow you die." The young grow old too fast; and the old grow hardened rapidly. As in certain chemicals all things harden to petrifaction, so the steady immersion of a man or a woman in a city leads to the deadening of the sensibilities. Apartment life! Was there ever anything more artificial? Apartment life is more than ordinarily similar in the penitentiaries and the modern flats.

But to live on a farm? How can you live on a farm and not vegetate or go crazy? Nine miles from a lemon! What a shuddery thought! And yet remote as we were from the city, there was a sadness in the eyes of the friends who at rare intervals came to see us. How quickly the crow's feet seemed to creep about the eyes of men whom I had expected to see buoyant and hopeful as in bygone days. What was that tiresome refrain I had preached to me so often. "We're getting old." Who's getting old? "Speak for yourself John." Yes, they do grow old in cities, and the fountain of Ponce de Leon will never spout from a public square.

Is it worth a man's while to grow old? I doubt it! Rarely, in a city even, you will find a man who has steadily refused to give in to the years; but I believe you will always find, on investigation, that this man has renewed his youth from the fields and woods. Age is a chilling of the heart, not a whitening of the tresses. "Never, my heart will thou grow old. My hair is white, my blood turns cold. And one by one my powers depart But youth sits smiling in my heart."

But the spirit of youth is just as apparent in the mind as in the body, and you cannot preserve a youthfulness of spirit by communing with the beasts of the field, nor by turning vermit, nor even by having those near you who are dearest to you. Unless one is serenely ox-like in one's disposition, the stage, music, literature, sculpture, war, peace, strife, in a word—life—will always hold an attraction which keeps the mind alert to the changes which are going on, and which, by giving the brain its needed exercise, keeps elastic and vibrant the tissues of the mind.

A plunge in a river invigorates the body, dusty and inert from toil and waste of bodily energy. A dip in a new book, a mingling for a short space in a crowd, a night at the theater, an afternoon at a concert, even a gay supper at some brilliantly lighted and music-stirred cafe will send the dull blood spinning through the veins, and drive away perplexing thoughts of time and mortality.

But there amid those wide fields, surrounded by hills and forests, there was the touch of peace, and there was also the lethean menace of Nirvana. The march of the seasons was one lingering panorama of green and gold, or dusty scarlet and barbaric splendor. Each dawn was a vision; each sunset a revelation. The starry summer nights were more beautiful in their quiet splendor than all the [illegible] of mythology; and yet, and yet [illegible] the mind was sorely of the farms, and the choking maelstroms of the cities there is a golden medium attainable by all who will care to strike boldly and secure the prize. To be as near a city as one need be; and to be as far away as will give one the "comfort of wide fields unto tired eyes," that is the answer to the problem of living; that is the sum total of happiness.

Our life on the farm had proved this to us beyond all cavil. And we had looked about us and selected our abiding place with this very end in view. And yet, when we came to go, to "pull up stakes" was something like rooting out our very heart-strings, for we had come to know the farm as a scholar knows the written page.

We had seen the snows melt in the hedge corners and fade from the stalk-strewn fields. We had watched the cattle huddle before wintry blasts and heard the north winds whistle down the chimney and storm at the dismantled lilies by the garden gate. We had loved the visible and external outdoors that had hovered about us, not less in the bleakest season than in the days of June.

Always, even in sad days, there had been the solace of flowers and bird songs, the hopeful waves of the grass or the promise of moonlight and starlight. The very trees had become as altars to us, and one hill, crowned with maples, and in autumn a miracle in gold and scarlet will forever haunt us with its spiritual glory of flaming beauty. Surely if some vestal virgin of the season could keep alight forever the fires that burned in those leaves the vision would be too lovely to last, too blindingly beautiful to other than turn to tears the eyes which should behold it.

The century-old oaks that grew on the farm, how we should miss their Druidical calm, the faint tops breathing in the summer winds, the lower drapery as still as Dodonian spaces beneath sibyllic shades. The sharp-armored hickories, the walnuts, the elms, the brilliant sassafras, the towering and temple-like sycamores, how we should miss them all when we were gone.

On one long hill that sloped to the river we had stood many times, and watched the shadows grow deeper over the water, and heard the night winds rustle in the leaves, and hark-ened to the twilight sounds that begin to creep in over the tides of darkness. Now, nevermore! Goodbye! "Farewell to Lochaber." All the long curves of valley and hilltop, all the sweep of grain field and forest, all to pass with our departure, all to vanish with our going. The gnarled and scraggly saplings that hung over the deep ravines, the flaunt of the fox squirrel's brush in the maple's branches, the rock lined stretch of rugged roads down tumbled hills, the flight of wild fowl and the call of the owls and crows by night and by day, the drift of sheep in the sloping pastures, the rise of a yellow-breasted lark from the meadow, not again; no more: "Lochaber no more, farewell to Lochaber."

It is impossible for anyone with a real hunger at his heart for outdoors not to be affected by leaving any place where he has wandered for many months, getting acquainted with every nook and cranny of his surroundings, and getting closer and closer to the environment as the seasons come and go.

There was scarcely a foot in all the acres that we had not actually covered in our tramps about the farm, and on every slope and through every stretch of woodland the baby had played and tumbled. For myself, I knew every tree on the place. I had gone, especially on my hunting expeditions, not only over every inch of the ground on this particular tract, but I had explored the surrounding country for many miles, and knew every ravine and creek as well as I did the alphabet itself.

Many times we sat by the windows and looked out over the farm, and well as we knew the wisdom of getting closer in touch with the city, and yet holding fast to the integrity of life on a farm, there was a very sincere and genuine regret at the ordeal before us. There must be somewhere a curious physiological attachment to the soil in some natures. Perhaps the Swiss may have it more particularly than any other race, for they seldom leave their native land, and are the most prone to homesickness of all peoples.

However, our lease was nearly up, and we had made all arrangements to move, and so the task of getting ready for the journey stared us straight in the face.

The two years on the farm had been a great, if not the greatest, of all experiences. It had taught us life in the cities is mostly mockery, and yet that there was a germ of the spiritual, of the higher mental sensations, which the country does not afford. It had taught us that very many supposable necessities are merely superfluities, and that the end and destiny of men and women is not to be controlled by custom.

Our life on the farm had not been reduced to the hermitized intellectuality of a Thoreau, but we had determined on changing it for the same reason as the Concord philosopher. I doubt that he found Walden dull. As he neither had chick nor child, as he did not hunt, and seldom fished, I do not know of anyone except this rugged genius who could have endured such solitude so long.

For us we had companionship in each other and in Lenore, visitors from the town whom we welcomed cordially, neighbors with whom we mingled, and books and music with us always, and yet we were not entirely content. And why? Because when men or women have lived for years in a city, unless they are thoroughly disgusted with the world and all there is in it, they will inevitably miss what the city has to offer in the way of mental enjoyment.

It is just as true that to live in a city is, at least to some natures, but a slow process of torture. There are many natures, of course, born "boulevardiers," types of a sameness appallingly frequent in the towns, who are happy, in their way, only in the towns. Their place is therefore in the towns. But to those who are awakened to the delights of the country, and who still do not want to entirely discard those pleasures of the mind which find expression where books, and music, and paintings and sculpture are to be found, there is a practical half way vantage point where both rest for the body and zest for the mind may be easily combined.

There is nothing in the mode of living in a city which is not more or less tyrannous. You must do so and so; you cannot do as you like, of course. You are hedged about by modes of life which, while largely artificial, are insistently obtrusive. You cannot breathe pure air; you rarely drink pure water; you must abjure outdoor exercise; you are almost certain to have "nerves" and indigestion. You are no worse off than your neighbor, but he is in the same narrow groove that you are.

There is a sound philosophy in the theory of life in the country near to a city. As for suburban life, the ordinary braud, it is, if anything, even more odious than apartment life. The cliques and asininities of the average modern suburb are something which combine to make a more than average per cent. of suburban society mere aggregations of snobs and parrots.

The trouble of suburban life is that the suburbanite carries the country to his office and the city to his home. He gets up as early as a farmer to catch the train in to town, and he apes city customs and "society" customs while he is in his home town. He wouldn't be caught without a collar for money. Even when he works in his little garden he is "dressed for the ball."

Now you don't have to knuckle down to these things when you have gotten out a little ways into the country, and you will be pleasantly surprised at the first sweet feeling of freedom from restraint. It is the same way with both women and men. Each one enjoys having a little relaxation from the eternal drop, drip, drop, of the baneful drizzle of conventionalities, that take all of one's time, and make leisure an unknown quantity in the affairs of life.

We left the farm with many a lingering look over the fields and hills where we had passed so many happy days. We left it with the unquenchable resolution not to spend the rest of our days in a "steam-heated flat" or any such penal institution. Not to condemn Lenore to a "straight-jacket" existence of unvarying "dress parade." Not to look back over years as mere shadows that went by in the night, like dreams, but as real existences, where we had lived and striven, where we could look back and say, "In such a month we were here, or there; or were doing this or that," and not to have all time be just a blur, out of which deaths and births should crawl, like flies upon a window-pane.

After all, we are not going to live for an eternity. And to live wisely means leisure, both for mind and body. Can you get it in the cities? Hardly, without great wealth. Can you even then? It seems doubtful! Is constant striving the answer to the problem? "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." You can get leisure of mind best in the country, but if you are too far from a city you will be obliged to take life second hand from the papers and magazines. There is something more in life than the printed page. There is life in the streets, in the theater, at the concert halls, in the crowds, in the pulse of the cities as well as in the peace of the country.

It follows therefore as the night the day, that the wise souls will cleave to the heart of nature for the enduring beauty and healing influence of her myriad moods, and turn with just as eager anticipation to the contrast that the city affords to the alert mind, and the philosophic observer.

Filled with this belief we packed our belongings and household goods, and left the farm behind. But not in any nor many years will we forget the keen sense of actual personal loss as we looked over the meadows and woods for the last time, at the well-loved trees and the waiting orchard, at the slopes and hills, the valleys and ravines, the distant timber line, and last at the little white house itself. Offended.

"Are you acquainted with Timon of Athens?" asked the cultured young lady from Boston.

"Well, I guess not," snapped Mrs Newgilt, with a haughty sniff. "It is not very likely that I would form the acquaintance of those curbstone Greeks. Does he sell candy or roast peanuts?"—Chicago Daily News.

GAINED HER POINT

WIFE'S DEMONSTRATION OF HUSBAND'S NERVOUSNESS.

Reverend Gentleman Compelled to Admit That He Did Fidget with His Handkerchief While Conducting the Services.

"My dear, you must not fidget so with your handkerchief when you're in the pulpit," said the minister's wife, as she walked home by his side after the morning service.

"Fidget!" exclaimed the gentleman. "Why, I seldom use my handkerchief. What do you mean?"

"I don't mean using it," replied the wife, laughing. "I hope you will do that whenever it is necessary; but I mean pulling it out of one pocket and stuffing it into another, only to take it out and thrust it under the hymn book. It's a nervous habit, and it's perfectly distracting to watch you."

The clergyman looked kindly incredulous as he said:

"I think you must be mistaken, my dear. I might have changed it about a good deal this morning. I believe I did, but I'm certain that it isn't a habit. To prove it, I'll leave my handkerchief with you this evening." It was agreed.

At the close of the invocation the minister's hand was seen withdrawing itself stealthily from his coat-tail pocket, and after he had said: "Let us continue our worship by singing three stanzas"—there was a long pause while he fumbled in the other coat-tail before he added—"of the three hundred and forty-third hymn."

By keeping his mind on his hands instead of on the hymn, he managed to get through the singing with only one slip; but there were several awkward pauses during the responsive reading, when the minister's wife watched his hands roam from breast pocket to pulpit cushion and back to his coat-tail again.

During the anthem the minister seemed less absent-minded, but his wife was uneasy when it came time for the prayer and discreetly covered her eyes. Then he grew more and more distracted, and kept the audience waiting with hymn books in hand while he made another search for the missing bit of linen before giving out the number of the hymn.

Finally it was time for the sermon. "I invite your attention this evening," he began, and then stopped. This time his hand was in his breast pocket. "You will find my text," he began again, "in the eighth chapter of Romans."

The little lady in the pew had gained her point, but really it was ceasing to be a joke. He could never get through his sermon at this rate. Hastily she beckoned to an usher and sent him into the pulpit with the minister's handkerchief. He clutched it with ill-concealed relief, and shot a guilty glance at his smiling wife. Then he drew a long breath, and, as one set free, went on with his admirable sermon.—Youth's Companion.

Mystery of the Watermelon.

Here is a mystery, according to Mr. Bryan. He says: "I am not much of a farmer as some people claim, but I have observed the watermelon seed. It has the power of drawing from the ground and through itself 200,000 times its weight; and when you can tell me how it takes this material and out of its color forms an outside surface beyond the imitation of art, and then forms in it a white rind and within that again a side of red heart, thickly inlaid with black seeds, each one of which in turn is capable of drawing through itself 200,000 times its weight—when you can explain to me the mystery of a watermelon, you can ask me to explain the mystery of God."

Not Too Soon.

When a tactful host entertains a tactful guest there is sure to be rewarding conversation for the onlooker and listener. "What do you think of our place, on the whole?" asked Mr. Brown, as he stood with his old school friend on the piazza, waiting for the station carriage which was to bear the 24 hours' guest away.

"Rather a good little place," said Mr. Ray, impartially. "Perhaps a bit bare now, but no doubt time will change all that."

"Yes, indeed," said his host, with great heartiness and no hint of offense. "I hope before you come again the trees and shrubs will have made a good growth—then you'll see a change."—Youth's Companion.

Not Profane, Only Pertinent.

PREYS ON THE STRANGER.

The Man Without a Job Finds a Way of Making a Living.

A well dressed young man was walking dejectedly down Cedar street the other day after his fourth failure to secure a job, says the Philadelphia Ledger. It was three weeks since his firm had reduced their office force, and as no one seemed to be taking on any extra men he was wondering how much longer he was going to be idle and how he was going to liquidate his board bill.

Just as he reached the corner an old acquaintance, young and well-dressed like himself, almost ran into him and immediately began a pitiful tale of being out of a job for weeks and absolutely unable to get anything to do and in an awful funk about his board bill. Although he did not say it in so many words, it was clear he wanted a loan. His face was the picture of despair.

"Why, I'm out of a job myself, old fellow, and don't know where my next dollar's coming from. I never was in such hard luck."

"So," remarked the other musingly. "Well, say! You're a good friend of mine. Don't give it away and I'll tell you something," and the dejected look disappeared as if by magic. "To start with," pulling a roll of bills out of his pocket, "here's a fiver for luck—as a loan, of course."

"Why, I thought you were dead broke and out of a job?"

"Well, so I was two or three weeks ago, but now I am working a first-class racket and if you will take my tip you will try it yourself. I just go into any nice office and brace anyone I have ever spoken to in the last five years, and many people that I never saw in my life, and tell them the same hard luck story I told you. They look me over if they don't know me and see by the cut of my clothes that I am no cheap skate and hand out anything from $1 to $10. Why, strangers are easier than old friends. I never had so much money in my life. You've got the clothes to fit the part. Just try it for a day or two."

Facts as to the Brain.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society of Canada, Sir James Grant, M. D., presented a paper on the neurons and cells of the brain in their relation to the faculty of memory, and, after stating that, as with the other tissues of the body, so with the cells of the brain, evidence of lessening power and activity appears with the passage of years, he added the very interesting statement that the line of present investigation demonstrates that the electrical current through the brain rotates its molecules to such a degree as to produce a most notable physiological response in the direction of improved memory.

Finally Became Victim.

Dmitri Kosztan of Bistritsa, known as the wolf-slayer, dispatched 285 of these animals in 30 years. He tracked them to their lairs, and it was said by the peasants, hypnotized them by his fierce gaze while he killed them with knife or shot. Two months ago he disappeared. His skeleton has just been discovered on the Bistritsa hills.

Cares Redoubled.

"My time," said Mr. Dustin Stax, "is very valuable."

"That's what makes me doubt the benefit of vast wealth," replied the easy-going acquaintance. "It's bad enough to be bothered by the wasting of a few dollars without being worried sick every time you lose five minutes."

No Use of Saying Anything.

"Bliggins doesn't mean to say all he thinks."

"No. I have observed that he walks up and pays his gas bill and his ice bill without saying a word."—Washington Star.

WOMAN'S BACKACHE

The back is the mainspring of woman's organism. It quickly calls attention to trouble by aching. It tells, with other symptoms, such as nervousness, headache, pains in the loins, weight in the lower part of the body, that a woman's feminine organism needs immediate attention.

In such cases the one sure remedy which speedily removes the cause, and restores the feminine organism to a healthy, normal condition is

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Will Young, of 6 Columbia Ave., Rockland, Me., says:

"I was troubled for a long time with dreadful backaches and a pain in my side, and was miserable in every way. I doctored until I was discouraged and thought I would never get well. I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others and decided to try it; after taking three bottles I can truly say that I never felt so well in my life."

Mrs. Augustus Lyon, of East Earl, Pa., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I had very severe backaches, and pressing-down pains. I could not sleep, and had no appetite. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me and made me feel like a new woman."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration.

A PATRIOT PROPHET

Jonah Foretelleth Restoration of Israel's Coastline.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. B. Edson.)

Scripture Authority—2 Kings 14: 23-29.

SERMONETTE.

"According to the word of the Lord God of Israel, which ha spake by tha hand of his sarvant Jonah, the son of Amittai, the prophet, which waa of Gath-hepher."

Jonah was intensely Jewish, intansaly patriotic. Lova of the land of Israel was next to his love for God. Loyalty to his country was measured by his loyalty to his God. With him there was no conflict batwaen citizanship and holiness. And for this reason wa find him active in the restoration policy of the kingdom, and giving that advica and encouragement which undoubtedly united the forces of tho nation and prepared them for the aggressive campaign which andad so splendidly in the recovery of the coast of Israal.

Tha obligation of citizenship is increased, not laasaned, by devotion to God.

Separation from the world and the things of tha world does not mean an escape of social and political obligations to the world.

Service to God can only be shown by service to the world.

It is a wonderful thing to be the mouthpiaca of God.

God chooses for special sarvlea thosa who by ability and training and impulse ara pecularly fitted for such service. Jonah was a close student of his nation's history, he knew the promises of God concerning it, he was zealous for the political as well as the religious prosperity of tha nation, and for this raason God used him not only to speak the words of prophecy concerning the recovery of the territory which Israel had lost, but also to so inspire and unify the forces of the nation as to make it possible for King Jeroboam to wage his successful campaign.

Of course we must not forget that in addition to his natural fitness for his mission as prophet to the nation of Israel, he also possessed that pity and sensa of vital union with God which made him willing and obedient to the purposes of God.

To ba sure his intense patriotism and loyalty to his own nation provad his ona weakness and led him to try and run away from the command of God which directed him to saek the good of a neighboring nation whose revival and prosparity he faarad might threaten the safety of his own nation, but wa find him finally yialding to the discipline of God and obadiently going on a mission of mercy to a rival nation. In other words, obedience to God transcended any human obligation. Well is it when the soul graaps this thought.

THE STORY.

"BUT the Lord will give us the victory, for it is according to the word of the prophet Elisha, spoken on his death bed to our king Joash! We cannot fail. I shall return to thee and the boy," this last as he turned and looked at the little lad strutting around the dooryard, so intent on his playing soldier that he did not sense the sorrow of the mother or realize what the going of the father meant. Childlike he was attracted by the soldier equipment, the shining breastplate, the long, slender spear with its gleaming head and the bow and great quiver of arrows slung over the sturdy shoulders of his father, and with a slendor reed for a spear which he held aloft just as he had seen his father do, he marched about, fully resolved in his brave little heart to go to war when he was a man just as papa was doing.

The little fellow looked up as the last words of his father were spoken, and something in his mother's face held his attention, and he heard her say:

"Yea, victory may be with Israel's banner, as Elisha the prophet hath said, but many a brave soldier of Israel may fall in the battle."

A tear rolled down the woman's checks, and the little fellow noted that, too, and it was a quiet, serious little face that was upturned to the father to receive a last parting kiss and loving pat, and then without a word he followed the weeping mother into the house, while the father fell in with the other soldiers and went marching down the road.

"What is it, mamma?" he whispered. "Who is this man Elisha who has made you cry?" for he had caught the prophet's name, and somehow connected it with his mother's tears.

The childish query brought a half smile to his mother's lips as she went on to explain that Elisha was the great and good prophet who had died years before, and who before his death had told of the war with the Syrian king and of how the God of Israel was going to give the victory to their king Joash, and how his father, Amittai, had responded to the call for soldiers and had gone to fight for his country.

"And papa will come back," spoke up the boy, reassuringly, "for he said he would."

"But war is uncertain, Jonah," responded the mother, sadly, "and thy father knows not whether he will returned or not."

"But if papa doesn't know he will come back, how does the prophet know there will be a victory?"

Here was a point which troubled the lad, and the mother patiently tried to show him how God had revealed to the prophet the victory he was going to give the army of Israel, but that his father had spoken of his return not from the certainty of revelation from God, but rather as the wish of his heart that he might be back with her and his boy again.

During the anxious weeks that followed Jonah's active brain was busy studying over this problem of the difference between what his father had said and what the prophet had said. He couldn't just grasp the idea that the prophet could know more than his papa, or that what he said would more surely come to pass than that which his father had spoken. And when he had gone back to his mother with his puzzling questions and she had explained to him that the prophet lived close to God and God told him what to say, he had asked why God could not tell his papa what to say. And then she had gone on to try and show him the difference between God's dealings with a nation and his dealings with an individual, and that often he spoke his special message to the nation, when he did not to the individual.

Such was the early incident in the life of Jonah which made a lifelong impress upon his life. His father never came back, and into his heart there was burning not only the sense of self-sacrifice and loyalty to his country, but a deep consciousness of the over-ruling Providence of God in the affairs of his nation.

Naturally of a deep religious nature, the early impressions intensified his desire to know and serve God. It seemed a wonderful thing to him that Elisha should have known the mind of God concerning the future victories which israel was to win over Syria, and when this prophecy had been fulfilled to the letter and King Joash had won the three victories, he resolved that he would serve God and his nation.

"Why should I not live close to God, too, so that he can tell me of things which he is going to do for my nation?"

Such was the question which he had often asked himself in secret, and it was the question he finally asked his mother as he expressed to her his wish to go to one of the schools of the prophets.

He never knew all that it cost her to part with him for the long season, but he did see that same look of sorrow and anguish in her face which had come when his father had gone off years before to battle and had never returned.

"But I will return," he quickly spoke up, with reassuring smile.

"Yea, as God will," responded the mother, fervently.

And again he felt that overpowering sense of God's control in the affairs of men and of nations which he had felt as a little boy when he had questioned his mother concerning the prophet Elisha's word.

"As God will," he repeated, and was gone.

The years passed, and the thoughtful youth had developed into the quiet, meditative man. The intense love of his country has made him a close student of the political events, and he has watched with growing interest the coming of Jereboam to the throne. What would be the effect of his reign upon the kingdom? Would it be for weal or woe? And when he noted the apparent disposition of the young king to rest easy in the victories his father Jonah had won and to yield to the corrupting influences all about him, he sought the Lord earnestly in prayer, crying over and over again, that as God had revealed to Elisha the plans for the kingdom, so might he reveal to him the things he would do concerning the nation.

"They that wait on the Lord shall not be ashamed," he repeated one day, recalling one of the passages from the Psalms of David. "I will wait."

No one ever knew what that vigil cost him, of the heart-yearning for his nation, of the faith Godward and the hope manward—the world never knows what the victories of God's saints cost—but the nation did know his wonderful message and rejoiced, saying: "Surely the Lord hath spoken by the mouth of Jonah the prophet, and will restore unto us the borders of the land which our fathe possessed!"

HOT ONIONS FOR PNEUMONIA.

Dread Disease Robbed of Its Terrors by Simple Remedy.

Owing to the prevalence of pneumonia and the great mortality which attends its ravages during the winter and spring, several boards of health in northern New Jersey have been taking measures to protect the citizens of their towns from the disease. The health board of Washington, N. J., has published a remedy which is said to be a sure cure for pneumonia, and other health boards are looking into the matter with a view of having the same thing published for the good of the general public. This is the publication as it has appeared in the papers of Washington:

"Take six or ten onions, according to size, and chop fine, put in a large spider over a hot fire, then add the same quantity of rye meal and vinegar enough to form a thick paste. In the meanwhile stir it thoroughly, letting it simmer five or ten minutes. Then put in a cotton bag large enough to cover the lungs and apply to chest as hot as patient can bear. In about ten minutes apply another, and thus continue by reheating the poultices, and in a few hours the patient will be out of danger. This simple remedy has never failed to cure this too-often fatal malady. Usually three or four applications will be sufficient, but continue always until the perspiration starts freely from the chest. This remedy was formulated many years ago by one of the best physicians New England has ever known, who never lost a patient by the disease, and won his renown by simple remedies."

How Could She Be Expected to Address Perfect Stranger?

A traveler in the mountains of Tennessee had been stowed away in the best bed the cottage afforded. Late in the night he was awakened by the voice of the paterfamilias addressed to the daughter, who was entertaining company by the fireside.

"Yep, pap."

"Is he got his arm around yer waist?"

"Yep, pap."

"You-all tell him to take't away."

"Aw, ye tell him yerself, pap," replied the girl, in a dull, lifeless voice. "He ain a plumb stranger to me."—Success Magazine.

The Missing Link.

What was said to be the "missing link between man and ape" was found by Dr. Dubois in 1895 on the banks of the Bengawan river, in central Java. These fossil remains consisted of a skull, a thigh bone and two molar teeth, from which the scientists "constructed" an animal, not human, yet nearer to man than the ape. The "link" was named "Pithecanthropus Erectus."—New York American.

"TWO TOPERS."

A Teacher's Experience.

"My friends call me 'The Postum Preacher,'" writes a Minn. school teacher, "because I preach the gospel of Postum everywhere I go, and have been the means of liberating many 'coffee-pot slaves.'

"I don't care what they call me so long as I can help others to see what they lose by sticking to coffee, and can show them the way to steady nerves, clear brain and general good health by using Postum.

"While a school girl I drank coffee and had fits of trembling and went through a siege of nervous prostration, which took me three years to rally from.

"Mother coaxed me to use Postum, but I thought coffee would give me strength. So things went, and when I married I found my husband and I were both coffee topers, and I can sympathize with a drunkard who tries to leave off his cups.

"At last in sheer desperation I bought a package of Postum, followed directions about boiling it, served it with good cream, and asked my husband how he liked the coffee.

"We each drank three cups apiece, and what a satisfied feeling it left. Our conversion has lasted several years and will continue as long as we live, for it has made us new—nerves are steady, appetites good, sleep sound and refreshing."

"There's a Reason." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

New Chart Corrects Errors.

The great practical utility of the magnetic survey made in the Pacific ocean by the yacht Galilee since 1905 is shown by a new magnetic chart, from which it appears that the charts previously used by navigators in the pacific ocean were erroneous along some much-traversed routes to the extent of from three to five degrees, and the errors at times were systematic. Errors of this magnitude are of importance in practical navigation where the indications of the compass should be as accurate as possible.

Sweet Girl Brought to Ask Time for Reconsideration.

"Since you can be no more than a sister to me," said the heartbroken young man, "will you not give me one kiss of farewell?"

She assented, albeit coldly.

And Mannering drew the girl to his heart, he pressed his lips to hers with a passionate fervor born of his despair.

Afterward her head sank gently upon his shoulder.

"Mr. Mannering," she breathed, "this is all so—all so new to me—so strangely different from my expectations—perhaps, if you would give me time—time to reconsider—"

But, dear reader, let us draw a veil over the sacred scene.—Exchange.

"Internal Revenue" Collections.

The term "internal revenue" has been restricted in its meaning to such revenues only as are collected under the internal revenue bureau connected with the treasury department, and does not include all revenues that are, properly speaking, from internal sources, that is, from sources other than duties levied at the frontiers upon foreign commodities. Thus, moneys arising from the sale of public lands, from patent fees, or the revenues of the postal service, are not generally known as "internal revenues."

BOONE CO. RECORDER.

W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

A weather prophet in the East is predicting all kinds of winter weather for this month.

It is seldom that a man is elected to a high office, and, almost simultaneously therewith, is given a membership in the down and out club. W. O. Bradley, for instance.

The Republican national convention opened up for business at Chicago yesterday, and according to the figures of the Taft people he has enough votes to insure his nomination on the first ballot.

It looks very much like the Republicans are in a good position to have a "wow and a wumpus" of the tariff plank in their national platform. It is not likely to be what the stand patters desire.

The Lexington convention was a great disappointment to many Democrats, who thought it impossible for the party factions to get together again so soon. A real, good threshing has done many a bad boy much good.

Some of the Republican leaders at Chicago do not consider the nomination of Caleb Powers for Vice-President exactly the proper thing, but in order to give him some recognition a boom has been launched for Gov. Augustus E. Willson for that place.

Harmony is a good thing for a party, but when the number of delegates-at-large and the number of committeemen from the State-at-large appointed by the Lexington convention are considered it looks like there was an excess of harmony at Lexington.

It is hoped that the new party machinery as organized at Lexington, last week, will seek to serve the party instead of individuals. The party being down and out in the State is the result of party officials looking after the interest of friends instead of the party.

Creps and Percy could not handle the Lexington convention as they pleased. They soon discovered that Kentucky Democrats had been guilty of doing some thinking for themselves, and the little schemes they had expected to put through had to be called off early in the day.

There was so much harmony afloat during the session of the Democratic convention, last week, that it was necessary to appoint six instead of four delegates-at-large to the Democratic National Convention as a testimonial of the good feeling that prevailed among Kentucky Democrats.

The suit of the heirs of Dr. D. B. Cox, against the estate of Jas. Hargis, Ed Callihan, and others for $100,000 damages for the murder of Dr. Cox was dismissed at Lexington at the cost of the defendants, a compromise having been affected. It is said that the defendants paid $8,500.

Joe Pugh was relieved of the position he has held in the party for many years but was given two other places either of as much importance as the one of which he was relieved. His delegation from Kenton was seated in the convention, so taking all in all it looks like the big chief will not down.

The Kentucky State Republican Convention sat down on Senator elect W. O. Bradley good and hard at Louisville, and from that good day to the present the Taft Republicans have repeated the performance every time the Senator has appeared before the party council, until, politically, he is the worst knocked out man in Kentucky.

Uncle Sam keeps tab on the crop prospects though his domain, and has but recently looked over the field and issued a report that is a corker. He says that both winter and spring wheat are in a better condition than they were at this time last year, and estimates the total wheat crop for 1908 at seven hundred and thirty-four million bushels, one hundred million bushels more than that of 1907. He finds oats promising the largest crop in the history of the country and estimates the yield at over a billion bushels Prospects for rye, barley and hay are also good. Corn alone is not doing well, but a favorable season from now on may mature a good crop. Taken as a whole the crop prospects in this country are very favorable.

The Democratic State convention took the proper action, last Wednesday, when it ordained that no candidate nor office holder, State nor National, shall be a member of any of the county committees, the members of which are to be chosen by the members of the party in first and second class cities as well as in the smaller towns and the country.

The Grant county Democratic mass meeting held on the 6th inst., expressed the opinion that by all rules of fairness and justice the country portion of this Congressional District should be entitled to the next Representative in Congress, and recommended Hon. R. H. Elliston to the Democracy of the district, and recommended that the nomination of the candidate be made by a primary election.

Judge Jere R. Morton, the distinguished lawyer and jurist of Lexington says: "Industrial and social conditions in Kentucky are worse to-day than at any period since the Civil War. The New York Legislature enactment of last week has jeopardized the horse breeding industry to such an extent that Kentuckians will be deprived of thousands of dollars of annual revenue, and investments of millions may be lost. The prohibition agitation involves millions of dollars more, and through the tobacco troubles incalculable injury has been done both financially and socially. It will take more of a prophet than I am to forecast the future of the commonwealth.."

The Louisville Evening Post, which, for sometime, has attempted to dictate policies and write platforms for both political parties in Kentucky, has this to say of the recent Democratic State Convention:

"At last those influences within the Democratic party which have been resisting the aggressions of the Brewery Trust and lawless saloon have been overthrown.

"Those men who stood out against the Louisville Machine and its criminal plan of campaign of 1905 have been condigaly punished.

"Within the Democratic party the brewery is supreme.

"The Louisville Machine, strengthened by the surrender of Col. Whallen, is running the Democratic Convention at Lexington today and is planning to extend its sway over the State.

"The heroes of the Democratic party, the masters of its destinies are Lillard, Mueller, Charlton and McNutt, and its former candidate for Senator, Mr. Beckham, is sent manacled to Denver.

"The young D emocrats who have believed that 'he served his party best who served his State best;' the Democrats, young and old, who have resented the domination of the Louisville Machine, the men who believed it possible to stand for a reasonable law to regulate the liquor trade without surrendering their places in the party, have been slaughtered as a warning to all other politicians who hesitate to take orders from the representatives of the Brewery Trust in politics."

The following editorial appeared in the Courier-Journal last Friday morning, first issue after the adjournment of the Democratic convention at Lexington:

"The Democrats of Kentucky are in the saddle once more. Truly it looks like old Democratic times in the State again—the times when nominations by Democratic conventions were as good as elections and when not even the party's opponents doubted its invincibility.

"Since those times the Kentucky Democracy has passed through more than a decade of storm and strife, of dissension and disaster that would have extinguished any political organization of less vitality. It has suffered sorely from this period of travail. But it has survived, as its enemies never believed it could survive and as many of its own partisans feared it could not. It has survived, moreover, a wiser, if not a stronger, party than it was when it had everything its own way. For it has learned a lesson from adversity—a lesson that should be learned by every party which thinks its supremacy cannot be shaken—the lesson that no party can maintain a victorious warfare against its foes while waging an even fiercer warfare in its own ranks. It has learned that nothing is to be won by factional contention and crimination, by personal embitterments and feuds. It has learned that indulgence in such passions deprive it of its rightful vantage as the majority party in the State, and that such internal tempests only serve to cleave the waves of the sea in a path over which its opponents tread to a triumph which would otherwise be beyond their reach.

"This is the meaning of yesterday's story at Lexington. It was a convention of Democrats—not of this stripe of Democrats and that streak of Democrats, but of Kentucky Democrats—who were tired of foolery, tired of fighting one another; tired of making pathways for the Republicans, and who, if they carried knives for use upon other Democrats, stuck them away in their boots, there to remain until a more seasonable time for a family shindy, and perhaps never to be drawn again save against the common enemy.

"The story can be read but one way by either Democrats or Republicans. It is so plain that the latter cannot help reading it as they run.

"It is the story of Democratic reunion, of Democratic unity, of Democratic ascendancy in Kentucky. None understands this better than the Republicans, who have never amounted to anything in the State except when the Democrats were disorganized by division among themselves—the same Democrats who now enter the campaign with closed ranks, against opponents who in turn are at one another's throats."

BASE BALL.

The Live Oaks, of East Bend, came up last Saturday and played the Burlington ball team. The Oaks hoping to make victory sure, secured the services of Sandford and McCarty, the most excellent battery of the Belleview team, but they were not equal to the task. The game progressed to the fourth inning in the blank line, when Burlington put three runs across the plate and annexed two more in each of the next two innings. Up to the eighth inning Brady had allowed five hits, but kept them scattered so no harm was done. In the eighth he loosened up the brakes and Sandford got busy with his stick and made a drive that looked like it was going out of the neighborhood, but was returned in time to stop him on third. Then Wingate sent one to the same territory and reached third, and at the close of the inning the Oaks had put three men over. Burlington in its half of the eighth got after Sandford in a lively manner with the stick and scored three runs. In the ninth the Oaks made two runs and the fire was out. Following is the score:

Hits	0	1	0	2	3	2	0	4	*—	12
Live Oaks	0	0	0	0	0	0	0	3	2—	5
Hits	0	1	1	2	1	0	1	2	1—	9

Struck out by Brady—McCarty 2, Hodges 2, Wingate 1 McConnell 3, VanNess 1.—9; by Sandford—Slayback 2, Smith 1, Kirk 2, Conner 3, McGuire 1—9.

Base Hits—Slayback 2, Smith 1, Kirk 2, Brady 2, Black 2, Clore 1 McGuire 2—12; McCarty 1, Scott 1, Hodges 2, Sandford 2, Wingate 1, VanNess 2—9.

Three base hits—Sandford 1, Wingate 1.

Umpires—Hogan and Roberts.

Smith took good care of his field.

Slayback was there all the time with the goods.

Brady is not eligible to the down-and-out club yet.

Kirk and Hodges each put up a good game at first

Black and McGuire are getting there with their bats.

Hodges worked hard at second and made several nice stops.

The Oaks are hard hitters when they succeed in connecting.

Ray Conner is the greatest fielder in the county, and besides he can pitch some.

Clore got there with that little hit, but, for a wonder, White did not connect, something unusual for him.

Sandford and McCarty put up a good game in their respective positions. Sandfords long run and capture of a foul fly near grand stand was sensational.

The Burlington and Erlanger teams will meet at the ball park here next Saturday afternoon, and a good game is expected. Erlanger and Constance will play on the grounds of the former next Sunday afternoon.

Chas. C. Graves, a native of Woodford county, this State, and for many years a citizen of this county, died on the 7th inst., the 84th anniversary of his birth, at Fulton, Mo. His father was a brother of the late Jospeph C. and Johnson W. Graves, of Bullittsburg neighborhood. His wife was Marla Gaines, sister of Hon. Joseph A. and Oscar Gaines, and a daughter of the late Wm. Gaines. Mr. and Mrs. Graves moved from this county to Missouri something over 15 years ago. She died 9 years ago. The following children survive their father: Mrs. Artie Clore, of Canada; Mrs. Nettie Pugh and Joseph Graves, of Calloway county, Missouri, Thomas Graves, of California, and T. G. Graves, of Bullittsville, this county. Mr. Graves was held in high esteem wherever known, and had many friends in this county, who sympathize with his children in the loss of a father.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold," writes B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

Marce Riddell installed an up-to-date swing at his residence, one day last week, and when he had put together all the parts he could use, four pieces were left. He thereupon called a council of the expert mechanics about town, and the pleasure producer was given a thorough inspection, but no one was able to discover where the four extra pieces belonged, and he has them for sale.

In renewing his subscription to the RECORDER C. E. Fry, of Williamstown, sends a card of Miss Anna R. Beasley, candidate for county superintendent of schools. If Miss Beasley is as handsome as the picture on the card represents her, there is no question as to how the young men of Grant county will vote in that contest, and an occasional young voter may drift in from the adjoining counties.

The outlook for the approaching fair at Florence is as good as it has ever been at this time of the year. Of course it is yet too early to get a line on what it will really be, but there is nothing to date that indicates a less interesting exhibition or a falling off in the attendance, and the management is proceeding with perfect confidence that the 1908 fair will be equal to any in the history of the association.

Residents of Kentucky will be afforded an opportunity on Sunday morning, June 28, to witness almost a total eclipse of the sun, and should the weather be clear on that date midday will seem like the dusk of the evening. The eclipse will begin at Washington, D. C., at 9:27 o'clock in the morning and will end at 12:41 o'clock, making the hours it will be visible in this section of the country from 10:27 o'clock until 1:41 o'clock. The path of the eclipse will be Mexico City, Tampa, Fla., and the Bermuda Islands on this continent, and will cross the Atlantic Ocean and terminate somewhere in Western Africa. The eclipse will be total in Southern Florida and about 75 per cent. of total in the other sections where it will be at all visible on this continent.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom Moore, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. It accepts deposits from one cent to one million dollars, and pays four per cent on time deposits remaining one year and three per cent if left six months. Try us; we can help you in many ways. Mail deposits especially solicited. Come and see us.

Ohio and Dearborn counties, Indiana, will replace the bridge that spans Laughery creek near its mouth with a new structure to cost $18,000 As the creek at that point is the line between the two counties, Ohio county will put up $3,000 and Dearborn county, $15,000 of the amount.

Mark Judge, of Beaver neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, last Friday, and made the RECORDER a call while in town. Mr. Judge is one who takes great pride in his milch cows, and only recently he bought one of Judge Lassing, of Walton, that by the test at the Union creamery showed 8.9 butter fat. The cow was raised by the late O. P. Conner, and was sold at his sale to D. E. Castleman, who afterwards sold her to Judge Lassing.

To those interested in the cause of education:

In accordance with an act of last Legislature, it is the duty of Superintendent of county to appoint upon a competitive examination, to the State University, one beneficiary. Examination is considered competitive if only one applies. said examination will take place at Burlington, July 18th, 1908, on following branches: Spelling, History, Grammar, Geography, and Arithmetic. I sincerely hope that our young ladies and gentlemen will take advantage of this.

Commencement exercises will take place at Burlington on July 2nd, 1908. Program will be published later.

I have on hand for distribution the last Biennial Report from Supt. Fuqua, covering the years 1905-07. Chairmen of trustees will please call and get same

Our schools for the coming school year are operated under the old law, although we elect a trustee for each district next August it is not any part of his work to assist, officially, in any way the maintenance of a public school during the coming school year.

The Secret of Happiness.

It is just as impossible for a person to reach the normal state of harmony while he is practicing selfish, grasping aims, as it is to produce harmony in an orchestra with instruments that are all jangled and out of tune. To be happy, we must be in tune with the infinite within us, in harmony with our better selves. There is no way to get around it. It is silly for a man to say that this is "goody-goody" philosophy. It is scientific truth. The idea that we can practice wrong in our vocations, in our dealings with men, or in our pleasures, and then periodically seek forgiveness in our prayers or through our churches—the idea that a man can do wrong and be forgiven without remedying the wrong, or without forsaking the sin, says Orison Swett Marden, in Success Magazine, has done more harm than almost any other thing in civilization. A clear conscience, a clean life, the elimination of selfishness, jealousy, envy and hatred, are necessary to all high enjoyment. One trouble with many of us is that we try to make happiness too complicated an affair. But happiness really flees from complication, ceremony, and pretense. Nature has fixed her everlasting edict against complicated living. You can never force pleasure; it must be natural, and come from sane living.

Appeal to authority may be so slavish or so trivial as to dishonor the authority and make the appellant ridiculous. Did Lincoln approve of reducing the tariff on wool, and if woodpulp had been in use in his day, what would he have thought of the tariff on that? What was Paul Jones' view of the need of an American naval station in the Yappi Yappi islands? Would Thomas Jefferson have sanctioned a course in Celtic in an American university? What would Jackson have thought of the Aldrich currency bill? These questions are no more absurd than many which are seriously discussed in journals and assembly halls. Great men are great precisely because they act in obedience to principles which are too deep and broad to bind the answers to specific questions which arise in after times.

The practice of exchanging American and German professorships continues, apparently to the complete satisfaction of both parties to the arrangement. Columbia university has named for the Theodore Roosevelt Professorship of American Economic and Political Institutions in the University of Berlin for 1909-1910 Dr. Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California. Dr. Albrecht F. K. Penck, privy councilor and director of the Geographical Institute of the University of Berlin, will fill the Kaiser Wilhelm professorship at Columbia for the corresponding period. Thus two eminent scholars will aid in bringing the nations into closer knowledge of each other's political and social characteristics.

It is a fine sign of the times that in the churches of America the question of citizenship has the front place. The preachers of all denominations are emphasizing the point of active, aggressive morality. They are making it very uncomfortable for the man who has different codes for business, politics and Sunday. They are showing the glaring weakness of any religion that finds excuses for its members because they think the preaching of Sunday should not be closely applied to the practices of Monday. A nation's safety is in its clean, moral, honest citizenship, remarks the Baltimore American. And the churches are doing a noble work in educating and stimulating the civic conscience.

A Chinese newspaper, edited by a Chinaman, but printed in English, has been started in Peking. It is called Chinese Public Opinion, and the mission of the publication is to give expression to Chinese sentiment with regard to the empire's international position. Possibly this innovation may also have an important significance as indicating the trend which, it is alleged, exists in China towards the adoption of English as the common language. There are now more than 50 dialects spoken in China, and 40,000 different types must be used in printing. The Celestials are sorely in need of a general and more convenient language.

In Norway, when husband and wife travel together, the wife pays only half-fare. This is a practical device to keep families together and to encourage selfish man to take his wife with him when he goes on an interesting journey.

A Chicago contemporary says the girls of that town are all "poems." This gives the uncharitable outsider the opportunity to say something about the long feet of the Chicago "poem."

AMERICA TO TAKE CARE OF PANAMA

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND SECRETARY TAFT DECIDE INTERVENTION IS NECESSARY

BECAUSE OF UNSETTLED CONDITION OF REPUBLIC

Affairs Have Grown From Bad to Worse, as Far as the Government is Concerned, and the Future Reflects No Promise for Improvement.

Washington, June 12.—Both President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft have reached the conclusion that intervention by the United States in Panama will become necessary as a result of the present unsettled conditions.

After a long conference at the White house Thursday morning, wherein recent information brought from the isthmus by Secretary Taft and by Mr. Squires was laid bare, there was no visible solution by which difficulties which may arise from the coming election in July can be met by the United States excepting by actual intervention.

This means that plans are being made for taking Panama over temporarily, as was the case in Cuba.

In order that this act is found necessary does not appear too abrupt to the public a long letter written by Secretary Taft to the president under date of May 12 was given out immediately after the conference.

It shows clearly that conditions have grown from bad to worse as far as the government of Panama is concerned. It reflects no promise for better government in the future.

Those well in touch with the situation say Thursday that the one hope for continuance of self-government in Panama is the election of Senor Obaldia, followed immediately by radical changes in government.

The liberals and semi-conservatives who are supporting him claim to have mustered more than enough votes to defeat the government candidate.

This is not altogether borne out, with the result that neither the president nor the state department regards his election as a certainty.

Furthermore, there is nothing to show that Senor Obaldia will depart from methods of his predecessor or give a more satisfactory government.

Senor Arango, the minister from Panama to the United States, was at the state department Thursday, and he strongly intimated that Senor Arias, the government candidate, would have more than an even chance in the elections.

He said that President Amador is anxious to have all precautions taken against any fraud, so that when Arias is elected there can be no question of fraud raised.

MYSTERY LIKE GUNNESS HORROR

Bay City, Mich., June 12.—Mrs. Charles Barnett, of Bangor township, who was taken into custody Wednesday night on suspicion of knowing something about the mysterious disappearance, two weeks ago, of Oscar Peterson, a bachelor farmer who lived near the Barnett home, Thursday told Sheriff Hartley that Peterson had died a natural death in his house and that she had buried him in the sand between the Peterson and Barnett homes. She said she buried him in that manner to avoid trouble with the neighbors when she would take possession of Peterson's effects, which he had given her. Officers took Mrs. Barnett to the spot Thursday to dig up the body, Mrs. Barnett's husband also disappeared mysteriously March 12.

The body of Oscar Peterson was found buried midway between the Barnett and Peterson houses, but in an opposite direction from that which Mrs. Barnett told the officers she had buried it. Mrs. Barnett only laughed and said she knew better when the officers told her that the body found was her husband's. She was taken back to jail.

Hitchcock Freed on Bail.

New York, June 12.—Raymond Hitchcock, the comedian, who early Thursday was acquitted of the charge of assault on Helen von Hagan, aged 14, after returning to the Tombs, was released by Supreme Court Justice Goff on a $7,500 bail bond. There are still two indictments pending and no definite decision as to future action has yet been reached.

Mothers Congress.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 12.—The National Congress of Mothers will meet next in New Orleans, in February, and bazaars will be held in this city, Chicago, Denver and Los Angeles December 23 and 24 this year to carry on welfare work.

Sleuths Nonplused.

Kansas City, June 12.—No arrests have yet been made in connection with the theft of the mail pouch containing $50,000 from the union depot here Saturday. The police have no clew.

Robbed Big Store.

Chicago, June 12.—Thieves smashed a plate-glass window in the jewelry store of Hyman, Berg & Co., at State and Washington streets, and escaped with 60 gold watches and jewelry valued at $3,000.

POWERS AND HOWARD FREE

GOV. WILLSON GRANTS PARDON TO THE TWO PRISONERS.

This Brings to a Close the Most Dramatic Political Story in the Annals of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., June 13.—Gov. A. E Willson this morning granted a pardon to Caleb Powers and James Howard, both convicted of complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel.

Powers has been tried for the alleged crime on four different occasions.

This brings to a close the most dramatic political story in the annals of Kentucky. Factions have resulted from the tragic death of Goebel. Feuds have risen up. Friends of former days have become enemies for life. The state has been split asunder by this one tremendous incident in the state, that once was known as "The Dark and Bloody Ground."

NECK BARED FOR THE NOOSE

WHEN CHEERING NEWS OF A STAY REACHED BILLIK.

Tinkle of Telephone Sounded in Jail Just as Death March To Gallows Began.

Chicago, June 13.—Herman Billik, the clairvoyant, condemned to die at 11 o'clock Friday, was granted a reprieve as his neck was bared for the noose and his guards were ready for the dead march to the scaffold. Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis—the federal judge who fined the Standard Oil Co. $29,240,000—ordered a stay of execution at 11:10 o'clock Friday, thereby giving Billik time to carry his case before the supreme court of the United States.

The incidents attending the stay of execution were dramatic in the extreme. Billik was snatched from death almost at the foot of the scaffold. He had received the rite of extreme unction. With Father O'Callaghan he had uttered his last prayer. His neck had been bared for the noose and the jailer was forming the march to the scaffold.

Outside the jail, Dearborn avenue, Michigan and Illinois streets were packed from curb to curb with people.

Father Vatmann, a priest of Wilmette, Ill., was one of the crowd outside. He presented his card at the door of the jail, but was not admitted.

Then a telephone bell in the sheriff's office rang so sharply that in the tense stillness of the jail it seemed to have been heard in every corner of the building, although it was not. It was a message telling the sheriff that the execution had been postponed. Father Vatmann heard it at the inner jail door. He leaped to the outer stairs of the building in full view of the thousands packed in Dearborn avenue.

"Billik lives!" he shouted, and "Reprieved!" waving his Panama hat around and around his head, and jumping up and down in excitement and joy.

"Hurrah!" shouted Father Vatmann and many of those near him, but their word of cheering was drowned by the inarticulate cry that went up from those further away who could not hear the priest's words, but saw his gestures, divined their meaning and shouted without taking time to form the word "hurrah."

Then when the cheer had been taken up by the prisoners within the jail one of the most dramatic episodes of the day occurred. The crowd outside surged up close to the doorway and to the windows letting into the basement, despite the opposition of the police. All were wildly yelling yet, throwing hats in the air and waving handkerchiefs and hands.

Suddenly those crowding closest to the jail heard the echo of their cheers inside and stopped to listen. In a moment the vast crowd was silently listening.

"Hurrah, Hurrah!" then broke on the shout anew outside.

Jumped To His Death.

Watertown, N. Y., June 13.—Chas. B. McCormick, aged 38, attorney, brother of Henry J. McCormick, the former New York Central claim agent, now under arrest on charges of forgery involving embezzlement of railroad funds, committed suicide by jumping from the top of a five-story building. He was picked up, but died later. McCormick was arrested on a warrant charging him with grand larceny in having participated with his brother in an alleged fraudulent settlement, but was released on $7,000 bail.

Oil Concern's Loss.

Albuquerque, N. M., June 13.—The plant of the Continental Oil Co. here late Friday night was damaged $100,000 by fire. Neighboring structures were threatened.

Nine Lives Lost.

Petition From Italy.

Denver, Col., June 13.—The mayor of Palermo, Italy and 50 citizens of that place have sent a petition requesting the governor of Colorado to inquire into the sanity of Guiseppe Alia, the assassin of Father Leo.

Kentucky Gleanings.

Most Important News Gathered From All Parts of the State.

KILLS HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Trivial Dispute Ends in Farmer Shooting Daughter's Husband.

Lexington, Ky.—William Keeton, a farmer of Madison county, killed his son-in-law, J. Kalor, at Bear Wallow, that county, in the presence of Kalor's wife and their two children. The wife is Keeton's daughter.

The men had been at work together and quarreled over a trivial matter. Keeton is said to have threatened Kalor's life.

Kalor went home, and accompanied by his wife and children, went to a spring near his house after a bucket of water.

Keeton sprang out of the bushes with a shotgun and said to Kalor: "I told you I would kill you, and I will." He thereupon fired twice, one charge killing Kalor. Keeton escaped to the hills.

AMOUNT INSURED

Must Be Paid On Household Goods In Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky.—Fire insurance companies must pay the face value of the policies they carry on household goods and other property if they accept the premium on policies. This point of law was decided here in the case of Jeff Cook against the Fire Insurance Company of Philadelphia. Cook had his furniture insured for $200, but F. L. Johnson, owner of the house in which Cook lived, testified that Cook did not have but $25 worth of furniture. Cook's attorney, however, read a decision of the Court of Appeals which was to the effect that if the premium on a policy had been collected the company must pay the policy, and a judgment was entered in Cook's favor.

Relations Severed.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The executive committee of the Planters' Protective Association has decided to sever the relations now existing between the Kentucky and Tennessee branch of the organization and the Virginia branch. It was also decided that the big barbecue, which, until last year, was an annual feature, be called off because of expenses attached.

Cox-Hargis Suit Settled.

Lexington, Ky.—The damage suit brought by the heirs of Dr. B. D. Cox, who was assassinated in Breathitt county, April 13, 1902, against Judge James Hargis, Elbert Hargis, Ed Callahan, Jesse Spicer and Bill Brilton, who were charged with being implicated in the assassination, has been compromised. The amount of the settlement was not given out, but it is understood to be about $8,000.

Farmer Tries to End Life.

Maysville, Ky.—Lewis Kinney, who is responsible for the presence of state guards in Bracken county, attempted to commit suicide by hanging. Kinney was found in a barn with a rope around his neck, but was cut down by the soldiers in time to save his life. Kinney is accompanied by soldiers everywhere he goes for fear he will be assassinated.

Troops Will Remain.

Frankfort, Ky.—Despite the report that the state troops were to be withdrawn and control left with the civil authorities, the announcement comes from the military department that they will not be withdrawn, but, if necessary, sent out in larger numbers.

Two Residences Burned.

Mayfield, Ky.—Fire destroyed the residences of Mrs. Annie Clarkson and Mrs. Lucy Young. The loss is about $4,000, with little insurance. Both houses were just across the line in the county and the fire department could not give any assistance.

Capt. Gross At Death's Door.

Cloverport, Ky.—Capt. Jack Gross is critically ill at his home at Holt, and his death is momentarily expected. Mr. Gross was United States marshal during Cleveland's administration in 1884, and was adjutant general under John Young Brown.

Alleged "Shops" Raided.

Louisville, Ky.—The police last night raided alleged lottery headquarters. Tickets were confiscated as evidence. Several negroes were arrested, charged with disorderly conduct. It is said that the drawings have been made on the Indiana side.

Almost Severed Her Ear.

Versailles, Ky.—Mrs. Jane Fuller, aunt of Mrs. Josephine K. Henry, with whom she resides, had an attack of vertigo and fell against the sharp rail of a bed, almost severing her right ear and bruising her hip. She is 85. Her condition is critical.

Hurled To His Death.

Lexington, Ky.—Caught by a leg of his overalls in overhead shafting at the C. & O. shops, Lester Fort, a young machinist, was whirled against pulleys and belting. His body was badly broken, and he died almost instantly.

Booker T. Will Speak.

Louisville, Ky.—Booker T. Washington, of Tuskegee, will be one of the principal speakers at the meeting of the National Negro Teachers' association, which will be held here on June 24.

KILLED BY BRAWNY WIFE

Was Affinity of the Breathitt County Mountaineer.

Lexington, Ky.—The crude justice of the mountains, which has made notorious the name of Breathitt county, has dealt with men and their feuds, not with husbands and their affinities—until now. Here is how it operates on this social canker:

Thomas Murrill recently became enamored of Mary Terry. Mrs. Murrill is 35, muscular and intrepid as becomes the wife of a mountaineer. She was once pretty, too, as comely as the plump Mary Terry, with her 19 years, the last two of which have been spent in college in Lexington. But toil and maternity have made the wife less attractive, and Murrill tired of her.

The deserted wife saw her husband as he went to visit his affinity. She took her rifle, saw that it was well loaded, and hurried to the Terry home. She walked in on Murrill and Miss Terry, shot the girl three times, killing her, and without appearing perturbed went home. Murrill, expecting to get shot himself, jumped through a window and fled.

WORST BLOW

In History of Kentucky Was Passage of New York Anti-Racing Bills.

Lexington, Ky.—News of the passage of the anti-racing bills by the New York legislature came as a distinct shock to the majority of the people of the Blue Grass region of Kentucky. It is the severest blow that has ever been struck at one of Kentucky's chief industries. The breeding and raising and handling of thoroughbred horses is the most important single industry in this section. Millions of dollars are invested in horses and farms, the value of which, it is estimated, will depreciate immediately as much as 25 per cent.; probably 50 per cent. The revenue coming to Lexington from the sales of yearlings has annually approximated $2,000,000. Conservative horsemen now say that this sum will be cut in half, or nearly so at least. The cutting away of this revenue means much to the business men of Lexington, more than people elsewhere can possibly realize.

Explosion Kills Two.

Lexington, Ky.—While working on the Morehead & Norfolk Railroad, near Paragon, Morgan county, Noah Fugate and Obanion Perry were killed. The men had lighted a fuse to blast away rock which failed to explode the blast. They returned to work and Fugate struck the cap with his pick, causing the blast to explode. His head was blown off.

Powers Trial Unlikely.

Frankfort, Ky.—Unless Gov. Willson makes his decision in the Caleb Powers case, the trial of Powers, which has been set for July 6, will not begin at that time. No subpoenas for witnesses have been issued yet by either the commonwealth or the defense, and there are between 75 and 100 witnesses on each side.

One Year In Penitentiary.

Augusta, Ky.—The Bracken county grand jury returned indictments against Harvey Schallenberger, John Hughes and Wm. Davis for breaking into the C. and O. depot at Willow Grove. The accused pleaded guilty and were sentenced to one year each in the penitentiary.

To Raise $1,200,000.

Louisville, Ky.—Anent the raising of a permanent endowment fund of $1,200,000 for the Southern Baptist Theological seminary, it was reported at the meeting here of the General Association of Baptists of Kentucky that a good portion of the sum will be subscribed during the year.

Caught Guards Off Duty.

Sharpsburg, Ky.—Night riders scraped tobacco beds in the Stoop neighborhood in Montgomery county. The beds had been guarded until a few nights before the scraping was done. Soldiers have been patrolling that section of the county.

Ed Callahan Remarries.

Lexington, Ky.—Ed Callahan, a noted Breathitt county feudist, who secured a divorce from his wife last week, has married Miss Tymanda Deaton, of an equally noted feud family of Breathitt county Deatons.

Brother and Sister Insane.

Covington, Ky.—Thomas Day, 13, and his sister, Sarah Day, 17, were adjudged insane in Judge Shaw's division of the circuit court by a jury. A committee will be appointed by the court to care for them.

Work On New Hospital Begun.

Versailles, Ky.—Work has been started on the new building for the Woodford county hospital, which is to be located on Brown avenue. The building will be of brick and stone, three stories, and will cost $12,000.

Must Pay Judgment.

Louisville, Ky.—By the terms of an order entered in the circuit court, the Louisville Bridge Co. is compelled to pay the sum of $131,277.56, adjudged due some time ago by the court of appeals.

HER DESTINATION IN DOUBT.

Little Girl's Remark Not Complimentary to Grandma.

Ethel is of the mature age of five. Recently her grandmother concluded that it devolved on her to instruct the child in religious matters.

"You must be a good girl, Ethel," she said. "Then you will go to heaven when you die."

Ethel seemed scarcely pleased with this reward for exceptional conduct.

"Don't you want to go to heaven?" asked grandma, with a look of reproach.

"Oh, I don't know," temporized Ethel. "I guess not."

"Why not?" demanded grandma, severely.

"Because maybe I couldn't get out," answered Ethel.

"You wouldn't want to get out," replied grandma.

"Oh, yes, I should," returned Ethel, with conviction.

"No," argued grandma, "you would not. Why should you want to get out of heaven?"

"Why," answered Ethel, "I guess I'd want to go and see you once in a while, wouldn't I?"—Woman's Home Companion.

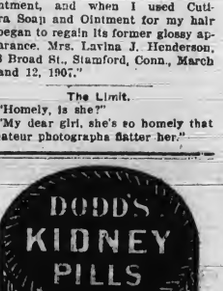
SOUNDS FAMILIAR.

"The End of a Long Life."

Milder Definition.

At Emerson's dinner table one day there was mention of a woman well known as a lion hunter; and, in speaking of her, Mrs. Emerson used the word "snob." Mr. Emerson objected, the word was too harsh; he didn't like that ugly class of words beginning with "sn." His wife inquired how he would characterize the lady. "I should say"—very slowly—"she is a person having great sympathy with success."

INVALID'S SAD PLIGHT.



After Inflammatory Rheumatism, Hair Came Out, Skin Peeled, and Bed Sores Developed—Only Cuticura Proved Successful.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. I tried many 'sure cures' but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura Resolvent I had had no real relief. Then my complexion cleared and soon I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment for my hair it began to regain its former glossy appearance. Mrs. Lavina J. NATIONAL CONVENTION OPEN

Chicago.—With every state and territorial delegation in its appointed place, with enthusiasm at white heat, with big brass bands stationed at either end of the Coliseum, with the great building a mass of flags and banners, the Republican national convention was called to order by Chairman New on Tuesday morning.

Rev. William O. Waters of Chicago made the opening prayer, as follows:

O, Lord, our heavenly Father, the high and mighty ruler of the universe,

Senator Burrows.

who dost from thy throne behold all the dwellers upon earth, most heartily we beseech thee with thy favor to behold and bless thy servant, the president of the United States, and all others in authority; and so replenish them with the grace of thy Holy Spirit that they may always incline to thy will and walk in thy way. Endue them plenteously with heavenly gifts; grant them in health and prosperity long to live, and finally after this life to obtain everlasting joy and felicity. And, O, most gracious God, we humbly beseech thee, as for the people of these United States in general, so especially for this national Republican convention here assembled, that thou wouldst be pleased to direct and prosper all their consultations to the advancement of thy glory, the safety, honor and welfare of thy people. Take always all hatred and prejudice and whatsoever else may hinder them from perfect union and concord, that all things may be so ordered and settled by their endeavors upon the best and surest foundations, that peace and happiness, truth and justice, religion and piety, may be established among us for all generations. These and all other necessaries for the members of this convention and for the nation at large we humbly beg in the name and mediation of Jesus Christ, our most blessed Lord and Saviour, who has taught us when we pray to say:

"Our Father, who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our trespasses as we forgive those who trespass against us. And lead us not into temptation. But deliver us from evil. For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, forever and ever. Amen."

The temporary officers of the convention were announced as follows, all of which, with the exception of Senator Burrows, were made permanent:

Temporary Chairman—Senator J. C. Burrows, Michigan.

General Secretary—John R. Malloy, Columbus, O.

Chief Assistant Secretary—Lafayette B. Gleason, New York.

Sergeant-at-Arms—William F. Stone, Baltimore.

Chief Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—Edward P. Thayer, Greenfield, Ind.

Parliamentarian—Asher C. Hinds, Washington, D. C.

Official Reporter—M. W. Blumenberg, Washington, D. C.

Chief of Doorkeepers—Stephen R. Mason, Baltimore.

Chaplains—Bishop P. J. Muldoon, Chicago; Rev. William O. Waters, Chicago; Rev. Tobias Schanfarber, Chicago; Rev. John Wesley Hill, New York; Rev. Lorenzo D. Case, Chicago.

Assistant Secretaries — Charles Brooks Smith, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Ernest Walker Smith, Hartford, Conn.; Philip M. Heofele, St. Louis; H. J. Tobin, Vinton, Ia.; Charles H. Harger, Abilene, Kan.; Allen Hollis, Concord, N. H.

Reading Clerks—Thomas W. Williamson, Edwardsville, Ill.; Albert

Senator Lodge.

Berg, Beaudette, Minn.; George A. Wilson, Des Moines, Ia.; W. J. Seitz, West Liberty, Ky.

Tally Clerks—Roy M. Watkins, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Clyde W. Miller, Osage City, Kan.; Frank R. Bentley, Baraboo, Wis.; W. A. Steele, Van Buren, Ark.

Messenger to the Chairman—Emsirdell Stone, Indianapolis.

Messenger to the Secretary—John H. Jackson, Cincinnati.

Senator Burrows introduced as temporary chairman was met by wild applause. The delivery of his prepared speech occupied nearly one hour. He said in part:

He reviewed the history of the party and the country, showing the wonderful progress and development during the Republican administration of public affairs.

The work of the nine executive departments, the pension bureau and the army was touched upon in turn and the successful and efficient management pointed out. The management of our outlying possessions was also dwelt upon by the chairman.

On the subject of tariff revision, Senator Burrows said: "The Republican party stands for a revision and readjustment of our customs laws as changed industrial conditions at home and abroad may have made necessary, keeping steadily in view the cardinal principles of protection to American industries and American labor. As evidence of its good faith in this regard, the national house of representatives, clothed under the constitution with exclusive jurisdiction to 'originate all bills for raising revenue,' on the 20th of April just past, by formal resolution, authorized and directed its committee on ways and means, the organ of the house having jurisdiction of the question, 'to sit during the recess of congress and to gather such information, through governmental agents and otherwise, as it may see fit, looking toward the preparation of a bill for the revision of the tariff.'

"Supplementing this action on the part of the house of representatives, and co-operating with it, the senate, in the exercise of its constitutional prerogative to 'propose or concur with amendments as on other bills,' on the 16th of May passed the following resolution:

"'Resolved, that the committee on finance are authorized, in connection with investigations heretofore ordered by the senate, with the view of promptly securing the information necessary for an intelligent revision of the customs laws of the United States, to call to their assistance experts in the executive departments of the government and to employ such other assistants as they shall require; and they are especially directed to report what further legislation is necessary to secure equitable treatment for the agricultural and other products of the United States in foreign countries, and they shall also, in the consideration of changes of rates, secure proof of the relative cost of production in this and in principal competing foreign countries of the various articles affected by the tariff upon which changes in rates of duty are desirable.'

"These public declarations by congress, upon the eve of the election, give the most solemn assurance possible that the work will be speedily undertaken and pressed to an early consummation.

"In this connection it can be safely promised that whatever revision or readjustment takes place under the control of the Republican party, it will give just and adequate protection to American industries and American labor and defend the American market against the unjust and unequal aggressions from whatever quarter they may come."

Speaking of the late financial panic, Chairman Burrows said: "The recent panic called the attention of congress to the necessity of further legislation, and a measure has been passed providing for an emergency currency of $500,000,000 to be issued under certain conditions and limitations, an authorization, it is believed, which will prevent the recurrence of any such disaster as befell the country last fall. The secretary of the treasury has already taken the necessary steps to give effect to the legislation, and banking associations are already forming to avail themselves of the benefits of this act. It is doubtful if the provisions of this act will ever be invoked, as the ability to supply $500,000,000 additional currency whenever needed will of itself have a tendency to make its issuance unnecessary."

The appointment of the monetary commission, which it was hoped would formulate a system that will meet every legitimate business, was also mentioned.

In conclusion, Senator Burrows said: "The platform will voice the dominant thought of the people, and the candidates nominated must stand upon it firm and erect. They must have the patriotism and sagacity of a Lincoln, the tenacity of a Grant, the wisdom and moderation of McKinley and the courage of a Roosevelt. With such a platform and such candidates the issue can not be in doubt. The Republican party confidently submits its record to the approving judgment of the American people and, upon its renewed declaration of faith, invokes continuance of public favor."

Following the delivery of Senator Burrows' address the temporary organization was taken up and the numerous contests were turned over to the credentials committee.

Most Common Physical Defect.

Of the many physical defects to which human flesh is heir, the most common and the most injurious in its results is the displacement downward of the upper part of the body. Such displacement—prolapsus, we call it in medicine—is shown by the flattened chest, the depressed and protruding abdomen, the prominent outstanding collar bones, and the flaring shoulder blades.

As an indication of the remarkable prevalence of this deformity, I may mention that, as the result of an extensive series of examinations covering several thousand subjects, I found less than one per cent, of bodies that were not collapsed and depressed. In other words more than 99 out of every hundred people have crooked spines, lowered chests and displaced structures.—Dr. W. R. C. Latson, in Outing Magazine.

DREAM OF THE WIFE CAME TRUE

HER LETTER BEGGING HIM TO RETURN HOME AT ONCE FOUND ON BODY OF GREGG.

HAD BEEN LURED TO THE HILLS

Scene of Murder Had Been Depicted So Clearly That Woman Identifies the Murderer According To Her Dreams.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 15.—A letter found upon the body of A. C. Gregg of Mt. Vernon, Tenn., a traveling salesman, who was murdered and his body hidden in a lonely spot in the hills discloses the fact that his wife had accurately forecast in a dream two weeks previous to his death the fate that awaited him and warned him that he would be enticed to a remote place and shot to death. The letter begged him to return home to her.

There was also a postscript from his little daughter Mary begging him to prepare to die, warning him that her mother had dreamed he would be killed.

The letter from the woman relates that on the night previous she had seen him decoyed to a spot on the side of a creek, which she described, and there shot and killed by a man who disposed of the body by throwing it into the water.

The woman asserted that the scene had been depicted to her so clearly that she was certain she could identify the murderer if his death occurred according to her dream.

When Mrs. Gregg arrived in Chattanooga to attend the funeral of her husband she was asked about her remarkable vision by the officers who had recovered the letter. She again related the circumstances of the dream, describing the murder as she had seen it.

The surroundings were identical with those in which the body of Gregg had been found. Her description of the murderer tallied with the description of Lon Hatfield, whom officers had placed under arrest on the charge of the murder of Gregg, circumstantial evidence having pointed to him as the guilty man. Mrs. Gregg at that time had never seen Hatfield. The officers decided to put her to a further test.

Placing Hatfield, dressed as he was when captured, inconspicuously among a dozen other men, Mrs. Gregg was brought into the room and asked to pick out the man whom she had seen in her dream. Mrs. Gregg scanned the assemblage of men before her carefully, and, without hesitation, pointed her finger at Hatfield, and related again the incidents of her dream in the presence of Hatfield, who was visibly affected by the recital.

Mrs. Gregg says that practically all the important incidents of her life have been disclosed to her in dreams previous to their occurrence. She has come to place great faith in her visions.

THREE MEN

Required to Drag Woman Ashore After Injured Companion Rescued Her.

St. Louis, Mo., June 14.—Mrs. Victoria Nieters was probably fatally injured Sunday when a frantic team, hitched to a buggy in which she was riding with J. T. Pierson, plunged from the ferry landing at the foot of Market street. A deck hand slammed the gates as the noses of the horses touched the boat. Pierson and Mrs. Nieters were wedged underneath the buggy and were dragged into the Mississippi. The man, though imself injured, extricated himself and swam to the shore with the unconscious woman. Mrs. Nieters weighs 325 pounds, and it took three men to drag her from the water's edge after Pierson had swam ashore with her.

Robbed of $10,000.

St. Paul, June 15.—H. C. Taylor, a capitalist of Seattle, Wash., was robbed of $10,000 at the Union station in this city Sunday morning. Mr. Taylor, with his wife and daughter, was en route to Seattle from Europe. As the party was about to alight from a sleeping car Mr. Taylor was jostled by two men, one of whom reached inside Taylor's coat and secured a wallet containing the money and securities. Mr. Taylor immediately shouted an alarm, but the men escaped.

Massacre Threatened.

Chicago, June 15.—Charges of perjury in the Hip Lung Chinese murder trial found an echo Sunday in a statement made by Chan Kew, Chinese interpreter, that unless Hip Lung and his associates were punished by the courts for the murder of Chin Wat the entire Chin clan would be wiped out by members of the On Leung Tong. The Chinese colony in Clark street is worked up to a point of frenzy over the disclosures of perjury by the witnesses.

Serious Accident To Monitor Florida.

Norfolk, Va., June 15.—With a hole in her starboard side 10 feet high and 20 feet wide, made by an American Whitehead torpedo, the monitor Florida is now in one of the stone drydocks at the Norfolk navy yard.

For New Colliers.

Washington, June 15.—On July 1 the navy department will open bids for three new steam colliers, to cost about $525,000 each. The vessels must be turned over to the government complete.

Miss Mara Harris, of Braydentown, Florida, arrived here Thursday. She is the pleasant guest of Mrs. L. Hopkins. Miss Harris will spend the summer in this quarter visiting friends.

Dr. Samuel M. Adams has been quite sick the past week, confined to his home most of his time. His brother, Bluford Adams, of Burlington, our clever county clerk, spent a day last week at his bedside.

Rev. J. D. Norris, of Georgia, who attends the Baptist Theological College at Louisville, is spending the vacation at Walton, and supplying places at the various churches in the North Bend Baptist Association.

Rev. W. J. Morphis, pastor of the M. E. Church at Warsaw, was a visitor here Saturday, enroute home from Lexington, where he was formerly stationed. He was accompanied by his brother, who goes home with him on a visit.

The force of hands on the American Telephone Company, who have been here a couple of months changing the wires on the long distance line to new poles on the outskirts of town, completed their work last Thursday and moved to Florence to continue the work.

Judge John M. Lassing, the popular Judge of the Court of Appeals, returned home here from Frankfort, last Saturday, to remain this week and be present at the marriage of his sister, Miss Martha Lassing to Mr. Joseph Huey at Union today, Wednesday, June 17th.

Rev. and Mrs. J. I. Willis, of Higginsport, Ohio, were here, last week, on a visit to their old home and relatives. Rev. Willis went to Dry Ridge to fill a ministerial appointment, and Mrs. Willis left, Friday, for Harrodsburg, Mercer county, on a visit to relatives and friends.

Hon. and Mrs. J. S. Steers, of Dry Ridge, were visitors here Saturday. Rev. Steers represented Grant county in the Kentucky legislature the past session and is a candidate for re-election with every prospect of success. Rev. Steers preached at Salem Baptist church near here, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. O. S. Watts returned home last week from a pleasant visit at Harrison, Ohio, where Mr. Watts made a nice purchase of wool. He also spent several days in Franklin county, Indiana, making a purchase, and altogether has bought about 20,000 pounds.

Melvin Sams, of Dry Ridge, spent last Wednesday here receiving wool which he is buying for a Louisville firm. He received about 8,000 lbs., here that day and paid 20c per pound for good wool. The price this year is not satisfactory to the farmers. Last year they received 31c for the same quality of wool.

Prof. H. C. Wayman left, last week, for Richmond, this State, where he will take a special teacher's course of two months at the State Normal College, preparing for his school work here with all the modern ideas. Mrs. Wayman leaves this week to join her husband, and they will go to light housekeeping while at Richmond.

The Basket dinner given by the Elizabeth Christian church, at Stringtown, Grant county, Sunday, was a grand success. The music was fine and the children's exercises excellent. A large number of strangers from a distance were present. About one thousand were present. Rev. J. W. Rogers, of this place, was present and enjoyed the occasion greatly.

Rev. D. T. Buck was at Corinth, Wednesday, June 10th, officiating at the marriage of J. P. Thomas, of Pulaski county, Va., to Miss Mary Finnell, the accomplished daughter of Cashier Finnell of the Corinth Bank. The ceremony took place in the presence of a few friends at the home of the bride's parents. The groom is a prosperous young farmer, of Pulaski county, Va., where they will reside.

Misses Adams, J. M. Lassing, James Cleek, Louis Ford, Wallace Garrison, B. K. Menefee and J. B. Boulton attended a "linen shower" at the residence of Mrs. Fielding Dickey, near Union, last Friday, the "shower" being tendered Miss Martha Lassing, who is to be led to the altar next later today, June 17th, by Joseph Huey. The young couple both reside near Union, and are two of Boone county's most lovable and popular people. Mrs. Dickey entertained her guests in a delightful manner and a most enjoyable day was spent.

Eugene Schlosser, of near Covington, was a visitor here last week, inspecting the fine horse High Vine. Mr. Schlosser owns and operates several large fish ponds near Covington. In one pond he raises Gold Fish, and at the end of the season drains the pond and sells the product. He sold 40,000 Gold Fish the past year. He has several other ponds in which he propagates game fish and rents the privilege of fishing at one dollar per day, and he makes big money out of the transaction.

Prof. A. A. Kennett and wife left, last week, for Dayton, Ohio, where he will engage in the life insurance business with his brother, and will probably decline a reappointment as assistant principal of Walton Graded School next scholastic year. The trustees contemplate employing two lady teachers in his stead as this would relieve the congested condition that exists in some of the rooms as by this means another room can be added. Prof. Kennett is an excellent teacher, and gave satisfaction, and the trustees would like to have him remain, but he wanted more salary than they felt justified in paying.

One of the nicest conductors that has ever been in the employ of the L. & N. Railroad is Capt. Wm. W. Gregg, of Louisville, who has charge of the local passenger train between Louisville and Cincinnaati. Everybody likes him because he is polite and obliging to all of the passengers be they poor or rich, old or young, and his kindness to all is frequently remarked. Capt. Gregg is a young man who appreciates the fact that a good conductor must be a gentleman in every respect and he demonstrates those excellent qualities in everything he does, and the railroad company has no more efficient or polite employe.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maxwell, of Meridian, Mississippi, were guests of I. L. Hopkins and wife, of near town, last week. Mr. Maxwell is an old Kenton county boy, who went south years ago, and for 27 years has been an engineer on a passenger train on the New Orleans and Northeastern railroad, and for 24 years has made the daily run on the passenger train between New Orleans and Meridian, and has never had a wreck, nor is there a mark of demerit against him. Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell have just returned from Columbus, Ohio, where they attended the National Convention of Railroad Engineers, he being a delegate and Mrs. Maxwell being a member of the Auxiliary, the relief department managed by the ladies.

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Powers entertained in an elegant manner at their delightful home, Thursday evening, June 11th, in honor of their guest, Miss Ruth Tease, a charming young lady of the Oxford, Ohio, College. The evening was one round of pleasure to all, and the time was most enjoyably spent in social conversation, games, music and other amusements, while some of the young folks tripped the "light fantastic" in the parlor. Refreshments of ices and cakes were served, and everything that could conspire to make the evening one of delightful pleasure was most agreeably arranged by the charming host and hostess and their pretty daughters, Misses Mabel and Grace. Besides those mentioned the following were present: Misses Myrtle Murphy, Katie Bontz, Pauline Curley, Norvel Bedinger, Elizabeth Bedinger, Mary Harris, Louise Green, Hattie Taylor, Sara Conner, Rachel Conner, Messrs. George J. Grubbs, Chas. W. Bansler, Jr. B. W. Stallard, Robt. W. Jones, Earl Rouse, Wesley Murphy, C. C. Jones, Harris Watson, Cloyd Powers, Wilmot Rensler, Leslie Jones, Benj. Stansifer. The moon was kissing the stars goodnight when the young folks thanked Mr. and Mrs. Powers for the pleasures of the evening and separated for their respective homes.

A meeting of the Union League of Christian Endeavors was held at the Christian church, June 13th. Bro. J. B. Harris, the leader, gave a very interesting opening address on the subject, "How we can best serve our church?" Mr. Virgil Holder sent a splendid paper on the subject, which was read by Miss Tillman. Misses Queen Tillman and Fanny Mae Buck sang a duett which was greatly enjoyed. Bro. J. D. Norris gave a very instructive talk on "How we got our Bible." The next meeting will be held at the Baptist church, Saturday, June 27th, at 7:30 p. m., at which time the following program will be rendered: Called to order by President Ransler; Song; Invocation by Bro. J. B. Harris; Song; Reading of lesson and talk on same, Bro. Edgar Riley—Subject, "Sabbath and How to Keep It;" Song; Essay by Miss Myrtle Slater—Subject, "How the Sabbath is Often Broken;" Quartet, Dr. Garfield Slater, G. J. Grubbs, T. Grubbs and Harry Darling. Talk by W. D. Ryland—Subject, "Something we Should do on the Sabbath"; Solo, Miss Bessie Houston; Essay, Miss Willeve Tillman—Subject, "Some ways to Prevent Sabbath Breaking;" Song; Business Session; Collection; Dismissed. Everybody invited.

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

SAN DIEGO, CALA., May 30, 1908.

To my friends and the readers of the good, old Boone County RECORDER:

I take a few spare moments to write a short letter that you may know that I am still in the land of the living. I wrote a letter to your good, old county paper, some weeks past. I call it good for several reasons: First—I have never read a paper printed in this country that comes up to it. Second—It has a good Editor and correspondents at the back of it, and the third and the best of all, it is printed in the good, old State of Kentucky, a name I love to hear spoken since I left there.

This is one of the finest climates any one ever saw or could expect to find. I have not seen any rain fall since I left the East, the first of last March and from what I am told here, I wont see any for several months to come. I am sorry to inform my friends that I have not, up till now improved much if any, in health, but I still have hope that I will in the near future. I have every inducement any one could ask to gain my health—warm sunshine, dry, pure atmosphere. It hardly looks reasonable that there is so many cyclones between here and Kentucky as I read of in the paper week after week, and not a cloud to be seen here at the time they are raging in that part of the globe.

San Diego is one of the finest cities on the Pacific Coast, so far as I have seen or heard. It has plenty of saloons as do other cities in the West, unfortunately, and the temperance people are working hard to close them up.

I have been out in the country quite a distance, and saw some as fine country any one could wish to see, and all kinds of crops growing under the process of irrigation, by which a crop never fails. I attended the old soldiers' reunion, where I saw a very large crowd at a place called Mount Hope cemetery. I heard one of the best addresses for the occasion I ever heard or ever expect to hear. I enjoyed the meeting until they began to sing old Kentucky songs, and, of course, I could but feel sad to know where I am and for what I came. I was reminded of old Gunpowder creek today when for the first time, I met here, one John L. Henderson, although I have been here for some time. We took our meals at the same place and time and never recognized each other and would not, I suppose, if he had not received a letter three days before we met, stating I was at that place.

I visited some very large orange and lemon groves and grape vineyards. One of the groves has 3,500 acres, and it is not the largest, but I don't remember the number of acres in the others.

Mr. Editor, as I am not a regular correspondent to your paper and know not whether this will meet with approval or find its way to the waste basket, I will endeavor to close, wishing all the readers and the Editor a prosperous year for this should be a good year for the farmers to keep posted on what is going on in their county, and I understand there is not to be any tobacco raised this year. Everyone should take the county paper as they ought to have plenty of spare moments to read, and they can be ready to get their money as soon as the A. S. E. sells. As I am one of the great number on that ship called A. S. E., I would advise every one to hold on to the organization as it has been the cause of the present prices, which is more than double the amount it was before we organized. That is what is keeping the orange and lemon market up here. The farmers combined as the A. S. E.

Yours Truly,
LEE A. ADAMS.

SEEING THE COUNTRY.

SAN DIEGO, CALA. June 4, 1908.

I write a short letter to let my friends know I am still in the southern part of California, where the sun shines bright three hundred and twenty six days in the year; where the oranges and lemons are on the trees year in and out. Fruits of all kinds grow here to the heart's content. I am feeling twenty years younger since I came to this country, than I did while I was on Gunpowder creek. I would advise any and all old batchelors to come to this climate, where there are the finest old maids on the earth, and are as rich as cream from an Alderney cow. There is a great wharf here, where ships of all kinds and of the largest size come, some having as much as 110,000 feet of lumber on them. The Arizonan was here the first day of this month. It was from New York. It had 400 tons of freight. This city is soon to have one more railroad. It has been granted a charter to begin building July 1st and will come from Uma, Arizona, to the Imperial Valley, one of the finest producing valleys in all California. Imperial valley lies 200 miles south east of San Diego, 100 miles south of Pheonix, Arizona. From this place to old Mexico is 17 miles south. 126 miles from here to Los Angeles north, and cross over Coronado Hotel is four miles south west, one of the finest summer resorts in the State. Coronado Island is 34 miles south west out in the briny deep. Point Loma is 11 miles west across the bay from this place. Warner's hot springs are 60 miles east. Perhaps you all know or heard of Warner's kidney cure. This is where it is produced.

I have seen this country nearly all over and expect to go to Seatle, Washington, next fall to the fair. I expect to see some of this world in my younger days. I wish the RECORDER a good year, and success to all its readers. Yours Truly.

J. L. HENDERSON.

Weeds grow, rain or shine, hot or cold, so the man who has neglected his corn ground for the last two weeks will have a mighty big job on his hands. Before the corn is up, the harrow will destroy millions of these tiny weeds. Keep it going, and then cultivate just as soon as you can see the rows. Don't stop at three times over; keep at it until the corn gets too big. These frequent cultivations will keep the corn humping and you are saving moisture ever time you go over the field. And don't forget the orchard. It needs cultivation and lots of it. No matter how much rain has fallen during May the trees will need all the moisture they can get for August and September growth. If the orchard has not been disked do it now and then cross disc, and then cultivate once a week right through the month of June.

Grand Chief!

Owned by W. G. Kite, M. M. Ryle, W. M. Rector, E. C. Clore, Elmore Ryle and B. B. Hume, will make the season of 1908, Monday and Tuesday of each week at B. B. Hume's stable in Burlington, and the remainder of the time at Waterloo, Boone County, Ky., at $10 00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Grand Chief is a beautiful bay, 16¼ hands high, heavy black mane and tail, weighs 1,300 pounds, has splendid style and action, is a grand individual, being just the kind of horse the breeders of Boone county have long desired to patronize.

Grand Chief was sired by Sensatio 7973, by Red Wilkes, sire of Ralph Wilkes 2:06¾, Ethuisal 2:09, Blanch Louise 2:10 and the dams of Walnut Hall 2:08, Kingmond 2:09. Sensatio's first dam by Dictator 113, sire of Jay Eye See 2:06 and the dams of Nancy Hanks 2:04, Gordon Prince 2:05, Gazette 2:07, Lockheart 2:08. Sensatio's second dam by Mambrino Patchen 58, sire of the dams of Ralph Wilkes 2:06, Jupe 2:07, Crawford 2:07, Bonner 2:09 Bright Light 2:06. Grand Chief's first dam by Blood Chief, son of Harrison Chief 3149, sire of the dams of Will Kerr 2:07, J. H. L 2:08. Grand Chief's second dam by Morgan Messenger 3169, sire of dams of Greenfield Boy 2:13, Dan McCabe 2:13, and the grand sire of the dam of My Star 2:03 3-4. Grand Chief's third dam by White's Blue Bull, sire of the grand dam of My Star 2:03 3-4.

A premium of $10 00 will be given the best colt, regardless of sex, of Grand Chief's 1908 get, to be shown in Burlington, Ky., the first Monday in September 1909.

No business done on Sunday.

Burlington and Waterloo Horse Co.

The Fine Black Jack,

LANKY BOB!

Owned by E. S. Graves, Holland Goodridge, Yancy Clore and M. I. Baker will make the season of 1908 at Wm. Graves' stable, one mile northeast of Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky., at $10 00 to insure a colt to stand and suck, money due when the fact is known or mare parted with.

DESCRIPTION & PEDIGREE.

Lanky Bob is black with white points, fine length and bone, 8 years old, 15½ hands high, and is a quick, ready foal getter. Was sired by Ben Glass, owned by F. M. Mcdonald, of Carroll-co. He is given up to be the finest breeder in Northern Ky.; formerly owned by John Elliston, of Grant-co. Ben Glass was sired by R. B. Lee's fine jack; he by Wm. Nichols' and Warnicks' imported jack, which cost $4 000. His dam was sired by Younger Pilot jack which cost $4,000. Ben Glass' dam was a Pioneer and Mountain Leader jennet; she was sired by Kennedy's Sampeon, g.-d. Compromise by Mohawk.

Lanky Bob's dam, Black Betty, was a fine, big jennet, by Black Dictator, 15 hands high; he by Mohawk (the finest breeding jack of the age, and sold for $5,000) out of a large premium jennet; g. d. Old July, a fine jennet owned by Hayden Kendall, of Williamstown, Ky., sired by Black Jumbo, 15½ hands high; he by Black Boy; he by Raiston's fine jack, Black Betty.

The following premiums will be awarded the 1908 get of this jack—$10 for the best mare mule; $10 for the best horse mule, and $5 for best mule regardless of sex. To be shown at Burlington, the first Monday in Sept. 1909.

The Premium Harness Horse,

Oscar Williams, Jr. 2:24.

Black horse, foaled May 14, 1897, sired by Oscar Williams, 2:11¾; he by Simmons, 2:28; he by George Wilkes; 1st dam, Stockbridge; 2d dam, Kendall's Denmark; 3rd dam, Copper Bottom; 4th dam, Tom Cropper, Jr.

OSCAR WILLIAMS, Jr., is a show horse of fine style and action, 16 hands high, and weighs 1100 lbs. As a three year old he made six shows and won five first premiums, as a two year old he was never beaten. In 1908 he showed 12 times in his class and took 10 first premiums and 2 seconds.

He will be found at my stable at Bullittsville, Ky., and will be permitted to serve mares at $10 00 to insure a colt to stand up and suck.

Care taken to prevent accidents, but will not be responsible should any occur

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clutterbuck entertained Rev. J. B. Harris during his stay here at his regular appointment, when he preached both Sunday morning and evening to a large crowd.

The most absorbing question in Florence now is how to get money to put a new roof on the Presbyterian church. Thre eladies constitute the congregation. Many of your readers will remember, how, five years ago, these three ladies "fought, bled and died" to save their church from confiscation by the Presbytery, through the influence of outside parties, secretly and under cover. They did save it, and have been hoping ever since for some opening for its use in God's service. Now it needs a roof. These three ladies have helped the other churches in their suppers and festivals for 20 years; how would it do for their friends in all the community to help these ladies by giving a dollar each to this cause? Then they will soon have a roof on their church.

Dr. Hopkins performed two difficult operations for nose and throat disease upon two Misses Detmar, of Rising Sun. Both operations were entirely successful.

Huey-Lassing.

At Beechhurst, the residence of Dr. H. C. Lassing, on June the seventeenth at 8 p. m., amid the fragrance of roses and magnolias, Miss Martha Lassing and Mr. Joseph Huey were united in marriage. The marriage service was performed by Rev. Dr. H. N. Quisenbury, of Fulton, Mo. The bride looked beautiful gowned in white crepe de chene trimmed in rose point lace and carrying a large bouquet of brides roses. The numerous wedding gifts received were both elegant and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Huey departed shortly after the ceremony for an extended bridal tour.

WALTON.

Issac Lunsford, a clever farmer near Key West, spent Saturday here with friends.

Wm. Brittenhelm, our clever young merchant, spent Sunday at Owenton with friends, and enjoyed a delightful visit.

Hon. J. G Tomlin Spent last Saturday afternoon at Verona, attending a meeting of the new turnpike company, advising them how to proceed.

Work on the Walton and Verona turnpike was begun Monday. It is expected that five miles of the road will be completed by the latter part of December.

J. E. Rider and Mr. and Mr. J. Thomas Rider and two children, Stanley and Lucille, of Ryle, Gallatin county, spent the first of the week here, guests of James Rider's daughter, Mrs. Charles Rex and family.

Hon. J. G. Tomlin has gone to Owenton to preside at the trials of the suits against some of the ex-sheriffs seeking to recover taxes which it is alleged they collected for the county, and for which they failed to account. Mr. Tomlin will be at home here next Saturday, but he will return to Owenton again on Monday.

Rev. J. W. Rogers spent Sunday at Sugar Creek where he held services at the Christian church in the morning. In the afternoon he attended the Children's Services at the Ten Mile Baptist church. A large crowd was in attendanee. The music was fine and all the children acquitted themselves with credit.

Dr. J. S. Slater was called to Sparta, last Saturday, to see Dr. D. B. Stallard, who has been very ill there at the home of his brother, Dr. J. M. Stallard. He will go to Louisville for a few a days treatment, after which he will visit his old home at Fairfield, Nelson county. His return to Walton will be announced in this column.

Geo. Noe, who is employed by Scott Smith on his farm about two miles south of Walton, was held up and robbed on Friday night of the 13th inst. in Cincinnati. He was visiting a relative, who works at the Pennsylvania depot, and when returning to his hotel, was held up by five highwaymen and beaten and robbed of $5. He reported the case to the police, and on visiting the scene of the robbery the next day, he saw two of his alleged assailants standing on a corner. He pointed them out to the officers, who arrested them. They admitted being in the crowd but said they did not rob Noe. Thursday the other three were arrested, and Mr. Noe was telephoned to come in and prosecute them. He went to Cincinnati on Friday. The first two men were released, but the last three were remanded to jail. They will be tried in the police court July 1st.

Walton and Big Bone ball teams played here last Saturday. At their last meeting Big Bone won 5 to 1, bnt Walton retallated Saturday, defeating Big Bone 6 to 2. The features of the game were the batting of Dahling in the fifth inning, with two men on and three on bases he made a clean two base hit, scoring the three men ahead of him; Raymond Byland made a sensational running catch of a fly, preventing two men from scoring. The visitors made their two scores on errors—will throws over first base. Taken all in all it was one of the cleanest games played here this season. The batteries were: Big Bone—Marmit and Rich; Walton—Yarnell and Adams. Struck out, by Marmit 4; by Yarnell 6; hits—Big Bone 6; Walton 9. The Stacy ball club of Covington, which played two games here on Decoration day, and broke even with the Walton team, will play here on July 4th, when each club will make a hard fight to win the rubber game.

The Consolidated Telephone Company, under the supervision of its efficient superintendent, Willliam T. Black, is doing a fine lot of improving to its system at Walton. The exchange has been installed with Miss Graham Roberts as the day operator and Miss Rand Shilley as the night operator, and both are giving excellent satisfaction as they are attentive and prompt in the discharge of their duties. The telephone company deserves a great deal of praise for its enterprise, as the expense of the improvement here has been heavy, and the service is now first-class in every particular, and in every way worthy of the patronage and support of the public, which is the only way a good telephone system can be maintained. In the new arrangements made at Walton the old numbers have been changed and the patrons of Walton exchange are requested to call by "name" or ask the operator for "new number," so as to avoid confusion; and all are asked to be patient for a couple of weeks until the system is fully gotten in working order. A new book with new numbers will be issued shortly.

A Grand Family Medicine.

"It gives me pleasure to speak a good word for Electric Bitters," writes Mr. Frank Conlan, of No. 436 Houston St., New York. "It's a grand family medicine for dyspepsia and liver complications; while for lame back and weak kidneys it cannot be too highly recommended." Electric Bitters regulate the digestive functions, purify the blood, and impart renewed vigor and vitality to the weak and debilitated of both sexes. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's Drug Store, Erlanger. 50c.

Notice to Teachers.

Many have written me to know if one who has a diploma from a high school has a right to teach a public school. There is not a letter of law favoring it and I desire to state that I shall recognize no one as teacher except he or she holds a certificate from the County Board or State certificate or State diploma. There are two examinations yet to be held this year—third Friday and Saturday of July and August. Please take notice and govern yourself accordingly.

TALES OF LAKE AND LONGSHORE

BEING the CHRONICLES of SOME FRESH-WATER SALTS

By GEORGE TICKELL

THE CURING OF CAPT. CHUBB

Dr. Richard Corbus sat in his comfortable study with a look of profound disgust overshadowing his features. Mr. Walter Somers, better known in the vaudeville world as Signor Galaci, ventriloquist, sleight-of-hand performer and general dealer in magic, reclined on the sofa and eyed his host with a pitying smile. He could afford to smile, for the recent war between rival theatrical syndicates had resulted in an exceedingly profitable season for him at a preposterous salary, and, therefore, the world looked pleasant in his eyes.

As far as the financial situation was concerned, Dr. Corbus had also every reason to view the world through rose-colored glasses. He was 35, blessed with a good practice, a reputation second to none among the younger members of Chicago's medical fraternity, and the possessor of a handsome brownstone home on Michigan avenue, where his bachelor wants were administered to faithfully by an old housekeeper who was thoroughly reliable, and devoted to his interests.

Yet there was a rift within the lute which threatened to introduce discord into the music of his existence. For Corbus was very much in love, and unkind fate had seen fit to interpose between him and the object of his affections. Briefly, the facts in his case were as follows:

He had fallen a victim to the charms of one Nancy Chubb, a daughter of Capt. John Chubb, skipper of the cargo steamer Grenville, sailing between Chicago and Buffalo. And, quite in the recognized style of the romantic novel, it was the obdurate father of the fair damsel who became the stumbling block in love's peaceful pathway. For, while Nancy "was willin'," Chubb senior exploded in a fine fit of frenzy when the subject of marriage was broached by the anxious suitor. Doctors were butchers and thieves at their best, he declared temperstuously, and no daughter of his should ever sign articles with one while he remained alive on the face of the earth. Such was the choleric captain's ultimatum and Dr. Corbus was much depressed in spirit thereby.

On this particular night he had sought relief from his melancholy musings by pouring his tale of woe into Somers' sympathizing ears.

"Its a pity," remarked Mr. Somers, breaking a silence of several minutes' duration, "that it never fell to your lot to attend old Chubb professionally and thereby earn his dying, or undying, gratitude, as the case might be."

"I'd operate on him with extreme pleasure," responded the doctor vindictively; "but heaven knows there's no chance of that. He's too infernally healthy."

"Doesn't he drink a good deal?" queried Somers.

"A lot of difference that makes," returned his host contemptuously. "He's as strong as a whale and as tough as a rhinoceros. The liquor isn't distilled that could feaze his old hutk."

Mr. Somers chewed his cigar meditatively for a few moments. Then he suddenly sat up and smote the sofa cushion with his fist.

"I've got it," he announced jubilantly. "Put yourself in my hands, Dick, and we'll jolly well get the weather gauge of the old captain, as the nautical sharps say. Chubb doesn't know me, but his first mate, Ben Paisley, does, and Ben is a mighty good sort of fellow. I did him a turn once, and he'll stand by whatever I tell him. The question is this: When the Grenville sails for Buffalo next Thursday will you pack your traps and take a voyage on her with me?"

The doctor stared. "I don't see—" he began, but Somers checked him with a grandiloquent wave of his hand.

"Of course you don't, old chap; but you will when I explain."

He bent forward and in a few rapidly spoken sentences expounded the plot which had matured in his fertile mind.

Corbus drew a deep breath when he had finished.

"It's a wild scheme, Walter," he said reflectively; "but still there's a chance. If Paisley only agrees to help us—"

"Now see here," interrupted his friend, "I'll answer for Paisley. All we have to do is visit the agents of the company that owns the Grenville and secure our berths. She doesn't carry passengers ordinarily, and there'll be only Paisley and ourselves in the game."

The unexpected arrival of Messrs. Corbus and Somers on board the good ship Grenville was anything but a source of unqualified pleasure to her irascible commander. In the first place he looked upon passengers as so much useless lumber, and secondly, the sight of his would-be son-in-law was distinctly aggravating. Even the unasked-for information, contributed by Somers, to the effect that the doctor was seriously undisposed and had been ordered to take a lake voyage as a possible tonic failed to arouse his sympathy.

But under the circumstances he was helpless and greeted his guests at breakfast the first day out with as much cordiality as he could summon on short notice. His manner, however, could scarcely be described as genial, but this was not to be wondered at, as the gallant tar was suffering from the after-effects of a roaring good time ashore, which had culminated in one gigantic, soul-satisfying spree during his last night in port. Consequently his broad red face wore an expression of bull-like ferocity and he replied to the gay and airy sallies of the light-hearted Mr. Somers with sullen grunts which might have signified anything or nothing.

It was an ideal June morning and hardly a breath of wind stirred the surface of Lake Michigan. Capt. Chubb, pacing the bridge in solitary grandeur, felt his spirits rise at the prospect of fair weather and a prosperous voyage.

Suddenly he came to a halt in his self-imposed parade as a hoarse, sneering laugh, apparently proceeding from some irreverent person behind him, assailed his ears. He turned quickly, but the bridge was unoccupied save for himself. Again the ironical cackle split the atmosphere and he pivoted smartly around with a wrathful exclamation. There was nobody near him and, much puzzled, he cast his eye along the deck in search of a solution of the mystery. The doctor and Somers were leaning on the bulwarks, well toward the bow, and a couple of deckhands were scrubbing the deck close by the stern. With these exceptions there was no one in sight.

The captain mused perplexedly and then sprang a foot into the air as a harsh whisper of "How goes it, Chubb?" beat upon his startled senses. There followed the same mocking laugh, which died away into a discordant, gurgling whine.

A confused notion of talking birds dawned upon the startled captain and he glanced sharply aloft; but the horizon was bare of feathered denizens. Had the Grenville been a windjammer he might have attributed his alarm to some practical joker hailing him from above, but the one mast boasted by the steamer was totally devoid of canvas.

"Am I off my head?" murmured Chubb pathetically, "or is it spirits? 'How goes it, Chubb?' it ses as plain as anything, and yet there ain't nobody here."

The tread of approaching feet made him jump nervously again, but this time he was relieved by a tangible presence arriving in the form of the mate.

"See here, Paisley," said the agitated Chubb, as his officer gained the bridge, "there's bin some queer doings—that is—I mean d' you see anything unusual about me?"

The mate surveyed his superior's visage carefully.

"Seems to me your eyes is rather fishy," he commented. "And your lips is a bad color. They reminds me of—" He stopped abruptly and hesitated.

The captain grasped his shoulder and shook him furiously.

"Reminds you of wot?" he roared. "Why can't you speak out, 'stead of standin' there dumb as a darned dogfish?"

"Well, you reminds me of a engineer I knowed once, named Joe Welch," said the mate. "He died of the jim-jams, he did, on board the Grover Cleveland. It came on him like a flash, six hours out of Chicago, after a big bat he'd bin on. There wasn't no doctor aboard and he died mighty quick. His howlings at the last was somethin' fierce."

The skipper's ruddy face turned a greenish white and he gazed at the mate with protruding eyeballs.

"Great fishhooks!" he croaked faintly. "It can't be as I've got 'em, Ben! I didn't have so much to drink last night."

"You was lushed proper when you come aboard," said the mate decidedly. "Wot had you bin havin'?"

"Mostly rye. At least that's what that one-eyed coyote of a bartender called it," responded Chubb dismally. "But we did put away a few tots of Jamaica rum as well."

"The very same mixture as finished poor Welch," remarked the mate cheerfully. "But mebbe you'll be all right. How do you feel?"

"Horrible," declared the panic-stricken skipper. "My head's burnin' up and I've bin hearin' voices, Ben, voices, and reg'lar hair-raisin' laughs."

"Welch, he started that way," announced the Job's comforter. "Heard voices first, so he did, and then little red devils with horns came and picked at his eyes."

The skipper groaned. "I'll go below and lie down a spell, Ben," he said hoarsely. "Mebbee it'll wear off. I haven't heard nuthin' since you come on deck."

As if to contradict this hopeful statement a piercing, long-drawn hiss penetrated his ear, and he clutched the mate despairingly.

"There it goes again, Ben," he cried in quavering accents. "Sounded like a spittin' cat, or a angry snake. Didn't you hear nothin'?"

The mate's wooden-faced composure would have done credit to a cigar store Indian.

"Not me," he responded blithely. "But then I ain't bin makin' a beast of myself. You're hearin' snakes now; if ever you get to seein' 'em you might as well get ready to give the undertaker a job. Where 'ud you like to be planted?"

Capt. Chubb eyed him reproachfully.

"That ain't no way to talk to a pore shipmate, Ben," he remonstrated. "Me that's always bin your friend, too."

"It's the truth for all that," argued the unfeeling mate. "And as for bein' a friend, why, you ain't always so mealy-mouthed. Only last trip you called me a swivel-eyed, knock-kneed son of a sea lawyer and said I wasn't fit to handle a slush-bucket on a mud scow."

"It was only my way of jokin', Ben," pleaded the repentant skipper. "Stand by me now, lad, and I'll—I'll never forget you. Wot had I better do?"

Do!" repeated the mate. "Why, tumble into your bunk and ask that there doctor to help you out. Mebbe he'll be able to save you."

Acting on this seasonable advice Capt. Chubb, consumed by the fires of remorse, sought refuge in his cabin, where, in response to an appealing message, Dr. Corbus, accompanied by his friend, put in an appearance. The former gentleman, having heard the patient's plaint of woe, shook his head grimly.

"You're in a bad fix, my man," he said, with a heartless chuckle. "Judging from your symptoms I should say there's a ripe, roaring fit of delirium tremens headed your way. But speaking as a passenger I fail to see how your troubles concern me. I'm taking this voyage for my health and there appears to be no reason why I should exert myself to preserve the life or reason of a drunken brute whose demise would probably be a distinct benefit to society in general. It's all your own fault, anyway."

"I know, I know," pleaded the abject mariner. "But it's orful hard if I'm to be let go and die without any help. And there's my daughter, a orphan, to be left all alone in the world."

"Personally I believe she'd be a good deal better off without you," responded the doctor coolly. "And, speaking of your daughter, you may happen to recollect that I once made you a proposition in regard to her which you were not only kind enough to refuse, but insulted me in the bargain."

The captain was about to reply, when a blood-curdling laugh issued from beneath his pillow. He sprang to a sitting posture and laid a frantic grip on the physician's arm.

"There it goes again!" he shrieked, while great drops of sweat rolled down his pallid countenance. "For the good Lord's sake, doctor, do somethin' for me! You can have the girl, anything—only save me!".

"Oh, well," said Corbus reflectively, "on these conditions I might be tempted. Remember, Mr. Somers is a witness to your promise. Wait a moment until I examine my medicine case."

He left the cabin and returned carrying a small hypodermic needle, the sharp point of which he inserted into the captain's muscular forearm.

"There, my friend," he said complacently, "that will quiet you a little. When you wake up I'll have something else for you." Under the persuasive influence of the drug the luckless Chubb dropped into a heavy slumber and the conspirators against his peace of mind joined Ben Paisley at his station on the bridge.

"It's working like a charm," said Somers gleefully; "but I never thought he'd go under so easily."

"Nothing singular about that," remarked the doctor. "It's no trick at all to persuade a man that he's sick. There seems to be a sort of hypnotic suggestion contained in the mere hint to the average citizen that he doesn't look quite well. And your ventriloqual performances were quite sufficient to throw any unsuspecting individual off his mental balance."

"He was sure scared stiff when he was talkin' to me," chuckled Paisley. "Serves him right, ses I; he wants a lesson of some kind. Mebbe he'll reform now."

"Very likely," agreed the doctor. "At all events he'll enjoy a mild, harmless existence for the next few days. I'm going to put him on very meager liquid diet and take some of the superfluous flesh off his bones."

"He's got lots to spare," grinned Paisley. "He's a regular hog to eat and in the last year he's fatted up like a prize porker."

"I'll thin him down," returned the doctor venomously, and Somers chortled aloud.

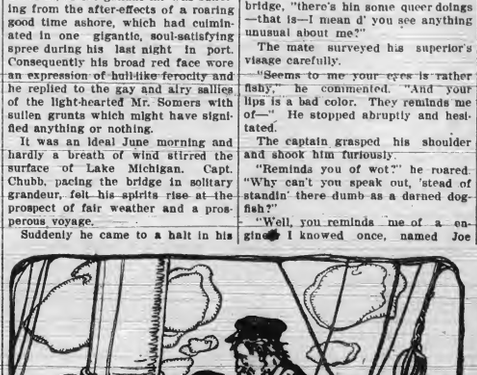
The Grenville thrashed her way steadily eastward, while her skipper, lying prostrate in his bunk, swallowed thankfully the many harmless but evil-tasting potions administered to him, and led a simple, blameless life on a thin diet of water and biscuits. His capacious stomach yearned hungrily for the flesh pots of Egypt, but resistless fate in the person of Dr. Corbus controlled his appetite with an iron hand.

Rapidly his all too solid flesh melted away, and by the time Buffalo appeared in sight the once corpulent skipper had become a mere mocking shadow of his former self. At this stage the doctor relented sufficiently to allow him a roast beef sandwich, which he devoured ravenously; and a few hours later he partook of the first square meal he had eaten since his collapse.

When the Grenville at last tied up at her destination Capt. Chubb, thin and pale, but overflowing with gratitude to his preserver, stood on the bridge with Ben Paisley, who, with the assistance of one of the crew, had stood double watches for over four days, during his superior's absence from duty.

"I'm off the drink for good, Ben," said the captain gravely. "This here has bin a awful solemn warnin' to me."

"Suppose you'll be sportin' a blue ribbon next," growled the mate.



"Never you mind," retorted the skipper with a touch of his old pugnacity. "It 'ud be better for everyone if they'd steer clear of the grog. I wish you'd have a touch of them delirium tremenses, Ben, I do. It 'ud make a new man of you, my lad."

"Thanks," returned the mate acidly, "but I ain't hankerin' for no such a change. Not but what some folks might be all the better for bein' made over," he added, with a meaning glance, of which the captain affected to take no notice.

Miss Nancy Chubb, welcoming her fond parent home, was stricken almost dumb with astonishment when she perceived that he had a companion, and that the said companion was none other than her quondam suitor. She was still more astonished to learn that gratitude for having saved his life during a severe attack of fever had wrought a wondrous change in her father's sentiments toward the heretofore despised doctor.

The true facts of the case she was never destined to know, but, for the matter of that, neither was Capt. Chubb, whose course in after life was marked by a rigid and uncompromising adherence to the principles advocated by the enthusiastic disciples of the prohibition cause.

Case For Brain Specialists

Young Girl's Remarkable Feat While in Somnambulistic State.

Lying on the grass in a veiled-in garden of which the door was locked, a girl of 16, Miss Amy Parker, was found unconscious and in night attire early one morning recently near Wellington, Shropshire, England. A blanket, a pair of slippers, eye-glasses, and a skirt were found beside her, while she clasped a shilling in her hand. She was taken to a house and revived, being then driven to her home, three miles away. She remembered absolutely nothing of how she came to be where she was found. She seemed to be in good health on the preceding night, but was gone from her room when the maid went to call her in the morning. It appears that she walked no fewer than three miles while fast asleep. How she got out of the house is a mystery, as the door was found locked in the morning. Miss Parker was very short-sighted, yet must, in her sleep, have climbed a wall which she would have found difficult to scale in the day time and in possession of every faculty. Her mind is a complete blank from the time she went to bed until she awoke to find herself in the house three miles away. In this case, the working of memory she went through were so commonplace that it would take a very slight brain impulse to start them. A vivid dream might have been a sufficient stimulus. The climbing of the wall was a much more intricate act, demanding an accurate sense of touch and appreciation of distance, and this sort of act is a mystery which brain specialists cannot elucidate.

"That was a disgusting slap the governor took at our bills," said the New Jersey legislator.

"Seemed to irritate him as much as mosquito bills," admitted the disgruntled colleague.

YOU'RE TOO THIN.

Even Slight Catarrhal Derangements of the Stomach Produce Acid Fermentation of the Food.

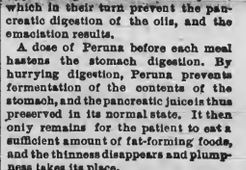
It's Stomach Catarrh

Some people are thin and always remain thin, from temperamental reasons. Probably in such cases nothing can be done to change this personal peculiarity.

But there are a large number of people who get thin, or remain thin, who naturally would be plump and fleshy but for some digestive derangement.

Thin people lack in adipose tissue.

Adipose tissue is chiefly composed of fat.



Fat is derived from the oily constituents of food.

The fat-making foods are called by the physiologist, hydrocarbons. This class of foods are not digested in the stomach at all. They are digested in the duodenum, the division of the alimentary canal just below the stomach.

The digestion of fat is mainly, if not wholly, the work of the pancreatic juice. This juice is of alkaline reaction, and is rendered inert by the addition of acid. A hyperacidity of the digestive fluids of the stomach passing down into the duodenum, destroys the pancreatic fluid for digestive purposes. Therefore, the fats are not digested or emulsified, and the system is deprived of its due proportion of oily constituents. Hence, the patient grows thin.

The beginning of the trouble is a catarrhal condition of the stomach which causes hyperacidity of the gastric juices. This hyperacidity is caused by fermentation of food in the stomach. When the food is taken into the stomach, if the process of digestion does not begin immediately, acid fermentation will take place. This creates a hyperacidity of the stomach juices which in their turn prevent the pancreatic digestion of the oils, and the emaciation results.

A dose of Peruna before each meal hastens the stomach digestion. By hurrying digestion, Peruna prevents fermentation of the contents of the stomach, and the pancreatic juices thus preserved in its normal state. It then only remains for the patient to eat a sufficient amount of fat-forming foods, and the thinness disappears and plumpness takes its place.

A RUNAWAY PROPHET

Jonah Strives to Escape an Unpleasant Duty.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. E. Edson.)

Scripture Application—Jonah, chapters 1 and 2.

SERMONETTE.

This story of Jonah, indorsed and confirmed by Christ himself, needs no further indorsement of scholar or critic to make it authentic to the minds of the devout and earnest students of God's word. The easiest and most reasonable way out of all the difficulties of the book is just to take it for what it says. It teaches many profound lessons, first of all, perhaps, being that of the wideness of God's plans and the narrowness of the conception of God's servants.

While God was concerned with all the world, and his heart had gone out in mercy and love to that great city of Ninaveh, his servant, Jonah, had so localized himself and so limited the mercy and blessing of God to the one nation of Israel that he could not for a moment conceive of the possibility of its being right or just to give Nineveh a chance.

Preach to Ninevah! Preposterous! And God's prophet was in a rage and sought to escape the discharge of the commission laid upon him.

There are a great many runaway disciples of God, it is to be feared; disciples whose narrow conception of God's work tempts them to avoid the service which would take them far from home and to a people and nation not their own.

Jonah needed a larger vision of God's purposes and plans, and so do we. The prayer: "Lord bless me, and my wife, bless my son John, and his wife, us four, and no more," must give place to the prayer which takes in all the world in that true spirit which makes one willing to go and follow up the prayer, in a life of service.

"Woe is unto me," cries Paul, "if I preach not the Gospel," and thrust out from his own nation and his own people he must needs carry God's world wide Gospel to the uttermost parts of the wide, wide world.

There are two consequences of Jonah's disobedience and attempt to escape doing what God had directed him to do. First, his own suffering and danger, and second, the great distress and peril into which his conduct plunged other people.

But out of this dark chapter in Jonah's history there shines the bright light of an unwavering faith in God, and his willingness to bear all blame and the consequences of his wrong-doing in ordar that the innocent might escape.

Even death in the sea did not restrain him from trying to right the wrong he had done to those innocent sailors, and so he urges them to cast him out, his faith in God being strong enough to assure him that come what might he could only afford to do that which was right. The reward of faith came in his remarkable preservation.

THE STORY.

THE prophecy which the prophet Jonah had spoken concerning the political revival of Israel and the recovery of the const line which years before had been lost to the hostile nations round about had proved a popular message, as was to be expected, and everywhere the prophet went he was enthusiastically received. His words inspired the people with the one purpose of bringing about that which the prophet had said should come to pass.

King Jereboam, who during the early part of his reign was inclined to rest content with the victories which his father had won, and who apparently had no military aspirations other than that of keeping what he already possessed, was at first disposed to receive the message of Jonah with skeptical mind, declaring that the recovery of the uttermost borders of Israel was impossible, for their enemies were strong and Israel's forces weak.

But as the popular feeling had risen and swept over the land, unifying the nation with the one impulse of regaining lost territory, he had caught the spirit of the movement, and was soon the most enthusiastic leader of the nation, displaying a military genius even greater than that which his father had shown before him.

Jonah watched these developments with profound satisfaction and gratitude to God. His message to the nation had been one to which his whole being had responded, for there was no more loyal or devoted Israelite in all the land than he. He knew his country's history, and he knew her needs, and had it not been that the spirit of God had laid hold of his inmost nature and held him for a religious life, he undoubtedly would have plunged into the army life and perhaps become one of the great leaders of the army of Israel.

As it was, however, in his office as prophet to the nation he was destined to play an important part, and he threw himself into the work of reviving the national spirit and unifying the forces of Israel. Back and forth through the length and breadth of the land he went preaching his message and arousing the people.

It was from one of these trips he had just returned to Samaria, and found the king had caught the spirit of the movement and was waiting to receive him and ask his counsel concerning the coming campaign. Jonah gave a careful report as to the conditions all through the land, of the enthusiasm of the people and of the rallying of the fighting men, so that every tribe and every section of the land had its body of soldiers to throw into the main army when the king should be ready to begin an aggressive military campaign.

It seemed to Jonah as he departed from the palace after the long conference that the prospect could not be brighter, nor the plans more perfectly laid, and when he reached his own humble dwelling he threw himself down upon his couch, not to sleep, but to dream of the glorious future which was opening up before the nation.

But the active brain and bounding heart must needs yield at last to the fatigue of the body, and the prophet slept. How long he lay thus he knew not, but as he slept a vision came to him of a great city and the voice of one standing and pointing towards the city sounded in his ear and he awoke.

All was still and the vision was gone, but as he lay in the darkness and listened for the voice he had heard in his dreams, and which seemed so real that he could scarcely believe that he had been asleep, he heard it again, saying:

"Arise, go to Nineveh, that great city, and cry against it; for their wickedness is come up before me."

Go and preach to Nineveh! Nineveh, the great, a hostile nation, whom Israel had reason to fear. Preach to Nineveh, to strengthen that city against his own, when he had just been going up and down through the land proclaiming the word of the Lord and calling on Israel to war against the nations round about and recover the territory lost years before? It fairly took his breath away, and as he strove to control the revulsion of feeling which rushed over him he drove his finger nails into the palms of his hands, so tightly did he clasp them.

Go to Nineveh! He could not! Why, is seemed like apostasy! He who had been preaching a message of hope and deliverance to his own nation, to turn to one of the great nations about and preach a message of warning! Why, it seemed incredible. What would the nation think of him? How would he be able to explain his conduct to the people and to the king?

So disturbed and excited was he that calm thought was impossible, and it did not occur to him that in obeying the commands of God it was not necessary to explain his conduct or offer any excuses. It was his part to obey, and God would take care of the consequences. But in his present state of mind he could consider only one side of the situation, and when he found no satisfactory answer to the questions which rose in his mind and was all at sea as to what course to pursue, he did what many another one has done, he fled.

It was still dark and the streets of the city were quiet and deserted. As he rushed onward and neared the city gate, he suddenly realized that it would be closed and the watchman set. Instinctively he felt he must not be seen of any in his flight, and when he was wondering how he could escape from the city without being seen he recalled a little gate in the wall near his own home, and thither he turned his footsteps. Once outside the city, the troubled thought occurred to him as to which way he should flee. With the command of God ringing in his ears he could not stay in his own land; to Nineveh he was quite determined not to go. Whither should he go?

"At least I will get as far from Nineveh as possible," he exclaimed, and altering his course he turned off towards the seacoast, and the next day, footsore and weary, he reached Joppa. And now whither, he asked himself, as he wandered through the streets of the city. As though by way of answer, his footsteps aimlessly led him down to the wharf where the shipping was anchored.

"The very thing," he exclaimed, as his eyes fell upon the vessel; "I will lose myself upon the sea." My countrymen will not know whither I have gone, and perhaps," he continued, doubtfully, "perhaps I will find that it was not God who spoke to me, after all."

Scatters Garden Seeds.

New Verb in France.

The French are adopting a new verb, "busiuer," meaning to transact affairs in a bold, bustling spirit. The fact that the verb is derived from the English word "business" may be taken as another tribute to the commercial superiority of the Anglo-Saxon.

KENTUCKY WILL BE OPEN FIELD

FOR CHILD EMPLOYMENT WHILE PREPARING FOR NEW LAW.

IT BECOMES EFFECTIVE IN SEPTEMBER.

In Meantime Children Who, Under Its Provisions, Must Give Up Their Employment, Can Secure Other Means of Livelihood.

Frankfort.—Kentucky is without a child labor law until September, when the new child labor bill, adopted at the last session of the legislature, will become a law. In the meantime those children who, under its provisions, must give up their employment, can secure other means of livelihood.

Many children are now employed in mines, factories and other places in which it will be unlawful for them to be employed under the provisions of the new law, and it was to give time for arranging for new conditions that the law was made effective in September instead of at the time all other laws of the last Assembly become operative.

June 16 is the date on which the bills passed by the last legislature, without an emergency clause, became effective. The new laws are unimportant in the main, being largely local, but there are several which are of general interest, affecting the whole state.

One of them is the poolroom bill, which makes it unlawful to operate except at a track where racing is actually in progress. The penalty for violations is severe. Another is the law which makes it unlawful for burial associations to do business in Kentucky except under certain conditions.

The only temperance measure which passed the last legislature is an act making it unlawful to sell liquor except to a licensed retailer or to a wholesaler in a prohibition district. The purpose of the law is to stop the sale in bulk by small distilleries in prohibition districts.

Among other bills that became laws are:

An act providing pay for persons summoned as jurors who are not selected as members of the jury.

An act to accept the provisions of an act of Congress allowing increased appropriations for the Agricultural Experiment Station.

An act abolishing registration of voters in cities of the fifth and sixth class.

An act to create an educational commission to investigate the needs of the schools of the state.

An act providing state aid for free tuberculosis hospitals.

An act appropriating $20,000 a year for two years for the erection of suitable buildings on the state fair grounds.

An act fixing a maximum fine of $100 for the sale of drugs in violation of the druggists' laws.

An act allowing fire insurance companies to be incorporated with a capital of $50,000.

An act repealing the law allowing the holding of Circuit Court in two towns in the same county.

An act changing the time of collecting taxes so that the penalty does not begin until December 1.

An act providing for the payment of election officers the same year as the election.

An act allowing unused money for school purposes to be applied to a succeeding term.

An act abolishing tax warrants.

An act authorizing fifth-class towns to issue refunding bonds to pay old debts.

An act providing that Fiscal Courts may use the poll taxes as applied to the road fund in any county.

An act to amend the constitution so as to allow the state to aid in building roads and to permit each county to issue additional bonds for road purposes.

An act to allow Fiscal Courts to appropriate money for the care and custody of courthouses.

An act changing the bonds of public officials so as to do away with the unlimited bond.

An act increasing the maximum liquor licenses in cities of the second-class to $500.

An act to prohibit poolrooms.

An act providing a penalty for the sale of pooled tobacco.

An act amending the provisions regulating the state normal schools.

An act to authorize Fiscal Courts to care for courthouses in cities of the second-class having Courts of continuous session.

An act requiring cities of the first-class to levy not less than 36 cents on each $100 property for school purposes.

An act reorganizing the system of common schools in Kentucky.

An act to regulate child labor.

An act known as the Juvenile Court bill, making changes in the present laws.

An act allowing Justices of the Peace to hold Court twice each month.

An act requiring dentists to practice under the name of some person, and not as an association of arbitrary title.

Reason.

Reason is that Homeric and golden chain descending from the throne of God even unto man, uniting heaven with earth, and earth with heaven. For all is connected, and without a cheam; from an angel to an atom, all is proportion, harmony and strength.

He Couldn't.

"Now, just tell the story in your own words," said the lawyer to the witness. "But I'm under oath, sin't I?" replied the frank witness.—Yonkers Statesman.

HOUND ON A LONG CHASE.

Followed a Fox for Five Days and Nights Over Cape Cod Sands.

Following close on the heels of a big gray fox, running for five days and nights, covering a distance of probably 200 miles through the woods and along the sandy shores of Cape Cod, only to have the fox escape by wearing him out, is the record of a hound four years old, one of three valuable dogs that a party of hunters recently took with them to hunt foxes in the woods at Wellfleet.

The dog chased the fox or perhaps several foxes—for it may have been switched off from one to another in its travels—and did not show up after starting the fox. After waiting for hours for the dog to return the hunters went back to the village, expecting the dog would give up the chase. Night came on and they became alarmed, fearing the dog had been lost.

A local gunner who accompanied the fox hunters into the woods said he would find the dog and ship him home the next day. Inquiries were made through the villages, but no one had seen the dog and it appeared as if he must have been drowned in crossing the swamps on the thin ice. At the end of five days a dog was seen following a big gray fox through the village of East Wareham.

The man who saw the fox as it limped through his back yard rushed into the house for his gun. As he came out he saw a hound limping along and vainly trying to bark; the fox had disappeared and the dog, which could hardly stand, dropped in its tracks nearly dead from exhaustion. The man gave the dog food and drink in small quantities and in a few days it seemed to be all right. On the collar was the name of the owner, to whom the man wrote, and in a few days he came after it. It was then learned that the dog started the fox in Wellfleet and for five days and nights had been chasing.

He had been seen chasing the fox at Ellisville, on the shores of Cape Cod bay, and near White Island in the cranberry district; he had crossed the harbors and rivers and had given up when nearly dead in East Wareham, 60 miles from where the hunt was started. It was said, "The dog was a mere skeleton and the fox seemed as if he had been running for a month."

There are instances on Cape Cod where dogs have followed foxes for days at a time, but none of the old gunners remembere any such performance as this one.—Forest and Stream.

Always the Unattainable.

Small William, whose stomach had been taking a day off, was trying to make a next morning breakfast on grapefruit.

"I wish," he said, looking enviously at the generous supply of food on his little sister's plate, "I was well enough to eat bacon and eggs, too."

"Huh!" exclaimed his little sister; "I wish I was sick enough to eat grapefruit!"

Value of Sugar.

Generally speaking, there is a prejudice against sugar which is not justified by physiological reasoning—at all events, when it is eaten in moderation; and it is a curious fact that the man who practically abstains from sugar, or reduces his diet to one almost free from carbohydrates in favor of protein foods, such as meat, often shows feeble muscular energy and an indifferent capacity for physical endurance.

Innovation in Politics.

The recent municipal elections in Paris were remarkable not only for the candidature of M. Lalce, who was soundly beaten, but for the first recorded candidature of a domestic servant. The liveried class is supposed to take on the political color of its surroundings and to be ultra-conservative as a rule, but this candidate stood as a republican socialist, and he is said to have been strongly supported by his kind.

ECZEMA ALL OVER HIM.

No Night's Rest for a Year and Limit of His Endurance Seemed Near —Owes Recovery to Cuticura.

"My son Clyde was almost completely covered with eczema. Physicians treated him for nearly a year without helping him any. His head, face, and neck were covered with large scabs which he would rub until they fell off. Then blood and matter would run out and that would be worse. Friends coming to see him said that if he got well he would be disfigured for life. When it seemed as if he could possibly stand it no longer, I used some Cuticura Soap, Cuticura Ointment, and Cuticura Resolvent. That was the first night for nearly a year that he slept. In the morning there was a great change for the better. In about six weeks he was perfectly well. Our leading physician recommends Cuticura for eczema. Mrs. Algy Cockburn, Shiloh, O., June 13, 1907."

Peace for Once.

"I tell you, Judson is a slick chap," laughed Silas Ryetop. "He took his wife to Washington and kept her in the congressional library four hours."

"What did he do that for?" asked Hiram Hardapple.

"Why, begosh, they fine you if you talk in that building, and for four hours she didn't speak a word."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Senator Bradley will now go away back and sit down for a season.

The injunction plank in the Republican platform was the cause of heated discussions in the committee room.

The camera was kept busy at the Chicago convention; and strange to relate it failed to catch the picture of any of the colored delegates.

From the way the Louisville editors abuse eachother the conclusion that brotherly love and professional courtesy is unknown to them is thoroughly justified.

This is congressional year, and candidates for nominations will make things lively now for the next two months. This district has a large number of receptive gentlemen.

Only a few days now until both the great national parties will be before the country with their candidates and platforms, and shortly thereafter Rome will begin to howl.

Mr. Bryan will have the same grip on the Denver convention that President Roosevelt had on the recent convention at Chicago. The two national conventions will be very similar in several respects.

The Kentucky editors enjoyed their annual outing, last week, Cerulean Springs being their headquarters. They had the usual good time and discussed many subjects of importance to the craft.

From the behavior of the Chicago convention it looks very much like Teddy could have had the presidential nomination for the asking. The mention of his name stirred up more enthusiasm than any of the others.

The Chicago convention, last week, was about the largest national convention ever held. Some of the reporters gave out that it was a very enthusiastic gathering, while others claim it was noted for a lack of enthusiasm.

It remains to be seen how much harmony the recent Democratic convention at Lexington injected into the party in Campbell and Kenton counties. It is claimed by some that in so far as these two counties are concerned they are immune, and love's labor on them was a clear waste.

The court of appeals holds that dogs are fit subjects for regulation under the police powers of the State, and that the State dog law is constitutional. In its opinion the court says that it is unquestionably within the power of the legislature to prohibit the ownership of dogs at all.

Senator Bradley is exerting himself in an effort to make the public believe that in Louisville Republican politics is as rotten as Democrat politics was but recently proven to be. The Senator is saying many evil things about Louisville Republicans and as he has been on the inside his charges have weight.

The Democrats are figuring on carrying Kentucky this fall by an old time majority, while the Republicans claim they will be able to hold the State in the Republican column. These conclusions are reached by the reasoning of rational minds, which see things from different political standpoints and are honest in their conclusions.

The Chemical National Bank, of New York, a temporary Government depository, has returned to the National Treasurer its public deposits with the explanation that the bank does not pay interest to depositors and that it would be required to pay interest on the Government deposit under the terms of the new currency act.

The Dry Ridge News says: "The calling of a Congressional primary or Convention in the Sixth District is still left in the dark and nobody knows just what the Committee proposes to do. Every country county in the district and probably half the voters in the city counties, favor a pri[illegible]y and unless a pri[illegible], is granted the "harmony" proceedings at Lexington will go for naught in the Sixth district. The voters believe in a square deal and no machine-made candidate can be elected, even if he does receive the Democratic nomination in a district normally several thousand Democratic."

R. P. Ernst, of Covington, failed in his aspirations to be Kentucky's representative on the Republican national committee, but he claims that one of his friends landed the honor. Marshall Bullitt, who aspired to the position of the chairmanship of the Kentucky Delegation at Chicago, last week, was sat upon, that honor going to Governor Willson. The Kentucky crowd at Chicago had a scrappy time.

Arthur Goebel, brother of Wm. Goebel, protests vigorously against any movement looking to the parole of Henry Youtsey, who is now serving a life sentence in the Kentucky Penitentiary for complicity in the assassination of Governor Goebel. In a letter written to W. P. Walton, editor of the State Journal, Mr. Goebel says that he trusts Mr. Walton will use his paper to break down any sentiment that may result over the pardon of Caleb Powers and Jim Howard.

A cyclone message got on the wires of the Waterloo telephone system, last Sunday afternoon, and caused considerable excitement down in that neighborhood. The wild message stated the cyclone would arrive about 9 o'clock that night, leaving death and destruction in its path, and people who had cellers were advised to take refuge therein. When nine o'clock came and the message proved a fake the people who had been considerable alarmed lapsed into their normal condition, and resumed their struggle with the the intense heat.

An effort was made in the Republican national convention at Chicago, last week, to cut down the representation of the southern States in future national Republican conventions. It brought on a vigorous debate, but the proposition was defeated by a close margin when the vote was taken. Gov. Willson distinguished himself when he made a speech against the minority report. His effort was voted one of the best speeches of the convention, and stemmed the tide for the southern contigent and won for him fame as a tactful politician and orator.

The train on the Q & C., known as the noon commuter, and which went south as far as Walton this county, has been taken off. It did a very light passenger traffic, it is claimed, but was a great convenience to a large territory, and especially to the citizens of Erlanger and Walton, who are bewailing the action of the railroad authorities. The discontinuance of the train revived the demand for a traction road at Erlanger, and numerous meetings of the citizens to devise plans and secure inducements for the construction of an electric line have been held. The people of Erlanger are thoroughly aroused on the transportation question, and if it is possible they will accomplish something towards bettering present conditions. Florence was also hit hard by the discontinuance of the noon commuter, and her citizens are organizing to assist in securing better accommodations for travel between that point and Covington and Cincinnati. With Erlanger and Florence pulling together they ought to be able to produce results.

State Treasurer Farley addressed a letter to W. W. McIlvain, Jailer of Mason county, one day last week, stating that the administration is endeavoring to pass through this year without calling an extra session of the Legislature to provide funds to carry on the government and because of the small amount now in the treasury numerous state warrants issued have been refused payment, and instructions given to hold them until the money comes in from Sheriff's settlements.

Only the most important and urgent warrants will be paid, and an extra session may have to be called to provide the funds. The Treasurer writes:

"When I assumed the duties of this office, on January 7, there was turned over to me something over $1,100,000, but on the morning of the 8th of the month, one day after taking office, there was presented a warrant for payment of in the neighborhood of $600,000, covering bills that ought to have been paid months before.

"This was followed in quick succession by other warrants for past due claims, until within three weeks after taking charge of the office, something like $900,000 was paid out on claims.

"This, together with current bills, left the treasury almost empty, and it has been a struggle since to keep the machinery of the state running. This will be the case until the Sheriffs begin to turn in taxes gathered this fall, after which time we hope to be able to meet warrants as they are drawn."

The condition of Kentucky's treasury is only another proof that figures produced by campaign orators are not to be depended on. In their speeches during the last State campaign the Democratic stump orators never permitted to escape an opportunity to tell their audiences about the $1,000,000 surplus there was in the State treasury but failed to say anything about there being enough outstanding claims to absorb it. These claims bobbed up directly after the conclusion of the campaign, and now the State is in financial distress. Cancealing a truth intentionally is as bad as telling a lie, especially under conditions that prevailed at the time it was being heralded up and down the State that there was a very large surplus in Kentucky's treasury.

Kansas has planned a tremendous religious revival for next October. Every town of 500 inhabitants is to be invaded by an army of ministers under the direction of professional evangelists. Every denomination in the State will take part in the attack on satan, for which purpose the State has been divided into sections.

It is seldom that crop prospects at this season of the year are as poor in Boone county as at present. Gardens look bad; corn is at all stages, some of it not having come up yet; meadows are very indifferent; wheat, which is a small crop, looks moderately well; potato crop the poorest in many years.

Local News.

The dust became very annoying last week.

The Society of Equity has sold all the 1906 trash, and has only the red tobacco of that crop.

Messrs. M. T. Garnett and A. O. Hall made a business trip to Cincinnati, one day last week.

Pastures in some places began to turn brown, last week, because of the continued dry weather.

Callie Baldon has given his engine a thorough overhauling to have it ready for the threshing season.

The case of Moore against Terrill in the court of appeals from this county, was affirmed one day last week.

Johnnie Gaar, of Bullittsville, was called to Louisville, last Thursday, on account of the illness of his mother who died that day.

A large auto with two occupants came in on the Petersburg pike, last Friday afternoon. The gentleman inquired the way to Florence.

In some parts of the State the wheat harvest was begun last week, the first days of which were very favorable to that class of work. Some localities report a fine crop.

The room in which the Burlington postoffice is kept was given a general renovating and overhauling last week, and with its new coat of paper it presents a very inviting appearance.

Fine weather, last week, for the clover harvest, and the farmers put away a considerable quantity of that food in good condition. It will come in very handy with a short crop of corn.

Bert Sullivan, overseer in Burlington road district, had a considerable force of hands out a few days last week repairing the road. He was making dirt fly in the neighborhood of Thomas Rouse's.

Quite a number of the Baptist brethren in this neighborhood attended the installation of deacons by the church at Belleview, last Thursday. R. O. Ryle, Tony Rue and T. J. Walton were installed.

The Dry Ridge News says Grant county growers will, in the next two or three weeks, receive about $250,000 on their pooled tobacco which has been sold. This will make money matters much easier in Grant.

It is said that Charles Westbay can hear a fish wagon horn for a distance of four miles, and if the wagon is headed for Burlington he cannot be induced to leave town before it arrives and he has made a purchase of a good supply of fish.

W. E. Vest, the Walton realestate agent, accompanied by Mr. Blau, was in Burlington, one day last week. Mr. Vest reported business good in his line, and he was just from a Cincinnati suburb where he had been to locate a $15,000 residence for a prospective purchaser.

The estimate of the Department of Agriculture on the June condition of the crops, with reports from every section of the United States, is that the crops of this year will exceed in value those of any year in our history as a country; being put at eight billions of dollars.

Not less than 20,000 extra harvest hands are wanted to save the Kansas wheat crop. From $2.50 to $3.50 a day is offered, but the laborers can not afford the expense of railroad fare, in most cases; so there is danger of great loss in leaving the crop standing till dead ripe in the field.

That crowd of men seen in Limaburg neighborhood last Wednesday night, apparently armed and equipped for mischief, were not night riders. It was only a band of good natured neighbors, who had assembled to pay their respects to a newly married couple by way of an old time charivari.

The Democratic committee of this the sixth congressional district will meet in Walton next Friday, the 26th inst., for the purpose of fixing the time, manner and place of nominating a candidate for congress. The probability is the meeting will be quite lively, as it is understood the committee is divided between a delegate convention and a primary election.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom Moore, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

Joseph Chambers, of Cincinnati, made his annual visit to his old home near Burlington, last Wednesday, where he spent the day very pleasantly with W. J. Rice and family. While here he visited the little city of the dead immediately north of town, where the inscriptions on the gravestones brought back to memory many of his associates and acquaintances of years ago. While spending a day in Burlington Mr. Chambers lives over many years of his early life. The few people here who are his acquaintances are always glad to have him among them.

In January, 1907, William Kirkpatrick, a Hopeful dealer in livestock, had loaded two cars at Erlanger, with heavy cattle for shipment to Cincinnati stock yards. The railroad failed to deliver them on time, causing them to go over from one day to the next day's market, causing their owner considerable trouble and a loss of weight in his cattle. Besides the price went off 25 cents on the 100 pounds from what it was the day they should have been on the market. Mr. Kirkpatrick sued the railroad for $100 damages. The cause was continued from time to time, not coming to trial until last Friday, when he was given a judgment against the railroad for $100 in Covington court.

Fatal Fall.

The following is copied from the Cincinnati Enquirer of last Thursday, and the unfortunate man mentioned therein was the son of R. B. Reed, formerly of Union, this county, a brother of Mrs. F. A. Hall, of Burlington: "Robert C. Reed, a painter, aged 33, either jumped out or fell out of the fourth story of his home, 1033 Central avenue, last night. He was so badly injured that his death occurred shortly after. Reed arose from bed about 10:30 o'clock and told his wife he was sick. He went to the front window and leaned out. When she failed to hear him return Mrs. Reed got up and looking out the window, saw her husband lying on the street. Patrol 1 was called and removed the injured man to the City Hospital. His skull was fractured and he died within an hour."

A beautiful home wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Glore, on Kenton street, Dayton, Campbell county, at 2 p. m., June 19th, Rev. R. D. Harding, of Dayton officiating. The bride, Miss Clara Glore, looked charming in a costume of tan French, batiste white. The groom, Mr. Arthur Blechschmidt, was arrayed in the conventional black. The parlor was decorated beautifully with palms and cut flowers. The guests were Mr. Marion McMullen and wife, and daughter, Miss Jose, of Dayton; Frank McMullen, of Los Angeles, Cala.; Miss Laura Muller, of Camp Washington, Ohio; Mrs. Jennie Youell, of Rising Sun, Indiana; and Master Clayton and Miss Ruth Clore. Immediately after the ceremony a dainty lunch was served. The bride is well known in Belleview, this county.

The Goodridge Reunion.

We are thankful to record the third reunion of the Goodridge family, held at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Goodridge, near Francesville, June 7th, 1908. The host and hostess, assisted by their daughter, Miss Flora, received the company with their usual glad welcome, for which they are noted, making everyone feel at home. There were about 100 present, being a greater number than have responded to the invitations heretofore. There were gathered together those from different parts of the county, and relatives and friends from Cincinnati. There were present 17 children and 10 grandchildren of Mr. Allen Goodridge, besides nephews, grandnieces, brother and many other relatives, and all of one accord gave evidence of a pleasant time.

The usual more than bountiful dinner was served in the yard, with everything good to eat, and the customary delicious cakes, among those most worthy of mention were prepared by the Misses Flora Goodridge and Grace Beall, being covered with an inscription suggestive of the day. One of the important features of the afternoon was, of course, the pictures, kindly executed by Mr. Hubert Conner, one for which the writer is very grateful. Some went boating, others grouped for pleasant chats or to listen to the graphophone brought by Mr. Conner. The supper was served.

This was indeed a happy day for all present, made so by the jovial manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Goodridge entertained.

When, at the close of the day, we took our departure, feeling glad so many were present, we extended to the family our best wishes for many happy returns of the day.

The family will meet at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Goodridge, Jr., near Hebron, next year.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. In Memory of Mrs. Nancy Nichols.

Nancy Willis Dicken, daughter of Rev. James and Peggann (Cloud) Dicken, was born December 10th, 1826, died May 28th, 1908, after an illness of nearly three weeks, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Lystra Smith. She was married to Leicester Nichols, February 28th, 1849. To this union were born five children, four of whom are still living. Mrs. Nichols was a member of no church, but the life she lived was a beautiful example and we believe that of a christian woman. She bore her sufferings patiently and was always pleased with what was done for her, and when Jesus said, "come," she said not a word but passed from this world into the next like one falling into a peaceful slumber. The remains were laid to rest in the Petersburg cemetery, May 30th, amid a large number of sorrowing friends and relatives. The pall bearers were Bert, Henry and Willis Smith, Less Nichols, Irvin Rue and Blanton Pope.

Sleep on dear graudma, take thy rest,
Jesus called thee from us, but he knows best.
All thy sorrows on earth are oer,
Let the joys of Heaven be more.
Soon our work on earth will be done,
Then we will meet thee one by one.
The golden gate was opened, a gentle voice said come, and with farewell's unspoken. She calmly entered home."

Card of Thanks—We wish to thank the many friends and neighbors for their kind help during the last illness and death of a companion and mother.

Leicester Nichols and Children.

Postal cards were printed at this office, last Friday, to send out in an effort to apprehend the thief, who on the night of the 16th inst., stole a mare from the pasture of W. Lee Cropper, of Idlewild, and a buggy and harness from O. P. Phipps, of Bullittsville. Following is a description of the property: "A dark brown mare, about sixteen hands high, heavy built, weighs about 1100 pounds, 12 to 14 years old; mane lays smoothly on left side, medium length, black bushy, tail, some white on right hind foot, wart on nose, in good flesh. Also open buggy, red running gear, black body, spring fastening on single-tree. Also buggy harness, with letter "A" in roset on each blind of bridle. $30.00 will be paid for apprehension of thief and property. All information should be sent to M. F. Wingate, Sheriff Boone County, Burlington, Ky.

The gayest party of young people that has left the town in quite a while composed the hay-ride to Florence, last Wednesday evening. The party was chaperoned by Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Renaker, and the trip was a feast of fun from start to finish. It was about eleven o'clock that night when the party returned. Earl and Russell Smith furnished the conveyance for the trip. Those who went were Mr. and Mrs. A. B Renaker, Misses Sheba, Susan and Mary Roberts, Maud Hume, Nellie Martin, Nellie Kirkpatrick, Jennie Lee Castleman; Messrs. Earl and Russell Smith, Dudley Blyth, Thos. Fowler, Howard Kirkpatrick, Otto Crisler.

Our New Hair Vigor

Ayer's Hair Vigor was good, the best that was made. But Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula, is better. It is the one great specific for falling hair. A new preparation in every way. New bottle. New contents. Ask your druggist to show it to you, "the new kind."

Does not change the color of the hair.

Ayer's

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

As we now make our new Hair Vigor it does not have the slightest effect upon the color of the hair. You may use it freely and for any length of time without fear of changing the color. Stops falling hair. Cures dandruff.

Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

The success of the Bullittsville wool pool, this year, will be an incentive for many of the farmers to enter the pool next year. It increased the price of wool 3½ cents a pound for those who were in the pool, demonstrating what a pool can do.

The directors of the Florence fair are endeavoring to secure some special attractions for the entertainment of their patrons this year. They have gone after two or three that would have proved very popular with the public but were unable to secure them, they having been previously engaged for the entire season.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold," writes B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

The inauguration of an exchange at Walton by the Consolidated Telephone Company will prove a very great convenience to the company's patrons in Kenton county and in a large Boone county territory, and will reduce to some extent the demands on the exchanges at Burlington and Beaver. The company has been improving its system ever since the consolidation, and this last change is the master stroke to date. The exchange at Walton is operated by Miss Graham Roberts with Mrs. Maud Smilley as her assistant.

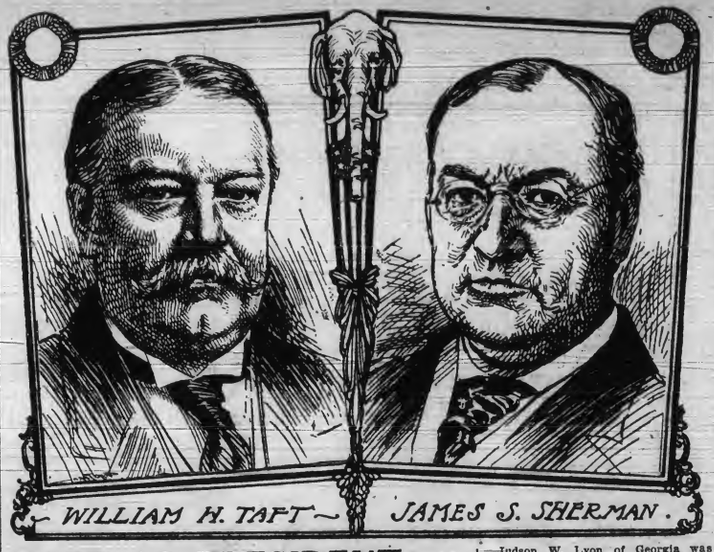
Rats—A National Pest.

Rats cost the United States nearly $56,000,000 annually, according to the biological survey of the department of agriculture. At this amount the government scientists estimate the damage done by the rodents and after exhaustive experiments it has been determined that the pests cannot be exterminated. All that science can hope to do is to hold them within bounds, and to do this nothing more satisfactory has been discovered than the old-fashioned rat trap, says Technical World. Inoculation and all other methods, it has been established to the satisfaction of the scientists who have studied the situation, are not equal to the trap in the work of destruction. The amount of damages given by Dr. C. Hart Merriam, chief of the survey, is conservative and doubtless below the figures. While he estimates that $1,000,000 of the fire loss of the country is traceable to rats, the underwriters place it at 15 times that sum of which $1,000,000 is due to the gnawing away of insulation on electric wires. Special attention has been given by the government investigators to conditions in Washington. The whole underworld of the capital city, Mr. Merriam says, is populated with rats—millions of them. Washington loses each year from rats, aside from the fires for which they are responsible, $200,000 in damage done in markets, shops and department stores. Some of these places employ professional rat catchers, with ferrets and small dogs, but this method Dr. Merriam finds is unsatisfactory, since few rats are killed, and the expense is great.

The Doctor Habit.

One of the tendencies of ill health is to make one morbid. People who are constantly thinking about their ailments, worrying about their troubles, suffering pain, often develop a morbid passion for sympathy. They want to tell everybody of their aches and pains, to describe their symptoms. Have you ever known a woman who has acquired the doctor habit, a woman who loves nothing in the world quite so well as an opportunity to tell the doctor of her ailments? says Success Magazine. She has poured them out to unwilling ears, to forced listeners, till she longs for some one who can really appreciate it all, who sympathizes with her in her troubles, so she sends for the doctor, or goes to see him. This becomes almost a mania with some women, who have few outside activities to divert them. Their minds naturally revert to themselves, and they think of their unfortunate condition until they become saturated with the poisoned thought.

Great interest has been taken by all who are studying the problems of employment and labor in the compulsory arbitration laws of New Zealand. For a time the new system worked finely. A law which made both strikes and lockouts punishable offenses, which sent every question between employer and employed to a labor court and made both parties to submit to its decisions—such a law seemed to promise an ideal condition. But of late there have been several serious strikes, and the men refuse to be bound by the court decisions. The most recent strike arose because certain mine-owners who proposed to reduce their force, having themselves selected the men who were to be dismissed, refused to reinstate those men and pay them for the time lost, and to allow the union to designate by ballot who should be discharged. The employers were willing to arbitrate the question thus raised, but the miners were unwilling, and when their demands were refused they struck.



The government, through the department of agriculture, is making a series of experiments to show what effect automobile travel has on roads—the theory being that they are road destroyers. Results of the investigation will be submitted to the international road congress which will meet in Paris next October. If it is proved that the vehicle really injures the roads to the degree charged it is thought that the various states will take steps to compel their owners to pay a larger tax than now—this is to be used for the purpose of repairing the roads. This inquiry seems, on the whole, to be rather unfair in view of the fact that automobile owners everywhere are enthusiastic promoters of the good roads movement.

A man in Connecticut applying for a dog license was given a marriage one instead, and to his great surprise found himself a benedict. In all the proposed experiments of trial marriages this is probably the first to suggest its being "tried on the dog."

Secretary Wilson is the only cabinet officer who, after serving through four administrations, wants to retire. Oh, well, even the most successful old farmer likes to abandon agriculture and move to town.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET

For President. For Vice-President.

WILLIAM H. TAFT — JAMES S. SHERMAN.

TAFT AS PRESIDENT; SHERMAN FOR MATE, IS REPUBLICAN SLATE

Convention at Chicago Selects National Ticket and Adjourns--Wild Enthusiasm on Nomination of Ohioan--Demonstration for Theodore Roosevelt

Chicago, — Taft and Sherman. This is the ticket of the Republican party flung to the breeze Friday as the Republican national convention concluded with the nomination of James S. Sherman of New York for vice-president amid a final roar of tumultuous demonstration.

Scene of Wild Enthusiasm.

The picture within the walls of the vast amphitheater as the presidential candidate was named Thursday was one truly gradiose in its magnitude. In front, to the right and left, below and above, the billowing sea of humanity, restless after hours of waiting and stirred from one emotion to another, was in a fever of expectancy for the culminating vote. The favorite sons of other states had been named, save Knox and La Follette, and now on the roll call came Ohio.

As the Buckeye state was reached, the tall, gaunt form of Theodore E. Burton, with student-like face and severe black clerical garb, advanced to the platform to nominate Ohio's candidate. He spoke fervently, with the singing voice of an evangelist, which went ringing through the great building. The close of his speech of nomination was the signal for loosing the long pent-up feeling of the Taft legions. Instantly the Ohio delegates were on their feet, other Taft states following, while the convention hosts, in gallery and on floor, broke into mad demonstration. For 10, 15, 20 minutes, this uproar continued. At last the tired voices died down to a hoarse shout, and subsided.

Seconded by Knight.

This lull now gave the opportunity for the speech seconding Taft's nomination, by George H. Knight of California, his big, round face beaming forth on the sympathetic multitude, and his splendid baritone voice welling forth like the tones of a great church organ. California's tribute to Taft was brief and fervid. Now there was another lull in the Taft movement, while the remaining candidates were placed in nomination.

It was late in the afternoon before the convention, now literally sweltering with the intense heat and weary after nearly seven hours of continuous session, reached the end of the flood of eloquence and the decks were at last cleared for the culminating act.

Demonstration for La Follette.

But, no; just as the last swell of oratory, the seconding speech for La Follette, had died away, like a cyclone from a clear sky burst a La Follette demonstration which swept the convention from its very bearings. It was the same deafening wave of sound that had greeted Roosevelt Wednesday and Taft a little while before, intense and maddening and with the real ring of genuine enthusiasm. It seemed as though Wisconsin had suddenly peopled every foot of the galleries. The delegates sat calm and waiting, except the frantic Wisconsins, but the convention for the time being was in the possession of the galleries.

Now a singular transformation occurred—gradually the whirlwind veered from La Follette to Roosevelt. Amid this pandemonium, and with the galleries in full control, Chairman Lodge decided upon heroic action in order again to make the convention master of its affairs. He ordered the roll call of states to begin for the vote on president. Such a call, under such circumstances of intense confusion, has probably never before occurred in the history of national conventions. The secretary was powerless to make his call of the states heard above the deafening clamor. Seizing a megaphone he shouted the roll of states—Alabama, Arkansas—but his voice was swallowed up in the mad uproar. Gradually, however, the curiosity of the multitude conquered their enthusiasm, and they lapsed into silence to hear the result of the roll call.

A hush of expectancy hung over the assembly as the call proceeded. Hasty summaries showed that Taft was far in advance. When New York was reached the Taft column totaled 427. Ohio carried the Taft total to 511, or 20 more than enough to nominate. Still the call went on until the final result was announced by Chairman Lodge:

"For Theodore Roosevelt, 3 votes; for Joseph B. Foraker of Ohio 16 votes; for Charles W. Fairbanks of Indiana, 40 votes; for Joseph Cannon of Illinois, 61 votes; for Robert La Follette of Wisconsin, 25 votes; for Charles E. Hughes of New York, 63 votes; for Philander C. Knox of Pennsylvania, 68 votes, and William H. Taft of Ohio, 702 votes.

A great shout went up as Lodge concluded his announcement, and with one accord the cohorts of Cannon and Knox and Hughes and the other heroes, joined in a common tribute for the candiate of the party.

Sherman for Second Place.

The nomination for the vice-presidency was not made until Friday. When the convention adjourned for the day Thursday the situation regarding second place on the ticket was decidedly unsettled, but before the delegates met Friday an arrangement had been perfected for the Taft delegates to support Representative James S. Sherman of New York as the running mate of the secretary of war.

Three names were placed in nomination when the chairman announced that nominations were in order. Sherman was named as New York's choice by Tim Woodruff, former lieutenant governor of the state; Gov. Curtis Guild of Massachusetts was placed in nomination by Senator Lodge, and Ex-Gov. Franklin Murphy of New Jersey was named by Thomas N. McCarter. Several brief seconding speeches were made for each candidate.

When the roll call was begun it was soon seen that Sherman was the popular choice of the delegates. When enough votes had been cast to insure his nomination Senator Crane of Massachusetts moved that it be made unanimous and it was carried with a shout of approval.

The usual motions of acknowledgment to the officers of the convention and to the city in which it was held were then passed.

Judson W. Lyon of Georgia was recognized to make the motion to adjourn without day. It was put into effect at 11:47 a. m. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner," the delegates rapidly left the hall and the convention of 1908 had made its way into history.

Roosevelt Demonstration.

The second day of the Republican national convention brought the long-expected Roosevelt yell, a whirlwind of enthusiasm which raged within the vast amphitheater of the Coliseum for full 45 minutes Wednesday, and for a time presented to the timid the specter of a Roosevelt stampede.

This demonstration was decidedly the feature of a day otherwise notable for a stirring speech from the permanent chairman of the convention, Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts, for much practical procedure in placing the convention on a smooth running basis, and for the final defeat of the plan to reduce the representation of southern states at future national conventions.

Mr. Lodge early in his address launched his sentence which electrified the assemblage into its first real demonstration of wild enthusiasm.

"The president," exclaimed Mr. Lodge, "is the best abused and most popular man in the United States today."

This was the long awaited signal. Instantly a shout broke from the galleries and was echoed back from the floor, at first only a tempest of detached yells, and cat-calls, and shouts of "Teddy," but gradually gathering force and volume until it swelled to a whirlwind of sound and motion, as delegates and spectators rose en masse, mounting chairs, waving banners, hats, handkerchiefs, flags, newspapers, anything which could be seized upon to add turbulence to the scene.

PLATFORM AT A GLANCE.

Roosevelt—

The abuse of wealth, the tyranny of power, and the evils of privilege and favoritism have been put to scorn by him. We pledge a continuance of the Roosevelt policies.

Anti-injunction—

The Republican party will uphold the authority of the courts, but believes the rules of procedure in federal courts with respect to injunctions should be more accurately defined by statute, and that no injunction should be issued without notice.

Labor—

The same wise policy will be pursued to lighten the burdens of all who toil.

Tariff—

The Republican party declares for a revision of tariff by a special session of congress. We favor the establishment of maximum and minimum rates.

Money—

An expanding commerce . . . and increasing crop movements disclose the need of a more elastic and adaptable system.

Trusts—

The government should have greater supervision over corporations engaged in interstate commerce.

Inland Waterways—

We call for a large and comprehensive plan to improve the waterways, harbors, and great lakes.

Army and Navy—

While the American people do not desire and will not provoke a war with any other country, we nevertheless declare our devotion to a policy which will keep this republic ready at all times to defend her traditional doctrines.

Good Roads—

We approve the efforts of the agricultural department in good road construction.

Negroes—

We condemn all devices for the disfranchisement of the negro.

Republican Policy—

The difference between Democracy and Republicanism is that one stands for vacillation and timidity in government, the other for strength and purpose. Democracy would have the people own the people, while Republicanism would have the people of the nation.

REASON OF THE MAD PASTOR

RETURNS AS HE LIES DYING, DUE TO THE BULLETS

Which Parishioners He Had Attacked Fired—Last Words of Clergyman Those of Forgiveness.

Hermann, Mo., June 22.—"Father, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Riddled with bullets and buckshot from the guns of a dozen members of his congregation, Rev. Valentine Strauss, of the German Evangelical church, returned to sanity, and with his last words prayed for the kneeling and bareheaded men who had killed him. They have been exonerated.

Rev. Strauss became insane two months ago, with homicidal mania. He began roaming the country at night with a rifle swung over his shoulder. From crags and treetops he fired at men, women and children.

Most of the time he missed, but on four occasions his aim was good and three men and a woman were hurt, but not seriously.

His wife and five children escaped from his mania until just before his death, when he started from his home at Stople, 14 miles southwest of here, for Frederickburg, three miles from here, with intent to kill. His wife ran before him, shouting a warning to neighbors.

At the blacksmith shop of Max Knieche, where the tragedy took place, she was but a few hundred feet in front of her husband. She shouted warnings to the men in the shop as Strauss turned and fired at her. He missed. Then he turned his rifle on Knieche. Again he missed.

Knieche and a dozen armed men who were in the forge with him, ran forward toward the minister, who was preparing to fire again. Six double barreled shotguns fired their contents into his body, and an equal number of rifles blazed out bullets into the mad clergyman's body.

Although wounded in half a dozen places the dying pastor staggered across the road into a pasture and sank under a large tree, where he had held his first religious service in Gasconade county.

His slayers ran forward and surrounded him. Strauss' head was pillowed on his wife's lap.

The light of reason gleaned in his fast-glazing eyes for the first time in two months. He said a few words to his wife and then turned his eyes to the bareheaded men kneeling about him, with the still smoking guns by their sides. He looked at the weapons, then at the men, crossed his hands over his breast and died with the words of forgiveness on his lips.

LAST KISS OF TWO WOMEN

Came Near Proving Fatal To Baby—Saved By a Deck Hand.

Burlington, N. J., June 22.—One too many kisses had almost fatal results when the big steamer Columbia docked at the Burlington wharf with a crowd of Philadelphia excursionists Sunday.

As two fashionably dressed women, Mrs. John Collins and Mrs. James Harper, were saying good-by on the gang plank and leaned toward each other for the last kiss, the baby daughter of one of the women slipped from her arms and dropped into the river.

Cries of horror went up from a hundred throats and women fainted, while the hysterical mother had to be restrained from leaping overboard.

A deck hand dropped from the plank, swung by one arm from a beam of the wharf and seized the dress of the baby, as she rose to the surface.

Ladies Will Act as White Wings.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—Four society women will put on "white wings" suits next Wednesday and spend the day cleaning the streets and alleys of St. Louis. Each one will be assigned to a district and she will have all the school children of that district and a lot of men from the city street cleaning department, with the necessary wagons, to assist her in cleaning it of its rubbish and dirt.

Saved From Starvation and Drowning.

St. Louis, Mo., June 22.—Attracted by cries, a fisherman rowed to a farmhouse and found William Butterwick and his family of seven standing on the second floor with the flood up to their necks. The father was holding the baby aloft to save it from drowning. The family was rescued in a starving condition. The heroic fisherman disappeared, refusing to give his name.

She's a Flyer.

San Francisco, June 22.—The battleship Georgia, officers and crew, continue to maintain that they have the fastest battleship in the navy. On her trip from Bremerton navy yards, concluded Saturday evening, it is asserted that the Georgia for four consecutive hours along the California coast kept up a speed of 19.5 knots.

Jocky Killed in Texas.

Waco, Tex., June 22.—As a result of an accident, in which several race horses fell, a boy named "Sticks" Moore was killed and another rider name Mike McNamara, said to be a negro, was fatally hurt.

Circus Horses Killed.

Bismarck, N. D., June 22.—The Colt mar Brothers' circus train Sunday collided with an engine at Medina, seven miles east of here, on the Northern Pacific. Twenty-four draught horses were killed and one man slightly injured.

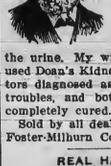
One of the Essentials

of the happy homes of to-day is a vast fund of information as to the best methods of promoting health and happiness and right living and knowledge of the world's best products.

Products of actual excellence and reasonable claims truthfully presented and which have attained to world-wide acceptance through the approval of the Well-Informed of the World; not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and obtaining the best the world affords.

One of the products of that class, of known component parts, an Ethical remedy, approved by physicians and commended by the Well-Informed of the World as a valuable and wholesome family laxative is the well-known Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

NO, BUT HE USED TO BE.



"Are you interested in things psychical, Mr. Dubbs?

"No, Miss Culchaw; I haven't wheeled any since the chainless-geared safety came in."

VETERAN OF THREE WARS,

A Pioneer of Colorado and Nebraska.

Matthias Campbell, veteran of the Civil War and two Indian wars, and a pioneer of Colorado, now living at 218 East Nebraska street, Blair, Neb., says: "I had such pains in my back for a long time that I could not turn in bed, and at times there was an almost total stoppage of the urine. My wife and I have both used Doan's Kidney Pills for what doctors diagnosed as advanced kidney troubles, and both of us have been completely cured."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

REAL HARD LUCK.

He—Then I am to understand that you absolutely reject my offer?

She—There is really nothing else for it.

He—Well, I think it very selfish of you. Here, I've actually gone and purchased a guide for our honeymoon.

One of Bill Nye's.

Referring to a real estate transaction made by one Peter Minuit, way back in the year 1628, Bill Nye, in his history of the United States, declared:

"New York was afterwards sold for $24; the whole island. When I think of this I go into my family gallery, which I also use as a swear room, and tell those ancestors what I think of them. Where were they when New York sold for $24?"

The humor of this strikes deeply when one stops to consider what has been the outcome of this original investment. Peter Minuit, with trinkets and a few hottles of rum, so delighted the native Indians that they gladly turned over to him the whole of Manhattan island, now the heart of Greater New York.—"New York, the Giant City," National Magazine.

FULLY NOURISHED

Grape-Nuts a Perfectly Balanced Food.

No chemist's analysis of Grape-Nuts can begin to show the real value of the food—the practical value as shown by personal experience.

It is a food that is perfectly balanced, supplies the needed elements of brain and nerves in all stages of life from the infant, through the strenuous times of active middle life, and is a comfort and support in old age.

"For two years I have used Grape-Nuts with milk and a little cream, for breakfast. I am comfortably hungry for my dinner at noon.

"I use little meat, plenty of vegetables and fruit in season, for the noon meal, and if tired at tea time, take Grape-Nuts alone and feel perfectly nourished.

"Nerve and brain power, and memory are much improved since using Grape-Nuts. I am over sixty and weigh 155 lbs. My son and husband seeing how I have improved are now using Grape-Nuts.

"My son, who is a traveling man, eats nothing for breakfast but Grape-Nuts and a glass of milk. At over 70 seems fully nourished on Grape-Nuts and cream." "There's a Reason."

Round About the State

What Is Going On in Different Sections of Kentucky.

FIVE RELEASED

In One Day As Result of Visit of Gov. Cox To State Prison.

Frankfort, Ky.—As a sequence of the visit of Acting Gov. Cox to the penitentiary there were a number of aged and infirm prisoners pardoned.

Among those released were Harry Miles, colored, sent up 23 years ago from Louisville to serve a life sentence; Granville Saylor, of Lincoln county, sent for ten years on a charge of arson; Ben Smith, of Scott county, who is dying with consumption; J. P. Hash, of Larue county, convicted of manslaughter, and Benton Brown, of Monroe county, also convicted of manslaughter.

Gov. Cox appointed W. C. Halbert special judge of Carter circuit court to try a civil case in which the regular judge was disqualified.

EFFECT OF POLITICS

On Public School System Discussed By Superintendent Sluss, of Covington.

Frankfort, Ky.—The first day's session of the 37th annual meeting of the Kentucky State Teachers' association was attended by hundreds of teachers from every section of the state.

Prominent instructors were present, and no address was more appreciated than that of Superintendent Homer O. Sluss, of the Covington schools, who told of the evil which has come from "partisan politics and the schools."

$112,000 Tobacco Sale.

Frankfort, Ky.—Officers of the Tobacco association here received news that the Burley society had concluded the sale of 7,000 hogsheads of 16-cent tobacco, one of the highest grades. This means $112,000 will be distributed to the members of the Equity society who had their crops in the pool. The sale was made to one party, whose name is not given, but believed to be a broker acting for one of the big manufacturing companies.

Dr. Gardinar Appointed.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The state board of control has announced that Dr. T. W. Gardiner, of Madisonville, Ky., will succeed Dr. J. P. Stephens, the present superintendent of the Western Kentucky asylum for the insane, July 1. Another appointment has been announced by the board, that of Mr. Pate, of Breckenridge county, to succeed Ell Berry as steward of the asylum.

Frightfully Stung By Bees.

Lexington, Ky.—Russell Evans, 10, son of Albert Evans, of Bourbon county, was so frightfully stung by honey bees that he may die. Two hives of swarming bees settled upon a branch of a peach tree. The boy ran to the tree to see the bees when the limb broke and precipitated the mass of honey-makers upon him.

Implicates Others.

Paducah, Ky.—At the trial of Burnett Phelps, Otis Blick testified at Benton. He displayed a gunshot wound in his shoulder, which, he said, he received in the Birmingham raid, and produced one of the masks worn that night. He said Dr. John Champion, of Lyon county, Burnett Phelps and Sam Colty led the raid.

Will Try To Prove An Alibi.

Lexington, Ky.—Alleged night riders from Robinson county, who are claimed to be members of the gang who attacked Marcial Haley, near Cynthiana, last February, were arraigned in the Harrison circuit court. Kenton, Fowle, Brown and Mcgee, who asked to be tried together, will try to prove an alibi.

Officials To Play Ball.

Frankfort, Ky.—A baseball game in which Acting Gov. Cox will take part, is planned to take place in this city. The state officials propose challenging the city and county officials, the proceeds to go to charity. Gov. Willson, while an enthusiastic golf player, is not much of a fan, and will be called on to umpire the game.

Caught At Louisville.

Louisville, Ky.—Clint Rodman, colored, was arrested here, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Biechlein, white, at Evansville, Ind., by throwing her into Pigeon creek. He acknowledged that he had known the woman, but claimed that she threw herself into the creek.

Entertained the Editors.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The members of the Kentucky Press association, in annual reunion at Cerulean Springs, were the guests of this city. They arrived on a special train about 200 strong, and were entertained at the Hotel Latham and afterward an informal reception was held.

Aged Kentuckian Dies.

Louisville, Ky.—John A. Crawford, member of a prominent Kentucky family, died here at the age of 90 years. He was formerly a tobacco manufacturer and banker. He is survived by several children.

Gave Acid For Medicine.

Louisville, Ky.—Through a mistake in giving carbolic acid for medicine, Mrs. Harry Saunders, wife of a machinist, is prostrated with grief, while her daughter, aged 12, is thought to be dying from the effect of the acid.

SALOONIST KILLS POLICEMAN,

Crowd of 500 Tries to Take Prisoner From Officers—Deputies Sworn in.

Covington, Ky.—Twenty-five citizens of Latonia, Ky., were deputized as constables to quell a crowd of 500 persons that made threats against Scott W. Hopkins, a saloonkeeper of that town, after he had shot and killed Patrolman Frank Duncan, 50.

Duncan entered Hopkins' saloon and got into an altercation with the proprietor. The policeman declared he would arrest Hopkins for violating the midnight law.

Witnesses say Hopkins fired five times at the officer, two bullets taking effect over Duncan's heart and one other entering his head. The other two bullets lodged in the wall of the building. Patrolman Duncan had drawn his revolver, but it fell to the floor unused.

Dr. Winnes was called, but found that Duncan was dead. Duncan's friends organized, declaring they would [illegible]m. They gathered outside the saloon. Chief of Police Hamlin and Patrolmen Penick, Heasler, Dorsey and Sullivan took Hopkins to a room over his own cafe and guarded him.

Sheriff Davidson, of Kenton county, arrived on the scene with six deputies. These, reinforced by the specials that had been sworn in, gradually dispersed the crowd. Hopkins was taken to the Kenton county jail.

Shot At His Doctor.

Glasgow, Ky.—The report of a sensational encounter at Gamaliel is that Johnson York attempted to kill Dr. O. P. Hamilton. It is said the trouble grew out of an operation which Hamilton was to have performed on a son of the Yorks. He went to the home of Hamilton, and calling the physician to the yard, fired two shots at him, both going wild.

Witnesses Under Escort.

Marion, Ky.—County Attorney Walter Krone, of Lyon county, arrived here with Standford Hall and Mrs. Minnie Dean, who will testify as to night riding before the Crittenden grand jury. They were accompanied by soldiers. Hall recently confessed at Eddyville, implicating many in Lyon and Crittenden counties.

Jury Disagrees in Rider Case.

Paducah, Ky.—Being unable to agree, the jury in the night-rider case against Burnett Phelps was dismissed at Benton. Four of the jury stood for acquittal. A similar case against Sam Colley was given to the jury, and the general opinion is that it will fail to agree.

But It Wasn't.

Frankfort, Ky.—Snugly hidden in the stocking worn by Jane Davis, was found a bottle of whisky, when she was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Between sobs, she explained that she thought her whisky would certainly be safe where she hid it.

Likes Kentucky Soldiers.

Beattyville, Ky.—Capt. W. N Hughes, of the U. S. A., with Capt. R C. McCracken, of the state militia, arrived here for the purpose of inspecting the local company of militia. Capt. Hughes was favorably impressed with the efficiancy of the company.

Special Judges Named.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Cox appointed D. H. Lindsey and T. L. Edelen, of this city, special judges of the appellate court, to sit in the case of the Louisville Home Telephone Co. against the city of Louisville. Chief Justice O'Rear and Judge Lassing will not sit.

Shot By Her Brother.

Frankfort, Ky.—Capt. R. C. McCracken, of the state board of survey, was notified from his home, at Greeneville, that his 12-year-old daughter had been shot and instantly killed by her 9-year-old brother while the children were playing with a shotgun.

Harrodsburg Celebrates Anniversary.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—With speechmaking and an old-fashioned basket dinner, the 134th anniversary of the founding of Harrodsburg was celebrated at Shawnee Springs. The principal address was delivered by Col. J. Stoddard Johnson, of Louisville.

Kentucky Marshal Indicted.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Upon an indictment returned by the grand jury Cano Warders, of Waters, as the indictment reads, former city marshal of Gracey, was arrested on the charge of complicity in the night riders' raid on this city on December 6.

Ownership Changed.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Kentucky Midland, from Central City to Madisonville, a distance of 26 miles, has passed into new hands. Articles of incorporation of the new company, which retains the old name, were filed.

To Attend Annual Sessions.

Louisville, Ky.—The Kentucky delegation to the national convention of the Federation of Woman's clubs, left to attend the annual sessions at Boston, Mass. Forty leading women of the state were in the party.

Prison At Eighty-Five.

Williamsburg, Ky.—C. L. Cook, 85, a herb doctor, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary for killing his wife about three years ago. He was sent to an asylum just after the crime, and was returned cured.

"THE MAN BEHHIND THE GUN."

BLACK HAND MEN ARE SHOT

THREE KILLED, ONE WOUNDED IN NEW ORLEANS.

Wealthy Italian Merchant and His Son Dine the Blackmailers and Then Open Fire on Them.

New Orleans.—A "Black Hand" tragedy with the unusual sequel that all the blackmailers, numbering four, were killed or wounded, while their victims escaped without a scratch, was enacted here Wednesday in the historic former home of Gen. Beauregard in the French quarter, and now the residence of Pietro Giacona, a wine merchant, reputed to be one of the wealthiest Italians in the south.

Giacona is 61 years old and how he and his son, Carrada, managed to kill three armed and desperate men is not yet clear to the police. It is certain that the Giaconas invited the blackmailers into their house and wined and dined them for several hours before the shooting. The Giaconas claim that the unusual feast was practically forced on them and that they did not shoot until after one of their guests had opened fire. The dead are Giovanni Barreca, Ciro Cusimano and one unidentified Italian.

The wounded man is Francisco Vattali of St. Louis. Vattali claims to have been shot while passing Giacona's house, leaving the possibility that the fourth guest may have escaped, despite his wounds.

MRS. FARMER CONVICTED.

Murderer of Mrs. Brennan Sentenced to Be Electrocuted.

Watertown, N. Y.—Guilty of murder in the first degree was the verdict of the jury Friday in the case of Mrs. Mary Farmer, charged with the killing of Mrs. Sarah Brennan. Justice Rogers sentenced Mrs. Farmer to be electrocuted at Auburn prison during the week beginning August 2.

The crime for which Mrs. Farmer, who is 29 years old, was convicted was most fiendish. Her victim, who was 55 years old, was her neighbor and intimate friend, and the motive was to gain possession of the Brennan home, deeds of which Mrs. Farmer had forged.

CONGRESSMAN WILEY DIES.

Representative from Alabama Who Saw Service In Cuba.

Hot Springs, Va.—Representative A. A. Wiley of Alabama, who served in Cuba as Gen. Lawton's chief of staff and as civil governor of the eastern province, and a member of the last four congresses, died at a hotel here Wednesday. He was about 50 years old. He suffered for weeks with inflammatory rheumatism and general physical breakdown and during the last of his illness became irrational through the protracted strain on his system.

Fashionable Gamblers Caught.

New York.—Three thousand persons gathered along West Twenty-third street near Broadway Tuesday night and watched the police make a spectacular raid on a gambling house said to be patronized by guests of several of the up-town hotels. Patrons of the place, all in evening clothes, endeavored to get away by the fire escapes, but were confronted by detectives, who had been placed at every possible exit. The managers of the place and the patrons were taken to the police station in patrol wagons.

Paper Companies Plead Guilty.

New York.—Sentence will be imposed by Judge Hough of the United States circuit [illegible] Monday upon companies manufacturing wrapping paper, for violation of the Sherman anti-trust act by forming an illegal combination in restraint of trade, the Fibre & Manila association. Friday the federal grand jury returned indictments against 25 companies and against John H. Parks. Solomon M. Stroock, counsel for the association, appeared in court and pleaded guilty for 22 companies.

RETIRES AS PARTY CHIEF.

John Sharp Williams Resigns Minority Leadership in House.

Eufaula, Ala.—Congressman John Sharp Williams of Mississippi has resigned the minority leadership of the house of representatives, to take effect December 1 next. This announcement is made by Congressman H. D. Clayton, chairman of the Democratic caucus.

In a letter to Mr. Clayton, under Washington date of June 13, Mr. Williams, without previous intimation of his intentions to retire, writes in taking this step he does he is actuated solely by the idea that it is best for the Democratic party. In resigning thus early, he is moved, he says, by a desire to give the minority ample time to consider whom they want to succeed him, and also for the reason that if the next house is Democratic, the new speaker, whoever he may be, ought to have the experience which the position of floor leader would give him during the short session next winter.

PATIENT SHOOTS DOCTOR.

Milwaukee Physician Dangerously Wounded for Failure to Cure.

Milwaukee.—Dr. Frank Stirn of Cudahy, a suburb of Milwaukee, was shot and probably mortally wounded by a man named Antony Kriz Thursday. Kriz was arrested. Three shots are supposed to have been fired while the doctor was sitting in his office. It is said that Kriz was a patient of Dr. Stirn and that he fired the shots because the physician had failed to cure him of an ailment with which he suffered.

Three Dead in Mimic War.

New York.—Two more deaths in the Post hospital at Fort Wadsworth Friday brought the casualties of the mimic war to three. The dead are John Welsh, aged 25; George Harvey, aged 22, and James McDowell, aged 22, all members of the Ninth regiment, New York National Guard.

Washington.—Sweeping reductions in lumber rates west of the Missouri river, and approximately five per cent reduction in the advanced rates in the east, as well as other changes in the tariff, were ordered under decisions announced by the interstate commerce commission Friday.

Ice Trust Men Indicted.

New York.—Five indictments were found Friday afternoon by the special grand jury which has been investigating the American Ice company.

LUKE E. WRIGHT IS NAMED

TENNESSEAN SELECTED TO SUCCEED SECRETARY TAFT.

White House Statement Praises His Work as Governor of Philippines and Ambassador to Japan.

Washington.—Secretary Taft Friday presented to the president his resignation to take effect June 30, and it was announced at the White House that Luke E. Wright of Tennessee will be appointed secretary of war to succeed Mr. Taft. In making this appointment the president was influenced somewhat by the desire to recognize in an emphatic way that there is no longer any dividing line between the north and the south, and that all good Americans are in thought and deed one, and still more by the fact that Gov. Wright's personal attributes and experience pre-eminently fit him for this particular position.

The statement given out at the White House concerning Mr. Wright's appointment says in part:

"As Philippine commissioner, and later as vice-governor and governor, he won the affection and regard of the army to a high degree and many of the most distinguished of the men who served in the army at the time he was in the Philippines have urged his appointment because they felt in a peculiar way that he was their champion, and in a peculiar way understood them and their needs.

"As a young man he was a captain in the confederate army. He is one of the leading lawyers, not only of his state, but of the entire south. He has also been foremost in advocating and insisting upon fair treatment for the colored people.

"He was appointed by President McKinley as one of the Philippine commission, and enjoyed President McKinley's heartiest confidence, being selected as one of the southerners who were in sympathy with his administration. By President Roosevelt he was promoted first to be vice-governor and then governor of the Philippines, and was afterward made first ambassador to Japan. In all positions he served with signal fidelity and has been in hearty and outspoken agreement with the administration in all its main policies."

MANY VESSELS IN DANGER.

Projectiles from New York Forts Fall Near Steamers.

New York.—Target practice of the big 12-inch guns was continued Thursday by Forts Hamilton and Wadsworth at the Narrows. There were a large number of vessels in the lower bay when firing started, and projectiles weighing more than half a ton fell near outgoing and incoming steamers. Forty rounds in all were fired.

The first shell from one of the big rifles struck between the trans-Atlantic liners Cedric and Kaiserin Auguste Victoria, throwing up a great volume of water. One projectile fell some distance ahead of the Deutschland and not far from several schooners that were beating out to sea. Each projectile weighed from 1,060 to 1,090 pounds.

PLEAD GUILTY OF BRIBERY.

Cleveland Paving Concern Men Heavily Fined in Columbus.

Columbus, O.—M. F. Bramley of Cleveland, president of the Cleveland Trinidad Paving company, pleaded guilty Tuesday to three of seven indictments against him charging bribery of former members of the board of public service in connection with the East Broad street paving contract, and was fined $500 on each, or a total of $1,665, including costs, which was promptly paid.

H. C. Lang, superintendent of the paving company, also pleaded guilty to eight indictments charging bribery and was fined $500 each on seven, sentence on the eighth indictment being reserved until the September term of court. Lang's fine, amounting to $3,700, including costs, was paid.

INTERNATIONAL STEEL TRUST.

Mighty Combine to Be Formed, with £150,000,000 Capital.

London.—In spite of all denials, the Iron & Steel Trades Journal declares it has authority for stating that the formation of an international steel trust, in which American, German and Russian syndicates will unite with British steel interests, will be an accomplished fact in a few weeks. The headquarters of the new concern will be in London, and its capitalization will reach £150,000,000.

Fatal Explosion in Mine.

Monongahela, Pa.—Three miners are dead, two others perhaps fatally burned and 15 entombed, many of whom are supposed to be dead, from an explosion at the Ellsworth No. 1 mine of the Pittsburg Coal company near here Friday.

Colorado Miners Quit Work.

Denver, Col.—Two thousand five hundred miners in the northern Colorado coal fields quit work Friday, intending to remain out until the operators grant an increase in wages or make satisfactory concessions.

French Torpedo Boat Wrecked.

Algiers.—The French torpedo boat No. 191 has been wrecked on the coast during a storm. She was thrown up on the rocks near Sinfiernich. The destroyer Pique went to her assistance and the crew was rescued.

George P. Nicholson spent part of the past week in Cincinnati on business. His wife and children, who have been visiting at Mt. Carmel, Ohio, have returned home here. Mr. Nicholson has several fine building contracts. He is now completing the new church building at Oak Island, [illegible] hands busy on a fine [illegible] at Dry Ridge for J. D. [illegible] first-class instruments, and "there will be a hot time in the old town" by the time they get in working order. The boys all have musical talent, and their aim and ambition is to excel in musical ability and production the Walton Military Band composed of young white men, who are up in G in playing and music.

Gus Diers, of Dayton, Ohio, who is in the retail shoe business in that city, and Louis Diers and wife, of Akron, Ohio, arrived here Sunday on a visit to Mr. Dier's brother, H. C. Diers and family. Louis Diers is inspector of books for a large publishing house at Akron. H. C. Diers and two brothers spent Monday in Cincinnati on business.

Mrs. Belle Sheard and two little daughters, Rosa Lee and Sarah Lucile, of Hume, Illinois, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bedinger, near Richwood, spent last Friday here, guests of Mrs. Anna Hind. They returned home, Saturday, accompanied by Miss Lucile Hind, who goes to Hume on a visit to her uncle, Geo. W. Hughes and family. Mrs. Amanda Hughes, of Beaver, and Mrs. Lucy Tucker, of Dry Ridge, were also guests of Mrs. Hind, Friday.

Mrs. Margaret Martin, aged 57 yrs, a former resident of this place, died at her home at Alexander, Campbell county, last Friday, after a lingering illness from cancer of the stomach. The deceased was formerly a Miss Shaw and was married to a Mr. Stephens by whom she had two children, who now reside at Nashville, Tenn. After the death of Mr. Stephens she was married to Mr. Martin, who survies her. Mrs. Martin was a sister of Mrs. A. M. Rouse, of this place, and was a lady of many excellent qualities.

The Cincinnati Southern Railway discontinued the noon commuter train, running from Walton to Cincinnati, last Monday, and the public appear to be greatly exercised over the loss of this convenient method of reaching Cincinnati at midday. This train left Walton at 12:40, coming out specially from Cincinnati, and had been in service for 23 years. The railroad company give as a reason for the discontinuance of the train that it was unprofitable. It was a great convenience and the traveling public regret its being taken from the schedule, and the citizens of Walton are circulating a petition to the company to re-instate the train and everybody is subscribing their names.

Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Ligget, of Kansas City, Mo., were the guests of their relatives, Jesse Franks and wife, the past week. They recently returned from Buffalo, N. Y., where they had been attending the National Convention of Grain Dealers. Mrs. Ligget is a daughter of Wm. Clements, deceased, a native of this section, and his wife was a Miss Franks. This is Mr. Ligget's first visit to Walton since he came here 8 years ago to take Miss Franks away as his bride. Mr. Ligget is a member of the Russell Grain Co., of Kansas City, and is a native of Missouri, and he and his wife are delightful people to meet. They also spent several days near Mt. Zion with relatives and friends, returning home Saturday.

Thomas Bean, who resides on the Verona and Walton road, near Walton, and is one of the oldest men in the county, has a remarkable history for contiuous health, being now in his 87th year, and was never sick a day in his life, though lately his ability to walk has become somewhat impaired. Mr. Bean was born and raised in this locality, and has been a farmer all his life, and up two years ago he followed the plow every season. His venerable wife of many years is in her 88th year, and she, too is quite hale and hearty. Both live with their son, Allie Brown, who is devoted to them, and has made their declining years very happy by his kind and thoughtful attention to them and a never ceasing desire to minister to their comfort in every way, a devotion that is worthy of emulation by all children to their parents, and always carries a blessing with it.

Death placed its sad seal on Mrs. Hattie Stephens at her home here at midnight, Tuesday, June 9th, after a three weeks' struggle with pleuropneumonia, and bereft a happy home of the kindly influences of a dearly beloved mother whose heart was centered in her children's welfare. It was hoped the good woman would survive the shock of the disease, but an enfeebled constitution was unable to resist its encroachments and she passed peacefully to her heavenly reward surrounded by her family. Mrs. Stephens was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orrin Percival, both deceased, and was in her 64th year, and was born in Kenton county, near Walton, and spent most of her life here where she endeared herself to a large circle of friends by her kindly disposition and lovable nature. Three children survive her, and two preceded her to the grave—Orrin and Edna, who welcome mother to that celestial shore where sorrow and sickness never come. Her surviving children are Mrs. Hattie Lee Dickerson, of Cincinnati, E. K. Stephens, of Walton, and C. E. Stephens, of Columbus, Ohio. The deceased was a consistent member of the Baptist church of many years standing, and her christian character was exemplified in her every day life. Her many friends tender to the bereaved children their heartfelt sympathy in the loss of their dear mother. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon from the Walton Baptist church, Rev. T. C. Eeton, of Covington, speaking words of consolation and sympathy to the sorrowing ones. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends, and the floral tributes were extensive and beautiful. The pall-bearers were Dr. D. M. Bagby, Geo. W. Ranaker, L. L. Hopkins, A. M. Rouse, J. W. Conner, B. I. Ratcliff. The interment took place in the Baptist cemetery. Her brother, Orrin Percival, died here about six months ago and Mrs. Stephens was the last of the family.

An Appeal to Tobacco Growers.

The time was when it was not necessary for farmers to organize and to cooperate to receive reasonable compensation for their labor, but as time has advanced and one great organization after another has been accomplished, it certainly is time for the farmer to bestir himself and rally to the support of our great national organization known as the American Society of Equity.

While I believe every farmer in our good old county of Boone realizes the need of the organization, still many of our members from some cause, fail to pay in their dues for the support of the National Organization. Certainly it can not be because they consider the dues too high; but it must be rather that they fail to realize the importance of maintaining the organization. No more can the national union of the A. S. of E be maintained without the dues being paid by its members than the U. S. government could be run if its citizens should refuse to pay their taxes. Neither can it be a success unless it has the cooperation of all concerned any more than could our U. S. government stand if each separate state strove for its own local good instead of being subject to and regulated by the national welfare. As the dues of the association are so small in comparison with those of other organizations in comparing the benefit to be received, the necessity of paying them becomes the greater. While the dues are so small the benefits are the largest to be received from any known organization.

What is one dollar and fifty cents a year, per member in comparison with what every tobacco grower will receive for his tobacco now in the pool, as the price has advanced nearly three times what it was when the A. S. of E. was organized? Would not every one be willing to pay and do their part to keep up such an organization if they would only stop and consider, first, what an improvement has already resulted from the work of the association; second, how young the organization, not yet two years old? Bro. farmer, I am not only making this appeal to you for the support of our national union because I know it needs your support, but I feel we, as a farming class, need to work together under one great head, and certainly our president, Mr. Barnett, is a man worthy to be at the head of this organization.

The old saying, "farmers wont organize and stick together," has been proven to be false in the manner in which the 1908 crop has been cut out. When first talked of this was considered nothing short of an impossibility, but it has been proven it was not an impossibility, and all that was needed was a determination on the part of the farmers to make this sacrifice. Just so all that is now needed is that they be aroused to the fact that their support is needed. In conclusion, I would urge every local union which has not held meetings and collected dues would attend to this matter at its earliest opportunity. JOE W. CLEEK.

Important to Tobacco Growers.

CISNEY KY., June 4th 1908.

DEAR SIR:—According to a resolution passed by the Board of Directors of the N. T. G. A. a meeting held by them in Owensboro, Ky., on May 28, 1908, I am notifying you so that you can notify your Board of Control to meet with the different Boards of Control of the several districts in Kentucky, growing different types of tobacco, at Bowling Green, Ky., on the 9th day of July, 1908.

The purpose of this meeting is to consider ways and means of the continuation of the N. T. G. A. We deem this matter one of exceeding importance. In the first place it is absolutely necessary that the different districts, which are under the several organizations, should at least recognize the importance of the co-operation in pricing, selling and limitation of crop growing. These matters we consider of vital importance to all tobacco growers, it matters not of what district they are associated with.

We deem the further necessity of a general co operation among all tobacco growers for the fact that it is an undisputable question but what one type of tobacco can be substituted for another type to a certain extent, if not wholly so, it is true, however, that it would be a difficult matter to substitute one type of tobacco wholly for another. But at the same time if you advance the price of the raw material of one type and depreciate another type, it will certainly be substituted one for another. Together with these facts, as we see the situation after a careful investigation, we believe that the tobacco growers throughout the State of Kentucky have almost, if not quite, won the fight for their freedom and the right to price their product. We trust your Board will consider this meeting one of vital importance and will be present and give us the aid of your wise counsel as to whether you want to extend and continue a N. T. G. A. If you fail to join us in this meeting, we will be forced to decide that you do not care to co-operate with the rest of the districts in Ky.

Wishing you and your Association great success, I remain,

Fraternally Yours,
E. L. DAVENPORT, President.

The Erlanger base ball team, accompanied by a large number of loyal 32 degree rooters came over last Saturday afternoon, and defeated Burlington 3 to 2 in an exciting contest. Every member of the Erlanger team put up a good game, the infield being especially fast. Their pitcher was an [illegible] able puzzler, home boys, who hit nearly all their [illegible] to the infielders, where they were nicely captured and handled with precision in every instance. The features of the game on the part of the Burlington team was Smith's fine work in center, and Conner's sensational performance at short. Brady and Slayback and the seven who were assisting them worked hard but it was no use. Following is the score:

Struck out—Brady 5, Carter 5; first on balls—Brady 1, Carter 3; Base hits—Brady, Slayback, Kirk—8 (Geiger, Nippert, Sentler, P. Conner—4; Two base hit.

Fighting Ruinous Iron Rust.

A bitter and disgusted wail has gone up from the farmers of the United States in regard to the miserable quality of the wire fence they are obliged to use. So writes Rene Bache in the Technical World Magazine. They can hardly get along without it, but it is most unsatisfactory by reason of the rapidity with which it is destroyed by rust. Of course, this means to them much trouble and expense, and they have been making a good deal of a row about the matter, even appealing to the government for help. In response to this agitation, the secretary of agriculture, Mr. James Wilson, some time ago, ordered a special investigation to be made, the task being handed over to Dr. Allerton S. Cushman. Since then the inquiry has been earnestly pushed, and many things have been learned which had not previously been suspected—especially in relation to the true cause of the rusting of iron and steel, which is very different from what has always been popularly supposed. The writer goes on to describe the methods adopted for improving the quality of wire and for guarding it against rust.

Great crowds follow Countess Szecbeny about when she appears in Budapest, "rubbering," as one might say in America, at the richest woman in the world. The count affects to be sore, but, suggests the Chicago Daily News, maybe he is pleased to know that his countrymen appreciate his taste in beauty and dollars. We are apt to hear much about the vulgarity of Americans when they crowd round the entrance of a church in New York to get a glimpse at the performers when native money and a foreign title are being united in the holy bonds of matrimony. Budapest appears to be composed of about the same kind of people. It is a pretty safe bet that human nature is much the same the world over. The ordinary human being wants to see whatever is being talked about. If Countess Gladys will walk down the street to market every day and carry home a basket of eggs on her arm very soon no one will notice her except the man who wants to get her trade.

America has offended some of its profoundest European critics by its chronic optimism. What an American philosopher calls the religion of healthy-mindedness flourishes in this country more than in any other; our determined good cheer and faith in prosperity make the sad-eyed world shake its wise head. The same critics will no doubt find another example of our incorrigible shallowness in the National Prosperity association, recently formed in St. Louis, and will think its motto, "Give us a rest and sunshine," hopelessly silly. But underneath this campaign of optimism, says the Youths' Companion, is some hard American business sense, and boards of trade and other business organizations all over the country have joined in an application of mind-cure to the financial depression.

A woman borrowed eggs of a neighbor when eggs were at 24 cents a dozen. She returned the eggs, the same number, when the price had fallen to 12 cents. The question is has she paid her neighborly debt? This problem is said to be vexing a Kansas town, and the settlement of it involves a great principle. Shall the borrower of a cup of molasses, a tablespoonful of butter, a hod of coal return the loan in kind and quantity, or figure the equivalent in the market price? The satisfactory answer is that repayment should be made before the market has time to shift. But the controversy will not arise if there is no borrowing.

The first woman to practice law in this country was Margaret Brent Lord Baltimore, then governor of Maryland, asked the legislature that she be appointed executor of her relatives' estate. One of the learned members said that it were better that the estate be lost than a woman appear to make an argument before them. Margaret Brent, however won her case. A few years after the civil war, when Mrs. Carrie B. Kilgore applied for admission to the law department of the University of Pennsylvania, she was told by the then dean that "when niggers and women are admitted to the law school he would resign."

CLEVELAND'S DEATH SHOCK TO COUNTRY

Ex-President Succumbs Unexpectedly, Though He Had Long Been Ill.

Great Democrat, Twice President of the United States, Dies at His Home in Princeton, Aged Seventy-One Years---Sketch of His Career, from Poor Boy to the Highest Elective Office in the World---Famous Venezuelan Message

Princeton, N. J.—Grover Cleveland, twice president of the United States, died suddenly Wednesday at his home here.

Mr. Cleveland had been a sufferer from gout and diabetes for more than two years. Early in 1906 he was stricken with an attack of indigestion, the result of diabetes, and for weeks was unable to partake of any except liquid nourishment.

A sojourn in the south improved his health considerably, and his sudden demise comes as a complete surprise.

A statement, signed by Dr. Joseph B. Bryant, Dr. George R. Lockwood and Dr. J. M. Camochan, explaining the death of their patient, was given out:

"Mr. Cleveland for many years has suffered from repeated attacks of gastral intestinal origin. Also he has a long-standing organic disease of the heart and kidneys and heart failure complicated with pulmonary thrombosis and oedema were the immediate causes of his death."

Cleveland's Early Struggles.

Grover Cleveland was born at Caldwell, Essex county, N. J., March 18, 1837. As a country boy, he left home when 16 years of age, charged not only with the necessity of making his own way in the world, but with the responsibility of providing for his mother and sisters. He fought the battle sturdily and not only won, but achieved the highest honors that can come to an American.

His father was a Presbyterian minister. The son was christened Stephen Grover, in honor of Rev. Stephen Grover, who had preceded Rev. Mr. Cleveland in the pastorate of the little church at Caldwell. In even the earliest childhood of the boy, however, the parents omitted the name Stephen and addressed him always as Grover. The son always signed his name as Grover Cleveland.

In 1841 the family removed to Fayetteville, N. Y. They lived afterward at Clinton and Holland Patent, Grover, while he attended school, served in his spare hours as clerk in a country store.

His father died in 1853. His money, it was found, had been expended for the education of his children. It devolved upon Grover, then 16 years of age, to qualify as a contributing member of his family. Through his brother, who was connected with the New York institution for the blind, he secured appointment there as assistant teacher.

Attracted by Law Career.

Two years gave him enough of teaching. He was ambitious to become a lawyer and to work in a field that offered more advantages than could be found in the east. The city of his choice was Cleveland, Ohio. All of his spare earnings having been sent to his mother, he required borrowed capital to get his start in the world. The amount of this capital was $50 and the friend who gave it to him was an old man who had been a deacon in his father's church. The lender's security was a note signed by the boy. That it was sufficient was proved two years later when he received a remittance covering the amount of the loan with interest.

Grover started in 1855 for Cleveland by way of the Erie canal. He stopped over for a day at Buffalo to visit a rich uncle, Lewis F. Allen. The latter prevailed upon the youthful pilgrim to make his home in Buffalo. He provided Grover with six weeks' work at $10 a week to assist in the compilation of a herd book and secured for him a place in the office of a prominent law firm. As a law clerk he received $4 a week.

In 1859 Cleveland was admitted to the bar. He remained in the service of the law firm as managing clerk in view of which dignity and honor his stipend was increased to $10 a week.

On January 1, 1863, he was appointed assistant district attorney of Erie county. He allowed himself the bare necessities of life. Every surplus dollar was sent to his mother and sisters. At this time he was drafted for service in the union army. He borrowed money and sent a substitute to the war. Much was made of this fact in the political campaigns of later days. Friends of Cleveland replied that his action was in accordance with the custom of those days, when some members of a family went to war, while others remained to care for the dependent ones. Two of Cleveland's brothers were in the army.

Entrance Into Politics.

In 1865 Cleveland was nominated for district attorney. He began the practice of law. He also maintained a keen interest in politics. In 1866 he was chairman of the county committee. He had few intimate friends, but was favored by a strong following of men attracted by his power of leadership. In 1870 he was elected sheriff and filled the office for three years.

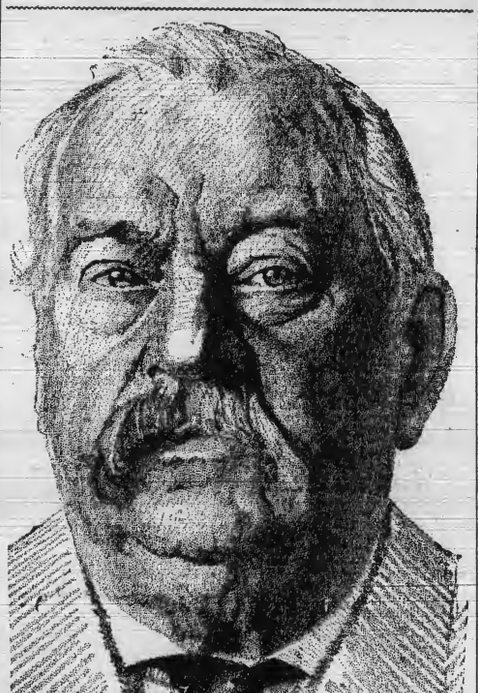
Then he returned to law. Success was gained by hard, faithful work. He had never been accused of being brilliant, but he was thorough, and gained by conscientious digging the victory that came to others by so-called genius.

In 1881 he was elected mayor of Buffalo, as a Democrat, by a plurality of 3,500. The candidates on the Republican state ticket carried the city by 1,600. After the election Cleveland said in a letter to his brother that he proposed to stand in the relation of an employe to the people of the city. His one aim would be to render faithful service to his employer.

In carrying out this resolution he became known as the "veto mayor." It was an honorable title. Buffalo had long been in the grip of unscrupulous politicians.

Grown arrogant from power and rich from graft, they had come to regard rule wholly to their interest as a settled right. Mayor Cleveland disabused their minds. Raids on the treasury were blocked by his veto. Officeholders were warned that their allegiance was due the people. Claims of friendship and the pressure of powerful influence were without effect upon him. His sturdy fights in the interest of his "employer" were widely published and attracted attention throughout the state.

Governor of New York.



So it happened that when the Democrats in 1882 cast about for a candidate for governor the name naturally turned toward Buffalo. Grover Cleveland was placed at the head of their ticket. He was elected over Charles J. Folger, then secretary of the treasury, by 200,000 plurality.

Cleveland's record as mayor and his overwhelming victory in the election made him a national figure. There was widespread curiosity as to the course he would pursue as governor. He gained new celebrity through his vetoes. He refrained from discourses on public affairs and framed no theory of government, but he gave keen attention to the matters brought before him for action. When these seemed not to be for the public good his disapproval was expressed promptly and with the plainest words in his vocabulary. From 12 to 14 hours a day were devoted to the investigation of bills and reports submitted to him for action.

On July 11, 1884, in Chicago, he was nominated to oppose James G. Blaine in the campaign for the presidency. A slender plurality in New York state turned the scale and he became the first Democratic president since the civil war. The second time in his life that he visited Washington was when he went to the capital to take office as president. His bearing on the stand erected for the inaugural revealed his masterful character to the experienced statesmen who sat around him. Stretched before him were more people than he had ever seen assembled for any purpose. They were enthusiastic, but neither their demonstrations nor thought of the grave responsibilities he was about to assume affected him in the slightest degree. He was calm as any man there having nothing at stake. When the time came to speak he advanced to the bar firmly and coolly as a lawyer in court. Deliberately and in a strong voice he delivered his address of 8,000 words, and he shattered all precedents by giving it from memory instead of from manuscript. He declared for the Monroe doctrine, economy, protection of the Indians, security of the freedmen, and for civil service.

Famous Venezuelan Message.

The death of Mr. Cleveland will recall to all the days when he was the most forceful figure in American public life. Nothing which he ever did while president attracted more attention than the famous message he sent to congress in December, 1895, on the subject of Great Britain's controversy with Venezuela over the boundary between the latter country and British Guiana. The foundation for Mr. Cleveland's message was the note of Secretary of State Olney to Lord Salisbury, the British minister for foreign affairs. That note was written during the congressional recess, three months before congress convened, and before Mr. Cleveland's message was prepared. The Olney note was drafted after a consultation between the secretary of state and Mr. Cleveland during the summer at Great Gables on Buzzard's bay. Mr. Olney went there to confer with the president about the Venezuelan question. The note was submitted to every member of the cabinet.

THE LATE EX-PRESIDENT GROVER CLEVELAND.

War Was Not Feared.

Mr. Hilary A. Herbert, then secretary of the treasury in Mr. Cleveland's cabinet, has said of the incident: "I remember that as the note developed it almost took my breath away, and I was inclined to oppose its presentation, but before the reading was finished I realized its force and value and I heartily approved it."

"Did you anticipate that war would result from the message?" he was asked.

"No, I did not think so, because I did not think there was enough in the controversy to cause a war between the two countries which were so closely allied in blood and business. Of course, such measures as could be taken with the means in hand to be prepared in case of trouble were taken by the navy department, but there was neither time nor money nor opportunity to make any extensive preparations."

CREEL ORDERED TO WASHINGTON

RECALL TO NATION'S CAPITAL OF AMBASSADOR MAY BE SIGNIFICANT.

MEXICO WILL DEMAND AID OF UNCLE SAM

In Ferreting Out the Raiders of Coahuil—Hundreds of Men Are Crossing the Border and Soldiers Are Being Pushed Forward.

City of Mexico, June 29.—Despite the protestations that there is an international significance in the attack on the towns in the state of Coahuila, Ambassador Enrique C. Creel has been directed to proceed to Washington immediately. This sudden change in the plans of the ambassador, who had received a long leave of absence from his government with the intention of spending a number of months in his home state of Chihuahua, was occasioned by the recent raid made on the town of Las Vacas.

The Mexican state department will make strong reports to the state department at Washington asking the United States authorities in every way to aid in finding the men who attacked Las Vacas, on the grounds that the whole raid was planned and outfitted on American soil. Minister of Foreign Affairs Mariscal said that every Mexican involved in the recent raids was subject to extradition as a common criminal, inasmuch as the acts of violence committed by them were not directed by any revolutionary movement organized on Mexican soil.

Mexico will ask that certain of the ringleaders who may be captured on United States soil be tried by the courts of that nation for a violation of the neutrality laws.

San Antonio, Tex., June 29.—Gen. Jose Villar, commander of the military zone for Northern Mexico, with a large body of troops marching overland to Las Vacas, had a sharp battle with revolutionists Sunday.

A number were killed on both sides. The revolutionists retreated and are said to be moving toward Torreon, where 16 more trains of federal troops arrived Sunday night.

Several bands of revolutionists have torn up the track of the Mexican International railroad and cut the telegraph wires at a number of places between Torreon and Jaral.

Several hundred insurgents are in the vicinity of Matamoras, a town of about 5,000 people, and an attack upon the place is to be made. This town is not the Matamoras opposite Brownsville, Tex.

Federal troops are passing through Torreon by trainloads to the vicinity of Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, where the situation is worse than around Torreon.

PINIONED UNDER AUTO

Were Three Occupants—One Killed and Two Fatally Injured.

Warren, Pa., June 29.—One person was killed and two others fatally injured here Sunday night in an automobile accident.

The dead: Eric Anderson, aged 45 years, foreman of the erecting department of a machine company here.

Fatally injured: Mrs. Eric Anderson, aged 42 years; R. M. Knabb, proprietor of the Knabb barrel works.

There were six persons in the machine when the accident happened. The party was traveling at a high rate of speed, and in endeavoring to turn out of the road to allow a buggy to pass, the automobile ran into a gutter and turned turtle. Three of the occupants escaped unhurt, but the others were pinioned under the machine. Anderson died soon after being removed to a hospital, and no hope is held for the recovery of the other injured.

Burning Car Caused Panic.

Philadelphia, Pa., June 29.—Many women and children narrowly escaped death in jumping from a swiftly moving trolley car, on North Fifth street during a panic, caused by the car catching fire. The street where the accident occurred has been torn up for repairs, and the frightened women and children were slung headfirst into the piles of stones beside the track. Their cries and the flames from the car called a crowd of hundreds of persons who put out the fire with buckets of sand.

Battleships Await Orders To Sail.

San Francisco, June 29.—Twelve of the 16 battleships of the Atlantic fleet, which starts July 7 on voyage from San Francisco around the world to Hampton Roads, are now in the harbor here. The other four are expected to arrive during the week. The ships will take no part in the celebration of the Fourth of July here, except to participate in the firing of salutes.

Bad Blaze in Michigan.

Ionia, Mich., June 29.—Fire, which started in the Grand Trunk passenger depot here, destroyed the Grand Trunk and Pere Marquette depots and freight sheds and First Presbyterian church. The loss is $65,000.

American Plant Destroyed.

Windsor, Ct., June 29.—Fire here Sunday destroyed the tobacco warehouse of the Tmerican Tobacco Co., the tobacco warehouse of W. S. Wrisley & Son and the lumber yard of Wm. Stinson. Loss $50,000.

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN

LYDIA E. PINKHAM

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women or received so many genuine testimonials as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In every community you will find women who have been restored to health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Almost every one you meet has either been benefited by it, or has friends who have.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., any woman any day may see the files containing over one million one hundred thousand letters from women seeking health, and here are the letters in which they openly state over their own signatures that they were cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has saved many women from surgical operations.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is made from roots and herbs, without drugs, and is wholesome and harmless.

The reason why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is so successful is because it contains ingredients which act directly upon the feminine organism, restoring it to a healthy normal condition.

Women who are suffering from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex should not lose sight of these facts or doubt the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

WIDOWS under NEW LAW obtained PENSIONS by JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C.

ABSENCE OF POMP MARKS FUNERAL

In Accordance with the Wishes of the Widow, Final Ceremonies for Ex-President Cleveland Are of the Most Simple Description--- Prominent Men Present.

Among notable utterances of the late ex-President Cleveland the following will be longest remembered:

> Public office is a public trust.
> After an existence of nearly 20 years of almost innocuous desuetude these laws are brought forth.
> It is a condition which confronts us—not a theory.
> Party honesty is party expediency.
> If the wind is in the south or west so much the better, but let's go fishing, wherever the wind may be.
> Don't give your friend wild duck uncooked unless his wife knows how to cook it; the gift will be discredited in the eating.
> The duck-hunter is born, not made.
> I would not have our people sober; but I would have them thoughtful and patriotic.
> I do not believe that nations any more than individuals can violate the rules of honesty and fair-dealing.
> Tread lightly, gentlemen, for you have to do with temples of the Holy Ghost. (This to assembled physicians.)

Princeton.—The funeral of Grover Cleveland was marked by extreme simplicity. No pomp nor splendor had place in the ceremonies. There were no bands to play dirges on the way to the old Princeton cemetery, no military escort, no eulogy by the officiating clergymen.

The half mile of thoroughfare through which the cortege passed from Westland, the Cleveland home on Bayard lane, to the cemetery was policed by mounted troops, but they were there for police duty and as a measure of precaution in protecting the living president rather than for display in paying tribute to a departed chief executive.

Four clergymen officiated at the house and at the grave. They read the burial service from the Presbyterian Book of Common Worship, but offered no eulogy. This simple but impressive service was conducted by Dr. Henry Van Dyke of Princeton, Rev. Dr. Williams R. Richards, pastor of the Brick Presbyterian church of New York; Rev. Sylvester W. Beach, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Princeton, where the Cleveland family attended, and Rev. Maitland V. Bartlett, former pastor of the same church.

There were no honorary pallbearers. Those who bore Mr. Cleveland's body to its final resting place in the Cleveland plot were Mayor George B. McClellan, Paul Morton, Commodore E. C. Benedict, Richard Watson Gilder of New York; Prof. Paul Van Dyke, Dean Andrew F. West, Prof. John G. Hibben, Junius S. Morgan, a nephew of J. Pierpont Morgan; A. D. Russell, Prof. Howard McLenahan, and Bayard Stockton of Princeton. The simple Presbyterian service was said at the grave, the casket lowered into the ground, and one of the country's most distinguished citizens had become but a memory. A silver plate on the casket bore the inscription: "Grover Cleveland, March 18, 1837-June 24, 1908."

President Roosevelt, Gov. Fort of New Jersey, Gov. Hughes of New York, Gov. Hoke Smith of Georgia, members of President Cleveland's cabinet, and other notable citizens attended the funeral. After the ceremony the president left Princeton at once in his private car Signet.

Mr. Cleveland was buried here in the family plot in the old Princeton cemetery, where, under a little ivy-covered mound, now lies the body of his eldest daughter, Ruth, who died here at Westland in January, 1904. It is not far from the entrance to the cemetery on Witherspoon street, less than a quarter of a mile from the university campus, and adjoins a tiny chapel. For many generations the presidents of Princeton university have been buried in this cemetery. Here, too, rests the body of Lawrence Hutton, and not far away stands the monument to the memory of the brilliant and erratic Aaron Burr.

TRIBUTE TO GREAT MAN.

President Roosevelt's Proclamation Eulogizing Dead Statesman.

Oyster Bay, N. Y.—News of the death of ex-President Grover Cleveland was communicated to President Roosevelt at his summer home here and caused radical changes in the president's plans for the immediate future.

Mr. Roosevelt was shocked at the tidings, and telegraphed to Mrs. Cleveland at Princeton, N. J., tendering his sympathy and that of Mrs. Roosevelt. Afterward announcement was made that President and Mrs. Roosevelt would attend the funeral services at Princeton.

Mr. Roosevelt immediately announced that he would abandon his proposed trip to New London, Conn., to witness the Harvard-Yale boat races. He also issued a proclamation to the country, eulogizing the dead statesman, ordering all government flags half-masted for 30 days, and directing that military and naval honors be accorded the late president on the day of the funeral.

A beautiful floral wreath was ordered by the president to be sent in his name and that of Mrs. Roosevelt to Princeton, to be placed by the bier.

In accordance with custom, President Roosevelt issued a special proclamation when advised of the death of the ex-president. The proclamation follows:

By the President of the United States
A Proclamation.
The White House, June 24, 1908.

To the People of the United States:

Grover Cleveland, president of the United States from 1885 to 1889 and again from 1893 to 1897, died at 8:40 o'clock this morning at his home in Princeton, N. J. In his death the nation has been deprived of one of its greatest citizens. By profession a lawyer, his chief services to his country were rendered during a long, varied and honorable career in public life.

As mayor of his city, as governor of his state, and twice as president, he showed signal power as an administrator, coupled with entire devotion to the country's good and a courage that quailed before no hostility when once he was convinced where his duty lay. Since his retirement from the presidency he has continued well and faithfully to serve his countrymen by the simplicity, dignity, and uprightness of his private life.

In testimony of the respect in which his memory is held by the government and people of the United States, I do hereby direct that the flags on the White House and the several departmental buildings be displayed at half-staff for a period of 30 days, and that suitable military and naval honors, under the orders of the secretaries of war and of the navy be rendered on the day of the funeral.

Done this twenty-fourth day of June in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and eight and of the independence of the United States of America the one hundred and thirty-second.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

By the president,
ALVEY A. ADEE,
Acting Secretary of State.

Render All Official Honors.

Washington.—Appropriate honors were paid to the memory of ex-President Cleveland by all branches of the government immediately upon the receipt of the president's proclamation formally announcing Mr. Cleveland's death steps were taken to carry out the provisions of the executive proclamation.

All army posts and stations and all commanders-in-chief of fleets in the navy, captains of detached ships and navy yards and naval stations, were ordered to fly the national colors at half staff for 30 days.

ALL JOIN IN TRIBUTE.

Testimony to the Character and Ability of Grover Cleveland.

Prominent men of all party affiliations and leaders in their respective walks in life joined in tributes to the worth of Grover Cleveland. Among them were the following:

> "He was one of the really great men of the country."—W. H. Taft.
> "He was the best type of public servant and private citizen."—Vice-President Fairbanks.
> "No man realized more fully the ideal of an incorruptible public servant."—George B. Cortelyou.
> "The country has lost a citizen whose wisdom, courage, and patriotism were of the highest order."—Admiral Dewey.
> "His place in history is sure. Nothing that can be written or withheld can add to or detract from his imperishable fame."—Adlai E. Stevenson.
> 'Grover Cleveland was a typical product of American life, blood, and training."—Judson Harmon.
> "Grover Cleveland was too great a man to dismiss with a few words."—John G. Carlisle.
> "One of the greatest presidents the United States has ever had."—Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago.
> "He was all that any one could be."—Lambert Tree.
> "He had a way of gaining the respect even of his enemies."—Judge Kenesaw M. Landis.
> "He was ever impelled by a conviction of what was right, and having formed that conviction he was a rock."—Judge Peter S. Grosscup.
> "When his history is properly written he will be rated as one of the half dozen greatest presidents."—Gov. Johnson of Minnesota.
> "Mr. Cleveland's death ends the phenomenal career of one of the strongest characters in the political world of the present generation."—William J. Bryan.

STEAMER IS A DEATH TRAP

DISASTER TO LARACHE COSTS EIGHTY-FIVE LIVES.

Sixty-Five Saved When Old Spanish Vessel Sinks—Captain Among Those Lost.

Coruna, Spain.—Latest reports show that 85 persons are missing as a result of the sinking of the steamship Larache. The rescued number 65.

The captain sank with his ship.

Most of the passengers on the Larache were residents of the Argentine Republic.

The Larache was little more than an old tub, and she proved a veritable death trap when she struck on the rocks near Muros. She sank in a few minutes, leaving the passengers and crew struggling in the water.

The small boats on the Larache were either smashed or capsized. There was a fleet of fishing boats in the neighborhood and these rushed to the rescue, but the heavy fog prevailing seriously interfered with their work.

The fishermen succeeded in rescuing 65 persons. In addition to the captain, the ship's doctor and the first officer were drowned. The disaster occurred at five o'clock in the morning, and most of those who were saved are without clothing.

It has been ascertained that the number of passengers and crew of the Larache totaled 150. Sixty-five persons are known to have been saved, but the fate of the other 85 is not known and it was feared that most of them perished.

CLUB WOMEN ARE HURT.

Tally-Ho Full of Delegates Is Upset Near Newport, R. I.

Newport, R. I.—The 2,000 club women who came here from Boston Friday for an outing, went back greatly saddened as a result of an accident which caused serious injuries to three of their number.

Many of the visitors, who were delegates to the biennial session of the general Federation of Women's Clubs in Boston, had been enjoying carriage drives about the city, and it was the occupants of a tally-ho coach bound for Easton's beach who met disaster. When the coach had reached the middle of a steep hill in Bath road, one of the forward axles suddenly broke and almost instantly the vehicle collapsed. Nearly all of the women were caught beneath the coach, which turned completely over. Private automobiles carried the injured to the Newport hospital.

Most of those taken to the hospital were able to leave the institution after they had been treated for bruises and other minor injuries, and only three remain.

SHERMAN NEARLY WELL.

Nominee Makes Rapid Progress Toward Complete Recovery.

Cleveland, O. — Representative James S. Sherman, Republican vice-presidential candidate, made such rapid progress in recovering from his illness Thursday that all thoughts of an immediate operation have subsided. The patient is near recovery, Dr. E. P. Carter said Thursday night, and there now is no reason to be anxious over his condition.

An official statement was issued by Dr. Carter at ten o'clock, saying:

"Mr. Sherman has had a very comfortable day. His general condition is most satisfactory. We look for a speedy recovery, as the patient is hourly improving. After a conference with Mr. Sherman this evening, Dr. Allen, Dr. Stone and myself believe Mr. Sherman will be sufficiently recovered from his attack to leave the hospital for his home on Monday of next week. His temperature now is 99.4 and pulse 72, respiration 28—practically normal."

Cleveland, O.—Representative James S. Sherman's condition was absolutely normal all Friday. Dr. Edwin P. Carter, the attending physician, stated that Mr. Sherman's attack had passed and the next few days would restore his normal strength.

Big Loss in Oil Fields.

Pittsburg, Pa.—Over 100,000 barrels of oil consumed by fire, three valuable oil refineries destroyed and an estimated loss of about $500,000, are the results of electric storms which passed over western and northern Pennsylvania Tuesday and Wednesday. The ignition of the large quantity of oil by lightning caused three spectacular fires at Bradford, Warren and Washington, Pa.

Bryan Instructions Refused.

Want To Interest Uncle Sam.

Lexington, Ky.—In the hope of saving the horse industry of Kentucky, which has suffered greatly because of the passage of anti-betting laws in New York and Louisiana, a movement has started here to secure the consent of the government to establish a remount station here and to breed thoroughbred horses for use of cavalry officers.

Location of New Berea.

Louisville, Ky.—In a speech before the National Colored Teachers' association President Frost, of Berea college, said that since the Madison county school is forbidden to educe negroes with whites it was likely the school will be located here and called "New Berea." About $320,000 of the $400,000 required has been collected.

Fifty Poisoned.

Frankfort, Ky.—A telegram from High Bridge says 50 excursionists were poisoned by eating ice cream at a picnic at that place. Many were made seriously ill, and it is feared several will die. The excursion was from Cincinnati. Physicians from Danville, Nicholasville and Harrodsburg were summoned.

To Split Big Precincts.

Louisville, Ky.—Under approval of County Judge Arthur Peter, Sheriff Schoil and County Attorney Sellig-man have added nine precincts to the Fifth Congressional district. In the district elections it has been found impossible for the officials to poll within 100 of the voters.

Two Face Murder Charge.

Lexington, Ky.—Wm. Merrill and his wife, Nancy, who were arrested in Breathitt county on the charge of murdering Mrs. Mary Terry, have been brought here for trial. Mrs. Merrill was acquitted in the examining trial, but later developments caused the arrest of both.

Big Bunch For Owen.

Lexington, Ky.—Seventy thousand dollars have been paid tobacco growers of Owen county who had crops pooled with the Society of Equity. This was the largest payment to any county in the white burley belt. Over $100,000 is due that county on the 1906 crop.

Sold Kentucky Estate.

Heeded the Warning.

Morgantown, Ky.—Chas. Bates, a laborer, found a bundle of switches and a note signed "Regulators" at his door, telling him if he and his entire family did not move in less than two days his back would pay the penalty. He is moving to another neighborhood.

Aged 104; Commits Suicide.

Lexington, Ky.—Henry Miller, aged 104 years, grew tired of life at Harrodsburg, Mercer county, and committed suicide by taking poison. He was one of the oldest men in Kentucky. He had said he was tired of life.

Eighty-One Indicted.

Paducah, Ky.—For alleged night-riding in Crittenden county 81 indictments were returned at Marion, but none of the names have been made public. Most of the parties are well known, and some are prosperous farmers.

On a Tour of Inspection.

Frankfort, Ky.—Acting for the capitol commission, Ben L. Bruner, secretary of state, is touring the western states, inspecting the furnishings of capitols, for information in purchasing for the new capitol.

First Flag At Half-Mast.

Frankfort, Ky.—The first flag raised over Kentucky's new capitol building was sent up to half-mast in token of Kentucky's grief over the death of Grover Cleveland. The flag will remain at half mast for 30 days.

DROUTH KILLS TOBACCO PLANTS.

Growers of White Burley See Little Prospect of Raising Half Crop.

Lexington, Ky.—The extreme drouth and unusual heat of the last two weeks has killed practically all the tobacco plants in beds in the white burley district, according to information received here. It had been conservatively estimated that more than 8,000,000 pounds of tobacco would be grown in that district.

Reports from Madison, Lincoln, Boyle and Casey counties, in which no organization exists and where large crops of tobacco were to be grown, are to the effect that farmers are unable to set out plants for lack of rain.

Unless rain falls at once all hope of growing tobacco this year will be abandoned.

Where there have been showers within the past 24 hours it is possible that a small amount can be cultivated.

Without rain all plants will die and there will not be half a crop grown in the white burley belt.

One estimate puts the crop at 500,000 pounds.

CONVICTS CUT OFF.

Newspapers Are Now Barred From Kentucky Prison.

Frankfort, Ky.—Warden E. E. Mudd, of the state penitentiary, has issued orders that convicts shall receive only their home papers and that papers of general circulation now entering the prison will be cut off.

This order was issued, the warden says, to preserve discipline. So much has been published in the papers about the alleged mistreatment of convicts that the inmates have almost been thrown into mutiny.

The danger the guards are in can hardly be realized, say the officials. Hardly a week passes but that from a peck to a half bushel of knives and slungshots are not gathered from the prison cells. It would be impossible for the 1,400 prisoners to be controlled by the 50 guards were it not that many convicts are loyal to them.

Will Deal Only With Duke.

Lexington, Ky.—It is stated that the executive committee of the burley tobacco brauch of the Society of Equity, at a conference in Winchester, determined to deal only with James B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco Co., in the matter of the proposal to buy the pooled tobacco in its entirety. It is further stated that if the American Co. wants this tobacco it will be necessary for Duke to make a personal visit to Kentucky. The Equity people have put aside propositions of minor officials of the combine.

Louisville, Ky.—Full report of the estate of Will J. Gaulbert, who died last winter, has been made here by court appraisers. They found a total of $1,347,762, nearly a million of which is in stocks, including an interest in the Peaslee-Gaulbert Paint Co. As Gaulbert left no will the estate went to George Gaulbert, his brother, who died some weeks ago, and then to his sister.

Mrs. Stoll Contests Will.

Lexington, Ky.—Mrs. Adelaide S. Stoll, widow of James S. Stoll, turfman and distiller, who died in May, leaving an estate of $500,000, filed a petition in the circuit court to break his will. It is reported the action was caused by the appointment of J. Will Stoll and John Stoll, brother and nephew, trustees. The suit has caused a sensation. Mrs. Stoll has three children.

Lien on Home Asked.

Louisville, Ky.—Asking a lien on the summer home of former Mayor George D. Todd, of Louisville, Sprat Bridges, in the New Albany (Ind.) circuit court, filed suit for $28,000. The home is in the name of Mrs. Todd. Bridges charges false representation on the part of Todd relative to the Todd Manufacturing Co. to induce him to invest in it.

Sheriff Cases Dismissed.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—The state of the circuit court was wiped clean of the Smith-Renshaw sheriff cases when Judge Cock dismissed all the suits that have been filed in the cases and gave judgment for the costs. One of the suits was carried to the court of appeals, and with that exception the case is over.

Compelled Auto To Yield Road.

Lexington, Ky.—Drs. S. L. Helm and W. O. Bullock, on a hurry call in an automobile to a patient at the county infirmary, were held up at the point of a gun by two men in a wagon and made to pull over to the roadside and wait until they had got safely by.

Roller Kills Boy.

Harrodsburg, Ky.—Fred Noel, 11 years old, was killed while driving a roller by falling in front of it. He had just finished rolling a road and was on his way to the barn when killed. His head was crushed.

Opposition For Dr. James.

Glasgow, Ky.—State Senator John T. Smith has announced himself as a candidate for the republican nomination against Congressman A. D. James, of the Third district, who had the field to himself for several weeks.

BOONE CO. RECORDER.
W. L. RIDDELL, Publisher.

Kenton, Campbell and Grant are furnishing the congressional material for the campaign.

There are conflicting stories as to what Mr. Cleveland left to his family. Some say they are amply provided for, and others that he left but little, if anything.

It did not take the congressional committee long to dispose of the matter of nominating a candidate for congress when it got together at Walton, last Friday.

Mr. Bryan discussing the anti-injunction plank in the Republican platform, calls it a transparent fraud and points out that it follows almost exactly the language of the present statute.

According to the press comments on ex-President Grover Cleveland after his death, it looks like he could have been elected president again very easily, but postmortem bouquets are worthless.

The editors of many of the large city papers are telling their readers who will carry this or that one of the doubtful states, but the fact is they know but little more about it than does the ordinary observer of the drift of politics.

The congressional primary election in this district having been called for Saturday, August 22d, next, will give the candidates ample time in which to make a thorough canvass of the district, and will not allow the campaign to become stale. In the next few days the race will be made up, and the several aspirants will be out in the district in hot pursuit of votes. May the best man win.

Auditor Frank P. James notified the national banks of the State that if they did not pay their taxes by July 1, the penalty of 10 per cent would be imposed upon them. The assessments on the banks have been reduced to 80 per cent and he thinks the banks ought to pay that. The custom has been, it is said, not to impose the penalty and to let the banks off without collecting the 10 per cent additional, but Mr. James says he does not intend to let any of them off this time.

It is stated that the Executive Committee of the burley tobacco branch of the Society of Equity at a conference in Winchester they determined to deal only with James B. Duke, President of the American Tobacco Company, in the matter of the proposal to buy the pooled tobacco in its entirety. It is further stated that if the American Company wants this tobacco it will be necessary for Duke to make a personal visit to Kentucky. The Equity people have put aside propositions of minor officials of the combine.

Through the Department of Commerce and Labor and the Postoffice Department, a plan of service is being inaugurated which it is hoped will relieve farmers and others in this country from embarrassment in getting help. The plan contemplates a general distribution of admitted aliens and other persons seeking employment. There are being forwarded to postmasters through out the United States packages of cards, with return attachments for distribution to farmers and others who are likely to need the services of farm or other laborers or mechanics, and who may obtain the character of help required by mailing the return information card, properly filled out, without payment of postage.

Grover Cleveland, former President of the United States, died suddenly at his home, "Westland," at Princeton, N. J., at 8:45 o'clock last Wednesday morning. Death was due to heart failure, complicated with other diseases. The passing away of Mr. Cleveland was not immediately announced, but was delayed until an official statement had been prepared by the physicians who had been attending him in the various periods of his illness. Mr. Cleveland was 71 years old on March 18 last. During the past winter Mr. Cleveland kept close to his home in Princeton until the approach of his birthday, when he went to Lakewood with his family. He was a member of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York City, and up to the time of his going to Lakewood had attended to correspondence in connection with his duties for that society.

MAKE OUR STORE YOUR HEADQUARTERS ON JULY 4TH.

Death has claimed the last of the ex-Presidents, Grover Cleveland, and the entire country deplores his demise. He had lived but a year beyond man's allotted time, and had been in poor health for several months, yet the summons came unexpected to his family and friends. Immediately following the announcement of his death his praise as a great and able man was sounded in every quarter of the land, many of those who had been his bitterest political enemies declaring he was worthy the great honor the people of the country bestowed upon him twice. Grover Cleveland is no more, but his fame will survive.

Step by step farming is becoming a sure and scientific profession. The risks and uncertainities that formerly tossed the farmer back and forth between hope and despair are being mastered. The weather bureau, which sent half a million warnings last year to the farmers, has already become so skillful that six-sevenths of its predictions come true. In Kansas wheat growing has become so sure that there has been no failure for thirteen years. And in the vast southwest the trick of irrigation is changing the man killing desert into a farmers' paradise, where there is nothing so punctual as the crops.

The RECORDER requests its friends who are entitled to free advertising in its columns, to send in their adletts by Monday at noon of each week; and the same request is made of those who have announcements they desired made of meetings, &c. This request is made because about all the neighborhood and some local news have to be handled on Tuesday, and a compliance with the above requests will expedite matters greatly at this office. But bear in mind it is not said these advertisements and announcements will not be published unless sent in as above suggested. They will always receive the best attention it is possible to give them.

Back to the people is the slogan with the Democratic leaders as evidenced by the action of the recent State convention at Lexington and the action of the sixth district congressional committee at Walton, last Friday. It took the pendulum a long time to begin the swing in the proper direction.

The Democrats in this congressional district are going to be real good—no money, whiskey beer or other demoralizing agencies will be used by the candidates to secure votes at the congressional primary to be held August 22d. Some of the boys in the trenches will not enjoy such conditions.

1908 is half gone.

The dry weather will reduce the crop of blackberries.

Threshing machines will be on the go in a few days.

Considerable coal was hauled to Burlington consumers, last week.

William Kirkpatrick, of Hopeful, made his first run of lambs, last week.

Teams are not on the roads long until they are covered with a thick coat of dust.

Smith's fish wagon came in from Belleview early last Friday morning and sold fish rapidly.

If a dry June insures a good crop of corn, there ought to be an abundance of it in this county this fall.

Considerable new metal is being prepared for use on the Burlington section of the Burlington and Florence pike.

Tanner & Thompson, the harvester machine men of Florence, were doing this part of the county, one day last week.

Through B. B. Hume, F. A. Utz, of Florence, sold his handsome saddle horse to Judge John M. Lassing, of Walton, for $250.

Geo. Rue and wife, of Cleves, returned to their home, last Saturday, after having spent several days with their Boone county relatives and friends.

The dry weather has given the farmers in Belleview bottoms a severe attack of blues. The corn and potato crops there threaten almost a failure.

There is no indication of there being anything wild and woolly about Burlington next Saturday. The citizens will give vent to their patriotism elsewhere.

Farmer "Jack" Sandford was in Burlington, one afternoon last week, giving the ball tossers a few pointers in the tossing art, at which he use to do a little himself.

H. W. Rouse, who resides near the forks of Gunpowder has a young horse that is the best prospect in this part of the county for a very valuable animal. It is a beaut.

The local base ball team will go to Belleview next Saturday afternoon, to engage the team there, and it will be accompanied by a considerable aggregation of rooters.

Next Monday is county court and Nebraska Indian day in Burlington, a combination that should result in the presence of a great many people in the old town on that date.

This part of the country will be short on potatoes. The crop looks worse than it has at this time in years. The tuber is a very important article of food for which there is no substitute.

The Lawrenceburg fair advertisement can be found in another column of this issue. In the list of premiums will be found some extra large, well worth an effort to capture.

The Lawrenceburg fair catalogue for the 1908 exhibition has been issued. It contains quite a lengthy list of liberal premiums, and this year's fair promises to be exceptionally good.

The change in the temperature about the middle of last week, was very favorable to men and teams engaged in the wheat fields but it destroyed all hopes of a much needed good rain.

A seining party led by Albert Conner seined the pond on the Conner land in Locust Grove neighborhood last Thursday, and captured a lot of nice fish, the largest being a blue cat.

It is hoped that a good crowd will attend the common school graduating exercises to be held at the court house tomorrow, beginning at 2 p. m. Encourage the graduates with your presence.

The common school commencement exercises will be held at the court house tomorrow afternoon. There are twenty graduates to participate, being the largest class with one exception, that has been granted diplomas.

The most famous base ball team in the country is the Nebraska Indians. This organization is composed of genuine American savages. They will play the Burlington team at Burlington on Monday afternoon July 6th.

The sheriff's notice of the times and places that he will meet the taxpayers of this county to receive their taxes, appears in another column. Read it and be posted in regard to a matter of considerable importance to you.

The death of Lamot D. Houston, last week, removes another of the old landmarks, and a clever, good man. He spent the early part of his life in the Belleview neighborhood, where he was held in the highest esteem by all.

Wheat was cut as early as June 17 this year. In the Whitewater valley and the valleys of North and South Hogan some harvesting was done as early as June 16. It has been many years since it was so early.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Don't forget that the Nebraska Indian base ball team will play at Burlington park next Monday afternoon. Come and see the redskins perform. They are high class ball tossers, well behaved, creating a good impression wherever they make a stand.

The wheat harveet in this county is now on in earnest. The yield and quality is above the average for this section. We have heard of several crops that are expected to produce an average of 25 bushels per acre. These are to be sure exceptional crops.—Pendletonian.

The Nebraska Indian base ball team will be here to play the Burlington team next Monday afternoon, and every lover of the national game in the county should be present to witness the game with this wonderful team. It is a sight worth going miles to see, and is the only Indian hall team that knows the game in all its features.

Some two years since a swarm of bees entered a crack in the weatherboarding near the roof on one corner of the residence of Jacob Shafer situated in the bottoms above this city. Henry Schinnaman a few days since removed the weatherboarding, captured the bees and got some 20 pounds of honey as a reward.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve Wins.

Tom Moore, of Rural Route 1, Cochran, Ga., writes: "I had a bad sore come on the instep of my foot and could find nothing that would heal it until I applied Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Less than half of a 25 cent box won the day for me by affecting a perfect cure." Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

The bridges on the Limaburg and Constance pike have been put in good condition. That road has been improved considerably in the last two years, resulting in a considerable increase in the travel over it. With the pike completed to Limaburg there is no doubt but what that road would become a dividend producer. Why not? The only objection to it is the Minneola hill, and with it kept smooth and well protected along the dangerous looking places, this inconvenience would soon be forgotten by the public.

Deputy Sheriff W. D. Cropper took John Meeks to the penitentiary at Frankfort, last Thursday to enter upon his life term at hard labor in that institution. Meeks was tried at the last term of the Boone circut court and found guilty of the murder of Albert Clutterbuck on the street in Florence on the night of December 14, 1908. Immediately after the shooting, Springer Carpenter, marshal of the town of Florence, arrested Meeks and held him until Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume put in his appearance in response to a telephone message calling him to the scene of the trouble. The deputy sheriff placed Meeks in the jail at Burlington, and circuit court being in session Judge Cammack called a special grand jury and Meeks was indicted for murder, and not desiring to be tried at that term of the court, and there being threats of mob violence Meeks was ordered to the Covington jail for safe keeping, where he remained until the last April term of the circuit court, when he was returned to Burlington and convicted and given a life sentence. He was given sixty days in which to take an appeal, but for some reason no copy of the record of the trial was ordered for the purpose of an appeal, and the sixty days stay of judgment having expired last Wednesday, Deputy Sheriff Cropper delivered Meeks to prison authorities at Frankfort last Thursday to enter upon his life term. It will be remembered that the killing of Albert Clutterbuck was the result of Meek's ill feeling towards him because of his having succeeded him as marshal of the town of Florence during the last fair at that place.

The Best Pills Ever Sold.

"After doctoring 15 years for chronic indigestion, and spending over two hundred dollars, nothing has done me as much good as Dr. King's New Life Pills. I consider them the best pills ever sold," writes B. F. Ayscue, of Ingleside, N. C. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

The auditor of public accounts at Frankfort has notified the sheriff of this county to forward the State dog tax he collected and held on account of the question of the constitutionality of the dog law pending in the court of appeals, and which was decided a few weeks since. He said nothing about the sheriff's compensation for the collection of the tax, and that officer is at a loss for a reason why he should not be allowed the same commission he is allowed for collecting other taxes.

Mrs. Louisa Stephens, aged 69, died at the home of her nephew, Elmer Conley, in Burlington, last Friday morning, after an illness of four weeks. Her trouble was a general giving away of the system. She was the widow of Micajah Stephens, and a daughter of the late Lewis and Eliza Arnold, being one of a family of twelve or thirteen children, only two of whom survive, Mrs. Robert Conley, of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Jack Stephens, of Union neighborhood. The remains were interred in the cemetery at Union, last Sunday.

The following common school graduates will receive diplomas at the commencement held at the court house in Burlington tomorrow: Mamie Corbin, Ruby Corbin, Clifford Miller, Jessie Houston, of District No. 8; Lewis Utz, Grace and Lewis Houston, Myron Smith, of District No. 9; Lillian Bristow, of District No. 22; Lillian Biel, of District No. 30; Mabel Morris, of District No. 31; Anna Humphrey, of District No. 33; Warren and Robert Lassing, Jessie Carroll, Margurite and Edith Fields, Edna Watson, Mary Graham, Callie Benson, of District No. 44. PRIMARY Favored By Rhinock, Who Is A Candidate For a Renomination In This Congressional District.

Hon. Joseph L. Rhinock, who has represented the Sixth Kentucky District in Congress for the past four years desires a renomination. Mr. Rhinock has issued the following statement to the Democratic voters of the district:

Covington, Ky., June 25, 1908.

"To the Democracy and the Congressional Committee of the Sixth District of Kentucky: I take this method of announcing my candidacy for re election to Congress, subject to the action of the Democratic party.

"The Democratic hosts of Kentucky are united as never before in the history of our state. A harmonious militant, united Democracy stand resolutely back of that matchless American who will be our nominee by acclamation for President, William Jennings Bryan.

"I recall with delight the fact that for 12 years I have been his follower. I believed when I introduced him to the Covington Democracy, when I was Mayor of Covington, as I do now, that he is the greatest defender and champion of the rights of the plain people of this republic, and I believe that the people only wait the coming of election day in November to crown him as Chief Magistrate of the nation. In Congress I have fought and voted for the principles that are dear to him and loved by the Democracy of this district.

"I have stood by the people against the oppression of monopoly, and it will be the pride of my life to represent for one more term in Congress the people of this great district, and in keeping with this desire and to further the harmony and good will that is now universal in the ranks of the Kentucky Democracy I most respectfully ask that your committee call an old fashioned primary in this district to nominate a candidate to represent us in the Sixty-first Congress.

"This manner of nominating will afford an opportunity for every man who aspires to go to Congress to go direct to the people, who are at last the source of all strength; and the Democracy of this district at their respective voting places will select the candidate that shall bear the Democratic standard. Of course, I shall be obedient to whatever action your committee shall take in the premises, but at the same time I most sincerely urge the calling of a primary as the most acceptable and feasible method of selecting the nominee, and to the Democracy of this district I extend my most grateful thanks for the confidence they have bestowed upon me and assure them that a continuation of same shall never be betrayed. I am, with great respect, very sincerely.

JOSEPH L. RHINOCK.

What Your Neighbors Say of Fisher's Liniment.

I remember getting Fisher's Liniment of your father years ago. It's good. M. F. WINGATE.

Homer M. Fisher, Lawrenceburg, says: "I used Fisher's Liniment while engaged in the Porto Rican campaign of the Spanish-American War, for Cholera Morbus and headache. It never failed me."

Mrs. Joe Schwartz, Hebron, Ky., says: "We use Fisher's Liniment in our family for aches and pains. It's good."

Chris Hilker, Aurora, says: "I cured my horse of colic with Fisher's Liniment. It's alright for a sprain, too."

John T. Stephenson, Hume, Ky., says: "Everybody in our neighborhood speaks well of Fisher's Liniment. We keep it on hand."

Mrs. J. L. Jones, Landing, Ky., says: "We have used Fisher's Liniment. It is real good."

Fisher's Liniment is sold by Druggists and dealers through Boone and [illegible] Grant [illegible] 25 and 50 cents.

A BIGOTED PROPHET

Jonah Displeased Because Repentant Nineveh Is Spared.

STORY BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1906, by the Author, W. G. Eaton.)

Scripture Authority—Jonah, chapters 3 and 4.

SERMONETTE.

"God saw. . . . God repented. . . . He did it not." That is a revelation of God dealing in mercy and love with a wicked people.

Who is there who can charge God with favoritism? With harsh and unreasoning judgment against sin?

Nineveh stands out a perpetual challange against the claim that God ever punishes unjustly or before he has given full opportunity for repentance and a turning from the sin that would destroy.

God saw "that the people of Nineveh brought forth works meet for repentance."

The prophet was so blinded by his prejudicea and the natural hatred of the Jewa for every other nation that he could not see anything but the wickedness of the city and believe that the only just course was the destruction of the city.

But God saw. How comforting and encouraging is the thought that God sees. Human eyaa are prone to only see the weaknaaaes and failures. God sees the quickening purpose in the heart for a better life. He sees the first slow, faltering steps towards him, and in patience and love he staya his hand of judgment and holds out the other in which are offered mercy and forgiveness.

Truly, as the Lord hath said: "I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked."

On the contrary hear him plead, "that the wicked turn from his way and live; turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ya die?"

So much for God and his infinite love and mercy which reach out to the far off Ninevahs, bestowing pardon instead of judgment.

But what of the preacher? No credit to him for the repentance of Nineveh. His bigotry would have shut the great city out of the pale of God's mercy. He spoke the message God had given him to speak, a message of impending judgment, with no thought, or wish, or prayer that Nineveh might repent and be spared.

Jonah had like many a modern-day preacher that "I-am-holier-than-thou" feeling, and went about his preaching in a perfunctory way, delivering his message because it was the word, and because he knew he must preach it, but never for a moment feeling the heart-throb of God, or that yearning for the salvation of a perishing soul.

Religious exclusiveness or bigotry have done more to retard the onward progress of the kingdom of Christ than any direct forces of evil which have been brought to bear upon Christian work and workers.

THE STORY.

NINEVEH was in a turmoil of excitement. A strange preacher had suddenly appeared in the street of the great city and was proclaiming a message from the great God of heaven and earth, the God of gods who ruled over all, and who was able to destroy and to make alive. At first the multitudes had been disposed to mock and ridicule the oddly-garbed preacher, and to laugh with scorn at the warning that "yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown."

But as day after day this preacher had passed up and down the city proclaiming his message, and the miraculous story was told from mouth to mouth how the preacher had been cast into the sea, and how his God, who had sent him to the city, had prepared a great fish to receive him and bring him safe to land, a sober, thoughtful hearing was given him. As a result it was not long ere word was brought to the king concerning the man and his message.

"Nineveh to be destroyed?" he cried. "Nay, it cannot be."

But fear took hold upon his heart. The message of the prophet troubled him day and night, and at last he laid aside his robes of state, and putting on in their place the sackcloth and ashes which betokened deep mourning and grief, he proclaimed a fast throughout the city, decreeing that the people from the king and nobles down should neither eat bread nor drink water until the wrath of the God of gods had been appeased.

What a transformation that was! When Jonah entered the city's gates he had found the [illegible] given to all manner of feasting, and gayety, wickedness, and now these things had all been put away and the people did not so much as eat or drink, whereas before they had indulged in all manner of excesses. Instead of the ribald dances and the licentious worship in the groves, the people gave themselves up to mourning. When they were not listening to the strange preacher's message they were rehearsing to one another the things which he said.

And that they believed his message was certain, for they confessed one to another that there were no gods of the people of Nineveh like unto the great God who had spoken the words of judgment against their city. And believing this, all the gross and gorgeous worship of the many gods of Nineveh was stopped, and instead there was a turning in thought to the great unknown God who was able to destroy and was able to make alive.

They knew this last must be true indeed, for had not the great God snatched this strange preacher from the very jaws of death and preserved his life when the sea had opened to swallow him up, forever?

Jonah was not insensible to the change which had come over the city, but instead of softening his heart towards the people who gave such evident signs of repentance, it had the contrary effect. In the seething heat of his bitter bigotry all impulses of mercy and love were burned up, so that with increasing vehemence he preached the certain destruction of the city. And with increasing terror the people sought after this great God, saying over and over to each other:

"Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce anger, that we perish not?"

So it was that as the end of the 40 days drew near a very great cry went up from the city to the God of heaven that he would spare them.

Jonah, hearing the cry, and beholding the great distress of the people, was moved with still deeper resentment. How could God hear such a people? Would God spare? Impossible! Were these people not outside the covenant blessing of God? What right had they to claim or expect mercy from the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob? And how could God show kindness to Israel and spare so powerful an enemy? Had not God said that the coast of Israel was to be restored and how could this be brought about if Nineveh were spared?

"Yea," exclaimed Jonah, bitterly. "How can God shew mercy to Nineveh to the hurt of his chosen people? And yet—and yet—" He did not finish the sentence, save with a half sob, half angry cry, but it was plain that the prophet feared that God would show mercy instead of executing judgment as he had declared he would.

"If Nineveh is spared, what will ever my nation say of me? Can they not well say that I have proved false to them? Surely there will be naught but condemnation that I should have gone and preached to those who are our enemies and saved them from destruction. Oh, woe is me; woe is me! Better that I had died than to have come thither."

Thus, in bitterness of heart, Jonah waited, but notwithstanding his disappointment he obediently went hither and thither delivering his message, and hoping against hope that God would yet punish the great city for all its wickedness.

So the days were fulfilled when the city was to be destroyed.

From his vantage point on the east side of the city Jonah watched and waited. Would God send fire from heaven to burn it up as he did Sodom and Gomorrah, or would the ground open and swallow it up? All through the night he watched and waited, no sleep coming to his anxious eyes and troubled heart, and with the first gleam of the morning light he was straining his eyes towards the city.

"Yea, it is just as I feared. Why should I, a Jew, live longer when mercy is thus shown to these miserable, despised Gentiles? Oh, Lord," he cried, lifting his eyes toward heaven, "take my life."

And as he waited thus with his face lifted upward there came a voice from above, saying:

"Doest thou well to be angry?"

Jonah made no reply, but sank upon the ground, and as the sun came up he became conscious of the shade of the gourd which God had caused to grow up during the night and which gave him cooling protection all through the day.

But that night God sent a worm which cut the vine off and caused it to wither, so that the next morning the full rays of the hot eastern sun beat relentlessly upon the head of Jonah, so that he cried in his misery and anguish:

"It is better for me to die than to live."

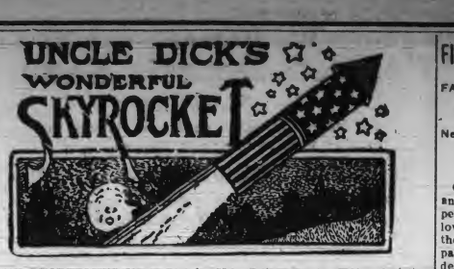
And the voice of God sounded out of the heaven saying:

"Doest thou well to be angry for the gourd?"

"Yet, I do well to be angry even unto death," impatiently cried the prophet.

Again came the voice from heaven saying:

"Thou hast had pity on the gourd, for the which thou hast not labored, neither madest it to grow; which came up in a night and which perished in a night; and should I not spare Nineveh, that great city, wherein are more than 60,000 little ones who are unable to discern between their right hand and their left?"



The voice ceased and Jonah was left to heart-searching meditation.

"Ah," he thought, as he took up the long journey homeward, "who can measure the fathomless depths of God's mercy, or know the power of His love?"

No Chance for Distress.

"Did you enjoy your visit with that sick woman next door?"

"Not very much," replied Mrs. Scarem. "She wasn't half as sick as I expected to find her."—Detroit Free Press.

JIMMY BRODERICK'S Uncle Dick was not only a great inventor, but one of the kindest men that ever lived.

Although he earned his living by inventing useful things like automatic plows that would plow a whole field in the night time while the farmer lay in bed asleep, and automatic fish poles that would bait their own hooks and throw out their own lines and pull in their own fish and take them off and bait the hooks over again, still Uncle Dick was ready at a minute's notice to drop all that sort of thing and invent something to give a boy pleasure. And you will agree that a nephew who has an uncle like that has a treasure.

Jimmy Broderick knew this and he took great care of Uncle Dick, carrying an umbrella for him when it rained and watching to see that he ate his meals regularly, for like all great inventors, Uncle Dick could not take care of himself very well.

"What would you like for the Fourth of July, Jimmy?" asked Uncle Dick about a week before that important day.

"I would like most of all to have a great big sky rocket," said Jimmy.

"You shall have one," said his uncle, and immediately went into his inventory shop, which is the funny name that he gave to the little room where he invented things.

The telephone bell rang a good deal that day. On the very next morning a big truck arrived from the city with two big casks on it. They were painted red and marked "Danger! Powder!" in big letters. There were also huge rolls of thick pasteboard, each sheet big enough to make the whole side of a house, and there were so many of them that the horses could hardly pull them.

Uncle Dick rubbed his hands and chuckled like anything when he saw the material.

"You shall certainly have a skyrocket," said he to Jimmy. "And the best of it is that the greater part of the country for hundreds of miles around will have one, too."

Jimmy was very curious and still more puzzled, but he knew that Uncle Dick did not like to explain his inventions beforehand, so he asked no questions, but merely kept his eyes open and did not go out of sight of the inventory shop all morning.

Before noon a great gang of men arrived, and under Uncle Dick's orders they began to carry all the material to the pasture, where they deposited it around a huge old dead pine tree that stood smooth and straight reaching into the sir fully 80 feet without a branch to break it except on the very top, and that was soon gone, too, for Uncle Dick sent men up there and they lopped it off so that then the tree stood sleek and smooth like a mast.

Then the sheets of pasteboard were laid on the ground and rolled into a great cylinder 30 feet long and at least ten feet in diameter.

As soon as a sheet was rolled into shape the men tied it tightly with yards on yards of rope and then another sheet was rolled around the first and more rope tied around that and so on until all the pasteboard had been used up, and that was such a lot that it took the men all day with the hardest kind of work.

The next day they opened the casks of powder and began to load it in and in, hour after hour, until the last grain was pounded in good and hard, and Jimmy's Uncle Dick said:

"A Great Cylinder 30 Feet Long."

"So! There's 800 pounds of powder in there. That ought to make her fly."

"But how about the stick?" thought Jimmy. He did not say it, knowing how easy it is to spoil an inventor's ideas by interrupting him with frivolous conversation.

He was to learn very soon how about the stick, for as soon as the mighty cylinder was all finished, Uncle Dick had a derrick rigged, and up went the big thing until it dangled alongside of the dead pine tree near the dizzy top of it.

Then mighty cables were sent up and the men lashed the loaded pasteboard cylinder to the tree until it was completely hidden by ropes.

"Now for the fuse," said Uncle Dick.

He set the men to work untwisting ropes until they had more than 300 feet all unraveled. Uncle Dick went up the derrick and put the end of the unraveled rope into the bottom part of the rocket. Then he poured kerosene oil all over it and rubbed gunpowder into it.

That afternoon Uncle Dick sent out invitations both by mail and by messenger to places as far away as 200 miles, saying:

"Jimmy Broderick respectfully invites you to his Uncle Dick's farm to see him set off the biggest skyrocket in the world on the evening of the Fourth of July."

Uncle Dick also sent word to the papers about it, and on the evening of the Fourth more than 10,000 people were at the farm, wondering at the im-

"Ten Thousand People Were There."

mense skyrocket and trembling all over at the thought of the explosion when she went off. And all over the land people who could not go to the farm were watching the heavens and paying very little attention to the other fireworks of the United States, because the papers had told all about the rocket and had explained that it could be seen hundreds of miles when it went up.

When the time came, Uncle Dick gave Jimmy a big piece of lighted punk and then he stood in front of the tree and said:

"Ladies and Gentlemen: You will notice that this tree is inclined toward the north. My calculations tell me that when the rocket is lit it will pull the tree clear out of the ground and go north for at least 1,000 miles, which will bring it over uninhabited country, where it will fall without hurting anybody, unless a bear or a moose should get in the way. Now, Jimmy, touch her off!"

Jimmy touched the end of the fuse and then everybody ran away to a safe distance. The fire climbed swiftly, and suddenly with a bang that shook the hills and broke the windows even in towns 100 miles away, the giant rocket went off.

Out came the tree, roots and all, and sailed grandly into the sky with a hissing trail of fire behind it. The amazed spectators watched it for more than half an hour, getting smaller and smaller, till it disappeared in the northern sky.

For days after that the paper printed reports from distant places from people who had seen a wonderful fiery thing in the night. By means of these reports, it was possible for Uncle Dick to pursue the course of his wonderful rocket until he found that it had gone far over Canada; but he could not learn where it had fallen and he did not learn until recently.

But about a week ago a hunter who had been in the very far north of Canada, near Hudson bay, shooting musk oxen, visited Uncle Dick. He told a lot of interesting hunting adventures, and finally said:

"The queerest thing that I saw was far up in the barren lands where there are no trees. One day I saw something odd some distance away, and I went there on my snow shoes.

"What do you suppose I found? A mighty tree! That was queer enough up there. But queerer still was the fact that this tree did not stand in the ground as other trees do, but stood roots up with its crown buried deeply in the soil. It was the most marvelous sight I have ever seen, and I can hardly believe it yet. I would give a good deal to know what caused this strange freak of nature."

Uncle Dick chuckled and winked at Jimmy.

"Did you ever hear of Jimmy's wonderful skyrocket?" he asked.

"No, never," said the hunter. "You know I have been in the wilderness a long time."

So Uncle Dick told him. After he got through the hunter said; "I am glad to know this. I intended to write a book about it, but now I shall be able to save myself the trouble."

FIVE DIE IN CHICAGO FIRE

FATAL BLAZE STARTED BY AN EXPLOSION OF CHEMICALS.

Nearly a Score Injured—Fireman Mortally Hurt by Accident to Engine.

Chicago.—Five persons were killed and nearly a score were injured, two perhaps fatally, Thursday in a fire following an explosion of chemicals in the plant of the Pabst Chemical company, 178 Huron street. Four of the dead are members of the Nolan family—a mother and three children. An alarm of fire was sent in by employes of the chemical company and members of truck company No. 5, whose headquarters are less than a block from the scene, hurried to the building. Mrs. Nolan and her three children attempted to reach the rear fire escape, but apparently were overcome by the heat and smoke and fell to the floor. They were suffocated when the fire spread to the upper floors of the building. After the fire had been gotten under control members of truck company No. 3 went to the third floor and found their bodies huddled together.

The three upper floors of the building, which is four stories high, were occupied as living apartments, and in the first floor and basement were the factory and office of the Pabst Chemical company, a proprietary medicine concern. The explosion occurred in the basement, supposedly from combustion of the chemicals stored there. Flames and suffocating fumes swept through the building. There was a rush for the fire escapes and windows, when the occupants recovered from the force of the explosion and found themselves in the midst of a furnace. Hands and faces were burned and hair singed off in the rush to safety.

While on the way to the fire in response to the second alarm, engine company No. 1, stationed at Van Buren street and Fifth avenue, met with a mishap which may cause the death of John Doody, the engineer. The engine was going north in Fifth avenue when at Adams street the rear axle broke. The boiler toppled to the right, pinning Doody under the machinery.

BIG DULUTH ELEVATOR BURNS.

Fire on Rice's Point Does Million Dollars Damage.

Duluth, Minn.—Over a million dollars in property was consumed within two hours Friday afternoon on Rice's Point by a fire which razed elevator D of the Consolidated Elevator company to the water's edge, destroyed a dock and sheds of the Northern Pacific and imperiled surrounding property valued at another million.

Valiant work by a dozen tug boats which aided the fire department is probably all that saved the bay front at that point from being entirely swept. While the firemen combated the flames on Elevator D the tugs kept steady streams on all surrounding buildings from the slips within a radius of two blocks. The flames shot in the air high above the structure and, fanned by a brisk breeze, broke across the water and kept the docks and elevators almost at the point of ignition.

From 12:35, when the fire was discovered, until about four o'clock, elevator D was a raging furnace, then, after two hours' fierce burning, the fire had spent itself and gradually abated until, at eight o'clock, only smouldering wreckage of the property remained.

HARVARD WINS BOAT RACE.

Griswold, the Yale Stroke, Collapses Under Great Strain.

New London, Conn.—Amid a deafening din of steam whistles and horns and the frenzied shouts of collegians, the Harvard 'varsity eight shot their boat over the finish line Thursday night, winning from the crippled and distanced Yale crew that classic of American college squatics, the Harvard-Yale 'varsity boat race.

But instead of a race, Harvard finished the last mile and a half alone, while far behind Yale limped along with but seven men at the oars, with Griswold, the stroke—the man who had been relied upon to set the winning pace—bent forward, limp and faint from the terrific strain of the opening two miles.

THE DAY WE CELEBRATE

Roar of the British Lion

By WRIGHT A. PATTERSON

WHEN old Peter Brown died he left his fortune—a very sizable one—to his grandson, P. Chawley Brown, as the young man signed it, or "Dickey" Brown as he was familiarly known to his intimates. But the fortune had conditions attached, conditions that were "a beastly bore, don't you know."

Old Peter had been one of the old settlers of Plumville; his son had been born there and married there, and "Dickey" had first seen the light of day at the same place. But with the increase of fortune "Dickey's" mother had developed society leanings, and she had taken "Dickey" east where she could dabble in the edges of the society sea, and "Dickey" had grown up in the atmosphere of Saratoga and Newport, with an occasional visit to London when the "season" was on.

When it came to the question of a university nothing short of Oxford would answer; as America was too provincial to be thought of. So it was that he spent the greater part of his teens and neared his majority in England, at all times a willing student of English snobbery.

It was with considerable disgust that Dickey read the letter from his American lawyers warning him that if he wished to have the handling of his grandfather's money after his twenty-fifth birthday it would be necessary to comply with the old gentleman's expressed command that he spend each of his birthdays from his twenty-first to his twenty-fifth in his native town of Plumville.

"A beastly bore, don't you know," said Dickey, as he read the letter for the third time. "I say now, why could not the old codger have left that out?"

It was on the first of July that Dickey arrived at Plumville, monocle, brilliantly checked trousers, white spats, walking stick and all the other essentials without which life in London would be scarcely worth the living.

Plumville just at that time was very much imbued with a spirit of patriotism, and looked at everything English very much as the audience looks upon the villain in the show. The town was going to celebrate, and they were going to do it on a very big scale—for Plumville. Everything had been arranged for with the exception of the evening's fireworks when the subscribed funds began to run low, and it seemed as though Plumville's celebration was not destined to wind up in a blaze of glory. Rather, that was the way it seemed before Dickey's arrival.

The finance committee of the celebration felt that he should and would provide the needed funds for the fireworks, and the chairman waited upon him at once and broached the subject. What Dickey said to the chairman that official did not repeat, but he did report to the committee that the funds for the fireworks would be forthcoming, and the town paper contained the following notice on the morning of the third:

EXTRAORDINARY CELEBRATION ATTRACTION!

The committee on arrangements of the Plumville Fourth of July celebration, announce the engagement of a GENUINE ENGLISH LION.

The only one in captivity in this country. He will be securely caged, and will provide entertainment by roaring when his tail is twisted.

DO NOT FAIL TO SEE IT.

The admission price will be 25 cents.

When Fourth of July morning dawned, a large size tent was one of the features of the grounds on which the celebration was to be held. Across it in large letters was the sign:

THE ENGLISH LION—HEAR IT ROAR!

The curiosity of the visitors and the townspeople was at white heat, and they flocked into the tent as soon as it was opened.

There was Dickey in a hastily constructed cage, securely bound down on all fours, properly arrayed in his checked trousers, white spats, with his monocle fastened securely in place and himself decorated with a bushy tail. The chairman's young hopeful, garbed in continental uniform and cocked hat, was operating the tail-piece. This was but a doubled strand of rope fitted around Dickey's stomach so tightly that when given an extra twist or two it became torture to the victim, and produced the promised roar.

The crowd went wild with delight at the novelty of the entertainment while Dickey roared, and howled, and swore, and vowed vengeance upon Plumville and the entire nation.

The $100 worth of fireworks with which Plumville wound up its celebration were promptly paid for when the bill was presented. Dickey spent his birthday in bed in the town hospital, and has not been heard from since the day following, though the fame of Plumville's British lion has spread from ocean to ocean. Should he fail to return for his birthday this year, the town will be able to replace the present hospital with a more commodious structure out of the old gentleman's fortune which it inherits, should Dickey not meet the conditions of the will.

THE PLUG HAT OF JAPAN.

Tiles of the Vintage of Fifty Years Ago Make the Mikado's Subjects Proud.

"There is one sight which you must not miss when you go to Tokyo," said the seasoned traveler. "That is the rare display of anthropological plug hats.

"Some people arrange to get to Japan in cherry blossom season, and others want to get there in time to receive an invitation to the emperor's garden party in chrysanthemum time; but take the tip of one who has batted about the world considerably and land in Tokyo either on New Year's day or on the emperor's birthday. On both you can see something unique in the line of headgear.

"When Japan began to get civilized she bought all the accessories of civilization that England did not want any more. England sold her old-fashioned, out-of-date, narrow gauge railroad stock, antiquated tram cars and other second-hand junk, including the then current styles of plug hat.

"The tile of those days has remained the ruling fashion in Japan up to the present. Japan may build Dreadnoughts, but the plug hat of 50 years ago still reigns supreme.

"Only on such ceremonious occasions as the New Year's festivities, the emperor's birthday or possibly the racing meets at Negishi, near Yokohama, does the Japanese gentleman bring forth from his camphor wood chest his plug hat, a heritage from his forefathers. It may be warped with 20 summers; damp or green with the shine of antiquity, but that matters nothing.

"Once this superstructure to his wrinkled frock coat and bagged trousers is added, the Japanese gentleman feels that no dignity short of a decoration of the order of the Rising Sun can be added to his person. That crowning glory of a plug hat may settle around his ears or it may perch upon his head like half a peanut shell, but no matter; it is the hat of civilization and the badge of respectability.

"He trots out of his house looking like one of the ancient daimios stiff with the dignity of two swords. All that fearful day he wears this hat of ancient vintage like a crown, and in the end he stows it away in his damp-proof chest awaiting another festal occasion or held as an asset in his estate after death."

Unwise Combination.

To the mind of Mrs. Abigail Jennings there was a sort of disloyalty in admitting to any outsider that a native of Willowby could be really eccentric. As for anything beyond eccentricity, Mrs. Jennings would never have admitted it, even in the case of Miss Rachel Gregg, who was frankly called crazy by the summer visitors.

"Now, Mrs. Jennings," said one of the boarders, "do you really mean that you've never known Miss Gregg to do anything that you'd call crazy?"

"No, I haven't," said Mrs. Jennings, with a firm and unyielding expression about her prominent chin.

"Why, what do you think of her sending that bag of eggs over to the Corners to Mrs. Cole, right in the box with her laundry work, and never telling the stage-driver, and letting him throw the box right off?" inquired the summer boarder. "Mrs. Cole says there's one shirtwaist she'll never be able to wear again."

"Well," said Mrs. Jennings, calmly, "I should say about that as I have about a number of little things Rachel does and has done. She may lack in wisdom and forethought now and again—but then, who doesn't, I'd to know?"—Youth's Companion.

Making It Measure Down.

In these days when only the rich criminal or suspect is accorded much space in the newspapers it may be a relief to the predatory rich to have the fact recalled that the blessed middle class may also produce dishonesty. A policeman tells this story:

"Before I reformed and went on the force I was clerking in a small store. One day an Italian woman came in. She held a string in her hand, a long string, and said that she wanted a blanket of the same length. I went through our stock and found that the longest blanket we had was six inches too short. In the midst of my search the boss came up.

"'What's the matter?' he said.

"I told him.

"'That's easy,' said he. 'I'll talk to her and keep her busy while you cut off the string.'"

The honest copper swears that he would not be an active party to such a trick, but whatever was done the woman soon left the store with a blanket and string of equal length.—San Francisco Call.

Took No Chances.

He had proposed, but she had given him the frigid mitt—seemingly; but five minutes later they were busy swapping kisses.

"But if you really and truly loved me, why did you turn me down at first?" queried the puzzled young man.

"Oh, that was just a whim of mine," she replied; "I wanted to see how you would act."

"But suppose I had rushed off without giving you a chance to explain?" he said.

"Impossible," she answered. "I had the door locked."

No, Indeed.

"The sun is mighty scorching these days, but—"

"But what?"

"I notice women still hate to be thrown into the shade."—Kansas City Times.

FIRST TIME HE ACTED LIKE THAT

Carter's Statement That No Doubt Was the Exact Truth.

There was a poor old carter whose sole means of livelihood was an old white horse that was periodically troubled with colic.

On these occasions a neighboring veterinary attended to the needs of the suffering animal, and the frequency of these spells and their fortunate endings caused the owner to look upon them with unconcern.

But one night, despite the doctor's treatment, the old horse made a few desperate kicks, rolled over, and breathed his last.

"Well," said the doctor, gravely, turning to the silent carter, "old Jim will work for you no more."

"Is he dead?" exclaimed the bereaved carter. "That's odd. He's had the colic 20 times already, but he's never done this before."

Shoe Blacking Not Used.

"It used to be," said the economical girl, "that we blacked over our last year's natural color straw hat and so made a new straw hat of it with the blacking, but not now, not now, when we can buy material specially prepared for this purpose and in any color.

"It used to be that we could do our hats over only in black, but now we can make them any color we want. I'm doing this one in black because I want it black.

"Then why don't I black it more carefully around the sides of the crown? There are a whole lot of places there, you say, where the white shows still?

"Why, that's because I'm going to trim this hat all round the crown and sew the trimming on, and then the white won't show, and I'm afraid if I put on too much of that stuff there I won't have enough left in the bottle to finish the brim."

Stood Their Ground.

"Hello, Throggins! The last time I saw you, I think, you were in a peck of trouble. Some fellow had bought a suburban lot alongside of yours and put up a livery stable on it. Is he there yet?"

"No; he's gone away and taken the stable with him."

"Then he worked his little scheme all right, did he? Made the property-holders in the block pay him a big price to get out?"

"Not at all. We bought the lot from him for about half what he paid for it. He was glad to get away."

"How did you manage it?"

"I bought a dozen hives of bees and put them along the edge of my lot, next to his stable. The man on the other side of him did the same. The fellow stood it till about the middle of June and then he hiked. There's more than one way to skin a cat, old chap."

No One to Appeal To.

The story is told of a Dutchman who certainly needed the services of the far-famed "lady from Philadelphia" if ever any one required her assistance.

He was assigned to a seat in the coach which obliged him to ride backward through the Black Forest. At the first stopping place he asked the postmaster to give him another seat, saying it made him ill to ride backward.

"Ask the man opposite to change with you," said the postmaster, gruffly.

"But there is nobody opposite to me," complained the Dutchman, "so I cannot ask him."

Only at the End.

Wife (on her return home)—Have you noticed that my husband missed me very much while I was away, Mary?

Maid—Well, I didn't notice it so much at first, but yesterday he seemed to be in despair.—Tit-Bits.

Overburdened with Memory.

"Your son tells me he is going to take lessons to cultivate his memory."

"I hope not," answered Farmer Corntossel; "he can remember every fool tune that was ever whistled."

WHERE SHE HAD THE BULGE.

Telephone Girl's Great Opportunity to Get Gloriously Even.

"You know that red-headed cashier that had the nerve to complain of me to the boss the other day," said the girl at the telephone desk, to a New York Times writer. "Well, I got even with him, all right. He ain't married, but he's got a best girl. His father owns a shoe factory over in Jersey, and rich—my! Well, she called him up the other afternoon at her usual time. 'Is Mr. Smith there?' she asks, in her most romanticist voice. 'Yes,' I answers, just as honeylike as she. 'It's his wife wants him, isn't it?' With that Miss Girl hung up with such a jerk my ear hurt. Smith goes around wondering why she does not call him up. Every time he dares he says to me: 'Has any one called me on the 'phone, Miss Limit?' And I look as innocent as a kid and shake my head 'No.' I tell you, us telephone girls can turn 'Joy to the Bride' into 'Nothin' Doin'' any time we plesse. Me for Us."

SUFFERED TWENTY-FIVE YEARS.

With Eczema—Her Limb Peeled and Foot Was Raw—Thought Amputation Was Necessary—Believes Life Saved by Cuticura.

"I have been treated by doctors for twenty-five years for a bad case of eczema on my leg. They did their best, but failed to cure it. My doctor had advised me to have my leg cut off. At this time my leg was peeled from the knee, my foot was like a piece of raw flesh, and I had to walk on crutches. I bought a set of Cuticura Remedies. After the first two treatments the swelling went down, and in two months my leg was cured and the new skin came on. The doctor was surprised and said that he would use Cuticura for his own patients. I have now been cured over seven years, and but for the Cuticura Remedies I might have lost my life. Mrs. J. B. Renaud, 277 Mentana St., Montreal, Que., Feb. 20, 1907."

Nothing in Vain.

The poet died without knowing what he had been created for.

"To starve!" was the one best guess.

Of course he was in error. Could he have looked forward only a hundred years or so, and beheld the cheap skates who would then be making a fat living writing about him, he must have understood better. Almost nothing is created in vain.

Attractions of Flowers.

A flower has an almost human way of first attracting insects. This is by appealing to their fondness for sweet things. There is secreted in every flower a store of honey, large or small, as the case may be, to which the midge, the butterfly, the bee, the blue-bottle fly and other insects are attracted.

Jones was called, but the patient was so far gone it was impossible to save his life, and he died a short time after the doctor arrived. The unfortunate man had consumption, and had been at a health resort in Mississippi, with the expectation of regaining his health, but realizing that the grim reaper had him in his grasp, he expressed a desire to die at his home, but, alas! he was doomed to disappointment.

W. E. Vest, the real estate agent, sold, last week, the farm of Fernando, "Buddie," Carpenter near Dixon Station, containing 83¼ acres, on which is situated an eight room brick house. G. R. Kennedy, of Lexington, is the purchaser, at $8,250. Mr. Kennedy is the superintendent of the Odd-Fellows' Widows and Orphans Home at Lexington, and bought the farm as an investment, and will rent the place next March when he secures possession.

Dora Bell, of Bedford, Trimble county, spent Thursday and Friday of last week here with friends and attending the meeting of the Democratic Congressional Committee with a view to securing a primary election and it free from the influences of whiskey, money or other means of bribing voters. Mr. Bell is one of the cleanest men in the district. He is the publisher of the Bedford Democrat, clerk of the circuit court of Trimble county and assistant cashier of the Bedford Deposit Bank, every position which he fills with honor and credit.

Prof. C. O. Morgan, of Kenton Co., was here last week and contracted with the trustees of Walton Graded school to take the position of assistant principal, supplying the place of Prof. A. A. Kennett, of Dayton, O., who resigned to go into the life insurance business. Pro. Morgan is a first-class instructor, and will add considerable strength to the faculty of the school. The trustees have also employed an additional teacher, Miss Nannie Chambers, who will also give strength and power to the school. The corps of teachers will be Prof. H. C. Wyman, principal; Prof. C. O. Morgan, assistant principal; Misses Anna Hudson, Eugene Chambers, May Rouse and Nannie Chambers. The trustees are Dr. A. M. Jones, president; Geo. B. Powers, vice-president; T. F. Curley, secretary; Geo. F. Nicholson and A. K. Johnson, and all are gentlemen, who have a wide-awake interest in the school, and will see that the public is well served in this particular in every way. The term of school will be nine months.

Joseph Presser, colored, of Locust Grove neighborhood, left at this office, last Saturday, the head of a groundhog, the teeth in the mouth of which are curiosities.

ELLISTON

Is Pleased With the Order Calling the Congressional Primary—Says Its the Fairest Ever.

Williamstown, Ky., June 29, 1908.

To the Democrats of the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky:

I congratulate you now on having an opportunity to select your candidate for Congress on the 22d day of August, 1908, under the fairest call for a primary that was ever given to the Democrats in any Congressional District in Kentucky. It should mark a new era in Kentucky politics, and set an example for clean methods and fair dealing and elevate the standard of party discipline and party government to a higher plane, by which the whole state should profit. It should send up a shout of joy to every Democrat who wishes to see the party freed from the machinery of "PACKED CONVENTIONS" and "OLD FASHION PRIMARIES" where fraud, bribery and corruption were dominant factors in procuring nominations. It places the power back in the hands of the people where it belongs and invites every country loving and patriotic Democrat to cast his ballot for his choice, free and untrammelled from any improper influence.

This is Democracy pure and simple, and the man who wins the nomination under this call, if he respects its provisions, will bring back to the Sixth District its lost majority of five thousand, and make her again the Gibralter of Kentucky Democracy.

Every hour of my time since I became a candidate for this nomination has been devoted to the task of bringing about this result, and without self praise, I think I may fairly claim some credit for its accomplishment.

I want to meet the Democrats, or as many of them as I can between now and the date of the primary, face to face and discuss the great political problems that are now confronting the people. Under the leadership of that great American and great Democrat, William J. Bryan, I confidently believe that the principles of Democracy will be endorsed by the nation at the November election.

I shall make and publish a list of speaking dates in the district in a few days and cordially invite all the candidates for this nomination to be present, if they desire, and participate therein. Very Truly Yours,

R. H. ELLISTON.

BASE BALL.

The reorganized Belleview base ball team came up last Saturday afternoon and was defeated by the local team 4 to 0. The visitors made a brilliant start, three of the four men up in the first inning making safe hits. McCarty hit safe to left field and was followed by Rogers with a safe drive to right. Hodges' grounder to third base resulted in a double play retiring McCarty at third and Rogers at second. Wingate's hit to right field was fielded to third base by White in time to retire Hodges and the side. The first three Burlington men up, Slayback Brady and Kirk was each given a pass over the strike-out route by Sandford. In the third inning Stuckey made a nice three base drive to left center, but could get no further. In this inning Burlington got busy, made two singles and a double, putting two men across the plate. In the fourth inning McGuire, Clore and White did some sensational work in the field, capturing long flies. In the fifth inning Botts made a hit, which concluded the hit getting for the visitors except Stuckey's two bagger in the eighth. In the fifth inning Slayback, Brady and Conner connected and Slayback scored. Nothing more was doing until the eighth inning when Smith made a two base hit and scored on Slayback's single. Following is the score:

Struck out—By Brady 6, by Sandford 15; Base hits—Slayback 2, Brady 2, Conner 2, McGuire 1, McCarty 1, Rogers 1, Wingate 1, Botts 1; two base hits—McGuire 1, Stuckey 1: three base hit—Stuckey.—Umpires Roberts and Moody.

Black is getting on to the work at second nicely.

Go as the game may Clarence Mc Carty and Ed Sandford don't lose their temper.

Will Stuckey, of the Belleview team, is one of the heaviest batters in the county.

The Boones will play at Belleview next Saturday afternoon. A good game is expected.

Brady worked easy all the time, putting on steam only when there was danger, which was not often.

The Belleview boys put up a good article of ball, and the work of the battery, McCarty and Sandford, was very fine.

The work of Snyder at third and McGuire, Clore, Smith and White in the field was as fine as ever seen on the local grounds.

Earl Smith's fall when running from third home was the result of one of his spikes turning. He gained his feet in a hurry and landed safe at home with run No. 4.

DYSPEPTICS FIND RELIEF

Thousands of sufferers from Stomach Trouble, Indigestion, Distress After Eating, Gas and Catarrh of the Stomach, are finding immediate and permanent relief from a simple formula recently published in a medical journal of authority and is being used extensively by doctors and hospitals. The results in many cases are said to be nothing short of of marvelous. Procure from your druggist one ounce carlos compound powder, mixed with eight ounces sherry or other good wine, take a dessert-spoonful before and after meals or when distressed. This remedy comes highly recommended from a reliable source and is well worth trying. For sale by RILEY & GAAR, Buillittaville, Ky.

GRANT.

Ephriam Clore is some better.

Kirb Clore and wife visited in our town Sunday.

Born to Andy Cook and wife on the 27th of June, a girl.

John Setters left last week for Hoosier to operate a threshing machine for Lou Welsh.

The members of the Baptist church here had new concrete steps put in at the church entrance, also new walks at the parsonage.

Last Monday evening Caddy Maurer came down town wearing a smile a yard long. Some one asked him why that joyful countenance. Caddy replied, "a couple of basket makers arrived at my home at noon." Probably this item should read this way: Born, June 29th, to Charlie Maurer and wife, twins, two boys.

There was something doing here all day on the glorious 4th. In the morning at 9 o'clock the game of ball between McVille and Belleview old men teams was called, and to say there was fun would be putting it mildly. Batteries—Spiney Smith and Jake Cook for Belleview; Williamson and Pat Sandford for McVille; result 8 to 5 in favor of Belleview. A feature of this game was Dan McCarty's batting and Caddy Maurer's slide to third. Pepper Smith looked real cute in Ray Conner's suit, Kirb Ryle put up a good game and Al Rogers made several nice stops of grounders on short. Last Saturday evening the largest crowd that has been on the local ground this season witnessed the Boone—Belleview game, and they were not disappointed, for take it all round it was the game of the season here. Conner pitched a great game, striking out 14 men. In the first inning McCarty, the first man up for Belleview was hit by pitcher and C. Sanford followed with a two bagger, scoring McCarty. Sandford stole third and came in home on an over throw. This ended the run getting until the 7th inning when Belleview bunched their hits and got in 3 more tallies. The Boones in their half of this inning made one score which was started by Smith's muff of Black's fly to center. Black attempted to steal third and McCarty threw a little high letting Black score. The result by innings:

Sandford struck out 3 men, but kept the hits well scattered. Perkins' work at first was perfect. Earl Smith made a nice pickup of a long drive to center. C. Sandford at second filled that position in fine style. Brady was there with the goods at short as usual. Presser is getting onto his job at short. Kirk's work at first was errorless. Botts made a nice double play to second. Talk about your 32 degree rooters, they were out in full force, each side having its share. 250 people were present. Umpires—Roberts and Rogers. A good game is expected next Saturday as the strong Petersburg team plays the locals at the park here.

Rev. Edgar C. Riley, assisted by Rev. N. L. Sims, will begin an evangelistic meeting at the Walton Christian church next Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. A. Slater, of Big Bone, spent part of last week here with their many friends, guests of their son, Dr. J. G. Slater and wife.

Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Caldwell and three children, of Cincinnati, spent part of last week here guests of their relatives, Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Daubman.

Misses Gertrude and Pauline Curley, two of our lovable young ladies, are enjoying a pleasant visit to their aunt, Mrs. T. W. Kilcourse at Louisville.

Miss Kate Sidet, of Mt. Zion, spent the past week here with relatives and friends. She is now in Cincinnati at the bedside of her brother, B. K. Sleet, who is very ill.

Reports from Dr. B. W. Stallard, who is at Louisville in a hospital indicate his early recovery, and he will shortly leave the hospital to go to Nelson county to recuperate his health.

Miss Sybil Hurt, the bright little daughter of telegraph operator, J. G. Hurt, left Tuesday for Greencastle, Indiana, to spend her vacation with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. T. R. Freeman.

Wm. H. Tillinan spent part of last week in Covington and Cincinnati on the tobacco market, and reports a very busy condition sampling and arranging the pooled tobacco sold to the different firms.

Rev. G. L. Andrews, of Covington, preached for Walton Baptist church, Sunday, and has been employed to preach on the first and third Sundays in each month. He is a married man and will move here.

Robt. M., Wayne C. and Raymond Byland attended the funneral of the latter's father-in-law, Asher C. Wood, who died at his home in Covington, June 29th, quite suddenly from Apoplexy, aged 60 years.

Dr. H. C. Black, the veterinary surgeon, has his card in the Recorder. He is a graduate of one of the best veterinary schools, and is thoroughly posted in regard to all diseases of animals, and responds promptly

Rev. Jas. W. Rogers spent the glorious fourth at Flemingsburg, and made a patriotic speech to a large assemblage there at a picnic given by the Junior Order of American Mechanics, and the celebration was a great success.

Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Southgate and three children, of Covington, spent the fourth with his sister, Mrs. R. C. Green and family, at their pleasant country home near town. Mr. and Mrs. Green also entertained that day Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Hopkins, Chas. Jones and Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Bristow, of this place.

Mrs. Lou Diers, who has been here on a visit, returned to her home at Akron, Ohio, last week. Her husband, who is enjoying his vacation, remained for a longer visit, the guest of his broth, H. C Diers. He is the book binding inspector of the Werner Publishing Company at Akron, and has been employed there for eighteen years.

Thos. Stephens, of Portland, Oregon, spent the past week here with relatives and old friends. He was called to attend the funeral of his mother, Mrs. Martin, who died at Alexandria, Campbell county, June 30th, from cancer of the stomach, in her 63d year. Mrs. Martin formerly resided at Walton and was highly esteemed for her many virtues.

Dr. and Mrs. B. K. Menefee and daughter, Miss Cecile, Mr. and Mrs. Scott Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Black, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Conner, and Dr. Jacob Cleek, attended the infare at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Huey, at Union, last Tuesday evening, and all speak of it as one of the most delightful affairs of the kind they ever attended. The reception was given in honor of Joseph Huey and bride, the groom being a son of the host and hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Loomis, of St. Louis, were guests of his brother-in-law, John L. West, and wife, Saturday. That evening, in company with Mr. and Mrs. Vest, they left for Harrison county, near Cynthiana, on a visit to Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Petty, where they spent Saturday and Sunday. Mr. and Mrs. Loomis returned here and will visit relatives in this section before returning home.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott Smith entertained the little folks of their neighborhood, Saturday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Will Rankin's children, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Sunny Tennessee may well be proud of these children, Miss Pauline and Masters Alex, Leland and Glenn, while Kentucky thinks she has as much of a claim on them, as their mother is a Kentuckian, a daughter of Mr. J. E. Ransom, of Verona.

Theo. F. Chambers received a letter from his son, Prof. Charles S. Chambers, this week, informing him of his safe arrival at Liverpool, England. He stated he had a most delightful trip over on the vessel. He said they had music and dancing every night, interspersed with other amusements. Prof. Chambers is a writing teacher in the Covington public schools, and goes in the interest of his profession.

Hon. J. G. Tomlin, who has been presiding as special judge over some trials in the circuit court at Owenton the past two weeks, spent from Saturday until Monday here with home folks. Judge Tomlin will go to Louisville, Wednesday on a business trip of several days, and will return here Friday night. Some of the tax cases he was unable to try and he continued the Swope case until the October term.

The Walton Military Band played an engagement at Sanders last Friday and Saturday, being employed by the fair association to play for the special meeting those days, when horse racing was the attraction. The music was fine and the boys received many nice compliments for their music. It is the best band that ever made music for Sanders, and the fair management was so well pleased with the service that the Walton band will undoubtedly be engaged to play for the regular annual fair, August 19 to 22. Besides the fine music rendered, the members of the band are all elegant gentlemen and win many friends by their gentlemanly deportment.

The Board of Directors of the Consolidated Telephone Company met at its offices in the Equitable Bank and Trust building, last Wednesday, July 1st, relative to the general business and the issuing of $8,000 worth of bonds bearing six per cent interest, payable semi annually, the money to be used for the general improvement of the line and the construction of auxiliaries to the present line, such as putting in of the exchange at Walton, etc. The $8,000 worth of bonds were readily sold at a premium and were taken by the Deposit Bank of Union, The Equitable Bank and Trust Co., of Walton; the Boone County Deposit and the Peoples Bank, of Burlington.

The affairs of the telephone company have been most admirably managed in a business like manner by the officers, who apparently are endeavoring to give the public first class service in every way. John L. Vest, the attorney, prepared the trust deed which is a voluminous document, making the Equitable Bank and Trust Company of Walton, the trustee, in the bond deal, and his work has been pronounced very complete, besides Mr. Vest there were at the meeting here July 1st, N. E. Riddell, the President, of Burlington, and directors R. A. Mc-Wethy, of Petersburg; Dr. Elbert Glacken, of Richwood; Dr. M. J. Crouch, of Union; W. R. Rouse, of Hebron; C. C. Sleet, of Beaver Lick, and J. W. Conner of Walton, and Supt. Wm. T. Black. Everybody ought to help the company by patronage and a word of encouragement

HERE AND THERE.

Ross Shinkle was quite sick several days last week.

All of the blackberry patches that have any good berries are chock full of large, vicious snakes.

Wm. Smith and wife, of Addyston, Ohio, spent the 4th with C. J. Hensley and family, and Miss May Cutter and a lady friend were guests of W. O. Rector and wife.

Quite a number of country people celebrated the fourth in the afternoon by watching the Bellevue ball team give the Burlington boys the most decent walloping that they have had this season.

Fritz Zimmerman, of Constance, has pitched his tent near Clyde Berkshire's and is on the lookout for all kinds of fruit that the farmers have to sell. He got a load of nice apples at C. J. Sebree's, last Saturday.

Pate and Mullikin, who have been cutting locust posts on the Younger Johnson place, will finish the job this week. They would like to make a contract with some one to haul their posts to Petersburg. They have about 6,000 posts which would furnish a man and team employment for several weeks.

Owen Utz, D. Utz, Jos. Dehner, Harry Schafer, Tony Miller and Chas. Parnell, of Newport, spent the 5th and 6th with James T. Minor on Woolper. One feature of the outing was a groundhog hunt. With Sim Ruschle as scout and guide they succeeded in capturing two nice, fat, juicy hogs, which were carefully prepared to tickle the palate of Chef Harry Schafer, better known as the kid. At the proper hour the palatable menu was served with appropriate refreshments. They left for home Sunday afternoon, wishing for the pleasure of many more such outings.

JOEL

A Story of One of the Prophets to the Kingdom of Judea.

BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. S. Edson.)

Scripture Authority—The Book of Joel.

The Prophet Joel.—A "worshiper of Jehovah," as his name meant, was the first prophet to Judah, his period of ministry coming probably in the reign of King Joash, about 870 B. C. His father was Pethuel and tradition assigns him to the tribe of Reuben. His prophecy is comprised in three short chapters and is "pre-eminently pure, being characterized by smoothness and fluency in rhythms and roundness in the sentences." It combines the strength of of Micah, the tenderness of Jeremiah, the vividness of Nahum and the sublimity of Isaiah. The judgments of God set forth in the first two chapters emerge into a declaration of overwhelming judgments upon Judah's enemies and the establishment and prosperity of Judah forever.

SERMONETTE.

Drunkenness a National Curse.

—"Awake, ye drunkards, and weep; and howl, all ye drinkers of wine, because of the new wine; for it is cut off from your mouth." A people given to strong drink never can make a strong nation.

Intemperance is nearly always the forerunner of national decay. Indulgence in strong drink destroys the moral stamina of a people and makes them an easy prey to their enemies.

The drunkard will sacrifice everything on the altar of his passion. Note in the prophet's arraignment of the drunkards of the nation the only reason for their distress and remorse is the cutting off of their supply of wine. The peril of the nation, the dishonoring of her womanhood, and the enslavement of the children were as nothing in comparison to their consuming passion for strong drink.

The recent declaration of the Brewers' association on the virtues of moderate drinking and decrying the evils surrounding the drink traffic would be subtimely ridiculous were it not so diabolically insidious. "Moderation." Why there is no such thing as moderation when it comes to indulgence in strong drink, as every nation has learned to its sorrow when the traffic has been permitted unrestrained operation. From the ranks of the boasted moderate drinkers are constantly being recruited the despised wrecks of the army of drunkards. Drunkards are not always made in a generation. The seed sown by the moderate drinker may not bring forth its fruitage of ruin through strong drink until the third or fourth generation, but bring forth its fruitage it does, and the moderation of the father or grandfather gives place to the unchecked passion of the child.

"Therefore, also now, saith the Lord, turn ye ever to me with all your heart, and with fasting, and with weeping, and with mourning; and rend your heart, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God; for he is gracious and merciful, slow to anger, and of great kindness, and repenteth him of evil." The life line of mercy and love let down out of the gathering storm of judgment in the hope that some might repent and be saved. Surely our God does not desire the death of the wicked, but would have all men come unto a knowledge of the truth and be saved.

THE STORY.

GOD'S servants are always fitted in schools peculiarly adapted to prepare for the special service it is desired should be rendered. Unconsciously perhaps, the life moves forward to the point where the peculiar mission to which the life is to be called suddenly opens up. Like a dream perhaps seems the call to the new ministry, and yet as the backward glance is taken the one thus called is forcibly struck by the fact that the events and experiences of life have peculiarly fitted for the new work. Such consciousness of the providential leading and preparation for a work is certain to deepen the consecration and to give inspiration for the work lying just ahead.

"Let us call his name Joel, for so shall he be a worshiper of Jehovah."

Thus spoke Pethuel, the father, as he took his little son to the priest to have the Jewish ceremonial law observed and to give to the little life the name that was to become great as the accounting of God reckons greatness.

Whether there was any thought in the heart of the father as he stood before the altar at the time of the circumcision of his son that the babe would one day be called to the prophetic office and would come with his message of judgment and of promise to Judah we may not know. Certain it is that the father never intimated any such thought to the boy, nor did he make any effort to direct the life in the channels which would specially prepare for a religious life or service. He was a man, however, who sought to instill into the heart of his child a true devotion to God and to keep him free from the apostate conditions all about. This was the reason he had chosen the name Joel and why he so carefully instructed the lad in the history of the people of Israel, pointing out carefully how God's blessing had been upon the nation while it obeyed him, but that when there had been turning from the pathway of obedience to God's law there had been national disaster.

Thus early Joel learned to associate prosperity with goodness and to hold the deep conviction that the only safe road for any one to travel was the way which was marked out by the signposts of truth and righteousness.

And if the moral teachings of his father were impressive and sound, certainly several experiences had come with peculiar sharpness to drive home the truths thus taught. It was when he was a mere lad scarcely old enough to be intrusted with the important errand upon which his father had sent him, and yet one which the exigencies of the case demanded, for there was no one else to send, and word had to be taken to the priest as quickly as possible concerning a certain political crisis which had arisen.

Full of the consciousness of the importance of his errand, Joel trudged forth, his devout little heart expanding with the thought that he was to see and talk with the priest, the servant of the most high God. It seemed to him that of all things in the world he would like to be it would be a priest serving at the altar, and reading the wonderful scrolls of the prophets concerning which he had heard his father speak. He wondered what the priest would say to him and whether he would have time to tell him any of the wonderful stories which his father had told him the priest knew.

Such was the current of his thoughts as the sturdy little fellow reached the door of the priest and knocked. No response came, and after a long wait, and repeated knockings, he timidly pushed the door ajar and looked within.

There on the floor lay the maudlin form of the priest, while beside him lay the jar from which he had been drinking, the red liquid flowing out over the stone floor and looked for all the world like the dark red blood from the veins of the fallen man. With one wild shriek of fear and excitement, the little lad fled.

He saw the men come in and lift the form to the couch; he noted the contemptuous looks and shakes of the heads, and he understood just enough to know that the priest was drunk. Such was one of the early impressions which had come to him to shock his religious sensibilities and make him wonder over and over again how one who was in the Lord's service could fall so low.

Other incidents occurred as he grew into young manhood which made him realize the corrupting influences that were at work in the nation. Even in the school of the prophets which he had by dint of hard work and earnest effort been permitted to enter, he found the corrupting influences at work, the teachers for the most part being more or less dominated by the loose moral and political conditions which prevailed. And because Joel held himself aloof from participation in any of the frivolous conduct of those in attendance upon the school, he aroused the enmity of his teachers and classmates, being dubbed a bigot and a narrow-minded fool.

The crisis came one day when he would not help forward plans which were designed to politically strengthen the priesthood, but which was nothing less than a compromise on the part of the priesthood with the evil which was rampant in the nation.

"Then there is no future for you in the priesthood," angrily declared the officials of the schools, and it becoming a choice of yielding or being driven forth homeless and friendless, he chose the latter.

What was to become of him he did not know. He knew that the regular channels of religious service were forever closed against him, and that few if any in the nation would sympathize with his severe views in reference to the religious life of the nation. But he had the comfort of the memory of the loyalty of his father to God, and he felt strengthened as he recalled his teachings.

"I am in God's hands. I will wait. Better to perish abiding his will than to come to ease and prosperity through transgression of his laws, either in letter or in spirit."

Thus he waited, and under the baptism of the fire of persecution that raged about him he came into that rich experience which prepared him for the prophetic message which he was called of God to deliver later.

"It is well," he exclaimed. "It does pay to follow God and to speak his message."

The Conference.

"This is a grave matter," began the undertaker.

"Consequently we want more light thrown upon it," remarked the lamp manufacturer.

"I hope our views will all be in harmony with the occasion," put in the pianomaker.

"No pipe dreams," admonished the plumber.

"I hope whatever is said, none will take it ill," said the doctor.

"Then we'll all be good-natured and ask cross questions," supplemented the lawyer.

But it was the remark of the baker which broke up the meeting.

"What I want to know first of all," he declared, "is who is expected to supply the dough."

DEFICIT IN TREASURY

Of Kentucky at Close of Fiscal Year Troubles Officials.

Frankfort, Ky.—At the end of the fiscal year there remains in the state treasury only $133,372.60 and $150,000 of warrants outstanding.

Gov. Willson and Treasurer Ed Early held a conference, and, while they admitted the situation looked serious, they took no steps to remedy the situation.

A table showing the amount in the treasury each year for the last four gives the shrinkage as follows: July 1, 1905, $437,343.16; July 1, 1906, $322,049.63; July 1, 1907, $292,242.98; July 1, 1908, $133,372.60.

The expenses of the fiscal year ending were not as great as they will be this year, because of appropriations by the last general assembly.

Now After the Police.

Lexington, Ky.—Following his action in demanding the resignation of the 42 firemen of this city and holding them for acceptance at any time he sees fit, Mayor John Skein announced that he will subject every policeman in the city, exclusive of officers, to strict examination and may demand all resignations, as he said this would naturally follow in case any man deserved discharge at any time.

Cutting the Price of Beer.

Paducah, Ky.—Saloonkeepers are profiting as the result of a fierce war between brewery agents and the local brewery, which started and was caused by rebating. Case beer has been cut from $2.40 to $1.60, barrels from $8 to $5, and half barrels from $4 to $2.50. Still lower prices are in prospect.

Death of Mrs. Mary Leonard Tobin.

Frankfort, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Leonard Tobin, widow of the late Lawrence Tobin, and mother of former Mayor Richard Tobin, of this city, died, after a brief illness. She is survived by a large family of children. Her husband was one of the prominent democratic politicians of the state.

New Law In Force.

Louisville, Ky.—The new regulations with respect to branding whiskies have gone into effect here, and all of the distillers and members of the trade are obeying to the letter the injunction of the law in regard to placing a card on each barrel detailing the constituents of its contents.

Licking Mill Incorporated.

Covington, Ky.—Articles of incorporation of the Licking Rolling Mill Co. were recorded in the county clerk's office. The capital stock is $50,000. The plant is in Covington. The company will manufacture iron and steel and purchase and sell coal.

Chinn Sued.

Covington, Ky.—Phil Chinn, son of Col. "Jack" Chinn, was made the defendant in a suit in the Kenton circuit court. W. C. Scott, publisher of a paper, is the plaintiff, and claims Chinn is indebted to him for $210.16 for alleged advertising in the paper.

Troops Are Relieved.

Frankfort, Ky.—Adjt. Gen. Johnston has ordered the detachment of Company H, Second regiment, of Hartford, under command of Capt. Deweese, to return home. They will be joined at Bolton by the troops sent to protect Dr. Champion, who are also relieved.

Buys Clay Plant.

Fullerton, Ky.—Owing to bad health H. G. Thomas has sold out his interest in the Tygart Firebrick Co., at McCall, this county, to Charles Taylor & Sons, of Cincinnati. The stock consists of several hundred acres of fine clay lands.

Caught After Exciting Chase.

Lexington, Ky.—Wm. Crumbaugh, a negro, under indictment for illegal voting, who has been among the missing since last November, was arrested by Deputy Sheriffs Rogers and Wilkerson, after an exciting chase.

Fraud Alleged in Timber Deal.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—J. M. Burgess was arrested here on a warrant sworn out by F. T. Smith, charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses. Smith alleges that in a timber deal Burgess defrauded him out of $1,500.

KENTUCKIAN KIDNAPED.

Friends of Missing Farmer Think He Has Been Murdered.

Hopkinsville, Ky.—Some of the soldiers who have been stationed in Trigg county came here and left. It is believed, for Cobb, Caldwell county. A permanent camp, it is believed, will be established there. The latest depredations in Western Kentucky are reported to have taken place in the territory between Cerulean Springs and Cobb. There is a persistent rumor that a young farmer near the Caldwell county line was taken out of his house on the night of May 17 by night riders and has not been heard from since. One theory is that he was murdered as he had been previously threatened. A barn in the same neighborhood was destroyed by fire while the owner was away. It is reported that the people of Cobb are much opposed to having soldiers stationed there, and that they will refuse to sell the camp supplies.

HARRISON ELLIOTT,

An Aged Farmer, is Found Hanging in His Barn.

Covington, Ky.—Grief-stricken and despondent over the recent death of his wife, Harrison D. Elliott, aged 69, a farmer of Morning View, Ky., 22 miles south of here, hanged himself in his barn.

Mr. Elliott did not appear for breakfast as usual. Several of his children looked for him, thinking he was in the field. Going to the barn, they found him hanging by a halter to a rafter. Neighbors cut the body down and sent for a physician, who pronounced him dead.

Mr. Elliott was about to dispose of his small farm with a view of paying the funeral expenses of his wife. Five children survive him.

Coroner Tarvin viewed the remains and found that Elliott had committed suicide.

Pipe Line Survey.

Fullerton, Ky.—The Columbia Gas & Electric Co., of Cincinnati, has finished the survey for its pipe line from the West Virginia fields to the Ohio river, completing the longest survey for this purpose in the whole world. The line crosses the Big Sandy river north of Louisa and strikes this county at Cannonsburg, extending down Tygart's creek.

Interurban Extension.

Lexington, Ky.—The directors of the Central Kentucky Traction Co. at a meeting, authorized the building of an interurban line from Lexington to Nicholasville, a distance of 12 miles. The present interurban system extends to Paris, Georgetown, Versailles and Frankfort. The new line will hardly be completed before next spring.

To Hold Primaries on December 1.

Henderson, Ky.—The democratic committee of the Fifth judicial district, composed of Henderson, Webster and Union counties, fixed the district primary election for Tuesday, December 1, 1908, for the purpose of nominating candidates for the offices of circuit judge and commonwealth attorney.

Less Liquor Tax Paid.

Frankfort, Ky.—The temperance wave has caused a slight falling off in collections in the internal revenue department of the first division of the 7th district for the fiscal year. A comparison of the collections follows: For 1906-7, $1,856,299; for 1907-8, $1,695,050; decrease, $161,245.

Formed State Body.

Louisville, Ky.—A delegation of boomers went to Eminence, where a conference on better highways was held. Former Lieut. Gov. Thorne made the address of welcome, and Gov. Willson was among the speakers. The State Good Roads association was formed.

Want An Immigration Agent.

Frankfort, Ky.—At a meeting of the state board of agriculture, forestry and immigration here a resolution was adopted authorizing the commissioner, M. C. Rankin, to employ an immigration agent for Kentucky, at a cost not to exceed $2,000 a year.

Bracken Gets Her Share.

Twice In Same Place.

Louisville, Ky.—State Fire Marshal Neikirk is investigating the blaze which destroyed the Richelieu hotel with $13,650 loss. Two distinct fires broke out in the building and incendiarism is suspected.

CURIOUS CUSTOMS IN HOTELS.

Where Every Cuss Word Costs a Penny—Drink for Church Attendants.

A curious custom prevails at an Edinburgh hotel. Whenever a customer is heard to swear he is required to place a penny in a box on the bar counter. It is not a matter for surprise that the landlord hears much less bad language than some of his fellow publicans in the capital of Scotland.

The following is a quaint idea for providing funds for picnics and social evenings. It is carried on with much success at an Ashton-on-Mersey inn. A "knocking club" is connected with the inn, and when a customer calls for refreshments he is expected to knock on the table or counter before drinking. If he fails to do this he is fined one penny. Any one who wrongfully accuses another of breaking this unique rule is also fined. The money thus obtained provides funds for many enjoyable outings and pleasant evenings during the course of the year.

At another hotel, known as the Old Hundred, customers are allowed only one drink. If one is not sufficient to quench their thirst they are obliged to go out of the hotel and take a walk before they are allowed to have another.

Till recently the proprietor of an old-time hotel in Warwickshire used to invite all his customers to accompany him and his wife to the service at the parish church on Sunday mornings, which was situated on the opposite side of the road, the house being closed while they were away. On returning each customer was invited to partake of refreshments offered by the hospitable landlord free of charge.

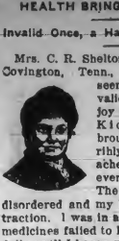
Visitors to a certain hotel in Aberdeenshire who wear brown boots must remember to keep them in their room overnight. Otherwise the boots will be blacked, regardless of the original color of the same. In one of the rooms of a Dumfries public house is an old armchair which is said to have been frequently used by the poet Burns. All who sit in this chair are expected to treat every one who is in the room at the time, and often the immortal memory of the famous Scottish national poet is drunk.

A small hotel in Wales until quite recently was used by the Catholics as a place of worship on Sundays, and police court proceedings were held on the premises during the week.—London Tit-Bits.

Likes Bibles Bound in Colors.

Why should our Bibles always be bound in black? was a very pertinent question put by Bishop Tugwell, fresh from his field of labor in western equatorial Africa, at a meeting in connection with the Religious Tract society's one hundred and ninth anniversary. The bishop viewed with satisfaction the many Bibles and prayer books of the society bound in bright red cloth, instead of the hitherto invariable black, a color which is mostly associated with what is melancholy. Bishop Tugwell would no doubt appreciate the brighter and more attractive colors for his heathen converts more especially. One is reminded of this in connection with the almost extinct black gown, to which objection has been taken for the same reason, the donning of which by the parson before delivering his sermon savored so much of the judge's putting on the black cap before pronouncing the death sentence, whereas the gospel message is one of peace and life.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Will Try to Swim Channel.



Miss Lillian Smith, captain of the Ladies' Perseverance Swimming club of England, has just declared her intention of trying to swim the English channel during the present season. Though she is only 18, she has already performed some remarkable feats as a swimmer. She accompanied Jabez Wolffe in one of his attempts to swim the channel and remained in the water 4½ hours. She is not the first woman to make the attempt. Last year Annette Kellerman of Australia made a valiant effort to reach Calais, but failed.

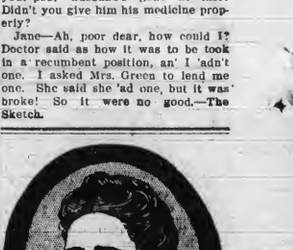
HEALTH BRINGS HAPPINESS.

Invalid Once, a Happy Woman Now.



Mrs. C. R. Shelton, Pleasant Street, Covington, Tenn., says: "Once I seemed a helpless invalid, but now I enjoy the best of health. Kidney disease brought me down terribly. Rheumatic aches and pains made every move painful. The secretions were disordered and my head ached to distraction. I was in a bad condition, but medicines failed to help. I lost ground daily until I began with Doan's Kidney Pills. They helped me at once and soon made me strong and well."

Sold by all dealers. 50 cents a box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

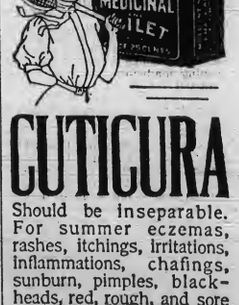
Unobtainable.

The Doctor's Wife—Well, Jane, so your poor husband's gone at last? Didn't you give him his medicine properly?

Jane—Ah, poor dear, how could I? Doctor said as how it was to be took in a recumbent position, an' I 'adn't one. I asked Mrs. Green to lend me one. She said she 'ad one, but it was broke! So it were no good.—The Sketch.

Proof is inexhaustible that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound carries women safely through the Change of Life.

Read the letter Mrs. E. Hanson, 804 E. Long St., Columbus, Ohio, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:



"I was passing through the Change of Life, and suffered from nervousness, headaches, and other annoying symptoms. My doctor told me that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was good for me, and since taking it I feel so much better, and I can again do my own work. I never forget to tell my friends what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me during this trying period."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

OUTDOOR LIFE AND CUTICURA

appeal to the Well-Informed in every walk of life and are essential to permanent success and creditable standing. Accordingly, it is not claimed that Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is the only remedy of known value, but one of many reasons why it is the best of personal and family laxatives is the fact that it cleanses, sweetens and relieves the internal organs on which it acts without any debilitating after effects and without having to increase the quantity from time to time.

It acts pleasantly and naturally and truly as a laxative, and its component parts are known to and approved by physicians, as it is free from all objectionable substances. To get its beneficial effects always purchase the genuine—manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

SMALL THING HE FORGOT.

May Have Accounted for His Proposal Being Turned Down.

Senator Beveridge described, at a dinner, an absent-minded farmer.

"The man was so absent-minded," he said, "that he couldn't open his mouth without making an arrant ass of himself.

"Once he courted a young woman. His suit looked promising for a time. Then, with a sorrowful visage, he ceased his courtship.

"'Yet she seemed infatuated with you, Jabez,' said I, one day when he came to me for sympathy.

"'She were, too,' Jabez agreed.

"'Well, what could have been the trouble?'

"'Dunno,' said he. He filled his pipe. 'Dunno; but when I perposed, she turned me down cold.'

"'Perhaps your proposal wasn't ardent enough?' I suggested.

"'Oh, it was fiery,' said Jabez. 'Hot as pepper. I told her she was the only woman I'd ever loved, ever looked at, ever thought of, or—'

"'But, said I, 'you forgot, then, you were a widower.'

"'Jinge,' said Jabez, 'so I did.'"

VERY GOOD REASON.

Father—I told you not to go with that boy.

Bobby—I had to, father, 'cause he had hold of my hair!

Ruin from Father's Head.

A bright little boy of two summers was unconcernedly playing near his father, who was laboriously occupied with a difficult task which caused big beads of perspiration to drop from his forehead. Presently the lad ceased his play. Looking at his parent doubtfully a moment, he ran swiftly to his mother and, assuming a pained expression, pointed to his father, saying plaintively: "Oo, mamma, see! Poo papa head yainin'."

WIFE WON

Husband Finally Convinced.

Some men are wise enough to try new foods and beverages and then generous enough to give others the benefit of their experience.

A very "conservative" Ills. man, however, let his good wife findout for herself what a blessing Postum is to those who are distressed in many ways, by drinking coffee. The wife writes:

"No slave in chains, it seemed to me, was more helpless than I, a coffee captive. Yet there were innumerable warnings—waking from a troubled sleep with a feeling of suffocation, at times dizzy and out of breath, attacks of palpitation of the heart that frightened me.

"Common sense, reason, and my better judgment told me that coffee drinking was the trouble. At last my nervous system was so disarranged that my physician ordered 'no more coffee.'

"He knew he was right and he knew I knew it, too. I capitulated. Prior to this our family had tried Postum, but disliked it, because, as was learned later, it was not made right.

"Determined this time to give Postum a fair trial, I prepared it according to directions on the pkg.—that is, boiled it 15 minutes after boiling commenced, obtaining a dark brown liquid with a rich snappy flavor similar to coffee. When cream and sugar were added, it was not only good but delicious.

"Noting its beneficial effects in me the rest of the family adopted it—all except my husband, who would not admit that coffee hurt him. Several weeks elapsed during which I drank Postum two or three times a day, when, to my surprise, my husband said: 'I have decided to drink Postum. Your improvement is so apparent—you have such fine color—that I propose to give credit where credit is due.' And now we are coffee-slaves no longer."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

DECEPTION IN MOVE

FUTILITY OF THE "AFTER ELECTION" TALK.

Republican Leaders Ready Enough to Promise Tariff Reform in the Hope of Once More Deluding the Voters.

It's very comical to see the anxiety of some Republican politicians for tariff reform. There is Uncle Shelby Moore Cullom, of Illinois, who has been senator from Illinois for the past 24 years, and a member of the house of representatives for 16 years before that, now says "we must have tariff reform."

Uncle Shelby probably does not care whether "the principle of protection" is again indorsed by the Republican party, or whether a maximum and minimum tariff, which would raise the tariff higher, is the outcome "after election," but he wants it understood that before election he is for reform of the boldest kind without specifying what schedules shall he abolished or revised.

Your Uncle Shelby is no better or worse than the average Republican politician, and his bold pronouncement for tariff reform "immediately after election" is a strong indication that the great majority of the people of Illinois have been clamoring for tariff reform before election, and that it is the part of wisdom to try and console them with a promise for the future.

Can the people of Illinois be kept in line for the Republican party again by promises? What will they do to Uncle Shelby and the other Republican politicians who represent them if their favorite son, Uncle Joe Cannon, is re-elected speaker again, and persists in appointing a stand pat ways and means committee like the present one that laughs and gibes at tariff reform of the slightest kind? Uncle Joe is backed by all the power and money of the trusts, and nothing but a political revolution will unhorse him.

In fact, nothing but a Democratic majority in congress, continued for at least four years, will reform the tariff. If the Democrats control the house of representatives of the next congress and pass a tariff reform bill, your Uncle Shelby will probably vote in the senate against it. But even if he, forced by public opinion, should vote for a tariff reform bill, there are more than enough friends of the trusts and combines in the senate to defeat it.

It is safe to say that practically every Republican in the senate and house would vote against a Democratic tariff reform measure, just as they have refused to consider the bills for reforming the abuses of that tariff that were before the committee at the session just ended. There was the bill to reduce the tariff rates that exceed 100 per cent., and the bill to abolish the duty on wood pulp and print paper were never reported from the committee that Speaker Cannon appointed and controlled.

It is no good to try and fool the people with promises all the time. If they want tariff reform they must not only elect a Democratic house of representatives, but a Democratic majority in the senate also. The people of Illinois will have the opportunity of defeating the reelection of Senator Hopkins this fall, if they really want tariff reform, but they will have to elect a Democratic state legislature to do so. There are over 20 states that will have a similar opportunity. But will they do it? Two years later they will elect 30 more United States senators and it will need a majority of these to be Democrats to assure tariff reform. Any reform of value that will prevent the trusts from charging high prices, or from selling cheaper abroad than at home, will never come from the Republican party as now constituted.

The voters who want reform will have to be steadfast in well doing, for it will take a long pull and a strong pull to force the trusts to give up their strangle hold on the American people.

Negroes May Defeat Taft.

In view of Senator Foraker's appeal to the negro voters to oppose Roosevelt and Taft in the campaign of 1908, and the manifest inclination of the negroes to act in accordance with Foraker's advice, the Providence Journal gives some interesting statistics relating to the distribution of the negro population of American cities. From this it appears that Mound City, Ill., has the largest percentage of negroes in its population of any other city, the percentage in 1900 being 43. In some other cities it is very large, as shown by the following table: Cairo, Ill., 46 per cent.; Washington, D. C., 31 per cent.; New Orleans, La., 27 per cent.; Atlantic City, N. J., 23.5 per cent.; Baltimore, Md., 15 per cent.; Evansville, Ind., 13 per cent.; Indianapolis, Ind., 9.5 per cent.; Columbus, O., 6.5 per cent.; St. Louis, Mo., 6 per cent.; Philadelphia, Pa., 5 per cent.; Pittsburg, Pa., 4.5 per cent.; Cincinnati, O., 4.5 per cent.; New York, N. Y., 2 per cent.; Boston, Mass., 2 per cent.; Chicago, Ill., 2 per cent.; Cleveland, O., 1.5 per cent.; Detroit, Mich., 1.5 per cent.

The number of negroes in Baltimore is 79,000; in Philadelphia, 62,000; in New York, 60,000; in St. Louis, 35,000; in Chicago, 30,150; in Pittsburg, 20,355; in Cincinnati, 14,000; in Boston, 11,000.

Evidently the negroes, led by Foraker, will be an important factor in the coming election. If half of them vote against Taft, he will be defeated at the polls in November.

RETURN TO WILDCAT CURRENCY

Vicious Features Contained in Bill Passed by the Republicans.

The Republican party as represented in congress has passed a currency bill that will eventually plague them. All the Democrats and 14 Republicans voted against it in the house, and Senator La Follette tried to talk it to death in the senate, where four Republican senators also voted against it. It must be a very bad bill that would force such a large number of Republicans to bolt their party on the eve of a national election. It is a great victory for the Rockefeller interests and the chief feature of it, which was in the original Aldrich bill—the issue of currency with railroad and other bonds as security—by individual banks will give the National City bank control of millions to further rig the stock market. Such bonds are to be accepted at 90 per cent. of their market value, and we may be sure that the price of such bonds will be boosted accordingly, whatever their real value may be.

The asset, or wildcat currency scheme of the bill, is intended as a sop to the asset school of finance, and commercial paper is to be accepted as security for currency at 75 per cent. of its face value. The attempt to make the bill popular by the requirement that the banks pay one per cent. on government deposits is made harmless to the big banks which are government depositaries for they are not required to pay even this small interest rate.

How vicious the bill is will take time to develop, for even the experts of the United States treasury do not yet know its full powers. The New York banks are organizing to be ready to issue currency under its provisions, and from their haste to do so, there is fear that a recurrence of the panic is possible. It must be remembered that the United States treasury will be in no condition to assist the banks when the annual squeeze for money comes this fall. What a financial mess the Republican party has produced by its tinkering methods.

DEMOCRATIC FIGHT FOR LIFE.

Republican Disfranchisement Plan a Serious Menace.

The Democratic party must make a good fight this year, if its existence as an important political power is to be preserved. Its position is already seriously threatened by Republican sentiment, which appears in various parts of the country to favor an enforcement of section 2 of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution. This would reduce the representation in congress and in the electoral college of those states in which the negro has been disfranchised.

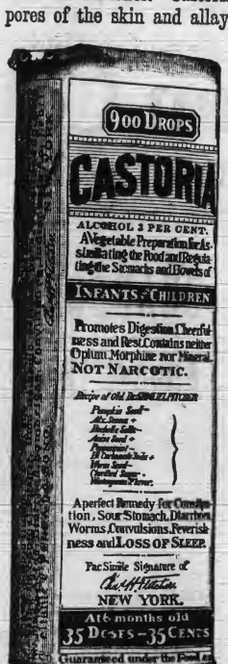
The Ohio Republican platform contains a plank on the subject, and Representative Keifer of that state has introduced into congress a bill to the same purpose. This measure was, of course, not passed at the recent session, but if the country should go overwhelmingly Republican next fall it will unquestionably be heard of again.

If the second section of the fourteenth amendment were enforced, the south's representation in congress would be reduced from 98 to 61, and there would be a proportional reduction in electoral votes. At present there are only 37 Democrats in congress, outside of New York city.

Unless great Democratic gains are made in the north, the Democratic party will be reduced to something like 100 members in congress, and its influence in national politics will be greatly lessened.—Chicago Journal (Rep.)

Extravagance of Congress.

In opposing the president's proposition for four more battleships in the present session of congress Representative Tawney of Minnesota said that "in preparation for war the United States, with an army of 52,000 men and a navy of 42,000, is expending this year only $66,000,000 less than England, with an army of 204,000 men and a navy of 129,000 men; only $35,000,000 less than Germany, with her army of 600,000 and her navy of 62,000, and we are spending $2,683,000 more than France, with her army of 550,000 men and her navy of 54,000." These are pertinent words for the Republican party, which is in control of all branches of the government. The man who uttered them is chairman of the house appropriations committee and one of the Republican leaders of that chamber. Moreover, the appropriations for the army and navy which he denounced thus when they were before the house have been increased since that time. They are larger than in any year except during the civil war and the Spanish war periods. This immense outlay in time of profound peace is, considering the relatively diminutive size of our army and navy, discreditable to the Republican party, and may prove dangerous to it.—Leslie's Weekly.



Small Solace for Editors.

Nobody has been fooled by the decision of the special committee on the pulp and paper question, after a month of investigation, that still more time is required to study a very simple subject. This conclusion was predetermined when the committee was created and there has never been any occasion to doubt that it would faithfully fulfill its appointed purpose. Some credulous Republican editors may have expected favor in their own particular tariff needs as a reward for strenuous work to prevent a broader attack on the great wall of protection. If they did they understand the situation better now

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twentytwo per cent., or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirtyseven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Letters from Prominent Physicians addressed to Chas. H. Fletcher.

Dr. A. F. Peeler, of St. Louis, Mo., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

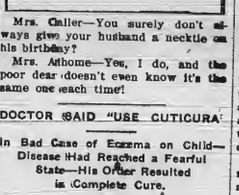
Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."



Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

DOCTOR SAID "USE CUTICURA"

In Bad Case of Eczema on Child—Disease Had Reached a Fearful State—His Order Resulted in Complete Cure.

"When I was small I was troubled with eczema for about three months. It was all over my face and covered nearly all of my head. It reached such a state that it was just a large scab all over, and the pain and itching were terrible. I doctored with an able physician for some time and was then advised by him to use the Cuticura Remedies which I did and I was entirely cured. I have not been bothered with it since. I used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment but do not know exactly how much was used to complete the cure. I can safely say that Cuticura did a lot for me. Miss Anabel Wilson, North Branch, Mich., Oct. 20, 1907."

Why Not?

He clasped her in a passionate embrace. The very sofa thrilled with emotion.

"And one day, light of my life," he cried, "you will be mine—all mine—all of you! Those silken tresses, those dear, darling, pearly teeth, that show like seashore shells and are more precious to me than the world's wealth! Let me gaze on them, my beloved!"

Again the sofa thrilled and a shrill voice from beneath startled the air:

"Why don't you take 'em out and show him, sis?"

She shut her mouth with a snap.—Tid-Bits.

A Good Turn.

"Here, wake up," cried Subbubs, appearing on his porch in his pajamas. "You've got a nerve to be sleeping in our hammock."

"Nerve?" replied the bobo, sleepily. "Why, I'm a benefactor; if it wasn't fur me holdin' dis hammock down de mocquitoes would 'a' lugged it off long ago."

GATOR ON THE RAMPAGE.

Edifying Story That Is Vouched for by the Georgia Ananias.

"Yes," said the fisherman, "the man had fished all the forenoon, an' hadn't got a nibble, so he took another swaller out the jug, pulled off his boots, an' lay down on the river bank an' went to sleep. As soon as he went to snorin' good, a alligator that had been watchin' him all the mornin' crawled up an' swallered his boots, likewise the jug, with 'bout half a gallon in it, I reckon. The cork came out, and, of course, the 'gator got the full benefit o' the whisky, which so turned its head that it lashed the water with its tail till the river was a foamin' mass, after which it crawled up on the bank again an' made desp'rit efforts to climb trees an' turn double-somersaults, an' do all manner of impossible things!"

"Why didn't it swallow the fisherman, instead of his boot?" some one asked.

"'Gators, gentlemen," said the storyteller, "can't stand ever'thing. They must draw the line some'rs."—Atlanta Constitution.

Romance and Reality.

"Let the youngsters have their romance—an' it'll be all the better for 'em ef they git a purty good dose on it; but don't hide from 'em the fact that thar's somethin' in the shape of trouble a-waitin' fer 'em up the road," said Mr. Billy Sanders. "Not big trouble, tooby shore, but jest big enough to make 'em stick closer together. It ain't no use to try to rub out the fact that life is what it is. It's full of rough places, an' thar are times when you have to leave the big road an' take a short-cut through the bamboo briers for to keep from slippin' in a mudhole. The briers hurt, but the mudhole mought smifficate you. It ain't no use to deny it, trouble is seasonin'. I never know'd it to hurt anybody but the weak-minded, the willful an' them that was born to be purple."—Joel Chandler Harris, in Uncle Remus' Magazine.

Up to His Tricks.

Lord Rossiyn, at a dinner in New York, said of a notorious London spendthrift:

"When he was at Oxford he wired once to his uncle, whose heir he was:

"'If you don't send me a bundred by Saturday, I'll blow my brains out.'

"His uncle wired back:

"'You telegraphed me that before, and when I forwarded you my best revolver, you went and pawned it.'"

His Death Due to Freak Hat.

A Merry Widow hat has caused the tragic death of an innocent man in Paris. He was sitting opposite the hat, which was worn by a lady going to the Bois de Boulogne. As he gazed at the amazing construction it annoyed him more and more, and as he gazed he grew red in the face. Finally, he could stand it no longer and ventured to remark to the lady on the size of her head covering. The lady resented the criticism, and at her retort the man fell in a fit and a few minutes later was dead. Apoplexy had carried him where it is to be hoped Merry Widows cease from troubling.

BASE BALL.

The Nebraska Indian base ball team came in on time, last Monday, and took the scalps of the local team that afternoon in a very expeditious manner in the presence of 300 spectators, although in the matter of run getting the home boys got better results than any team that has ever gone up against the Indians in this county, the score being 17 to 4 in favor of the Indians. They are a great base ball aggregation, and only meet an occasional defeat. The features of the game on the part of the home team was the playing of Elbert Clore in left field, on the bases and at the bat; Cleveland Snyder at third and running bases, and Earl Smith's home run. Elbert Clore besides making some handsome captures in the field, did some sensational work with the stick, hitting for three bags, two bags, and a single, sending in two of the four runs. Smith being a good slider enabled him to score two of the four runs. Cleveland Snyder worked hard and fast at third and ran down one of the Indians in a fair race, when he was caught between second and third; he made a fine steal of third also. Brady and Slayback put up a good game, seven of the Indians being struck out, while the same number of Burlington players bit the dust. Burlington made seven hits and the Indians 21.

In another column is a deserved tribute to the memory of Dr. S. M. Adams, one of the county's noblest citizens, who has been called to his reward.

Supt. J. F. Blyth and wife entertained the members of the fiscal court at dinner at the county infirmary, yesterday.

C. C. Roberts sold his saddle and harness mare, last week, to Dr. C. H. Crigler, of Ludlow, for $140.

It Can't Be Beat.

The best of all teachers is experience. C. M. Harden, of Silver City, North Carolina, says: "I find Electric Bitters does all that's claimed for it. For Stomach, Liver and Kidney troubles it can't be beat. I have tried it and find it a most excellent medicine." Mr. Harden is right; it's the best of all medicines also for weakness, lame back, and all run down conditions. Best too for chills and malaria. Sold under guarantee at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger. 50c

Local News.

The rain last week revived vegetation considerably.

Luther Adams came out from the city to fourth with home folks.

A moving picture show struck the town Monday, and will be here all this week.

Brick, second hand lumber, sash, doors and windows. W. H. Buckner, Lexington pike, Erlanger.

John Furlong and wife, of Covington, were guests of his sisters here last Saturday and Sunday.

Mike Knaly, a prosperous farmer of Union precinct, was transacting business in Burlington, Friday.

Chas. Slater and Thos. Black, of Big Bone, were among those transacting business in Burlington, last Friday.

The publication of the bank reports demands considerable space this week, but they afford interesting reading to many people.

Leslie and Stanley Eddins, of Cincinnati, spent last Saturday and Sunday with their brother, Jesse, in Locust Grove neighborhood.

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Pearson, of Florence, passed through Burlington, last Thursday morning enroute to Belleview to visit their daughter, Mrs. T. L. Utz.

J. L. Rich, of Big Bone, came to Burlington, last Friday to get a good start for celebrating the fourth. Mr. Rich is a very pleasant gentleman and one of the county's 18k citizens.

The firecracker was heard in the land this year several days preceding the fourth. Young America's patriotism is of a quality that has to be given vent for more than 24 hours in each year.

W. F. McKim, who, a few years ago moved from Burlington to Latonia, has ordered his RECORDER mailed to Long Beach, California, for which he and his wife left last Saturday for an indefinite sojourn if not to make the west their future home.

It has been a long time since the citizens of Burlington were given an early morning shock equal to that caused last Friday morning by the announcement of the sudden death of the town's oldest citizen, Mr. A. O. Hall. Mr. Hall's familiar figure will be missed greatly by both young and old.

The citizens of Burlington should get together now and boost Edgar Riley's school with all their might and main. A school, such as he is proposing to establish here, will be a credit to any community. Mr. Riley is the man for the work, and the people should give him all the assistance possible.

T. H. Cloud, of Pleasant Hill, Cass county, Missouri, was visiting his daughter, Mrs. Geo. W. Craven, near Burlington, last week. Mr. Cloud is a native of this county and an old confederate soldier. He has been practicing law at Pleasant Hill for 36 years. He is a candidate for the Democratic nomination to represent his county in the next Missouri legislature.

Quite a nice little crowd assembled at the court house, last Friday afternoon, to witness the common school exercises. Fourteen graduates were present. Rev. Riley delivered a very appropriate and interesting lecture that was highly appreciated by the graduates and audience. Quite a number of very handsome bouquets were presented to the graduates.

Lightning struck in two places last Thursday evening in the yard at C. E. White's, three miles out on the East Bend road. It struck a large stone on the cistern while Mr. White was within a few feet of it, and for a short time he thought it had been in contact with one of his feet. This close call caused Mr. White to hustle into the house, and in a few minutes thereafter another bolt came which struck a large pine tree in the front yard near the door. There is seldom a thunder storm passes that way that does not leave its mark near Mr. White's residence, an occurrence that is becoming so common as to be annoying.

DIES OF HEART TROUBLE.

Mr. A. O. Hall Dies Suddenly at a Good, Ripe, Old Age.

Mr. A. O. Hall died suddenly, last Friday about 5 o'clock a. m. at the home of his son, F. A. Hall, in Burlington. Mr. Hall heard his father fall, when he ran to his room and found him lying on the floor partially dressed, it being about his usual time for rising in the morning. The old gentleman appeared in good health when he retired Friday night and nothing was heard of him during the night, so death evidently came without warning. Mr. Hall was a son of T. B. Hall, a prominent Methodist divine at an early day. He was born in Maysville, Mason county, this State, on May 13th, 1824, consequently he was in his 85th year. He came to Burlington about 60 years ago, and for many years followed his trade, that of tailor. In 1847 he married Miss Elizabeth Westbay, of Burlington. Shedied 11 years ago. To them were born nine children, those surviving being Thos. Hall, of Springfield, Ohio; Samuel, F A., and Everett, of Burlington; Mrs J. H. Slagle and Mrs. Leam Creiger, of Loveland, Ohio, and Mrs. Richard White, of Burlington. Mr. Hall was a member of the 65th Kentucky that took part for the Union during the rebellion. Siuce the death of his wife he made his home with his children, several of his last years being spent with his son Frank and family, where his every want was respected, and his last days made pleasant. After a short service at the home, at 10 a. m., last Sunday, by Rev. Smith, the remains were taken to the I. O. O. F., cemetery and consigned to their last resting place by the side of those of his wife, and thus passes away the oldest male citizen of the town, and the only male resident who resided here before or during the civil war. Mr. Hall was a pleasant, companionable gentleman and will be greatly missed by his numerous associates. Mr. Hall was never heard to complain and told Mrs. Hall the evening before his death that he was just as happy as he wished to be.

Dr. S. M. Adams Passes Away.

The saddest hour in this life is when we come to say the last farewell to one who has become enshrined in our hearts because of their manifold goodness and usefulness and the intimate association they have with us in all that is good and ennobling; and the anguish at such a parting is too sorrowful for portrayal. Such were the emotions of the host of admirers and friends of Rev. Samuel M. Adams when it was learned last Thursday evening that the sands in the hour glass of his useful life had run their final course, and the spirit of this good man had gone to its heavenly home. Dr. Adams had been ill for some time but it was only recently that his friends became apprehensive of serious results. A kidney affection developed into dropsy and complications arose that indicated that death was soon to entertain another guest. Loving hands and kindly hearts endeavored in every way to smooth the pathway to the inevitable grave, while skilled physicians did everything in their power to procure a new lease of life for the beloved man. But alas, the debt that all nature owes was due and no effort could avert it. Like a child passing to sleep at its mother's breast so gently did this beloved brother fall asleep in the arms of his Savior. The evening shades had but fallen July 2nd when his spirit took its flight at his home in Walton where he resided many years. In every walk of life Dr. Adams met the full measure of his friends fondest hopes. He was a christian of the purest type, and being possessed of a most lovable, genial disposition, coupled with all the highest principles of a well bred gentlemen his life became a blessing to mankind, and the sunshine of his benign influence was felt wherever he came, and the example of his useful life remains with us as a treasured memory, and in every way worthy of emulation. He was kind and generous to all, charitable and forgiving to those who erred, and his encouraging word of approval came to all who endeavored to live in obedience to the divine command. With the closing of such a life can it be otherwise than we should say farewell with tearful eyes and heavy hearts, and the sorrow would be unbearable to the loved ones left behind were it not for the knowledge that it is only but a little while until there will be a joyful reunion on the celestial shore where all of the perplexities and sorrows of this wearisome life are forever laid aside, and peace eternal takes their place. Then farewell dear brother till we meet on that eternal shore. Dr. Adams was born at Big Bone Springs, Boone county, Ky., Sept. 30th, 1851, and his 57 years was spent in this immediate locality, each year accentuating his nearness to the people and instilling him deeper in their affections. He united with the Big Bone Baptist church, Friday, Nov. 24th, 1882, was baptised at Hamilton the following day by Rev. James A. Kirtley, and was ordained to the full work of the gospel ministry at the Big Bone church July 26th, 1889, since which time he has been actively engaged in the Master's work, giving up a fine medical practice so as to devote his full time to the ministry. Dr. Adams was united in marriage to Miss Mary Elliston, June 18th, 1878, by Rev. Lafe Johnson, and their union was blessed with six children, all of whom with the exception of Georgia, who [illegible] at the age of seven [illegible] survive the beloved husband and father, the surviving children being John G. Adams, Mrs. Julia Rouse, Kirtley D., C. Pressly, and Buford W. Adams. To the bereaved widow and children a sorrowing community tender their heartfelt sympathy. The funeral took place Saturday, July 4th, at 11 o'clock a. m., at the Big Bone Baptist church, there being an immense gathering of sorrowing friends present to pay their last sad tribute to the memory of this good man. The services were conducted by Rev. Wm. McMillan, of the Baptist church, assisted by Rev. S. H. Pollitt, of the Methodist church, Rev. D. T. Fuck of the Christian church, Rev. J. B. Harris, Rev. Miller and Rev. C. A. Bly. The pall bearers were: Honorary Wm. Houston, Dr. D. M. Bagby, G. Mosby Allen, Joseph Violette and Ira Bird, of Crittenden, and William Griffith of Beaver Lick; Active:—Geo. W. Sleet, Rev. D. T. Buck, Chas. L. Griffith, J. W. Conner, Samuel Adams and George Taylor, of Hickory Grove. D. B. WALLACE

The moving picture show that pitched its tent here last Monday is pleasing its patrons, with both the pictures and the stunts performed on the stage. It will give a show every night this week. Come out and bring the children. Admission 10 cents.

Business Conditions

Are getting better and confidence seems to be restored to financial circles. The recent depression was a fine object lesson to the people to provide against such distressing conditions by saving a little every week and putting it in a reliable bank. It is astonishing what a little sum of money, saved weekly, will amount to annually, and become the foundation of a fortune that guarantees comfort and freedom from want at an advanced age. No bank can care for you better than the Equitable Bank and Trust Company at Walton, Boone county, Ky. It accepts deposits from one cent to one million dollars, and pays four per cent on time deposits remaining one year and three per cent if left six months. Try us; we can help you in many ways. Mail deposits especially solicited. Come and see us.

England's Task in India.

Rightly to appreciate the nature of England's task we must first free our minds from the common impression that India is like China, for instance, one great nationality, declares James M. Hubbard in the Atlantic. It is a continent rather than a country, larger than all Europe with the exception of Russia, and having all the continental varieties of surface and climate from the perpetual snows of the Himalayas to the tropical plains of Madras. Of the diversities of the inhabitants one may form some conception from the fact that the traveler from Bombay to Calcutta passes in a thousand miles through a region inhabited by peoples differing more in race, religion and habits of life than he sees in going twice the distance from Constantinople to London. The Indians are divided into 14 distinct races, speaking 147 different languages and dialects, and are separated as much by creeds and customs as by mountain ranges, vast forests, trackless deserts and great rivers. Some idea of the extent of what may be termed their political divisions may be gained from the fact that in addition to the 259 districts or units of administration in the provinces under the direct control of the English there are 680 native or feudatory states under their own rulers, varying in extent from a few square miles to a territory larger than Great Britain. While on the 5,700 miles of frontier separating Indian from Afghanistan and Central Asia live hundreds of wild tribes given to hereditary rapine.

Another instance of refusal to serve a man wearing the uniform of the United States navy has come to light, this time in a Philadelphia restaurant. The occurrence of such episodes is not only much to be deplored, but is puzzling, says the Philadelphia Ledger. One is impelled to ask for what reason the wearer of a uniform, indicating his connection with an honorable service, is subject to slight and insult? The right of the keeper of a public house to exclude from his premises any disorderly person is not questioned. His right to exclude the well-behaved sailor or marine should be questioned sharply. The physical and moral requirements of candidates for the navy are so high that the successful applicants make up a superior body of citizens. The manner in which they conduct themselves was shown in the cruise of the Atlantic fleet.

Mr. Asquith's name first became known throughout England not in his parliamentary capacity, but as a lawyer. His success at the bar attracted the attention of Sir Charles Russell, later to be raised to the chief justiceship as Lord Russell of Killowen. It was in 1889, at the time of the Parnell commission, that at Sir Charles Russell's request, he became associated with him as junior counsel. By a lucky stroke it devolved upon him to conduct the cross-examination of John Macdonald, manager of the Times. This he accomplished in such a masterful manner as to win the universal plaudits of friends and opponents alike. His first reward came in the following year, when he was made queen's counsellor. From that time on he was a marked man among the younger Liberals.

Most of the recent news about Venezuela has not been pleasant reading. Here is an exception. La Guaira, a Venezuelan town, was stricken with bubonic plague. Short-sighted "business interests" required that the news be suppressed. The board of health drew up a document declaring the sanitary condition of the town to be perfect, and asked the foreign consuls to sign it. The American consul had backbone enough to refuse to lie. A Venezuelan physician who reported cases of the plague was put in jail for so doing. But thanks to him and the American, the truth could not be suppressed, and the town was quarantined by the Venezuelan government.

A minister in Philadelphia advocates the extermination of the weaklings, calling them victims of civilization. This revival of the old pagan doctrine of the sacrifice of the weak to the strong is progress in a circle. When modern civilization has progressed to its apparently highest point, there are always some theorists to propose a return to primitive conditions and evolving all over.

From 1664 to the present day there have been only seven vicars of Winsford, England, the present incumbent, Prebendary Anderson, having just reached his fiftieth year of service, and being still active enough to look after all the affairs of his parish.

It speaks well for progress in the Philippines when provinces there save up money for the erection of schools. Bulacan province has $5,000 on hand for a trade school and only asks the insular government for a like sum.

OHIO AERONAUTS ARE MAGNANIMOUS

PILOTS OF THE CINCINNATI GIVE UP CHANCES TO WIN TO HELP RIVALS.

MEN HAVE NARROW ESCAPE FROM DROWNING

All Balloons in the Endurance Contest Alight and Have Harrowing Experiences Crossing Lake Michigan.

Chicago, July 6.—The "Chicago to Ocean" balloon race ended Sunday night when the last of the nine contestants came to earth at West Shefford, Quebec, 800 miles from the starting point.

This craft was the Fielding, owned by F. J. Fielding, of San Antonio, Tex. It covered approximately 100 miles more than its nearest competitor and is also believed to have captured the prize for the balloon which remained in the air the longest.

The contest was marked by several thrilling escapes from drowning. The Ville De Dieppe dropped into Lake Michigan soon after the start, and for an hour or more Col. A. L. Mueller and George Schoeneck, its pilots, were swept across the surface, finally arriving with their craft to a height of 7,000 feet, from which they descended to Benton Harbor, Mich.

A similar experience fell to the lot of C. H. Perigo and J. D. Case, crew of the Illinois. While endeavoring to affect a landing near Lake Ontario their balloon fell into the Bay of Quinte.

The aeronauts had donned life preservers and managed to keep afloat until a yacht put off from Glen Island and rescued them.

The fate of their balloon is not known here. Perrigo's message to his family stated that he and Cass were safe.

The third serious accident took place near Clinton, Ontario. The balloon Columbia could not be controlled by Capt. M. Peterson and C. H. Leiter, and they were dashed against trees and dragged through barb-wired fences. Both were painfully injured.

The landing places of the balloons were as follows:

Fielding, West Shefford, Quebec; America, Carsonville, Mich.; King Edward, Port Huron, Mich.; Chicago, Atwood, Ont.; United States, Pinkerton Station, Ont.; Columbia, Clinton, Ont.; Cincinnati, Covert, Mich.; Illinois, Glen Island, Ont.; Ville De Dieppe, Benton Harbor, Mich.

Col. A. E. Mueller and George Schoeneck, the aeronauts who sailed in the French balloon "Ville De Dieppe," came to earth near South Haven, Mich., during the night, having been dragged for miles along the surface of Lake Michigan.

The aeronauts of the Cincinnati saw the disaster to the Ville De Dieppe and landed in Covert, Mich., in order to send a message to the life-saving stations notifying them of the accident.

FLAMES, FANNED BY HIGH WIND,

Razed Over a Hundred Buildings in Hayti's Capital.

Port Au Prince, Hayti, July 6.—A serious fire broke out here Sunday afternoon in the vicinity of the palace and senate buildings. The flames were spread quickly by a high wind and soon reached alarming proportions.

More than 100 buildings were burned, including the court house and the prison. All the prisoners, among them a number of women, were taken to other quarters before the building took fire.

Sparks ignited the arsenal, which was also burned, together with stores of powder and ammunition. The destruction of the arsenal was accompanied by many explosions. The firemen were aided by the populace in fighting the flames, and a force from the French cruiser Chasseloup-Louhet. For a time panic prevailed, but later, as the intensity of the fire diminished, the people became more calm, though heavy explosions in the arsenal continued.

Several hours after the fire started the station of the cable company, near the arsenal, was surrounded by flames and it is probable that communication by that means will be interrupted.

Three Drowned While Bathing.

Wildwood, N. J., July 6.—Three Philadelphians, Miss Frances Maxwell, aged 19; Miss Helen Golding, aged 21, and Harry Martin, aged 23 years, were drowned Sunday near Anglesea while bathing, and before their absence was discovered by life guards. The sudden disappearances caused considerable excitement among the hundreds of bathers out at the time. The bodies were recovered Sunday night by the life guards.

Died From Electric Car Accident.

Joplin, Mo., July 6.—Rev. Simpson Ely, a famous Christian church evangelist, died Sunday night, 11 hours after he was jolted off and thrown on his head by an electric car from which he was attempting to alight.

Negro Lynched.

BEATS HEARST IN RECOUNT

M'CLELLAN WINS MAYORALTY CONTEST IN NEW YORK.

Long Drawn Out Litigation Is Terminated—Jury's Verdict Ordered by Judge.

New York.—George B. McClellan was declared to have been duly elected mayor of New York over W. R. Hearst in 1905 by Justice Lambert Tuesday, and by the justice's orders the jury returned a verdict to that effect. This for the present at least terminates the long-drawn litigation instituted by Mr. Hearst involving the enactment of a law providing for a recount.

This left McClellan with a plurality of nearly 3,000, and counsel for Atty.-Gen. W. S. Jackson, who brought quo warranto proceedings against the mayor, was unable to prove his contention that the ballot boxes were stuffed.

Justice Lambert directed the jury to find a verdict for Mayor McClellan, upholding Mr. McClellan's election.

In his address to the jury Justice Lambert said that no fraud had been proved in the case, and if he should permit the disfranchisement of citizens on such slight evidence, this country would last but a very short time.

TALLEST OF SKY-SCRAPERS.

Equitable Life Will Erect a Sixty-Two Story Structure.

New York.—Plans for a new sky-scraper, which will overtop all New York's lofty buildings and the flagpole of which will pierce the sky at a greater height than the Eiffel Tower in Paris, the highest structure in the world, were filed Monday by architects for the Equitable Life Assurance society with the building department.

The projected building for the Equitable will be a 62-story structure, 909 feet from the curb to the tip of the tower, upon which will be stepped a flagpole 150 feet in length. The ball on the flagpole will be 74 feet higher than the 985-foot steel Eiffel Tower.

Francis G. Bailey Escapes.

Puerto Cortez, Honduras.—Francis G. Bailey, the president of the Export Shipping company of New Jersey, who, together with his brother, Albert W. Bailey, Charles H. H. Myers and Capt. Albert Oxley was placed aboard the Norwegian steamer Utstein Tuesday in custody of Lieut. P. W. Beery of the New York police department, made his escape in a small boat from the steamer Tuesday night. The boat was found on the beach Wednesday morning. A search is being made by soldiers in the woods and swamps.

Record Year for Shipbuilding.

Washington.—The bureau of navigation, treasury department, announced Wednesday that the fiscal year ended Tuesday was the record year of American shipbuilding and that the center of the industry is on the great lakes. During the year, 1,506 vessels of 588,627 gross tons were built and numbered in the United States of which 75 steel steamers of 304,379 gross tons were built on the great lakes. The largest annual output heretofore was in 1855 when 2,024 vessels of 583,450 tons were built.

DISASTER IN RUSSIAN MINE.

At Least 200 Men Killed by an Explosion of Gas.

Yusovo, European Russia.—A terrible explosion of gas occurred in the Rikovsky mine Wednesday evening, in which a large number of miners were at work. One hundred and fifty-seven bodies have been recovered, all of which are badly burned, but it is believed that the death roll will reach at least 200.

Seventy-three of the men were rescued alive Thursday, but many of them are in a serious condition. Ten of the rescued died soon after being taken out of the shaft. There is great excitement here and troops have been called into service to prevent disorders.

Altogether 550 men were working in the great mine when the explosion occurred. The first intimation of the disaster received by those above ground came in the form of what appeared to be an earthquake.

The earth trembled violently for an instant, the houses rocking as if they were about to collapse.

In another instant flames shot out of the mouth of the mine to a great height. The outburst of fire was followed by a low, seemingly muffled roar, and then the citizens realized there had been an explosion under ground. The rush for the mine at once began.

The mouth of the mine was left almost intact after the explosion. Fans were set going, and it was cleared of smoke. Then rescue work was started

THREE SUICIDES IN MILWAUKEE.

One Man Wills His Ashes to a Girl for Toothpowder.

Milwaukee.—Three suicides in Milwaukee in one day is the record for some time past. Two of the victims left unusual requests. One, a crippled bootblack, named Walter Barnes, left a note addressed to a local physician requesting that his body he dissected in order to ascertain what was the matter with his legs.

R. Schultz, whose body was found hanging in the woods, left this request:

"I wish to be cremated and hereby will my ashes to Miss Meta Guettner, 618 Twenty-second street, who can use them for toothpowder."

Wilson on Western Tour.

Washington.—Secretary of Agriculture Wilson left Thursday night for an extended tour of the west in the interest of the work which the department is conducting in that section of the country. The trip will be in the nature of a vacation, as the secretary has been pretty closely confined to his desk for the past ten months. He will stop en route at Traer, his Iowa home, for a few days' rest prior to visiting the various western states. The secretary probably will be gone for more than a month.

Mrs. Mae Wood Indicted.

New York. — Mae C. Wood, the Omaha woman who sued United States Senator Thomas C. Platt for divorce, was indicted by a grand jury Wednesday on charges of perjury and forgery.

Miss Wood is charged with having signed Senator Platt's name to a document acknowledging her as his wife. The perjury indictment is based on Miss Wood's testimony in the divorce action, when she testified that she was married to the senator at the Fifth avenue hotel in 1901.

Couple Not Guilty of Murder.

Champaign, Ill.—After two hours' deliberation, the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case of Eleazer Oneal and Mrs. Gertie Pierson, charged with the murder of Lome Pierson, the woman's husband, near Foosland, Ill., three months ago.

Ohio "Passports" Interdicted.

Columbus, O.—The federal authorities at Washington have interposed and stopped the issuance of the so-called passports to travelers from the office of the governor of Ohio.

HALSTEAD IS GONE

LEADER IN AMERICAN JOURNALISM DIES AT CINCINNATI.

HAD BEEN ILL FOR MONTHS

Sketch of His Long Career as Editor, War Correspondent and Writer on National Political Topics.

Cincinnati.—Murat Halstead, one of the leaders in American journalism for over half a century and widely known as a vigorous editorial and magazine writer, died at his home in this city Thursday afternoon, in his seventy-ninth year.

At his bedside were his wife, his son Robert and one daughter, Mrs. Arthur Stem. Mr. Halsted had been failing in strength for several months and Wednesday suffered from cerebral hemorrhage.

Mr. and Mrs. Halstead celebrated their golden wedding anniversary a little more than a year ago, at which time Mr. Halstead's health seemed frail and as time passed he grew weaker, so that the news of his death was not wholly unexpected.

He was a native of Butler county, O., and after a short service on a literary weekly, he in 1853 became connected with the Cincinnati Commercial, in which he secured a small interest a year later, becoming chief owner in 1865. Nearly 20 years later his paper was consolidated with the Gazette and he was editor-in-chief of the combined newspaper until years afterwards when another consolidation was effected, new owners securing control.

For a time he was editor of the Brooklyn Standard-Union and during the last ten years he has figured largely as a magazine and special newspaper writer, besides issuing a number of books on current matters of historical interest. In the civil war Mr. Halstead personally reported many battles, being rated as a war correspondent of the first-class, and later in the Franco-German war and also in the Spanish-American war he added to his reputation in that line.

For 50 years he attended and reported all Republican national conventions and in 1860 he was the only newspaper man who reported all the varied political conventions of that year.

TEN YEARS FOR BARTNETT.

Prominent Railroad Man Sentenced for Irregularities.

San Francisco. — Walter J. Bartnett, formerly vice-president and general counsel for the Western Pacific railway and vice-president and general counsel for the California Safe Deposit and Trust Company, which failed in this city last November for about $9,000,000, was Wednesday sentenced to the San Quentin penitentiary for ten years by Superior Judge Conley. Bartnett was convicted of having hypothecated bonds and securities to the amount of $205,000 belonging to the estate of Ellen M. Colton, of which he was special administrator.

Bartnett's counsel immediately took an appeal after sentence was passed. Bartnett is well known in railroad and financial circles in New York.

ONE KILLED IN COLLISION.

Baggageman Dies in Railway Wreck at Des Moines, Ia.

Des Moines, Ia.—One man was killed, three were seriously injured and a half-dozen were slightly hurt when a Great Western work train crashed into the Rock Island-Indianola local at the East Sixteenth street crossing Wednesday at 11:38 a. m.

The truck of a tender on the work train passed entirely into the smoking car of the Rock Island passenger train, penning seven passengers in the rear end of the car. The turning of the coach hurled three trunks onto the prostrate form of Baggageman W. H. Urbahns; so injuring him that he died in the hospital.

Rhodus Brothers Arrested.

Chicago. — Birch F. Rhodus, Edward T. Rhodus and Thomas Rhodus were arrested late Monday afternoon charged with using the mails in a scheme to defraud. The three brothers organized and promoted the Central Life Securities company and numerous subsidiary corporations, through which they are alleged to have obtained $3,000,000 in the last few years.

Nine Killed in Collision.

Knobnoster, Mo.—The fast California special train from St. Louis on the Missouri Pacific railroad collided with an equally fast St. Louis train from Kansas City two miles east of here at 5:30 o'clock Thursday morning. Nine persons were killed, all on the train from Kansas City, and at least 50 were injured.

Big Fire in a Lumber Yard.

Waubashene, Ont.—Fire in the lumber yard of A. G. Chew, at Tannersville, near here, Thursday destroyed 7,000,000 feet of lumber, 2,000,000 laths, 3,000 railway ties, 50,000 broom handles, 13 Grand Trunk cars and 11 tram cars.

CONVENTION IS OPENED

Proceedings of the First Day in the Great National Gathering of the Democrats at Denver---City Elaborately Decorated in Their Honor

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN

Denver, July 7.—The Democratic national convention was formally called to order at noon by Thomas Taggart, chairman of the national committee, in the spacious auditorium erected by the citizens of Denver for the use of the convention.

Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming, one of the most eloquent and able prelates in America, made the opening prayer.

Call for Convention Read.

After the delegates and visitors had settled in their seats, Urey Woodson of Kentucky, secretary of the national committee, read the call for the convention, and a brief period of delay followed. The committee on rules then made its report, and the officers of the convention were announced. They are as follows:

Temporary Chairman—Theodore A. Bell, California.

General Secretary—Urey Woodson, Kentucky.

Assistant General Secretary—Edwin Sefton, Washington, D. C.

Sergeant-at-Arms—John I. Martin, Missouri.

Chief Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms—J. C. Fenn, Indiana.

Chief Doorkeeper—Eugene W. Sullivan, Illinois.

Parliamentarian—H. D. Crutchfield, Kentucky.

Chaplain for Opening Day—Rt. Rev. James J. Keane, archbishop of Wyoming.

Official Stenographer—M. W. Blumberg, Washington, D. C.

Temporary Chairman Theodore A. Bell, in his speech, frequently aroused his audience to enthusiasm, and the applause was especially generous and lasting where reference was made to the record of the party or the leaders whom Democrats delight to honor.

National Colors Used.

Red, white and blue were the only colors used in decorating the auditorium, and the decorations were the most elaborate ever seen in a Democratic convention. A unique feature was 52 huge stars artistically arranged on the ceiling. These stars represented the states, territories and insular possessions, the names appearing in blue letters on a white background in the center of each star. The points of the stars were red and white.

Directly over the speaker's platform, against the wall of the building near the junction with the ceiling, was a large shield, 16 feet high, carrying six flags 12 feet long draped in artistic folds. In addition to this main shield there were four other shields over the platform, each ten feet high. The six flags on these shields were eight feet long.

Just below the main shield hung a mammoth portrait of George Washington, 14 by 16 feet in dimensions. Red, white and blue bunting was draped from the sides of the shield to the bottom of the portrait of the "Father of His Country."

Directly under the last shield, on each side of the Washington portrait, was suspended a portrait, one of Thomas Jefferson and the other of Andrew Jackson. On each side of these pictures a large American flag was draped. These flags are 40 by 60 feet in dimensions. Beyond these pictures, at each end of the wall, and hanging above the gallery, was suspended a pendant, ten feet in diameter, upon which bunting was draped. Upon these pendants a tiger was painted. The back of the platform was banked with palms. Twenty stuffed American eagles, with extended wings, were suspended over the platform, each bird carrying in his bill red, white and blue silk ribbons that were draped back to the wall.

Balcony and Galleries Draped.

In the auditorium the balcony extends all the way around the huge building, but the galleries are limited to each end. The front of the balcony and the fronts of the galleries and boxes were draped with bunting, 55,000 yards being necessary to complete this part of the decorative scheme. At intervals of five feet shields, three feet high, were placed.

Thousands of yards of bunting were used in draping the corridors of the building and the walls of the balcony and galleries. Delegates were supplied with small American flags to wave when their feelings reached a pitch that compelled an extraordinary demonstration.

Although the decorations in the auditorium were elaborate, the street decorations were even more picturesque, and the illumination scheme was the most brilliant Denver ever attempted.

Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets, three of the main thoroughfares in the city, were revelations in color. On Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets there are eight iron ornamental electric poles to a block, four on each side of the street. On these streets the poles were draped with red, white and blue bunting. Wires were stretched across the street from these poles and from each wire two American flags were suspended. The flags hung over the street and were "weighted" to prevent them from becoming tangled and torn by the wind.

On Seventeenth street the scheme was the same, except there were only six poles to each block, two at each corner and two at each alley.

At each crossing two wires were strung diagonally across the intersection, from which red, white and blue incandescent lights hung. The business houses along the three streets were handsomely decorated with bunting and flags. Elaborate and costly electric display signs had been put in place on the buildings, and a night Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth streets were a blaze of light.

Electric display signs are one of the main features of business life in Denver. Every merchant has an electric sign, and as all of the streets that cross the three thoroughfares described are live business streets, the committee on illumination did not find it necessary to add much in the way of light to these avenues of trade. However, the business houses were handsomely decorated with bunting and flags, so the entire business section of Denver was a mass of color when the big convention opened.

The people of Denver, in addition to decorating their city and providing a beautiful and commodious auditorium for the Democratic national convention, seemed determined to convince every visitor that true western hospitality is not a thing of the past in this city. The real Denverite is hospitable because hospitality is in the atmosphere in the wonderful Rocky mountain country

IT WILL BE RALPH HEREAFTER.

A Youngster's Outspokenness That Taught Grandpa a Lesson.

There is a very well-known man in Brooklyn who is particularly proud of his grandson, a bright boy of four years and a few months. But, like all fond grandpas, he believed teasing amusing to the child as well as to himself—and he recently received the shock he deserved. The little lad was playing industriously with a doll when the proud grandpa said:

"My! playing with a doll—why your name must be Susie—not Ralph."

No word from the boy, who kept right on playing with the doll.

"Susie," said the grandpa, just rushing to his fate, "do you like dolls?"

The boy moved perceptibly, but clung to the doll.

"Dear little Susie—you used to be a boy."

The boy lifted his head indignantly and with deep pathos, said: "Grandpa, I hate to tell you so, but you're a d—— fool."

Great was the consternation of the grandfather and amazement of the mother, who tragically ordered the boy to his room, while she called attention to the tears that rolled down her cheeks at such a fearful offense. Finally she told the little fellow that he might be forgiven if he begged his grandpa's pardon. But the boy believed his grandpa the offender and said so. His mother sternly read him a lesson against profanity, and especially about disrespect to grandparents. The little fellow was touched, and going over to his grandpa said, compromisingly:

"I am sorry I called you a d—— fool—but if I cannot call you a fool can I call you a lemon?"

Hereafter grandpa will call Ralph by his right name.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Naming the Baby.

The naming of a baby is considered important even among people whom we are apt to regard as uncivilized. And, curiously enough, these very folk contrive to avoid the arguments that so often ensue when father and mother disagree over whether the little stranger shall be called Jack or Marmaduke, Priscilla or Jane.

The Mahometan father and mother each write the choice of a name on a slip of paper and place both in the Koran. Whichever slip is drawn first is the name given to the child.

A pretty Egyptian custom is to light three candles, naming each after a god or some exalted personage. The child is called after the candle which burns longest.

Hindu mothers name their children, paterfamilias not having a word to say in the matter. The naming ceremony usually takes place when the baby is about 12 days old, and a flower name is usually chosen.

Chinese girls are simply numbered one, two, or three, until they reach years of discretion, when they are allowed to choose a name for themselves. The boys, however, are given a temporary name until they are 20, when pa decides what magnificent appellation they shall rejoice in for the rest of their lives.—N. Y. Weekly.

Ignorance of the Bible.

Biblical allusions, which permeate our literature, touch no responsive chord in the majority of college students nowadays, writes Prof. W. L. Cross, in Education. Though some of them are fairly familiar with names like Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Samson, David and Daniel, very few know anything about the lives of these men as related in the scriptures. Not long ago, to recall an extreme case, not one of 40 students under my instruction could quite place Judas Iscariot; and a venerable colleague of mine discovered a Jew among the seniors who had never heard of Moses. To lift the burden of this ignorance, several colleges have recently incorporated parts of the Old Testament into their most elementary courses in English with great success from the standpoint both of the student and of the instructor. But a knowledge of the Bible obviously belongs to an earlier stage than this. It is a pity that political and religious considerations stand in the way of introducing into the public schools an available body of splendid literature. Fortunately politics and prejudice cannot hamper many of the large preparatory schools.

Her Sublime Admiration.

"Oh, dear, will you look at it again?" sighed Mrs. Howard Newcome in an ecstasy of bliss. "Isn't it magnificent? Turn this way now. A side glance brings out the traditional beauty. I have never seen anything so perfectly exquisite. Dear, do come over here and look at it from this view. One would never believe that such a lovely thing existed in the world. The perspective is simply grand. How inspiring and noble. Here is another view from the right. Doesn't it show off even to better advantage? I am simply entranced with admiration."

What is Mrs. Newcome looking at?

Some masterpiece in a picture gallery?

No, indeed. It is an old kitchen chair she purchased at a second-hand store, which she thinks is a "genuine antique."—The Bohemian.

Mechanical.

Mrs. Haymow—Wall, dew tell, ef this here 'lectric business ain't a-gittin' t' beat th' band.

Si Haymow—Somepin' new in th' paper?

Mrs. Haymow—Well, I sh'd say! They've hed motor wagons an' motor boats and neaouw they're a-gittin motor policemen.

Si Haymow—Well, by gum!

WRIGHT ENTERS CABINET

SUCCEEDS WILLIAM H. TAFT AS SECRETARY OF WAR.

Republican Presidential Candidate Cleans Up Matters and Turns Attention to Campaign.

Washington.—Tuesday was William Howard Taft's last day as secretary of war. After many years of service to his government as a justice of United States courts, as governor general of the Philippine islands, as secretary of war and as the special representative of the government on several delicate and important diplomatic missions, he relinquished Tuesday night the performance, for a time at least, of duties as an official of the United States.

The formal transfer of the war department from the administration of Secretary Taft to that of Secretary Luke E. Wright, his successor, did not take place until Wednesday, but the work of the department was brought up to date by Mr. Taft before he left his desk Tuesday evening and Secretary Wright entered upon his new duties with substantially a clean slate. The last duty to be performed by Secretary Taft was the formal presentation of his successor to Assistant Secretary Oliver and to the bureau and division chiefs of the war department.

With his best wishes to Secretary Wright for his successful administration of the great department, the affairs of which he has been chosen to administer, Secretary Taft became once more a private citizen. From that moment until the fateful day of the election next November he will devote himself assiduously to his campaign for the presidency of the United States.

BRITISH FLEET MOBILIZES.

English Array in Maneuvers Compared to That of Germany

London.—The mobilization of all British warships in home waters available for immediate service was completed Tuesday for the annual naval maneuvers, and Admiral Lord Charles Beresford finds himself in supreme command of a total of not less than 301 ships, with an aggregate complement of 63,000 officers and men. With the exception of the coast guards, all these men are on the active list of the navy.

Local pride in the record size of this fleet is pronounced, and the newspapers, while they proclaim that the array of such a force in the North sea is in no manner connected with Germany, do not fail incidentally to compare this, the greatest fleet ever assembled in the history of the world, with the fleet of 62 vessels with which Germany recently carried out her North sea maneuvers.

J. F. JACOBSON FOR GOVERNOR.

Madison Man Nominated by the Minnesota Republicans.

St. Paul, Minn.—In a single session lasting but three hours the Minnesota Republican convention Wednesday nominated Jacob F. Jacobson of Madison for governor and adopted a platform indorsing the work of the Chicago convention and pledging the party in Minnesota to continue the work of railway regulation.

Mr. Jacobson was nominated by acclamation, after Attorney General Edward T. Young and Samuel P. Snider of Minneapolis, opposing candidates, had withdrawn and seconded the nomination of the Madison man.

Beats All Airship Records.

Friedrichshafen.—Count Zeppelin Wednesday outdistanced all world records for steerage balloons. He remained in the air for 12 hours, traversed the greater part of northern Switzerland and visited Zurich, Winterthur and Lucerne, attaining an average speed throughout of 34 miles an hour.

Gov. Cummins Not to Resign.

Des Moines, Ia.—Gov. Cummins Thursday authorized the statement that he will not resign from the office of governor, and stated that there was never any serious consideration of the matter on his part.

Three Children Burn to Death.

Windsor, Col.—Three small children of Mr. and Mrs. Adams Claus were burned to death Thursday afternoon in a fire which destroyed the house occupied by the family. The parents were absent.

We recently visited the grave of Allen Morgan in the Petersburg cemetery. It is marked by a large sand stone slab of the old style shape "Sacred to the memory of Allen Morgan, who departed this life, March 26th, 1843, in the 83d year of his age. He was the companion of John Tanner, who was captured by Indians in 1792 at Tanner's Station on the Ohio river. Morgan was brought from North Carolina by John Tanner, Sr., a Baptist preacher, who made the first settle in Boone county at Tanner's Station, now Petersburg. The land owned by Morgan is the farm now owned and occupied by John Smith at Woolper Heights, three miles from Petersburg. He died intestate and without heirs. His property went to the State and by the State was given to Boone county for the purpose of fonnding Morgan Academy. He also owned a number of slaves, that were sold to George Brasher and taken South by him. Though he passed as a white man he was part negro. This fact was said to be the reason no one came forward to claim his estate.

In the game of base ball here, Saturday afternoon, between the Burlington club and the Walton Stars, the Burlington club won by a score of 17 to 3. The Waltons admitted they were not in it. The Burlington boys are a fine lot of young gentlemen and put up a magnificent game of ball. Outside of the discrepency between the scores of the two clubs, the game was very entertaining and enjoyable, in fact it was a good humored contest from start to finish.

Sunday evening as Mr. and Mrs. R. F. DeMoisey were driving home to Walton, in their buggy, from a visit to friends at Richwood, and when in the sharp bend in the turnpike, near Ingram's bridge, an automobile came suddenly in sight, going at the rate of about 40 miles an hour, and a collision seemed to be inevitable, and at the rate the anto. was going it meant destruction if the two vehicles met. Mr. DeMoisey realized this, and, turning the buggy quickly, he struck the horse a sharp blow with the whip, and the horse being a spirited animal, jumped clear across the ditch, and just in time to avoid the swift rushing automobile, which missed the buggy wheels by about a foot. The automobile was occupied by three young men, who must have been intoxicated, or else regard human safety very lightly, as they turned and laughed at the narrow escape of Mr. and Mrs. DeMoisey in a most tantalizing manner. The people along the Lexington turnpike are outraged over the reckless speed of many of the automobiles that course this highway, and they feel that some stringent measures should be adopted whereby these careless people should be governed for the public safety, and at least there should be a limit in dangerous places similar to that of Ingram's bridge where the very sharp turn in the roadway makes it impossible to discover a rapidly approaching vehicle in proper time to avoid the danger of a collision, and the Recorder has been requested to start a crusade against the owners and operators of automobiles who have no regard for the safety of the public and insolently make the public thoroughfares as if their personal property regardless of any respect for the rights of others. Let laws be passed to govern the speed limit and control the people who operate automobiles, before someone is seriously injured.

The July meeting of the Methodist Ladies Aid Society has been held for many years at the beautiful country home of Mr. and Mrs. Lambert Hopkins on the Lexington pike. According to the custom, the members and friends of the Society boarded the band wagon of the Edwards Bros.' livery, last Saturday morning and drove out for an all day meeting. A large attendance, pleasant day, excellent grounds and the hospitality that Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins always extend to their guests, made the meeting a delightful one. At noon a basket dinner of the old fashion Boone county sort, was spread, everything good to eat from corn bread and chicken to ice cream and sherbert. At 2 p. m. the Society met in the parlor, Mrs. Alice Booth, President, presiding. Songs were sung, business was transacted, and the dues and donations were collected, amounting to $7.30. Three sets of croquet were in use most of the day. Late in the evening Dr. B. K. Menefee and Mrs. Judge J. M. Lassing played Chas. E. Dean and Miss Sara Herndon far the championship. After a close and interesting game Mr. Dean and Miss Herndon won. Besides the members of the Society, some of the guests were: Miss Lydia Stinkle, Covington, Ky.; Miss Sara Herndon, Hudlow, Ky.; Mrs. M. 1. Percival, Bank Lick, Ky.; Mrs. J. W. Harris and Miss Mara Harris, Brandentown, Florida; Miss Nina McKean, Cincinnati; Mr. and Mrs. Chas. E. Dean, Marble Hill, Ind.; and Mrs. J. G. Tomlin, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stephens, Mrs. J. M. Lassing, Dr. B. K. Menefee, Miss Cecil Menefee Mrs. B. W. Adams, Mrs. William Houston and daughters Misses Bessie and Mary, Miss Maud Richie and others from Walton. When the time for good-bye had arrived the guests, each in his own characteristic way expressed regret that so pleasant a day does not more often come and, when it comes, passes so swiftly by.

Another Good Man Called.

On the 7th of the present month, Charles Macrander was very suddenly summoned to cease from all business, to depart from his family and leave this world to never return. Charley was a good man, a good neighbor, a good father, a good citizen, and, when in the army, a good soldier. He was, all his life, a quiet and industrious man; very attentive to his business and a hard working man. As to his integrity and veracity, there was no question, as he was a truthful man and possessed the confidence of every person with whom he transacted business. Charley was a man I had learned to love on account of his good qualities and noble principles, and in my bosom lies a green spot of living memory of him to cherish. His sudden death has spread over the Gunpowder section a sad reflection and, we, his nearest friends, mourn his departure and sorrowfully miss him, but I say "O, God! Thy Will be Done," so when the Lord speaks let all be silent—Amen.

By a Near Friend.

Chas. A. Macrander was born June 16th, 1845, in Roanoke, Va., and died July 7th 1908, at Perry Aylor's, with whom he was farming, assisted by his daughter Ethel and son Willie. His wife and six children are dead, three sons and four daughters survive him. He had 11 grandchildren. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. Walterick at Hopeful church. The sermon was short and impressive. The pallbearers were B. W. Adams, of Burlington; W. W. Grimsley, and G. L. Smith, of Big Bone, and B. F. Norman and two close friends, B. C. Tanner and B. C. Surface, of Florence. The floral offerings from Camp Tandy Pryor, C. V., of which he was a member, were very appropriate and also those sent by the Aston Masonic Chapter, U. D. C. He was carried to his last resting place by his comrades and buried by them in Hopeful's beautiful cemetery, assisted by the Sons of Veterans and other friends. He leaves one brother and one sister, to the family have the sympathy of his comrades and the entire community. The family extend their heartfelt thanks to the Rev. Walterick, also to J. C. B. Yates, undertaker, friends and neighbors, for their kindness in their bereavement. Mr. Macrander entered the Confederate army at 20 years of age under Gen. Lee, and served until the close of the war.

Joel K. Corbin Dead.

Joel Kendrick Corbin, a native of this county, died at his home in South Erlanger, after an illness of a few days, about 3 a. m., last Sunday. Mr. Corbin was a son of Stephen Corbin, and was the last of a family of sixteen children twelve of whome lived to adults. He was born July 22d, 1833, consequently he lacked but a few days of being 75 years of age. Mr. Corbin was a man whom to know was to admire, and there was nothing within reason that he would not do for a friend, and his jovial, kind disposition made him a man that was easy to become acquainted with, when attachment for him at once began to grow. He enlisted in the Confederate army soon after the war broke out, and was at the front until the die was cast, when he returned home and resumed a farmer's life. He was a faithful member of the Masonic order, the brethren of which tenderly consigned him to his last resting place in Highland cemetery yesterday. His wife, two sons and two daughters survive, and have the sympathy of many friends.

Notice—Congress, on May 30th, 1908, passed an act giving Confederate soldiers, their widows, or the children, where there is no widow living, one year to file claims for horses, taken after April 9th, 1865, in violation of the terms of General Lee's surrender. Will you send me your name and postoffice address if your horse was taken after the time above mentioned?

Congressman Joseph L. Rhinock has received his credentials from the Executive Committee of the Arbitration Group in Congress, appointing him as a delegate to the Interparliamentary Conference to be held in Berlin, Germany, on the 10th, 11th and 12th of September, to represent the American Group of the Interparliamentary Union. Mr. Rhinock is one of the very few southern Congressman who have received this honor.

Best the World Affords.

"It gives me unbounded pleasure to recommend Buckien's Arnica Salve," says J. W. Jenkins, of Chapel Hill, N. C. "I am convinced it's the best salve the world affords. It cured a felon on my thumb, and it never fails to heal every sore, burn or wound to which it is applied. 25c at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger.

A Card—I hereby desire to thank their many friends and neighbors for their kindness and sympathy in the sickness and death of my wife, Alta Wilson; also Rev. Utz for his consoling remarks at the funeral, and the choir for their singing, the undertaker, R. A. Steel, for his efficient services, and those who so kindly sent the beautiful flowers

The Vulgarity of Waste.

When you see a housewife who keeps bread lying around until it molds; who permits mildew to get into the clothes; who allows her stockings and those of her family to fall to pieces for want of darning; who cooks up a lot of food which she ought to know will not be eaten and that will be cast into the garbage can; who "thrashes through" her best frocks by putting them on to do kitchen work, you may be sure she is "tacky." You will never find a woman of that description who is not cheap and who hasn't a common streak in her as wide as a gate. Well, it is exactly the same with a people or a nation, says the Kansas City Star. When you see a country reckless in the use of its resources and heedlessly destructive of the treasures with which it has been endowed by nature, you can depend upon it that it possesses the ingredients of cheapness and inferiority. We laugh a great deal about the proverbial disregard of the future commonly witnessed in our "colored brother" as long as he has a dollar in his pocket. But what essential difference is there between the complacency of the "Senegambian" with the price of a meal and a lodging ahead, and the blind indifference of a country and its people that go ahead despoiling timber lands, consuming coal with heedless extravagance, permitting vast quantities of gas and oil to get away, and taking no care whatever to make provision for any reinforcement of the supplies which it consumes. So, while the congress of conservation at Washington is in mind, let us not forget that the wastefulness habitually practiced by the American people is not only wicked and hopelessly stupid, but that it is likewise cheap and "tacky" and reveals not one trace of sane judgment or proper breeding.

Canada After Settlers.

The Canadian Dominion has not yet found it necessary to begin the conservation of resources, though the time may come sooner than is anticipated. Just now the principal effort appears to be to attract settlers and to open up regions which the railroad companies are desirous of having developed. The announcement comes from Vancouver that the government of British Columbia is planning to sell vast tracts of land, having decided to dispose of $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 worth this year. In the operations the government will have the active aid of one of the big railroad concerns. An American has been engaged to manage the deal, says the Troy (N. Y.) Times, and part of the project consists of laying out a model city, with paved streets, sewers, water system and other conveniences. Another feature of the plan will be the employment of a landscape gardener to arrange surroundings that will be ornate and attractive. All this is done with a view to making settlers feel at home and providing them with advantages such are are seldom found in a frontier region. The contrast with the experiences of the earlier pioneers in the United States and Canada is impressive.

Automobiles have ruined so many macadamized roads that an international congress has been called to meet in Paris on October 11 to consider plans for saving the roads. The macadam road, as everyone knows, is composed of layers of crushed stone held together by a binding material rolled into the surface. This method of paving was devised for the use of iron-tired vehicles. As the iron-bound wheels roll over the road they crush the small stones, and the dust sifts into the crevices between the larger stones and binds them more tightly together. With judicious use, such a road improves with age. The automobile, however, runs on an air-filled rubber tire. This tire, instead of crushing the small stones, sucks the dust out from between the large stones, and the wind blows it away, leaving the roadbed rough and uneven. Road experts on both sides of the ocean have been seeking for some surface dressing that will seal the road when once made so tightly that the rubber tire cannot draw out the binder by suction. Oils with asphaltic bases, coal tar preparations and calcium chlorid have been used with some success in allaying the dust and preventing the wear of the roads, but they are not wholly satisfactory either here or in Europe.

Getting right down to a final analysis, one of the most successful navigators of the day is he who can paddle a canoe with a nervous woman of 150 pounds or upward as a passenger and land the cargo safely.

Altogether during the year 1908 there will have been under construction buildings directly or indirectly connected with Princeton university representing an expenditure of nearly $2,000,000.

PLEASURE SEEKERS WERE STUNNED

BY EXPLOSION ON THEIR LAUNCH AND FOUR AF THE PARTY MEET DEATH.

TWO MEN JUMPED FROM THE BURNING SHIP

And Kept Afloat Till Rescued By Fisherman—Decedents Were Prominent Summer Residents of Marion, Mass., and Members of big Business Firms.

Marion, Mass., July 13.—Four prominent summer residents of this town and Falmouth met death through an explosion on board a 45-foot launch off here Saturday night. Two survivors were picked up Sunday after having been in the water for 12 hours. The dead are:

Roland Worthington, Boston; John T. Trull, Woburn; Jos. S. Neal, Milton, and George Savory, Marblehead, captain of the launch.

A. P. Tarbell, of Marblehead, and Edward E. Pecker, of Boston were rescued.

Tucker, who was clinging to an oar, and Tarbell, who was supported by a life preserver, were able to swim and they remained together until picked up by a fisherman.

Neither of the survivors was able to give the cause of the explosion. Mr. Tarbell, who owned the launch, said that the boat started out from Marion on a short pleasure cruise and was well out in the middle of Buzzard's bay when the explosion occurred.

Savory, the engineer, was suddenly blown into the air and was probably dead when he struck the water. The boat caught fire immediately and Tarbell called to his comrades to leap overboard. He strapped a life preserver about himself before he leaped, and Mr. Tucker, who is connected with the Boston banking firm of Rollins & Sons seized an oar and followed.

So far as they knew, none of the others in the party jumped. Either they could not swim and preferred to cling to the disabled launch until help came, or else they were stunned by the explosion.

As soon as the news of the disaster reached here nearly every summer resident and fisherman who owned a yacht or launch at once went out in the bay to search for some trace of the boat or its occupants, but the search proved fruitless. The launch undoubtedly sank with all on board.

The party had gone out for a cruise in the bay at the invitation of Mr. Tarbell, who came here from Marblehead Neck. Mr. Worthington, who was spending the summer at Falmouth, was a large owner of real estate in the Boston financial district, but had retired from active business. He was 49 years of age. In addition to membership in the Eastern and Corinthian Yacht club of Marblehead, he belonged to various clubs in Boston.

Mr. Trull, who was 66 years old, was well known in Boston mercantile circles and had a place of business there. He lived in Woburn. For a long time he was connected with the print cloth manufacturing business, but retired a few years ago.

Mr. Beal was connected with the office of the Osceola Consolidated Mining Co. of Boston.

Savory, the engineer of the craft, was 29 years old, and unmarried. He served in the Spanish-American war.

RUNNERS STOP RACE TO FIGHT

And One Is Fatally Slashed With a Razor.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 13.—In a quarrel over a foot race, Wm. Arntz, aged 28 years, was probably fatally slashed with a razor Sunday by Albert Reed, aged 27 years. Arntz was taken to the Episcopal hospital. He is expected to die. His assailant was locked up. The young men are noted as athletes in the northeast section of the city. For some time a rivalry has existed between them as to which was the better athlete. They agreed to put themselves to a test by running a race and a broad field at Chatham and Madison streets was selected for the contest. Nearly a hundred of their friends gathered there to witness the race, and, as the two toed the mark before the starter's pistol was fired, there was much speculation as to which would win.

Over the improvised track, which had been staked out, the runners started. Half way down the course Arntz accused Reed of having fouled him. They stopped and soon became involved in a violent quarrel. The upshot of it was that Reed drew a razor and slashed his opponent across the throat.

A free-for-all fight then ensued in which the onlookers joined. When the police arrived a riot had begun about the unconscious runner.

Forest Fires in the Adirondacks.

Utica, N. Y., July 13.—Serious forest fires are reported in the Adirondacks and along the Mohawk and Malone railroad, and unless rain falls in the next few hours the loss will be enormous.

Died After Having 15 Teeth Extracted.

Williamsport, Pa., July 13.—Dr. W. W. Fletcher, a leading physician of this city, died Sunday morning after having 15 teeth drawn. The end was primarily, the doctors say, due to the fact that he had acute diabetes.

HITCHCOCK IS MADE CHIEF

IS CHOSEN NATIONAL CHAIRMAN OF THE REPUBLICANS.

Vorys Put in Charge of Campaign in Ohio—George R. Sheldon of New York Elected Treasurer.

Hot Springs, Va.—Frank H. Hitchcock of Massachusetts, chairman of the Republican national committee and manager of the national campaign; George R. Sheldon of New York, treasurer of the national committee, and Arthur I. Vorys of Ohio, member of the national committee in charge of the Ohio Republican headquarters, which are to be in Cincinnati. This was the result of the meeting of the executive committee of the Republican national committee here Wednesday.

All of the eight members of the executive committee were present and their report was unanimous. The entire action of the committee was an approval of the recommendations of William H. Taft, the nominee of the Republican party for the presidency, who presided at the meeting.

The selection of Mr. Hitchcock as chairman was expected, as the presence of all the factions of the party who would be likely to make a fight against his appointment had not developed any purpose to oppose his selection. He was known to be the choice of Mr. Taft and several of those who had been called in consultation with Mr. Taft subordinated their personal preferences in deference to the wishes of the presidential nominee in the selection of the man who is to manage his campaign.

The designation of Mr. Vorys to be in charge of the national campaign in Ohio is regarded as a solution of the embarrassment arising from the selection of Mr. Hitchcock in preference to Mr. Vorys.

It is stated that Mr. Sheldon's appointment was upon the recommendation of Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss, treasurer of the committee since 1892. It is also stated that his selection has the approval of President Roosevelt, with whom he was a classmate at Harvard. Mr. Sheldon is a close personal friend of Mr. Bliss, whose counsel will be at his command relating to campaign funds.

Battleship Montana Completed.

Norfolk, Va.—The new battleship Montana arrived at the Norfolk navy yard Friday from the yards of her Newport News builders for formal delivery to the government, which will take place immediately after the official "checking up" by the naval authorities at this station is completed.

"Drys" Convention Date.

Columbus, O.—The national Prohibition party is to hold its national convention in Columbus at the Memorial hall July 15 and 16.

BOSTON DOCKS FIRE SWEPT.

Property Loss Is $1,500,000 and One Person Is Missing.

Boston.—A fire, believed to have been caused by spontaneous combustion or a locomotive spark, and fanned by a brisk northwest wind, swept nearly a quarter of a mile of the harbor front of East Boston late Wednesday, causing a property loss estimated at nearly $1,500,000. Much of the loss falls upon the Boston & Albany railroad.

Daniel Sullivan, a watchman, was reported missing and it is thought he perished in the flames.

New York.—A loss estimated at nearly $200,000 was suffered Wednesday at College Point, L. I., by a fire which destroyed Zehden's hotel and casino, Dondera's casino and a number of small adjoining buildings.

ARRESTED AS COUNTERFEITER.

Prominent Danville Attorney Nabbed by Secret Service Men.

Danville, Ill.—Charles E. Brown, 35 years of age, an attorney, prominent socially and professionally, was arrested here Friday afternoon by secret service agents Thomas B. Porter and D. W. Wilkie on the charge of counterfeiting and later held to await action by a United States grand jury in bonds of $5,000.

In a secret desk and in the cellar of Brown's home, where he was arrested in the presence of his wife and three-year-old child, the government agents found what they say is the most complete counterfeiting outfit they have ever seen. It was ready for the manufacture of five-dollar gold pieces, silver half-dollars, quarters, dimes and nickels.

REBELS CAPTURE CHOLUTECA.

Big Victory for the Revolutionists in Honduras.

Washington.—Reported confirmation of the dispatch that the Honduran revolutionists have captured the fortified town of Choluteca was brought to the state department Friday by Mr. Ugarte, the minister from Nicaragua. This distinct victory of the revolutionists is a disappointment to the American and Mexican governments.

Bandit Shot and Caught.

St. Paul, Minn.—A report received at Great Northern railway headquarters here says that a lone masked highwayman attempted to hold up the west-bound fast mail train No. 3 one and one-half miles east of Naples, Idaho. Conductor Mathews of the train and the robber, whose name is Robert Roman, exchanged a fusilade of shots. The conductor was the better marksman and shot the robber through the lungs, breaking one rib. The officers and train crew tracked him to Naples and captured him.

Uprising of Navajos.

Disbee, Ariz.—An uprising of Navajos in New Mexico is reported to have occurred and 30 soldiers with machine guns have been dispatched from Fort Huachuca to Fort Wingate, N. M., for the purpose of aiding the troops stationed there in quelling the outbreak.

Seven Killed in Collision.

Medicine Hat, Saskatchewan.—Seven men were killed and four injured in a head-on collision at a crossing a mile east of this city between a Spokane flyer on its way to Coleridge and a Crowsnest passenger train.

Two Men Killed by a Train.

Hammond, Ind.—T. F. Tremaine, aged 25, of Delta, O., and E. E. Williams, aged 28, of Hicksville, O., were killed by a passenger train on the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railroad near Pine station.

VELOZ IS RECALLED

DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS WITH VENEZUELA SEVERED.

CHARGE ORDERED HOME

No Danger of War with South American Republic—Washington Officials Regret Departure of Senor Veloz.

Washington.—The diplomatic relations between America and Venezuela that have existed uninterruptedly for more than half a century, though in recent years severely strained, were completely severed Thursday.

At half-past three o'clock in the afternoon Senor Veloz-Goiticoa, the Venezuelan charge d'affaires, called at the state department by appointment to present to Acting Secretary Bacon notice from his government that he was to quit his post here, closing up the Venesuelan legation in Washington, and repair forthwith to Venezuela.

Taking leave of Acting Secretary Bacon and accepting the suggestion that he communicate in writing to Secretary Root the direction of his government in this matter, Senor Veloz paid hasty calls upon Assistant Secretaries Adee and Huntington Wilson and other officials of the state department who he has long and intimately known. Of course, officially, there was nothing for these gentlemen to say beyond mere formalities when made acquainted with the fact that the Venezuelan charge had been withdrawn. But personally they did not hesitate to express their sincere regret, for Senor Velos has come to be very highly regarded in the diplomatic circle. Indeed it may be stated positively and from actual knowledge of what he has done in the years which he has passed in Washington as a representative of Venezuela that his personality has gone far toward deferring the rupture.

As to the future, it is pointed out by officials who have followed closely the developments in the Venezuelan situation that there is not the slightest danger of war in the immediate future, or indeed at all. Rather will the situation resemble that following the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and Venezuela, for instance, where legations were closed on both sides and all official relations terminated, while trade between the two countries continued and Frenchmen came to Venezuela and rich Venezuelans made their annual pilgrimages to Paris as if nothing had occurred.

AMERICAN MINISTER FIRED ON.

Mr. O'Brien Narrowly Escapes Death in Paraguayan Revolution.

La Paz, Bolivia.—Further details received here of the revolution in Paraguay state that while fighting was going on in Asuncion an incident occurred which might have had a most serious result. The American minister, Edward C. O'Brien, desirous of proffering his good offices in order to prevent further loss of life, while approaching the headquarters of the revolutionists was fired upon three times by government troops. According to the dispatches the minister's escape was miraculous, as many persons were killed in the vicinity. Discovering their error, the troops ceased firing and an officer hastened to give explanations to the minister, who is convinced that the act was not premeditated.

ANNA AND HELIE WEDDED.

Mme. Gould Becomes Wife of Prince De Sagan.

London.—Mme. Anna Gould and Prince Helie de Sagan were married at a registry office in Henrietta street, off Covent Garden, Tuesday. A subsequent ceremony was conducted at the French Protestant church on Soho square.

The civil ceremony was simple. Outside of Prince Helie, Mme. Gould, the witnesses and the officials, no one was present. A great crowd, consisting largely of porters from the Covent Garden market, and employes of the publishing houses in the vicinity, assembled in the street outside. Prince Helie produced a copy of the notice filed with the registrar, establishing his two weeks' residence in the district, and the registrar granted his license.

Goulds May Be Reconciled.

New York.—Reports that Frank J. Gould and his wife have become reconciled were circulated Wednesday following the striking from the court calendar of an action entitled "Gould versus Gould."

Watson Is Notified.

Atlanta, Ga.—Thomas E. Watson was formally notified of his nomination for president by the Populists of the United States at a mass meeting Thursday night.

Lusitania Breaks Record.

New York.—Breaking all previous records over the long-distance course across the Atlantic the Lusitania arrived at Sandy Hook lightship Friday, the time of passage being 4 days, 19 hours and 36 minutes.

Robert Mather Painfully Hurt.

HADN'T WALKED ALL THE WAY.

Prisoner at Least Had Change While Crossing River.

"Down in Alabama," said John D. Fearhake, "there's a deputy marshal who doesn't let any such trifles as extradition laws stop him. Term of court was about to begin at one time, and a gentleman who was out on bail was reported to be enjoying himself over in Georgia. Deputy Jim went after him. Next day he telegraphed the judge: 'I have persuaded him to come.' A few days later he rode into town on a mule, leading his prisoner, tied up snugly with a clothes line. The prisoner looked as if he had seen hard service.

"Why, for heaven's sake, Jim,' said the judge, 'you didn't make him walk all the way from Georgia, did you?'

"'No, sir,' said Jim.

"'I hoped not,' said the judge.

"'No,' said Jim, 'part of the way I drug him, and when we come to the Tallapoosa river, he swum.'"—Woman's Home Journal.

CAN'T BLAME TOMMY MUCH.

"Tommy, were you fighting with that Carter boy?"

"Yes, maw."

"Didn't I tell you not to quarrel with anyone?"

"Yes, maw; but I thought all bets were off since you quit speaking to the Carter boy's maw."

He Could Still Lie.

"Madam, we found your husband lying unconscious and——"

"Well, he's such an accomplished liar that I don't think a little thing like being unconscious would make any difference."

I AM A MOTHER

How many American women in lonely homes to-day long for this blessing to come into their lives, and to be able to utter these words, but because of some organic derangement this happiness is denied them.

Every woman interested in this subject should know that preparation for healthy maternity is accomplished by the use of

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

Mrs. Maggie Gilmer, of West Union, S. C., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was greatly run-down in health from a weakness peculiar to my sex, when Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me. It not only restored me to perfect health, but to my delight I am a mother."

Mrs. Josephine Hall, of Bardstown, Ky., writes:

"I was a very great sufferer from female troubles, and my physician failed to help me. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound not only restored me to perfect health, but I am now a proud mother."

Democratic National Convention at Denver Makes Its Choice of the Party's Standard Bearers During the Coming Campaign.

Denver, Col. — William Jennings Bryan of Nebraska is the nominee of the Democratic party for president for the third time. The Denver convention put him at the head of the ticket about three o'clock Friday morning, the first ballot giving him 892½ votes, to 46 for Johnson and 59½ for Gray. The nomination was made unanimous.

Clock is Stopped.

Leading up to the nomination were hours that began with picturesque enthusiasm, which grew into uncontrollable disorder. The nominating speeches were made amid scenes akin to panic at certain stages.

At 12 o'clock midnight the convention clock was stopped, so that constructively the nomination of Bryan would take place at Thursday's session of the convention. Will the Friday hoodoo be overcome by this technical evasion? Is a question that was in the minds of enthusiastic Bryan Democrats, as they wended their way from the convention hall in the early morning hours.

Wild Scene of Confusion.

A wilder demonstration than that over the first mention of Bryan's name on Wednesday followed the concluding word of the speech of Ignatius J. Dunn of Nebraska, which formally presented the name of Democracy's champion to the convention.

An hour and seven minutes, against the one hour and 28 minutes of the day before, marked the cheering and tumult, but the densely overcrowded auditorium made the confusion worse confounded.

Nobody had any respect for the rights of anybody else. Everybody was there to see the spectacle, if not to take part in it, and those not able to look out for themselves were trampled upon.

Johnson and Gray Named.

Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota and Judge George Gray of Delaware were placed in nomination along with Bryan. Small as was the following of either, in comparison with that of the Nebraskan, the scenes of confusion, owing to the uncontrollable size of the crowd, were approximately great.

Gov. Johnson was placed in nomination by Winfield Scott Hammond of Minnesota, Connecticut yielding to the gopher state.

Judge Gray's name was presented by Irving F. Handy of Delaware. Mr. Handy felt how sadly he was in the minority when, after he had talked awhile, the crowd attempted to choke him off.

Seconding Speeches.

Seconding speeches for Bryan were made by Senator Gearin of Oregon, Gov. Glenn of South Carolina, and Gov. Claude Swanson of Virginia. Gov. Glenn's speech created much excitement, being devoted largely to a defense of Bryan against attacks branding him as a Socialist. At the conclusion of his remarks, which were not in accord with the spirit of the convention, Permanent Chairman Clayton, who at the day session has superseded Temporary Chairman Bell as wielder of the gavel, exclaimed that William Jennings Bryan needed no defenders, and elicited tremendous applause.

The opening session lasted three hours and brought about the completion of the permanent organization of the convention, with the resounding address of Congressman Clayton of Alabama, permanent chairman of the convention. When the session opened at night, every formality of organization had been accomplished and the decks were clear for the supreme work of adopting the platform and naming the candidates.

Clayton Delivers His Address.

The scenes within the convention amphitheater repeated those of previous days in the magnitude of the gathering and the eager enthusiasm of the throngs. There were frequent demonstrations as the names of party idols or Jeffersonian principles were pronounced, but there was no repetition during the early session of the tumultuous record-breaking demonstration of Wednesday.

The address of the permanent chairman, Mr. Clayton, proved to be a caustic arraignment of the failure of Roosevelt policies, and an enunciation of Democratic doctrine. The ringing voice of the orator and the emphasis of his gestures stirred the listening thousands to frequent demonstrations of enthusiastic approval.

At 2:30 o'clock the platform committee was not yet prepared to report, and the convention took a recess until evening, so that all remaining differences of detail on the platform could be reconciled and the document be ready for adoption and the presidential nomination be reached before the adjournment of the night session.

A small American flag had been placed on every delegate's chair prior to the beginning of the evening session. This was the unmistakable evidence of the nominating session of the convention and increased the interest of the spectators, who early made a rush for the galleries, filling them to overflowing.

At seven o'clock there were few of the delegates in their places. They had lingered long at dinner, the slowdying twilight of the Colorado evenings proving deceptive as to the hour.

Rumors of another delay in receiving the report of the platform committee filled the air as the delegates assembled, and they prepared for another probable season of convention oratory before the important business of the session could be reaobed. The wait for the rap of Chairman Clayton's gavel was robbed of much of its tediousness through the efforts of the quartette, whose members sang popular songs and concert numbers at frequent intervals.

Every One Has a Flag.

At 7:15 the galleries were completely filled, and the majority of the delegates were in their seats, but the officers of the convention were still waiting for the report of the committee on resolutions. The band in the gallery worked with great industry, and when it struck up "Dixie" the demonstration that followed gave a glimpse of the scenes certain to occur later in the night. The delegates, as the first notes of the old war song floated out, sprang up and waved their flags. It was instantly shown that the galleries, too, had been provided with them and in an instant the convention hall was a tossing sea of fluttering flags.

It was 7:50 o'clock when Chairman Clayton began to rap for order, which he secured within the minute.

Pending the report of the committee of inquiry, Thomas P. Ball of Texas was invited to address the convention.

After his speech came talks by Senator Grady of New York, Judge Wade of Iowa and Champ Clark of Missouri.

Mr. Clark concluded with a tribute to Mr. Bryan as "the greatest living American."

"The secretary will now proceed to call the roll of states for nominations for the office of president of the United States," shouted Chairman Clayton.

"Alabama," called the clerk.

The chairman of that delegation arose and was recognized.

"Knowing that Nebraska will make no mistake in nominating the right man," he said, "Alabama yields to Nebraska."

"I. J. Dunn of Omaha will speak for the Nebraska delegation," announced the chairman of that state, while the cheering which followed the first statement from Alabama continued unabated.

Dunn Nominates Bryan.

Mr. Dunn, who was to make that speech of the convention in which the greatest interest was felt by the delegates and the spectators, is scarcely of middle age. His clean-cut, determined-looking, clean-shaven face is surmounted by dark brown hair, which owing to the emphatic manner in which he emphasized his speech with his head, was soon touching the center of his forebead. He spoke clearly and with a pleasing manner of delivery. As Mr. Dunn proceeded, almost every allusion he made to the character of Mr. Bryan was enthusiastically applauded, although he had not yet mentioned the name of the Nebraska candidate. When Mr. Dunn declared that his candidate was the choice of the militant Democracy of the country the convention broke in with wild cheers. The ever ready flags were tossed aloft and a roar of applause swept through the hall.

Big Demonstration Starts.

Mr. Dunn brought out the name of "William Jennings Bryan" with intense dramatic force, and the response from the great throng was electric. The delegates sprang up, the galleries followed suit, and the demonstration was under way in a manner that promised to rival Wednesday's exhibition of enthusiasm.

A few moments after the cheering began an immense oil painting of Mr. Bryan was lowered from bebind a monster American shield which had reposed over the chairman's desk ever since the convention began. The appearance of the picture raised the pitch of the outburst, and the enthusiasm was still instence when the convention adjourned until 1 o'clock Friday afternoon.

KERN FOR VICE-PRESIDENT.

Convention Names Indiana Man as Running Mate for Bryan.

Denver, Col.—At one o'clock Friday afternoon, the hour to which the convention had adjourned, not one-fourth of the delegates were in their seats, and they were coming slowly into the hall. The heat was even greater than on Thursday and the temperature inside the hall was high and uncomfortable. The public, however, seemed to have as much interest as ever in the convention, and the galleries were packed long before any considerable number of delegates had arrived.

The convention was called to order at 1:40.

The nomination of a candidate for vice-president was the only business before the convention. J. J. Walsh presented the name of Archbald McNeill of Connecticut. Gov. Thomas of Colorado named Charles A. Towne of New York. Thomas R. Marshall urged the claims of John W. Kern of Indiana, and the convention cheered the presentation of the name of the Hoosier statesman.

Gov. Folk of Missouri seconded the nomination of Mr. Kern.

Gov. Hill of Georgia put in nomination Clark Howell.

Hill of Georgia withdrew Howell's name and seconded the nomination of Mr. Kern.

Charles A. Towne also withdrew from the contest, and urged his friends to unite on Kern.

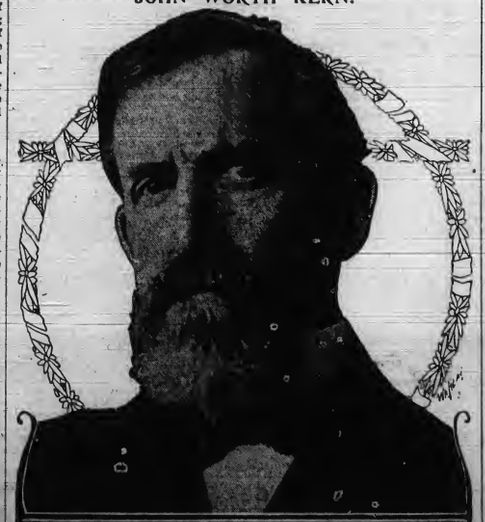
The withdrawals increased the vigor of the demonstrations in favor of Kern, and on the motion that he be nominated by acclamation, which was carried, the cheering resembled closely the enthusiasm which had been evinced at the nomination of Mr. Bryan the day before.

Wearied by the two tumultuous sessions, the delegates left the convention hall and the great gathering was at an end.

Sketch of Kern's Career.

John Worth Kern was born in Howard county, Indiana, December 20, 1849. He graduated from the University of Michigan in 1869 at the age of 20 years, with the degree of doctor of laws. His first official position which brought him into the public eye was when fulfilling his duties as a reporter of the supreme court of Indiana, which office he held from 1885 to 1889. For four years—1892 to 1896—he was a state senator. He became city attorney of Indianapolis in 1897, and held that office for four years. A year before he gave up the office he ran for the gubernatorial chair in Indiana, and was beaten. Four years later—in 1904—be also tried for the governorship on the Democratic ticket, and was again defeated. Later he received the complimentary vote of the party for United States senator.

WOULD ACCEPT BUT ONE TERM.



Mr. Bryan Asserts He Would Never Be Candidate for Re-Election.

Fairview, Lincoln.—The following statement was made by William Jennings Bryan when he received announcement of his nomination as the candidate of the Democratic party for president:

"The honor is the highest official possession in the world, and no one occupying it can afford to have his views upon public questions biased by personal ambition. Recognizing his responsibility to God and his obligation to his countrymen, he should enter upon the discharge of his duties with singleness of purpose. Believing that one can best do this when he is not planning for a second term, I announce now, as I have on former occasions, that if elected I shall not be a candidate for re-election.

"This is a nomination as purely from the people as can be, and if elected, my obligation will be as purely to the people. I appreciate the honor the more because it came not from one person or a few persons, but from the rank and file, acting freely and without compulsion."

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST

ORDERED SOLD.

New Franchise For Electric Lighting and Power At Lexington.

Lexington, Ky.—Agitation against high rates for electric lighting and power resulted in the passage by general council of an ordinance for sale of a franchise for a new company.

Th ordinance provides that the maximum rate for lighting shall be 15 cents per 1,000 watts; that the life of the franchise shall be 20 years; that the plant shall not be sold to a competitive company, and that the Lexington Railway Co., which now has a monopoly here, shall not be a bidder.

Col. John R. Allen stated that a company, largely of local men and ample capital, is to be formed and will bid for the franchise. It is required that work on the plant begin not later than January, 1909.

TEAM CLOSED

That Will Represent Blue Grass Troops at National Rifle Shott.

Feilx Kerrick, Louisville; Sergt. Wiley S. Morris, McWhorter; Capt. A. M. Moffett, Louisville; Capt. Jackson Morris, Frankfort; Sergt. Walter Jackson, Barboursville; Lieut. W. H. Meadows, Lieut. Selby Sale, Louisville; Sergt. J. W. Wilson, Lieut. N. J. Wilburn, Middlesboro; Custer Bailey, Pineville; W. H. Ratcliffe, Capt. J. R. Sams, Lexington; Capt. R. N. Krieger, Louisville; James E. Price, Lieut. G. C. Bailey, Pineville.

Organized in National Body.

Bowling Green, Ky.—The executive boards representing the Burley Tobacco Growers' Association of Ohio and Indiana, the Dark Tobacco Protective Association of Kentucky and Tennessee, the Henderson Stemming District Association, the Old Green River Tobacco Association and the Greenville Tobacco Association, all being members of the American Society of Equity, effected a temporary organization for the purpose of forming a national confederation. The confederation will have the exclusive handling and marketing of all tobacco grown in the four states.

Britton Case Passed.

Lexington, Ky.—The case of William Britton, charged with the assassination of James Cockrell, in Breathitt county, was continued until the next term of the Fayette circuit court on motion of the commonwealth. A similar charge against Alexander and Elbert Hargis and Jesse Spicer was passed until later, but they will also be continued. It is believed the cases will ultimately be filed away.

Singleton's Son Dies Suddenly.

Newport, Ky.—Fred G. Singleton, son of the late Squire Edward Singleton, was suddenly stricken when notified of the arrest of the couple for the murder of his father, and died scon after his physician arrived. The physician says he died from an epileptic convulsion, brought on by the shock of the notification of the arrest of the couple who are being held for the murder of his father.

Afraid To Go Home.

Paducah, Ky.—Policemen arrested Miss Mattie Cooper, aged 17, in boy's clothes, with men on top of a coach of a fast Louisville & Memphis passenger train here. She said she stayed out too late on the Fourth of July, and, fearing to return to the home of her father, William Cooper, 18th and Colgan streets, Louisville, Ky., ran away to see the world. She was taken home.

Hold Troops in Readiness.

Frankfort, Ky.—Adjt. Gen. Johnston, Gov. Willson and Major Bassett, who is in command of the troops in Western Kentucky, held a conference here. Following it Gen. Johnston said troops would be in readiness to send into the western counties in case there were reports of lawlessness among the tobacco growers.

The Drys Won.

Madisonville, Ky.—The election held here resulted in a victory for the drys by seven majority after a bitter campaign. Union services were held and rejoicing is general. This is the first time the city has voted dry in 18 years.

Old Army Officer Dies.

Henderson, Ky.—Major John G. Reeve, staff officer of Confederate Generals Hood and Johnson, and assistant adjutant general of the Army of Tennessee at the fall of Vicksburg, died here.

Gas in Well Causes Death.

Winchester, Ky.—Clay skinner, one of the most prominent citizens of the eastern portion of the county, went down into a well to clean it out, and was overcome by the gas. When taken out he was dead.

Luther Benham Dead.

Brandenburg, Ky.—Luther Benham, 98, who achieved distinction as furnishing the greater part of the peach crop consumed in making brandy for the Louisville market, died at his home in this county.

LOADED BUGGY WHIP

Used To Kill Rival For Young Woman's Hand.

Catlettsburg, Ky.—Walking home from Grassy Church, about six miles south of this city, William Noble, aged 21, was assaulted by John Nichols, who dealt him a blow on the head with the loaded butt of a buggy whip, inflicting an injury which resulted in the death of Noble.

An examination showed that a blood vessel had been broken in the brain. Nichols had threatened to kill any man who dared to pay attention to a certain young woman. When he saw Noble with her he made good his threat. Nicbols came to this city, but when it was learned that his victim had died he made his escape and has not been arrested.

CALLED BY DEATH.

Chas. M. Coles, Former Clerk of Pendleton County, Expires.

Covington, Ky.—Assistant Postmaster G. A. Seller, of this city, received a telegram announcing the death of Charles M. Coles, of Butler, Pendleton county, Ky.

Mr. Coles was to have been one of the delegates to the recent national republican convention in Cbicago, but illness prevented bim from going.

Coles was formerly county clerk of Pendleton county and was the only republican ever elected to that office in that county.

He was one of the proprietors of the O. W. Coles distillery, president of the Butler bank and a director of the Falmouth Fair association. His widow survives.

Latonia Meeting Closes Down.

Covington, Ky.—Latonia's spring meeting came to an end with the running of the card for the thirty-first day. The meeting has been a financial failure and the association decided to close. It is now thought that the race track will never reopen.

Battle With "Shiners."

Sergent, Ky.—In a battle on Beaver creek, Knott county, with alleged moonshiners, Collector Sam Collins and a detail of 10 men, with United States Marshal F. M. Blair, clashed with Ben Mullins and Bud Hall. Bud Hall was killed. Mullins surrendered.

Phillips a Candidate.

Elizabethtown, Ky.—R. G. Phillips, of this city, formerly secretary of the state board of equalization and a member of the board of control under ex-Gov. J. C. W. Beckham, is a candidate for secretary of the state democratic central and executive committees.

Pastor Forced To Resign.

Lexington, Ky.—Because he preached a sermon against night riders, the Rev. H. E. Roseberry, pastor of the Methodist church at Sardis, Mason county, has been forced to resign his pastorate. Attempts have been made to burn his parsonage.

Survived the Shock.

Louisville, Ky.—T. B. Wright, an electrical engineer, survived a shock of 1,750 volts of electricity, although he lost a finger and his right foot was badly scorched. His hand came in contact with a live wire on a switchboard.

Swallowed Store Teeth.

Louisville, Ky.—Mrs. Corrilla Bland, of this city, died at the home of her daughter at Bowling Green soon after swallowing a set of false teeth. In trying to cough up the teeth the aged woman burst an artery in her brain.

Milwaukee Gets Next Convention.

Lexington, Ky.—President C. M. Barnett, of the American Society of Equity, was here on business connected with the organization, and announced that the next annual convention will be held in Milwaukee, October 6.

Wainscote Withdraws.

Winchester, Ky.—G. Lee Wainscote, of this city, who for some time has been a candidate for the democratic nomination for congress from the 10th district, announced his withdrawal from the race.

Runaway Lad Killed.

Louisville, Ky.—Clarence Scales, 16, who had run away from his home at Covington, Ky., was run down by a freight train and both legs were so badly crushed that he died shortly afterward.

Clark Addresses Association.

Louisville, Ky.—J. H. Clark, of Cincinnati, was the chief speaker at the session of the Kentucky Funeral Directors' association. He spoke on "Embalming and Sanitation."

Meets Death While Plowing.

Fullerton, Ky.—James Nicholls, 18, was plowing corn on a hillside. The plow struck a root, causing the handles to strike him in the stomach. He died a few hours after his arrival at a hospital.

Damage Suits Filed.

Paducah, Ky.—Two suits for $75,000 were filed in the federal court here against 71 alleged night riders, whose names are withheld until the papers in the case can be served on the defendants.

Congressman Rhiuock has been notified by the Postoffice Department at Washington that the application for Burlington R. F. D. No. 3 has been granted, but that it will not be put in operation before November 1st, on account of the limited appropriation thisyear for that service.

Those gentlemen in this district who have the congressional bee buzzing in their hats can get busy now, the committee having decided how and when the selection of a candidate is to be made. It is said that the woods are full of aspirants, and that they will be heard from in every direction.

There is a very small quantity of unsold burley tobacco outside of the pool and with the 1908 crop practically wiped out the American Tobacco Company will have to purchase of the pooled stock to maintain its supply unless it has a much larger quantity in its warehouses than is supposed. It looks like the tobacco trust has been driven to the wall for the present at least.

Over 2,000,000 tons of commercial fertilizer are used annually in the United States, valued at more than $40,000,000. This great industry as well as an enormous foreign consumption has resulted almostly entirely from scientific experiments made between 1845 and 1873 in growing crops in water and sand and determining the exact requirements of plants for mineral nutrients.

Beginning Tuesday, July 14, the Grant County Board of Control announce that they will pay an advance of 50 per cent of the graded value of their 1906 crop to all holders of warehouse receipts who have not already drawn that amount, and that they will surrender the notes of those who have drawn. This is glorious news for our growers who have stood loyally by the Society and will serve to strengthen their purpose to prosecute the effort to a successful conclusion. Here's hoping they may win out finally and that the victory may not be long delayed.—Williamstown Courier.

The RECORDER is in receipt of a letter purporting to have been written in Covington, and bears the signature, "Democrat," only. The writer of this anonymous communication begins by saying, "I am instructed by a number of Democrats to write you in regard to Congressional primary election." It is strange that one out of "a number of Democrats" could not be found who had the nerve to sign his name to a communication considered of such great importance to the Democrats of this Congressional district, hence it looks very much like the letter is the product of some of the chronic political knockers who hold forth in Covington.

Vindicated by Court.

[Owen County Democrat.]

The farce is ended. The curtain has been run down. The chief jester has gone into his hole and pulled the hole in after him. The case of Commonwealth of Kentucky against J. W. Gayle, charging him with embezzlement came to an inglorious conclusion Monday afternoon, when the prosecution announced that their testimony was all in. Judge Cammack announced from the bench that not a single particle of proof had been placed before the jury to incriminate Mr. Gayle. The prosecution had been given every chance, the hired prosecutors, the jackels of the law, had done their uttermost to smirch the character of Owen county's leading citizen and their failure was pitiable. The case was kicked out of court, and carried to the legal boneyard and buried from the sight of all honest men, too rotten for even the buzzards to touch it.

Personal Mention.

William Duncan is at home for a few days.

Miss Charlotte Hall is at home from Cincinnati, on a two week's vacation.

Miss Helen Gurney, of Erlanger, is the pleasant guest of Miss Essie Parish.

Mrs. F. L. Peddicord was taken to a Cincinnati hospital for treatment, yesterday.

Mrs. Castleman, of Latonia, is a guest of the family of her son, D. E. Castleman.

Mrs. West and son, Sleet, of Walton, were guests of B. B. Hume and wife, Sunday.

Mrs. Hume, of Mud Lick, is visiting her son B. B. Hume and family, of Burlington.

Mrs. Elmer Kirkpatrick spent a couple of days last week with her mother in Hebron.

Mrs. J. C. Revill and daughters, Misses Jonette and Pattie, are visiting in Owenton, Owen county.

The RECORDER'S old bachelor friend, A. B. Acra, of Middle Creek, came in Monday and placed some of his lucre with it.

Mr. Lystra Aylor, of Walton, came down the first of last week to spend a few days with friends in this part of the county. He is looking robust and hearty.

Mr. W. M. Rogers and son J. H., of Walton, came over last Thursday for a few days sojourn in and about Burlington. They each have many friends here who are always glad to have them in their midst.

Edgar DeCoursey, of Covington, is the guest of his sister, Mrs. Alice Adams. Mr. DeCoursey but recently submitted to an operation on one of his knees, similar to that underwent by Jailer Sam Adams.

Jerry Tanner, J. M. Craven and John Clore, directors of the Harvest Home Association, were at this office, last Saturday, in regard to the printing of the premium list for the next exhibition, which will be of unusual merit.

A. M. Edwards, of Walton, chairman of the Boone county Republican committee, and Jonas Stephens, of Idlewild, member of the committee, attended a meeting of the committee held at G. G. Hughes' law office, last Saturday afternoon. It is suspected that the boys were conspiring against W. J. B., somewhat.

Dr. J. P. Riffe, of Erlanger, passed through Burlington, last Saturday morning, with his wife, enroute to her brother, J. J. Walton's, in Belleview precinct, where Mrs. Riffe will spend several days, hoping to regain her strength, much of which she lost by a recent sojourn at a Cincinnati hospital. Mr. Riffe is a 32 degree Erlanger booster, and is developing a scheme by which he is confident that the traction road will be extended from Highland cemetery to Erlanger at an early date. He has succeeded in interesting several influential men in the proposed extention of the traction road, and everything indicates that results will be forthcoming. Mr. Riffe should have the hearty cooperation of every citizen of Erlanger in his effort to secure what the town needs above all things else—a traction road.

Local News.

The jail is tenantless again.

Atty. D. E. Castleman went to Texas, last week, on legal business.

Coalgates & Williams' shaving soap, 5 and 10 cents per cake at Clark's barber shop.

The crop of oats in this county is the poorest in many years. In many fields the straw is so short it cannot be cut with a binder.

C. W. Riley, of Bullitteville, had a stroke of paralysis, a few days ago, and has been very low ever since, and his friends are very much concerned about him.

Mr. Joseph Chambers requests his RECORDER mailed to him at Salt Ste. Marie, Ontario, Canada, where he goes, annually, to escape the heated term.

The Q. & C. Railroad has had all sorts of appeals from the citizens living along the road from Crescent Springs to Walton, to put the "noon commuter" back.

The dry weather killed just about all the tobacco plants that were set out, which makes it appear that Providence favored cutting out the 1908 crop.

Thanks to Dr. A. E. Chambers, of Texarkana, Texas, for copy of paper showing what a record breaking celebration his city indulged in on the 4th inst. Rome was made to howl.

James Cunningham, of Dayton, was in Burlington, one day last week, looking at the Boone House with a view to renting. He is said to have had considerable experience in the hotel business.

The fiscal court did the proper thing when it ordered the interior of the county infirmary painted. The work ought to have been done some time since, but nothing serious has resulted from the delay.

The directors of the Florence fair have contracted with an aeronaut to give a balloon ascension each day during the fair. This attraction will be of no extra cost to the patrons of the fair, and ought to, and doubtless will, prove a drawing card.

W. E. Vest, of Walton, passed through town last Thursday going towards Florence at a good rate of speed. He was wearing a broad smile, and some predicted he had but recently closed a real estate deal somewhere, hence the smile that wouldn't come off.

Mr. Edwin M. Gaines, of Bullittsburg neighborhood, spent a day or two in Burlington, last week. Notwithstanding his advanced age, being one of the oldest citizens of this part of the county, Mr. Gaines is a well preserved man, and is in full possession of all of his faculties.

Those interested in having Woolper creek bridged at Plattsburg ought to get very busy since the fiscal court has signified the amount of money it will appropriate to assist in constructing the bridge. Those directly interested should not hesitate to shoulder their proportion of the burden, and have the bridge ready for use in the next few months.

Dick Tanner, of Hebron neighborhood, who has rented the dining hall during the Florence fair, will make a new departure in the feeding of the public. Mr. Tanner understands thoroughly the art of barbecuing meat and preparing burgoo, both of which he will serve each day during the fair. The meat will be cooked in a pit on the ground, where the thousands who attend the fair can see the work of barbecuing meat in progress.

Mr. William Fenton, who spent the fourth of July with his sister, Mrs. Edgar Berkshire, lost his handsome gold watch while taking a walk on the Belleview pike that day. Several persons made repeated hunts for the time piece but it was not found until the Tuesday following, when it was discovered lying in the middle of the pike. During the interval intervening between the losing and the finding of the watch there had been considerable travel on the road, but, remarkably to relate, the watch had not been touched by animal or vehicle.

The people of Burlington and vicinity should cooperate with Rev. Edgar Riley in his effort to establish a good school here. Every citizen of this community will be benefitted either directly or indirectly by the school. There are numerous ways in which benefits will be derived by individuals—too numerous to attempt to enumerate here. Burlington is well located as a site for a school of the order it is Rev. Riley's desire to establish, and those who are instrumental in making it a possibility will never have a cause to regret the assistance they render him.

To County Superintendents.

J. G. Crabbe, Superintendent of Public Instruction, has issued the following letter to County Superintendents in regard to the recent legislation enacted in regard to districting the various counties which will no doubt be of interest to many of our readers:

To the County Superintendent:

I appeal to you, and through you, to the school officers of your county. We are inaugurating here and now the biggest forward movement of the schools in Kentucky since the past forty or fifty years. This is my theme:

1. The old cumbersome, iniquitous trustee system is as bad as any school system in the world. No system could be worse. The witnesses bear testimony entirely abundant.

2. The new school law under the county board offers us a sane, progressive system, which is as good as any modern school system known to any State in the union. The witnesses are legion.

NO TAINT OF POLITICS.

Teachers, I want you to be grounded in the faith on this new school law, and because of this I add another word. No taint of politics has ever come to the new law. The General Assembly, regardless of party affiliation, was overwhelmingly for the bill. Mr. Sullivan, its champion in the House, is a Democrat; Mr. Watkins, its champion in the Senate, is a Democrat; the Republican leaders in both branches were ardent advocates of the law; the Senate asked the Superintendent of Public Instruction, a Republican, to address that body on this measure.

The various committees in assisting in drafting the law—the committees of the K. E. A., the School Improvement Leagues, the Federation of Clubs and the Kentucky Development Association, united in recommending the passage—all without a thought of creed, party or personal prejudice.

CORDIAL SUPPORT APPRECIATED.

More than all I appreciate the cordial support of the superintendents and teachers who have rallied to the standard of this new law. More than 90 per cent of the school people believe in the new regime. I am aware that no law can be perfect; this new school law is, without doubt very imperfect. Many, many changes will be found to be needed during the actual operation of the system. It is so easy for us, for others, to criticise about the laws; it is not so easy to solve the great problems of legislation.

This is a big system; it will never be mastered by the "little fellows." The needs are great, many of the people do not care to understand—shall we have a real school system, the beginning; to be sure, of a real school system, a real popular (in the best sense) educational system. Let us then popularize the law and the syetem. Will you help?

SUGGESTIONS TO SUPERINTENDENTS.

1. Mr. Superintendent, you are the leader of the schools. Now is a critical moment in Kentucky. You need to think seriously, to plan carefully, to work. If you are a timeserver merely may God forbid the little children in your schools and may a better man be elected in your stead.

2. Plan carefully the redistricting. This is the focal point. Many hard hours will be needed. Even then it will not be satisfactory to you and your co-laborers. Changes in boundaries can be made from time to time as experience may dictate. If at all practicable, each county should make a map showing the educational divisions and the sub districts, and a copy of each map should be recorded in this office.

3. The right trustee is necessary. Not in the letter of the law, but in the spirit of the school at least, the superintendent should be active about the encouragement of good trustees. The superintendent should make it his own business especially that the nominating petition or trustees is properly filled and then filed with the clerk in time—at least ten days prior to the election. In many cases the sub district will be without a local representative unless the county superintendent will attend to these points in person.

4. Within a day or two another bulletin will be sent from this office. Meanwhile please note:

THE NEW SCHOOL LAW.

The Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Attorney General have at some length examined all the provisions of the new school law. We are prepared to advise that no new law is to be construed absolutely iron-bound. This new school law is not any exception. In the main, 100 counties in Kentucky can effectively conduct the schools under the new act without disturbing a single one of its provisions. In a few counties the local conditions, needs and peculiar demands must be met by a wise and practicable administration of the county officers, and their sound discretion and common sense will be exhibited by a sensible application of the law.

For the present this year, some counties may simply adjust the districts until the experience of another year may help to perfect the arrangements. Other "convenient arrangements" locally may be necessary and must be met by the local authorities.

Very Truly Yours,
J. G. CRABBE, Superintendent.

Following is a synopsis of the business transacted by the fiscal court at its session on Tuesday of last week:

Harry C. Menefee allowed $15 for his services as stenographer in the Meeks murder trial.

Moses Scott and Solon Early appointed directors of the Rabbit Hash, Waterloo and Bellevue turnpike company.

The following were allowed claims for sheep killed by dogs: G. E. Powers, $37 50; Joseph Gardt, $15; Wm. Senior, $36; J. M. Grant, administrator of Thos. S. Whitaker, $12.

Twenty-two overseers of roads filed their reports and were allowed the sums due thereon.

For the construction of a bridge across a branch in the change of Gimlet Gap road, $65 was appropriated.

An order complimenting Mrs. Blythe for the excellent dinner served the members of the court at the county infirmary was entered of record.

Upon a cash subscription of $1,000 being raised and paid over to the sheriff of the county, the fiscal court has agreed to give $2,000 to assist in the construction of a bridge to span Woolper creek at Plattsburg. The cost of the structure is estimated at $3,000, and $890 has been subscribed by individuals.

The sum of $200 was appropriated to raise the east approach to the Dry creek bridge at Constance. Spencer Tanner, Esq. J. H. Walton and B. F. McGlasson were appointed a committee to have the work done.

County Attorney N. E. Riddell was appointed to have interior of county infirmary painted.

Wm. McArthur was allowed $20 for work done on Dry creek bridge.

The court agreed to take stock in the following proposed turnpikes: Walton and Verona, $2,500; Walton and Stephenson's Mill, $2,250.

Hands to save the short hay crop were in demand, last week.

NATIONAL DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

Principles of the Party as Enunciated by the Convention at Denver.

FOR REFORM OF TARIFF

Reduction of Import Duties on Many Articles Is Demanded.

INCOME TAX IS FAVORED

Modification of Existing Laws Relating to Injunctions Declared Necessary—For Economy in Administration—Publicity of Campaign Contributions and the Forbidding of Corporations to Contribute Is One of the Planks—Stringent Laws Against Trusts Urged—Railroad Regulation — Popular Election of Senators—Against Asiatic Immigration.

Denver, Col.—The platform of the Democratic party, as adopted by a unanimous vote of the convention, is as follows:

Preamble.

We, the representatives of the Democracy of the United States in national convention assembled, reaffirm our faith and pledge our loyalty to, the principles of the party.

We rejoice at the increasing signs of an awakening throughout the country. The various investigations which have traced graft and political corruption to the representatives of predatory wealth, and laid bare the unscrupulous methods by which they have debauched elections and preyed upon a defenseless public through the subsent officials whom they have raised to place and power.

The conscience of the nation is now aroused to free the government from the grip of those who have made it a business asset of the favor-seeking corporations; it must become again a people's government, and be administered in all its departments in the spirit of the Jeffersonian maxim of "equal rights to all and special privileges to none."

Officeholders.

Coincident with the enormous increase in expenditures is a like addition to the number of officeholders. During the last year 25,784 were added, costing $16,500,000 and in the last six years of the Republican administration the total number of new offices created, aside from many commissions, has been 99,219, entailing an additional expenditure of $70,000,000, as against only 10,279 new offices created under the Cleveland and McKinley administrations with an increased expenditure of only $6,000,000. We denounce this great and growing increase in the number of officeholders as not only unnecessary and wasteful, but also as odiously indicating a deliberate purpose on the part of the administration to keep the Republican party in power at public expense by thus increasing the number of its retainers and dependents. Such procedure we declare to be no less dangerous and corrupt than the open purchase of votes at the polls.

Economy in Administration.

The Republican congress in the session just ended has made appropriations amounting to $1,008,000,000, exceeding the total expenditures of the past fiscal year by $90,000,000, and leaving a deficit of more than $60,000,000 for the fiscal year. We denounce the needless waste of the people's money which has resulted in this appalling increase as a shameful violation of all prudent conditions of government as no less than a crime against the millions of workingmen and women from whose earnings the great proportions of these colossal sums must be extorted through excessive tariff exactions and other indirect methods. It is not surprising that, in the face of this shocking record, the Republican platform contains no reference to condemn the administration or promise thereof in the future. We demand that the party shall make frightful extravagance and insist upon the strictest economy in every department compatible with frugal and efficient administration.

Arbitrary Power of Speaker.

The house of representatives was designed by the fathers of the constitution to be the popular branch of our government, responsive to the public will.

The house of representatives, as controlled in recent years by the Republican party, has ceased to be a deliberative and legislative body, responsive to the will of a majority of its members, but has come under the absolute domination of the speaker, who has entire control of its deliberations and powers of legislation.

We have observed with amazement the popular branch of our federal government helpless to obtain either the consideration or enactment of measures desired by a majority of its members.

Legislative government becomes a failure when one member in the person of the speaker is more powerful than the entire body.

We demand that the house of representatives shall again become a deliberative body, controlled by a majority of the people's representatives and not by the speaker, and we pledge ourselves to adopt such rules and regulations to govern the house of representatives as will enable a majority of its members to direct its deliberations and control legislation.

Misuse of Patronage.

We condemn, as a violation of the spirit of our institutions, the action of the present chief executive in using the patronage of his high office to secure the nomination of one of his cabinet officers, A foreign succession in the presidency is scarcely less repugnant to public sentiment than is life tenure in that office. No good intention on the part of the executive and no virtue in the one selected can justify the establishment of a dynasty. The right of the people to freely select their officials is inalienable and cannot be delegated.

Publicity of Campaign Contributions.

We demand federal legislation forever terminating all partnership which has existed between the corporations of the country and the Republican party under the expressed or implied agreement that in return for the contribution of great sums of money wherewith to purchase elections they should be allowed to continue substantially unmolested in their efforts to encroach upon the rights of the people.

Any reasonable doubt as to the existence of this relation has been forever dissolved by the sworn testimony of witnesses examined in the insurance investigation in New York, and the open admissions contained in the speech of a single individual, [illegible] personal regiest of [illegible] for the presidency, [illegible] of a single state [illegible] the law; campaign. In order that this practice shall be stopped for all time, we demand the passage of a statute punishing with imprisonment any officer of a corporation who shall either contribute on behalf of, or consent to the contribution by, a corporation of any money or thing of value to be used in furthering the election of a president or vice-president of the United States or of any member of the congress thereof.

We denounce the action of the Republican party, having complete control of the federal government, in that its failure to pass the bill introduced in the last congress to prevent the publication of the names of contributors and the amounts contributed toward campaign funds, and point to the existence of their insincerity when they sought by an absolutely irrelevant and impossible amendment to defeat the passage of the bill. As a further evidence of their intention to conduct their campaign in the coming contest with vast sums of money wrested from favor-seeking corporations, we call attention to the fact that the recent Republican national convention at Chicago refused when the plank was presented to it to declare against such practices.

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law preventing any corporation contributing to a campaign fund and any individual from contributing an amount above a reasonable maximum and providing for the publication before election of all such contributions above a reasonable minimum.

Rights of the States.

Believing, with Jefferson, in "the support of the state governments in all their rights as the most competent administration for our domestic concerns and the surest bulwark against anti-Republican tendencies," and in "the preservation of the general governments in its whole constitutional vigor as the sheet anchor of our peace at home and safety abroad," we are opposed to the centralization implied in these suggestions, now frequently made, that the powers of the government should be increased by implied construction. There is no twilight zone between the nation and the state in which exploiting interests can take refuge from both; and it is as necessary that the federal government shall exercise the powers delegated to it as it is that the state governments shall keep the authority reserved to them, but we insist that federal remedies for the regulation of interstate commerce and for the prevention of the abuses of monopoly shall be added to, not substituted for, state remedies.

Tariff.

We welcome the belated promise of tariff reform now affected by the Republican party in last year's recognition of the righteousness of the Democratic position on this question; but these people cannot be content with the execution of this important work to a party which has always been obligated to the highly protected interests as is the Republican party. We call attention to the significant fact that the promised relief was postponed until after the coming election—an election to succeed in which the Republican party has now have that same support from the beneficiaries of the high protective tariff as it has always heretofore received from them; and to the further fact that during the time the republican power no action whatever has been taken by the Republican congress to correct the admittedly existing tariff iniquities.

We favor immediate revision of the tariff by the friends of the people, and relief therefrom into competition with trust-controlled products should be placed upon the free list, and material reductions should be made in the tariff upon the necessaries of life, especially upon articles competing with such American manufactures as are sold abroad more cheaply than at home; and graduate reductions should be made in such other schedules as may be necessary to restore to labor and the people its true basis.

Existing duties have given to the manufacturers of paper a shelter behind which they have organized combinations to raise the price of print paper, thus imposing a tax upon the spread of knowledge.

We demand the immediate repeal of the tariff on pulp print paper, lumber, timber and logs and that these articles be placed upon the free list.

Trusts.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable. We therefore favor the vigorous enforcement of the criminal law against guilty trust magnates and officials, and demand the enactment of such additional legislation as may be necessary to make it impossible for a private monopoly to exist in the United States. Among the additional remedies we specify three. First, a law prohibiting a duplication of directors among competing corporations, second, a license system which will, without abridging the right of each state to create corporations, or its right to regulate as it will foreign corporations doing business within its limits, make it necessary for a manufacturing or trading corporation engaged in inter-state commerce to take out a federal license before it shall be permitted to control as much as 25 per cent of the product in which it deals, the license to protect the public from watered stock and to prohibit the control by such corporation of more than 50 per cent of the total amount of any product consumed in the United States; and third, a law compelling such licensed corporations to sell to all purchasers in all parts of the country on the same terms after making due allowance for cost of transportation.

Railroad Regulations.

We assert the right of congress to exercise complete control over interstate commerce and the right of each state to exercise full control over commerce within its borders.

We demand such enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission as may be necessary to compel railroads to perform their duties as common carriers and prevent discrimination and extortion.

We favor the efficient supervision and rate regulation of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, and to this end we recommend the valuation of railroads by the interstate commerce commission, such valuation to take into consideration the physical value of the property, the original cost, cost of production and all elements of value that will render the valuation made just and just.

We favor such legislation as will prohibit the railroads from engaging in business which brings them into competition with their shippers, also legislation which will assure such reduction in transportation rates as conditions will permit, certain industrial organizations that would compel a reduction of wages, prevent adequate service or do injustice to legitimate investors. We heartily approve the laws prohibiting the pass and the rebate, and we favor any further necessary legislation to restrain, control and prevent such abuses.

We favor such legislation as will increase the power of the interstate commerce commission, giving to it the initiative with reference to rates and transportation charges put into effect by the railroad companies, and permitting the interstate commerce commission its own initiative to declare a rate illegal and as being more than should be charged for such service. That the present law relating thereto is inadequate by reason of the fact that the interstate commerce commission is without power to fix or investigate a rate until complaint has been made to it by the shipper.

We further declare that all agreements of traffic or other associations of railway agents affecting interstate transportation of service or classification shall be unlawful unless filed with and approved by the interstate commerce commission.

We favor the enactment of a law giving to the interstate commerce commission the power to inquire into all railroad tariff rates or schedules before they shall take effect, and, if they be found to be unreasonable, to initiate an adjustment thereof.

Banking.

The panic of 1907, coming without any legitimate excuse, when the Republican party had for a decade been in complete control of the federal government, furnishes additional proof that it is either unwilling or incompetent to protect the interests of the general public. It has so linked the country to Wall street that the syndicate and the speculator have visited upon the whole people. While refusing to rescue the wealth producers from spoliation at the hands of the stock gamblers and speculators in farm products, it has deposited treasury funds, without interest and without competition, in favored banks. It has used an emergency for which it is largely responsible to force through congress a bill changing the basis of bank currency and inviting market manipulation, and has failed to give to the 15,000,000 depositors of the country protection in their savings.

We believe that in so far as the needs of commerce require an emergency currency, such currency should be issued, controlled by the federal government and loaned on adequate security to national and state banks. We pledge ourselves to legislation under which the national banks shall be required to establish a guaranty fund for the prompt payment of the depositors of any insolvent national bank under an equitable system which shall be available to all state banking institutions wishing to use it.

We favor a postal savings bank, if the proposed bank cannot be secured, and that it be constituted so as to keep the deposited money in the communities where it is originally raised. We indorse the policy of the Republican party in proposing postal savings banks under a plan of conduct by which they will aggregate the deposits of small amounts and redeposit the same while under government charge in the banks of Wall street, thus depleting the circulating medium of the producing regions and unjustly favoring the speculative markets.

Income Tax.

We favor an income tax as part of our revenue system, and urge the submission of a constitutional amendment specifically authorizing congress to levy and collect a tax upon individual and corporate incomes, to the end that wealth may bear its proportionate share of the burdens of the federal government.

Labor and Injunctions.

The courts of justice are the bulwark of our liberties, and we yield to none in our purpose to maintain their dignity. But rights which are valued by the bench as the line of distinguished judges, who have added to the respect and confidence in which this department must be jealously maintained. We resent the attempt of the Republican party to raise false issues respecting the judiciary. It is an unjust reflection upon a great body of our citizens that they are lacking in respect for the courts. It is the function of the courts to interpret the laws which the people create, and if the laws appear to work economic, social or political injustice it is our duty to change them. The only basis upon which the integrity of our courts can stand is that of unswerving and impartial protection of life, personal liberty and property. If judicial processes may be abused we should guard against abuse.

Experience has proven the necessity of a modification of the present law relating to injunctions, and we reiterate the pledge of our national platforms of 1896 and 1904 in favor of the measure which passed the United States senate in 1896, but which a Republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt, and that judicial process now have arisen especially in connection with industrial disputes. We deem that parties to all controversies growing out of labor should be treated with rigid impartiality and that injunctions should not be issued in any case in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.

The expanding organization of industry makes it essential that there should be no abridgment of the right of wage-earners and producers of the country to the protection of wages and the improvement of labor conditions to the end that such labor organizations and their members should not be regarded as illegal combinations in restraint of trade.

We favor the passage of a law by the government work.

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law by congress, as far as the federal jurisdiction extends, for a just compensation for liability for covering injury to body or loss of life of employes.

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law creating a department of labor, represented separately in the president's cabinet, which department shall include the subject of mines and mining.

Merchant Marine.

We believe in the upbuilding of the American and merchant marine without new subsidies, and to that end upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury.

The Navy.

The constitutional provision that a navy shall be provided and maintained means an adequate navy, and we believe that the interests of this country would be best served by having a navy sufficient to defend the rights of this country and protect American citizens wherever their rights may be in jeopardy.

Protection of American Citizens.

We pledge ourselves to insist upon full and lawful protection of our citizens at home and abroad and to employ all proper methods to secure for them, whether naturalized or native-born, and without distinction of race or creed, the equal protection of law and the enjoyment of the rights and privileges open to them under our treaty; and we urge existing treaties, the right of travel and sojourning be denied to American citizens or recognition is withheld from American passports by any countries on the ground of race or creed, we favor prompt negotiations with the governments of such countries to secure the removal of these unjust discriminations.

We demand that all over the world a duly authorized passport issued by the government of the United States to an American citizen shall be prima facie evidence of the fact that he is an American citizen and shall entitle him to the treatment due him as such.

Civil Service.

The laws pertaining to the civil service should be enforced, and, if such laws are found to be inadequate, they should be strengthened, so that merit and ability shall be the standard of appointment and promotion in the civil services rendered to a political party.

Pensions.

We favor a generous pension policy, both as a matter of justice to the surviving veterans and their dependents and because the maintenance of such policy is one of the necessity of maintaining a large standing army.

Health Bureau.

We advocate the organization of all existing national public health agencies into a national bureau of public health, with such sanitary supervision of conditions connected with factories, mines, tenements, child labor and other such subjects as may properly be left to the jurisdiction of the federal government and do not interfere with the power of the states and municipalities in health agencies.

Agricultural and Mechanical Education.

The Democratic party favors the extension of agricultural, mechanical and industrial education. We, therefore, favor the establishment of district agricultural experiment stations, the maintenance of state and local mechanical colleges in the several states.

Popular Election of Senators.

We favor the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people, and regard this reform as the gateway to other national reforms.

Oklahoma.

We welcome Oklahoma to the sisterhood of states and sincerely congratulate her on the auspicious beginning of a great career.

Arizona and New Mexico.

The national Democratic party has for the last 16 years labored for the admission of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states of the federal union, and, recognizing that each possessed every qualification to successfully maintain separate state governments, we favor the immediate admission of these territories as separate states.

Grazing Lands.

The establishment of rules and regulations, if any such are necessary, in relation to free grazing upon the public lands outside of forest or other reservations, until such lands shall eventually be disposed of should be left to the people of the states respectively in which such lands may be situated.

Water Ways.

Water furnishes the cheapest means of transportation and the national government, controlling the control of navigable waters, should improve them to their fullest capacity. We earnestly favor the immediate adoption of a liberal and comprehensive plan for improving and developing the inland waterways of the union, which is justified by the needs of commerce and, to secure that end, we favor, when practicable, the connection of the great lakes with the navigable rivers and with the gulf through the Mississippi river, and the navigable rivers with each other by artificial canals, with a view to perfecting a system of inland waterways to be navigated by vessels of standard draught.

We favor the co-ordination of the various services of the government connected with waterways in one service, for the purpose of aiding in the completion of such a system of inland water ways, and we favor the creating of a fund ample for continuous work, which shall be conducted under the direction of a commission of experts to be authorized by law.

We favor federal aid to state and local authorities in the construction and maintenance of post roads.

Telegraph and Telephone.

We pledge the Democratic party to the enactment of a law to regulate the rates and services of telegraph and telephone companies engaged in the transmission of messages between the states and under the jurisdiction of the interstate commerce commission.

Natural Resources.

We repeat the demand for internal development and for the conservation of our natural resources contained in previous platforms, the enforcement of which Mr. Roosevelt has vainly sought from a reluctant party; and to that end we insist upon the preservation, protection and replacement of needed forests, the preservation of the public domain for homeseekers, the protection of the national resources in timber, coal, iron and oil against monopolistic control, the development of our water ways for navigation and every useful purpose, including the irrigation of arid lands, the reclamation of swamp lands, the clarification of streams, the development of water power and the preservation of electric power generated by this natural force from the control of monopoly; and to such end we urge the exercise of all powers, state, federal and municipal, both separately and in co-operation.

We insist upon a policy of administration of our forest reserves which shall relieve it of the abuses which have arisen thereunder, and which shall, as far as practicable, conform to the police regulations of the several states where they are located, which shall enable homesteaders as of right to occupy and acquire title to all agricultural lands therein which are especially adapted to agriculture, and which shall furnish a system of timber sales available as to the private citizen as to the larger manufacturer and consumer.

Hawaii.

We favor the application of principles of the land laws of the United States to our newly acquired territory of Hawaii to the end that the public lands of that territory may be held and utilized for the benefit of bona fide settlers.

Philippines.

We condemn the experiment in imperialism as an inexcusable blunder which has involved us in an enormous expense, brought us weakness instead of strength, and led our nation open to the charge of abandoning a fundamental doctrine of self-government. We favor an immediate declaration of the purpose to recognize the independence of the Philippine islands as soon as a stable government can be established, such independence to be guaranteed by us as we guaranteed the independence of Cuba, until the neutralization of the islands can be secured by treaty with other powers. In recognizing the independence of the Philippines our government should retain such land as may be necessary for coaling stations and naval bases.

Alaska and Porto Rico.

We demand for the people of Alaska and Porto Rico the full enjoyment of the rights and privileges of the territorial form of government, and the officials appointed to administer the government of all our territories and the District of Columbia should be thoroughly qualified by previous bona fide residence.

Panama Canal.

We believe the Panama canal will prove of great value to our country and favor its speedy completion.

Pan-American Relations.

The Democratic party recognizes the importance and desirability of developing closer ties of pan-American friendship and commerce between the United States and her sister nations of South America and favors the taking of such steps, consistent with Democratic policies, for better acquaintance, greater mutual confidence and larger exchange of trade, as will bring lasting benefit not only to the United States but to this group of American republics having constitutions, forms of government, ambitions and interests akin to our own.

Asiatic Immigration.

We favor full protection, by both national and state governments, within their respective spheres, of all foreigners residing in the United States, but declare that we are opposed to the admission of Asiatic immigrants who cannot be amalgamated with our population, whose presence among us would raise a race issue and involve us in diplomatic controversies with our neighbors.

Foreign Patents.

We believe that where an American citizen holding a patent in a foreign country is compelled to manufacture under his patent within a certain time, similar restrictions should be imposed in this country to the citizen of subjects of such a country.

Conclusion.

The Democratic party stands for Democracy; the Republican has drawn to itself all that is aristocratic and plutocratic.

The Democratic party is the champion of civil rights and opportunities for all; the Republican party is the party of privilege and private monopoly. The Democratic party lifts the voice of the whole people and gauges progress by the prosperity and advancement of the average man; the Republican party is subservient to the comparatively few who are the beneficiaries of privilege and favoritism. We invite the co-operation of all, regardless of previous political affiliation, in past differences, who desire to preserve a government of the people, by the people, and for the people, and who favor such an administration of the government as will insure, as far as human wisdom can, that each citizen will draw from society a reward commensurate with his contribution to the welfare of society.

Tablet in Honor of Patriot.

A tablet to the memory of John Benjamin, a Maine soldier in the revolution, was dedicated recently in the Washington Memorial chapel, Valley Forge, on the 130th anniversary of the evacuation of Valley Forge by the American army. The chapel and its surrounding buildings are a memorial to George Washington. The tablet is the gift of Mrs. William Henry Pearson, of Boston. The tablet reads: "With thanksgiving unto Almighty God and in loving memory of John Benjamin, of Massachusetts, born February 5, 1758, died December 2, 1814, artillerist in the continental army, giving to his beloved country a service of seven years and sharing the privations of Valley Forge, this tablet in tribute to his honor, his valor and his faithful life is erected by his granddaughter, Nancy Della Benjamin Pearson."

When Life's Brightness Leaves.

The setting of a great hope is like the setting of the sun. The brightness of our life is gone. Shadows of evening fall around us, and the world seems but a dim reflection—itself a broader shadow. We look forward into the coming lonely night. The soul withdraws into itself. Then stars arise and the night is holy.

Golf-Made Loafers.

ODD NOTIONS OF DISLOYALTY.

Marseillaise Must Not Be Whistled in Berlin Streets.

Most Americans have little idea of what constitutes a treasonable offense in countries of the old world wherein despotic notions still prevail. A year or so ago there took place a trial in Barr, Alsace, which, according to our up-to-date ideas, would have been most amusing, had not a man's liberty been in jeopardy.

It appears that one day, in the streets of that place, a laborer at work had been cheerfully whistling. Suddenly a gendarme, who had been within hearing, appeared at the man's side. The workman, however, did not observe the officer, and continued to whistle his tune.

"You are under arrest," said the gendarme, placing his hand on the unsuspecting laborer's shoulder.

"What for?" demanded the astonished toiler.

"For seditious conduct," explained the officer. "You have been whistling 'La Marseillaise.'"

"La Marseillaise," because it is the French revolutionary air, is forbidden in German Alsace.

Indignantly denying the accusation, the workman at once demanded the allegation, explaining that he had not been whistling "La Marseillaise," but the march of the Brunswick Hussars. "I used to belong to that regiment," said he, "and that is our regimental air."

The gendarme, however, who as a German, prided himself on his knowledge of music, insisted that he was well acquainted with both of the tunes in question, and that he could not be mistaken. Accordingly he took the offender into custody, and the man was in due course of time put on trial on the charge of having whistled a seditious tune in a public place.

Both the accused and the gendarme told their stories to the presiding magistrate with every appearance of truth and confidence. Moreover, as the workman had the reputation of being an honest and loyal man the court was much perplexed.

In this predicament adjournment was taken to the council room adjoining. The accused and the accuser were summoned in turn, and the workman was commanded to whistle the march of the Brunswick Hussars while the officer was ordered to render "La Marseillaise."

Each did his best; but the airs proved in the ear of the court to be so much unlike that it was regarded as highly improbable that the gendarme could have been mistaken. The accused was therefore sent to prison; but his general bearing, not to speak of his excellent whistling, impressed the court so favorably that he was sentenced to only three days' confinement.—Sunday Magazine.

A Woman's Reason.

"Of all the foolish reasons girls give for wishing to marry, or rather not to remain single," said Miss Afternoon Tea, "I think, 'because she wants Mrs. on her tombstone,' is the most inane. Why should she want it there where she cannot read it? I would much rather have Mrs. on my visiting cards than on my tombstone, wouldn't you Clarice?"

"Yes, dear, and that reminds me. I asked Jane Smiley yesterday why she was marrying so much sooner than she intended when I last saw her. She said: 'Oh, my visiting cards are almost gone and I do not care to order another hundred of these so am hurrying up getting my new name to have engraved on them.'"

OBADIAH

A Story of One of the Prophets to the Kingdom of Judea.

BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. E. Stone.)

Scripture Authority—The Book of Obadiah.

The Prophet Obadiah.—"Servant of Jehovah" is the meaning of the name of this prophet, whose message comprises the shortest book in the Old Testament. The date of his ministry is uncertain, but he was probably a contemporary of the prophets Hosea, Joel and Amos. The scene of his labors was Judea, and his prophecy was directed against the Edomites with the closing verses unfolding a vision of the future glories of Zion. The Book of Obadiah is a favorite study of the modern Jews, and it is here especially that they read the future fate of their own nation, and of the Christians, for it is a fixed principle of rabbinical interpretation that by Edomites are prophetically meant Christians, and that by Edom is meant Rome.

SERMONETTE.

"The Vision of Obadiah." These are the opening words of this remarkable prophecy. A vision given to God's servant over 800 years before the coming of the Christ, and to-day nearly 3,000 years old, and yet a vision which the Jews still believe is yet to be fulfilled.

Such facts bring forcibly to mind some wonderful truths concerning God and his dealings with man.

First of all, what condescension on the part of God that he should reveal to devout hearts the inner counsels of his will. Why does he thus open up the future to his children?

As warning, for God would always have us consider the sure judgment which rests upon sin.

As encouragement, for God seeks ever to kindle hope in the heart and make it look up to him and know that in God's good time and God's perfect way truth is to ultimately triumph, and glory come to his chosen people.

Let us not forget that the Jew is yet to come into his own, and that whereas he is now the despised and buffeted in every nation on the globe, he is yet to realize in all fullness what is set forth in this prophecy and in other portions of God's word.

In the second place it drives home the truth that "a thousand years are as one day and one day as a thousand years" with the Lord. Only thy heart of faith which can see with the eye of God can realize that in the fullness of time all promises and all of the Divine plans are to be fulfilled. "There is no variableness neither shadow of turning" with the Lord, and what he says shall be will surely come to pass.

Man in his effort to reconcile to his short vision and his lack of faith the prophetic utterances manifests a disposition to explain away the literalness of God's word, and to spiritualize its meaning. But why should we hesitate to take God at his word and to believe that that which he hath spoken by the mouths of the prophets even down to the wonderful Revelation vouchsafed to John the Beloved is in most part to be literally fulfilled.

THE STORY.

"HELLO, thou dreamer. What message now hast thou from thy God?"

The derisive words of challenge were spoken as a somber looking figure entered the town and passed in silence through the market place. The men gathered there greeted the words with a boisterous laugh, but there was no answering word from the man as he passed.

It was Obadiah, who because of the many strange messages he had delivered to the nation and because of his eccentric habits had come to be known as a dreamer. No one knew just where he dwelt, for in seclusion apart from the habitation of man he would withdraw himself, and then, after a period of absence in which the people would almost forget his existence, he would suddenly appear and deliver his message and then disappear again. It was after one of these periodic absences that Obadiah appeared, as is set forth in the opening of our story, and which appearance was greeted by the words of ridicule spoken by the men in the market place.

Having gotten quite by and after the men had resumed the current of conversation which had prevailed just before the prophet had appeared, Obadiah paused as though reconsidering his purpose to keep silence, and, retracing his steps, he soon stood in the midst of the men who had greeted him so rudely.

"Men of Judah," he said, "God hath given his servant a vision of things yet to come."

At the word vision a quizzical smile appeared upon the faces of the men, but they kept silence waiting for further word. The prophet noted the look, but without reference thereto, he continued, boldly:

"Yea, it was a vision of judgment upon the enemies of Judah and a promise of returning glory when the people shall turn wholly to the Lord and serve him."

Then without further word the prophet turned him about and continued his journey through the town.

"It is time some kind of judgment was dealt our enemies," exclaimed one individual, with a sort of ugly snarl. "If we are God's chosen people, why are we in bondage to the nations about?"

"The prophet says it is because the nation has sinned," ventured a half-frightened voice, startled because it had dared repeat the challenge of the prophet.

"Oh, bother with the charges of the prophet," exclaimed the first speaker. "What does the prophet know about the nation, anyway? He is so busy with his visions and his dreams that he hasn't the first grain of an intelligent idea of the nation's affairs."

"Yes," asserted another, vehemently, "if he spent as much time trying to solve the present problems as he does in fathoming the mysteries of the future, he might be able to render the nation a real service."

"It is all right to speak of following the Lord wholly," spoke up another of the group, "but we Jews are considered exclusive enough already. Instead of a stricter national life, we need a broader spirit which will enable us to mingle with the nations about and get the good of their religions, as well as that of our own."

There was general assent to this speech, and the speaker went on to enlarge upon his idea, so that temporarily the prophet was forgotten, together with his message.

But the prophet with heavy heart had gone on his way, and did not soon forget the looks or the words of the chief men of the town.

"Oh, God," he cried, when he had taken refuge in the humble home he occupied when in town, "Oh, God, what hope is there for Judah if the chief men receive not thy message, neither believe that thou hast given to thy servant a true vision? Do they not call me a dreamer of dreams, and laugh me to scorn? Who is there to receive thy word? Who is there that will believe?" And a great sob shook the frame of the prophet as he bowed himself upon his knees.

"There was that little child you met this morning on your way to the village," prompted his conscience, as the recollection of the blessed little questioner flashed into his mind, and he remembered how the little one had been eager to hear of the God who wanted everybody to be good, and how when he had finished his story of the great prophet Samuel, who as a little boy had heard God speak and had answered: "Speak, Lord, for thy servant heareth," he had clapped his hands and had exclaimed: "I wish God would speak to me."

These thoughts brought comfort to the heart of the prophet, and he whispered, half in prayer and half to himself:

"Yea, Lord, the little ones receive thee."

But what of thy holy Zion and thy people?" he exclaimed, suddenly. "Hast thou not spoken good concerning them?" and he recalled the vision which God had but the day before given him of the future of his people.

Softly there came a voice from above in answer to the tearful plea of the prophet, saying:

"Yea, upon Mount Zion shall be deliverance, and there shall be holiness, and the house of Jacob shall possess their possessions, and the kingdom shall be the Lord's."

"It shall be so, indeed," reverently exclaimed the prophet, bowing his head. "How could I have doubted or let the unbelief of the present obscure the sure fulfillment of the future years? I shall continue to deliver my message, for it is of God."

Alcohol and the Criminal.

In a Mexican district which has an estimated population of 500,000 inhabitants there is reported for the recent year a total of 12,234 violations of the law. According to the official report of the attorney general for the district, 5,566 of these crimes were committed while the offender was under the influence of liquor. The official affirms that alcohol is the chief element in the increase of criminality," and was the determining factor in 4,786 cases of murderous assaults, and a large majority of the minor crimes committed in the district. Among the ancient Mexicans intemperance was accounted a grievous crime, and was punishable with the severest penalties. Modern legislation for the suppression of crime must deal with the liquor evil as an important and primary cause.

Monopoly of Gold.

According to statistics just published by a Parisian contemporary, France, indeed, is the happy possessor of one-third of all the gold coinage in circulation throughout the world. The writer explains that this happens in various ways. In the first place, the people are thrifty, save and invest money and insist on the fragment of the interest in gold. Then, every year crowds of foreigners come to France, spend some time at hotels and make purchases, paying mostly in gold. Exports, again, bring in large sums, so that France literally scores all round. Here are some eloquent figures about the reserve of gold in the Bank of France: In 1900 it amounted to 2,331,000,000 francs. Last year it reached 2,706,000,000 francs, while at the end of May in this year it had attained the figure of 2,806,000,000 francs, or about £12,250,000.

PROOF FOR TWO CENTS.

If You Suffer with Your Kidneys and Back, Write to This Man.

G. W. Winney, Medina, N. Y., invites kidney sufferers to write to him. To all who enclose postage he will reply, telling how Doan's Kidney Pills cured him after he had doctored and had been in two different hospitals for eighteen months, suffering intense pain in the back, lameness, twinges when stooping or lifting, languor, dizzy spells and rheumatism. "Before I used Doan's Kidney Pills," says Mr. Winney, "I weighed 142. After taking 10 or 12 boxes I weighed 162 and was completely cured."

A Mere Fad.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., was talking to a member of the famous Bible class about economy.

"But economy, like everything else, may be carried to extremes—may be made a mere fad of," said Mr. Rockefeller.

"There is a farmer out near Cleveland who makes a fad of economy. Every time he drives into town he carries a hen with him tied to the seat of his buggy.

"A friend rode with him one day and found out the use of the hen. When, at noon, the farmer lunched under a tree he gave his mare a feed from a nosebag. The hen, set on the ground, ate all that the horse spilled from the bag, and thus there was no waste."

By Inference.

The magistrate looked severely at the small, red-faced man who had been summoned before him, and who returned his gaze without flinching.

"So you kicked your landlord downstairs?" said the magistrate. "Did you imagine that was within the rights of a tenant?"

"I'll bring my lease in and show it to you," said the little man, growing still redder, "and I'll wager you'll agree with me that anything they've forgotten to prohibit in that lease I had a right to do the very first good chance I got."—Youth's Companion.

A Man's Tact.

Nobody but Mr. Henley would have asked such a question in the first place.

"Miss Fairley," he said, "if you could make yourself over what kind of hair and eyes would you have?"

"If I could make myself over," said Miss Fairley, "I would look just exactly as I do now."

"You would?" exclaimed Henley in honest surprise, and to this day he can't understand why Miss Fairley thinks him a man of little taste and less tact.

DIFFERENT NOW

Athlete Finds Better Training Food.

It was formerly the belief that to become strong, athletes must eat plenty of meat.

This is all out of date now, and many trainers feed athletes on the well-known food, Grape-Nuts, made of wheat and barley, and cut the meat down to a small portion once a day.

"Three years ago," writes a Mich. man, "having become interested in athletics, I found I would have to stop eating pastry and some other kinds of food.

"I got some Grape-Nuts, and was soon eating the food at every meal, for I found that when I went on the track, I felt more lively and active.

"Later, I began also to drink Postum in place of coffee, and the way I gained muscle and strength on this diet was certainly great. On the day of a field meet in June I weighed 124 lbs. On the opening of the football season in Sept., I weighed 140. I attribute my fine condition and good work to the discontinuation of improper food and coffee, and the using of Grape-Nuts and Postum, my principal diet during training season being Grape-Nuts.

"Before I used Grape-Nuts I never felt right in the morning—always kind of 'out of sorts' with my stomach. But now when I rise I feel good, and after a breakfast largely of Grape-Nuts with cream, and a cup of Postum, I feel like a new man." "There's a Reason."

HIS WAY OF PROPOSING.

He—They tell me you're great at guessing conundrums.

She—Well, rather good.

He—Here's one for you: If I were to ask you to marry me, what would you say?

TWO CURES OF ECZEMA

Baby Had Severe Attack—Grandfather Suffered Torments with It—Owe Recovery to Cuticura.

"In 1884 my grandson, a babe, had an attack of eczema, and after trying the doctors to the extent of heavy bills and an increase of the disease and suffering, I recommended Cuticura and in a few weeks the child was well. He is to-day a strong man and absolutely free from the disease. A few years ago I contracted eczema, and became an intense sufferer. A whole winter passed without once having on shoes, nearly from the knees to the toes being covered with virulent sores. I tried many doctors to no purpose. Then I procured the Cuticura Remedies and found immediate improvement and finally cure. M. W. LaRue, 845 Seventh St., Louisville, Ky., Apr. 23 and May 14, '07."

Couldn't Fool Him.

A custom house clerk, who, prior to his entry into Uncle Sam's service, was a schoolteacher "a good many years yet," as he proudly informs his associates, was standing on the corner of Fifth and Chestnut streets one cold day last winter, deeply engrossed in studying a legend which appeared on a dairy man's wagon, as follows: "Pasteurized milk," etc.

His face wore a puzzled expression, but finally betraying evidence of dawning intelligence he remarked to a bystander:

"Ain't these here Philadelphia milkmen a-gettin' to be just as deceitful as anything! Pasturized milk, eh? But they can't fool me, 'cause I lived in the country, and know you can't pasture cows in winter."

Telepathic Thirst.

News travels so fast nowadays as to render one almost speechless with wonder at the achievements of the wireless telegraph and telephone, says the Palmyra (N. Y.) Journal. One night last week we won a case of whisky at the Elks' fair in Lyons, and the night we brought it home there were three church members, a town official and two members of the band on hand to meet us on getting off the car. Since our arrival many people whom we have hitherto believed respectable have gone out of their respective ways to speak kindly to us.

Overlooked.

"I always distrust your judgment for some reason or other, John."

"Yes, and you have reason to; it serves me right!"

"Why, I cannot remember you ever having done anything to justify such a distrust."

"Have you forgotten that I married you?"—Houston Post.

NOT EVE'S FAULT THAT TIME.

Childish Realism Instilled into Story of Gardan of Eden.

Realism rules the nursery. A certain Philadelphia matron, who had taken pains to inculcate Biblical stories as well as ethical truths in her three children, heard, the other day, long drawn howls of rage and grief filtering down from the playroom. Up two flights she hurried, to find on the floor Jack and Ethel, voices uplifted. Thomas, aged nine, sat perched upon the table, his mouth full and his eyes gulity.

"Whatever is the matter?" asked mamma.

"Bo-o-o!" came from Ethel; "we were playing Garden of Eden. Bo-o-o!"

"But what is there to cry about?"

Then Jack, with furious finger pointing at Tom, ejaculated through his tears: "God's eat the apple!"—Bohemian Magazine.

Unpoetic Feet.

Josselyn was feeling blue. He had come home from his visit to a New York manager with his drama—"in rimed hexameters or something like that," in his wife's phrase—under his arm.

As he sat gloomily turning the pages of his rejected manuscript, his wife fixed her eyes on him somewhat critically. He looked disheveled and untidy as well as dejected, and she could not help noticing it. But she was ready to do the wifely part and encourage him to fresh efforts.

"If only you would pull up your socks a bit," she said, "you might easily make a hit."—Youth's Companion.

BAD BLUNDER.

Admiring Stranger—What a stunning rider! Er—do you think she would feel hurt if I should toss her a kiss?

"No, but you might feel hurt, sonny," replied the big stranger at his elbow. "That's my wife."

A Sure Remedy.

A young man who experienced much trouble in managing a head of hair which manifested an unpleasant inclination to stand on end, wrote to a weekly paper for a plan by which his troubles would be at least lessened.

He was given the following recipe: "One part molasses, three parts beeswax, four parts india rubber, four parts glue, 12 raw eggs; boil on a slow fire for two hours and 15 minutes, and while cooling stir in enough cod liver oil to make the mixture slab and good. Apply hot, and while gradually cooling pass a lawn mower back and forth over the head."

He didn't take it.

The Useful Reason.

Rev. Sydney Goodman—his Men's church at Atlantic City, with its smoking congregations and its moving pictures, has already brought out many imitators—is noted for the brilliancy and originality of his sermons.

"Even in a begging sermon," said a member of the Men's church, "Mr. Goodman can amuse. He began a recent begging sermon in this manner:

"'A deacon said to the minister's wife:

"'Why is your husband always asking for money, money, money?'

"The minister's wife sighed:

"'I suppose it is because you never give him any,' said she."

Nothing to Be Thankful For.

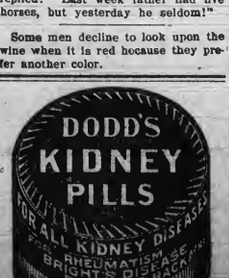
Elizabeth's mother did not teach her little daughter much that she should have learned about religion; nor did the father.

The other day a guest said to the little girl: "Elizabeth, does your father say grace at the table?"

"What grace?" returned the girl innocently.

"Why, thanks for what you have to eat."

"Oh," replied Elizabeth, now enlightened. "We don't have to thank any one for what we have—we always pay cash."



The Grammar Class.

The head mistress of a certain provincial school was one day examining a few of her select pupils in grammar.

"Stand up, Juan, and make me a sentence containing the word 'seldom,'" she said, pointing to a small urchin.

Juan paused as if in thought; then, with a flush of triumph on his face, replied: "Last week father had five horses, but yesterday he seldom!"

A DELIGHTFUL OUTING.

The Ladies' Aid Society of Walton Methodist church enjoyed a delightful outing and picnic Saturday at the elegant country home of Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Hopkins, in the edge of Kenton county, near Walton. The day was a most enjoyable one to all and was made the more so by the kind hospitality of Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins. A fine basket dinner was spread under the beautiful shade trees, and the happy, joyous faces of the merry crowd were sufficient to make all enjoy the occasion, and no one contributed more largely to the success of the occasion than the popular pastor, Rev. J. B. Harris, who, in every way, endeavored to make the day one long to be happily remembered.

K. OF P. LODGE ELECTS OFFICERS.

Walton Lodge of Knights of Pythias elected and installed officers for the ensuing term as follows: A. K. Johnson, chancellor commander; J. M. Stamler, vice-chancellor; S. L. Edwards, prelate; W. O. Rouse, master of work; Dr. B. K. Menelee, keeper of records and seals; A. M. Rouse, master of exchequer; Elmer Breeden, master at arms; W. C. Moxley, inside guard; T. F. Curley, outside guard; Edwin Johnson and Ernest McElroy, chief musicians. The installation was impressively conducted by deputy Carl Neumeister. The lodge is in a fine condition. The Knights are especially invited to attend the meeting Thursday night July 16th, when chancellor commander Kirtley Johnson will deliver an address, "How to make the outside world see more of Pythianism than in an empty name." Bro. Johnson is a very impressive speaker, and his address will be interesting and entertaining.

A SERIOUS AUTO. ACCIDENT.

The pleasures of the meeting of Walton Masonic lodge on the night of the 7th inst. were marred by an accident in which several of the brethren were painfully injured, and Bro. John Hanauer sustained a broken leg. The Covington brethren came out in three automobiles, and were late in arriving, and speeded the machines at a high rate, and when near Walton they met Sleet West in a buggy, and slowed up the automobiles until they got by the buggy, when the speed was turned on again at a high rate, and one of the machines on the side of the road was plunged into a telephone pole, telescoping the seats and wrecking the machine, and throwing the occupants about in a confused mass. Bro. Hanauer's leg was broken in two places near the thigh. Dr. B. K. Menefee was summoned to his office, to which the injured man was taken. Having received the necessary attention, Bro. Hanauer was taken to his home in Covington in one of the automobiles, reaching there about midnight. Those who could not return that way remained in Walton until next morning and went home by the train. Bro. Hanauer is reported to be recovering rapidly from the effects of his accident.

AN ENTHUSIASTIC LODGE MEETING.

Walton Lodge No. 719, F. and A. M., had a large and enthusiastic meeting Tuesday evening, July 7th, when the sublime degree of a Master Mason was conferred on C. Scott Chambers and A. Kirtley Johnson, the work being of a superior order and very enjoyable to all. The degree on Bro. Chambers was conferred with Bros. Joseph Huey as Worshipful Master, and "Pat" Norman as Senior Warden, O. W. Gaines as Senior Deacon, and James A. Huey in charge of the floor work. The degree was conferred on Bro. A. Kirtley Johnson by a team from Col. Clay Lodge, of Covington, with Bros. C. M. Cobb as Worshipful Master, Ed Creasey, Senior Warden, John McCracken, Senior Deacon, and Wm. Gould in charge of the floor work. It was a late hour when the exercises were completed, and then the brethren were invited to a nice lunch at the opera house, prepared by Mrs. John Watson and Miss Graham Roberts. Cigars were passed at the conclusion of the lunch, and Bro. James W. Rogers made a well-timed talk in which he praised the excellent work, and thanked the visitors for the honor of their presence and their assistance in the exercises, and "good night" was said at the midnight hour. The visitors present were as follows: From Covington—James C. Metcalf, Wm. L. Gould, Ed Creasey, Edward Burkes, Benj. Frazier, David Allen, John McCracken, C. M. Cobb, John Hill, James Fisher. Bullittsville—O. W. Gaines. Union—Dr. Senior, John Williams, "Pat" Norman, James A. Huey and son James Huey, J. T. Bristow. Verona—C. K. Whitson, James Waller.

Notice of Primary Election!

Resolutions adopted by the Sixth District Congressional Committee at a meeting held at Walton, Ky., June 26th, 1908:

Be it resolved that for the purpose of nominating a Democratic Candidate for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, to be voted for at the November election, 1908, a primary election to be held at the various voting precincts throughout the District on between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time.

It is the purpose of this committee to secure the full, fair and free expression of the will of the people in selecting their nominee, and it is therefore ordered that this primary election be held under the rules and regulations fixed by the Statute governing primary elections, and it is further ordered that to prevent even the possibility of fraud, bribery or corruption in said primary, certain additional safeguards are adopted and incorporated in this order and call for a primary.

The additional safeguard herein provided for are as follows:

1st. Before any Democrat can become a candidate to be voted for in this primary in addition to paying his assessed share of expenses for conducting same, he shall subscribe to an oath to the effect that he has not and will not either personally or by his direction or by his friends with his knowledge and consent either directly or indirectly give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing his election. The vote of said candidate thus offending shall be thrown out and not counted and he shall not be declared the nominee. No candidate will be permitted to hire any person or persons to work for him or hire conveyances of any kind to carry voters to the polls, or to pay for meals, necessaries or luxuries of any kind or to pay a voter for loss of time.

2nd. No voter who has violated any of the provisions of Article 1 shall be permitted to vote in this primary when the officers conducting this primary shall be satisfied by affidavit or personal knowledge that he has done so; and in any event where his vote is challenged he shall not be permitted to vote until he has subscribed to an oath to the effect that he has not violated any of the provisions of Article 1, and said oath shall be preserved by the officers of the primary and returned by them to the County Committee for its preservation and use before the grand jury if necessary. No person shall be allowed to vote unless he pledges himself to support the nominee of this primary.

3rd. Before the candidate, before this primary who by the returns is shown to have received the highest number of votes shall be declared the nominee, he shall file with this Committee an itemized statement of his expenses during the primary and this statement shall be verified by oath.

In this primary all known Democrats of lawful age shall be permitted to vote who have not violated the provisions of Art. 1 above.

In cities and towns where registration is required the provisions of the Statutes governing same are adopted and shall apply.

It is the sense of this Committee that it will cost $5000.00 to conduct this primary and the Candidates announcing will be required to deposit with the Chairman of this Committee their proportionate share of same; if but two candidates, each shall pay one-half; if three, one-third, etc., if but one candidate has been announced by the 7th day of August, 1908, and paid his assessment, the Chairman of this Committee shall call off this primary and call this Committee to meet at Walton, Ky., on the 14th day of August, 1908, for the purpose of declaring said announced candidate the nominee for Congress in this District and certifying his nomination as the law directs, and his assessment less such sum as this Committee has actually expended in making preparation for this primary shall be returned to him.

Each candidate may submit a list of four names for election officers for each precinct in the district. These lists shall be referred to the County Committee in each county and the officers of election shall be chosen from said list and apportioned as nearly as possible among the candidates.

Each candidate shall be entitled to a challenger at the polls and an inspection at the count.

If the candidates or any one of them fail to submit a list, then the County Committee shall appoint the officers of the election for the various precincts in the county, selecting men of standing and character.

When the polls are closed the votes shall be counted by the officers of the election in the presence of the inspectors and the ballots, stub books, spoiled, mutulated and questioned ballots and all affidavits taken by said officers of election shall be certified to the County Committee within the time and manner fixed by law regulating the same.

The County Committee in each county shall meet in the county seat on the third day after the election and canvass the result of said election in their county and shall certify same together with all evidence that may be before them of any violation of any of the provisions of this call by any candidate, to this Committee and this Committee shall meet at Walton, Ky., on the 29th day of August, 1908, to canvass the returns from this district.

The candidate receiving the highest number of votes in said primary shall be declared the nominee, and his nomination certified as the law directs, unless such candidate is shown by his oath or other evidence to have violated the provisions of this call, in which event he shall be denied a certificate and this Committee shall thereupon declare no election was held.

Each County Committee shall appoint a committee of not less than five trustworthy Democrats for each precinct in said county whose special duty it shall be to report any violation of this call. The names of said sub-Committee shall not be made known until after the election.

The following shall be the form of the oath above provided for:

OATH FOR CANDIDATE UPON ANNOUNCEMENT:

I, ..., desire to become a candidate for Congress in this District before the primary, and as an evidence of my good faith and desire to co-operate with the Congressional Committee, I hereby bind myself to abide by the rules and regulations adopted by said Committee to govern said primary, and especially do I agree that I have not and will not either personally or through my friends directly or indirectly, give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing my election, nor will I permit the same to be done for me by any one nor will I reimburse anyone for any money so expended in my behalf if I should afterwards learn that it had been done.

OATH FOR CANDIDATE BEFORE RECEIVING CERTIFICATE.

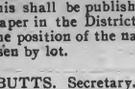
I, ..., solemnly swear that I have not violated any of the provisions of the call governing this primary and especially that I have not directly or indirectly used money, liquors, cigars or property of any kind for the purpose of influencing or promoting my election, nor have I knowingly, permitted same to be done nor will I reimburse anyone so offending if it shall hereafter develope that such has been the case.

OATH FOR VOTER:

I....., swear that I am a legal voter in.....precinct in.....county, and that I am affiliated with the Democratic party, that I have not used, money, property, liquors, cigars or other things of value either directly or indirectly for the purpose of promoting the interest of any candidates before said primary.

Each of these oaths shall be taken before someone authorized to administer an oath in this Commonwealth.

For purpose of carrying out the provisions of this call, and looking after the detail work of conducting this primary, Chairman A. B. Rouse is appointed a special committee of one, and he may call to his aid such members of this Committee as he desires.



This shall be published in every Democratic and Independent Newspaper in the District.

The position of the names of the candidates on the ballots shall be chosen by lot.

Farmers are through threshing wheat in this neighborhood. It made a very poor yield, the average being about 8 bushels per acre.

Died, at the home of his son, E. L. Stephens, July 9th, F. M. Stephens aged 83 years, 6 months and 26 days. Frances Marion Stephens was born near Burlington, January 11th, 1825. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Hawkins, daughter of the late J. R. Hawkins, of Frankfort, Ky., April 6th, 1847. To them 11 children were born, and all are living in this neighborhood except one, F. M., Jr., who lives in Kansas City, Kansas. The first break in this large family occurred May 10th, 1904, when the fond wife passed away. Thereafter the bereaved husband continued the weary journey alone, grieving in solitude, yet patiently bearing the blow that struck from his life its sweetness and its light. He died without an enemy, was upright in all of his dealings, had no bad habits and was considered a model man by all who knew him. We extend to the family the sympathy of the entire community in their great loss.

Alta Catharine Kelly Wilson, daughter of Z. T. and Anna (Duncan) Kelly, was born August 17th, 1878, was married to H. J. Wilson February 10th, 1898. Unto this union one child was born which died in infancy. She died July 8th, 1908, aged 29 years, 10 months and 9 days. She leaves a husband, father and mother, three brothers, one sister and many other sorrowing relatives and friends. Alta was a good woman and though she made a brave fight for recovery, she was ready. Her life is her best eulogy. She will live in our hearts as a precious memory, and the example of her blameless life will ever be an incentive to do our work more faithfully. By her pure, beautiful life she won the friendship of all with whom she was associated, and made no enemies in the faithful discharge of her many duties. We tender our deep and heartfelt sympathy to the husband, father, mother, brothers and sisters, and to her many friends in their irreparable loss. We know that she has been called to a higher sphere of usefulness, where free from the trials, pains and sorrows of earth, her labors shall be full and rich and satisfying. The funeral service was held at the residence, Friday afternoon, at 2 o clock, and were conducted by Rev. T. L. Utz. The burial was at the Wilson grave yard near the home of her childhood.

And though the tears are falling
Your heart with grief nigh riven,
Think of your angel loved one
Waiting for you in heaven.

We desire to thank the neighbors and friends for the kindness shown us during the illness and death of our daughter and sister; also to Rev. Lee Utz for his consoling remarks and R. A. Steel for his kindness. May a merciful God deal kindly with all who were so kind.

Father, Mother, Brothers, Sister.

GRANT.

Probably the cleanest game of ball played here this season, and one that was a credit to the players of both clubs, was the game Saturday between the local club and the Patriot, Ind., team. The members of the Patriot club were perfect gentlemen and can play ball, some, as was evidenced by the game going four innings without an error on either side. The Patriot boys were highly pleased with the treatment accorded them here, and there was no kicking at any stage of the game although the score was a close one and there were several close plays. One of the features of the game was the fielding of Weimer for Patriot. He is a nephew of the famous Cincinnati pitcher of that name. The visitors had a minister in their club. Result:

Base hits—E. Sandford 1, C. Sandford 1, Stuckey 3, Presser 2; Patriot—Vannetter 2, Lostutter 1, H. Bailey 2, Mounts 2; Batteries—Sandford and McCarty, Mounts and Leostutter; struck out by Sandford 10, Mounts 6; base on balls off Sandford 2, Mounts 1; time of game one hour. Umpires Moody and Rogers. Belleview second team plays an Aurora team here next Saturday. Chas. Maurer and Will Rogers have charge of this team.

Wingate, of Petersburg, was in Burlington, Monday, being the chairman of the county board of election commissioners, which was in session that day for the appointment of officers to hold the election of school trustees under the new school law. Mr. Wingate will leave in a day or two for French Lick Springs, Indiana, for his annual outing at that popular resort.

Mrs. P. E. Cason met with a very serious accident shortly after dark, Friday, resulting in a broken collar bone. The evening being very warm she and her husband, Judge Cason, set out in the yard until time to retire. No lamp had been lighted in the house, and when she went into the dining room she had forgotten the door to the cellar opening into that apartment, had not been closed, and she went throught the opening at the highest point, making the fall a distance of about five feet to the stone steps below. She screamed and the Judge whom she left in the yard was soon at her side as were also Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Gaines, whose residence is near, and who were sitting out in their yard at the time of the accident and heard the noise. Medical assistance was summoned at once, and an examination revealed a broken collar bone and numerous other bruises about her head and person. Mrs. Cason has suffered considerably, but is improving slowly.

Expensive Funerals.

Expensive funerals are very profitable to the undertakers, who adroitly encourage this form of extravagance, as they are aware that some persons think the respect shown a deceased relative is gauged by the cost of the display. To those who desire and can afford costly funerals, there can be no reasonable objection to the gratification of their wishes; but there is very little wisdom manifested by the poor people who for months after the burial of a relative have to stint themselves to pay for their extravagance. It is not uncommon to see from 20 to 40 carriages following a hearse to the cemetery, at a cost of at least five dollars each. The bereaved family thus respected by the attendance of their friends on such melancholy occasions, often return to a home in which poverty has long been known, and perhaps aggravated by the protracted illness of the person just laid in the grave. It may be that the chief bread-winner of the flock has been removed. If this is the case, a costly funeral is very likely to make them more keenly feel the loss of their relative. How much better it would be, exclaims the New York Weekly, to save the money that is usually squandered for unnecessary carriages, and devote the sum to the relief of the needy family. Some poor but proud persons might object to such assistance, but there are others who would gladly accept it.

Negro Abilities.

Fresh proof that the ancient Ethiopians were a people of high culture and marked intellectual advancement is furnished by Prof. David Randall MacIver of the University of Pennsylvania, who has returned from Nubia with a collection of antiquities of artistic worth and much variety and aggregating five tons in weight. The articles he has gathered, Prof. MacIver says, represent early negro civilization that lasted for at least seven centuries. Included among the antiquities are various works of art and also some Ethiopic inscriptions. Prof. MacIver adds: "Our excavations have shown that the source of civilization of the period which our work in lower Nubia covered was Ethiopian. All the negro works of art were discovered in an extensive cemetery lying about ten feet under ground between Wady Halfa and Assouan in lower Nubia." That was the seat of an important empire away back in the dim and distant years, and the race in control was black. This should tend to confirm belief that the negro is capable of better things than some of his opponents are ready to concede.

A hint of what may be expected when the success of aerial navigation is completely demonstrated is furnished by the steps already taken by the weather bureau at Washington, remarks the Troy (N. Y.) Times. That part of the government is on the lookout for all the help that can be procured in foretelling what the elements have in store, and is enlisting the flying machines as fast as possible. The bureau has prepared printed forms for the use of persons experimenting in aeronautics, and these forms are distributed with a view to getting data otherwise unobtainable. The co-operation of aero clubs throughout the country is earnestly desired. The bureau suggests the sort of observations taken in the upper air which, in connection with those made on the ground, may aid materially in furthering meterological knowledge. Thus it would appear that navigation of the air may add largely to scientific lore and may have important results aside from the matter of the new method of transportation.

It may be plain to the receiver of the Third avenue street car line in New York that every passenger who does not pay his fare steals, but some patrons of the line, while admitting the appearance of evil, will insist on calling by another name their failure to come forward with their nickels. Very little conscience money is turned into the treasuries of the street car companies, while the schemes to get rides for nothing are numerous and ingenious and work about one time out of 100. It is a sin to steal a pin and also a street car ride, but now and then a man has a special arrangement with his conscience by which he can sleep nights just as soundly, or even more so, if he has put one over on the company during the day.

When the orchestra struck during the performance of an opera in Berlin the audience said it would be all right to continue with a piano. Perhaps the people were afraid the management would start up a phonograph if the piano did not satisfy them.

It is planned to give a church in Chicago over to the young people who lack the right kind of environment at home for courting. So long as the facilities don't include a lighting system it ought to be a success.

LURED TO A DESOLATE SPOT

WOMAN SLAIN WITH BULLET AND BODY THROWN UNDER THE WHEELS OF A TRAIN.

DAUGHTER WOUNDED IDENTIFIES BODY

After Countrymen Find Her at Doorstep—Cousin and Fiance of the Young Beauty is Sought By the Police.

New York, July 20.—In a dark, lonely spot, close to the little station of Rochelle park, 16 miles northwest of Jersey City, on the New York, Susquehanna & Western railroad, a train crew at 2 o'clock Sunday morning found the mangled body of a richly dressed middle-aged woman.

Apparently she had been killed by an earlier train. The only strange feature of the incident appearing then was that in the woman's clenched fist was $200 in German bank notes.

Seven hours later, when the body had been taken to the morgue at Ridgewood, a handsome girl of 20, led by a resident of the countryside, at whose doorstep she had fainted, staggered into the place, bleeding from three bullet wounds.

She identified the woman as her mother and told the authorities of a desperate attack, in which the elder woman had been murdered and she herself wounded, and started them to work on one of the strangest mysteries of recent years.

A closer examination of the body showed a bullet wound through the mother's heart, which hitherto had been concealed by its mangled condition.

The daughter added the information that the $200 in German money was only the remainder of $2,000—the balance in American notes—which the mother had been carrying.

The victim, it was learned then, was Mrs. Ottillie Eberhard, a wealthy resident of Vienna, who had been in this country only since last Thursday. The girl was Miss Ottillie Eberhard, who had accompanied her mother from Austria. They had been taken to the desolate spot where the mother's body was found by August Eberhard, the girl's 25-year-old cousin, whom she had crossed the seas to wed.

Just what took place there the girl did not know.

At the height of a thunder and lightning storm, when they were walking along the tracks, the mother sank, crying: "I've been struck by lightning." Then there was pistol firing—vaguely the girl pictured three men as the assailants—and she felt the hot sting of four grazing bullets.

She fled at the command of her cousin, August. She did not see him fire any of the shots, though she knew he had a loaded revolver in his pocket. He ran away from her toward the place whence the spurts of flame had appeared. That was the last seen of August.

Search was immediately made for the missing cousin when the police learned of his connection with the case. But he was not found either in New Jersey or in this city, where for years he had lived.

AUSTRALIANS

Prepare an Elaborate Program For Entertainment of Our Fleet.

Melbourne, Australia, July 20.—The American fleet will probably follow the regular mail route from Honolulu to Sydney, but Pago Pago, the harbor and coaling station in the Samoan group, will not be touched by the battleships. Only some of the fleet auxiliaries will stop there.

Adm. Sperry's command is due at Auckland August 10, and is to spend four days with the New Zealanders. It is due at Sydney August 20, where it will stay a week. On August 29 it will reach here for another week's sojourn, and on September 5 it will leave for Manila, stopping at Albany only long enough for coal.

On July 10 Vice Adm. Sir Richard Poore, commander in chief of the Australian station, will leave Sydney for Suva, capital of the Fiji islands, which lie close to the route of the Americans, and thence he will intercept them with two British warships and officially greet them prior to their reaching New Zealand. An elaborate program for their entertainment in the Antipodes is provided for.

A Suicide Record.

Pittsburg, July 20.—Between July 8 and 18, in this city, 15 persons committed suicide and six attempted to do so. Some of the six may die. The causes: Four because of grief, four illness, two had suffered financial reverses and the others were despondent.

Squelched By Rains.

Portland, Me., July 20.—Drenching showers have put a stop to the great fires which have wrought great damage in the Maine woods during the last two weeks. The loss, it is believed, will reach $500,000.

Union Labor's Protest.

Washington, July 20.—Jas. McIvor, secretary of the Building Trades council, has cabled a protest to England because non-union men are permitted to work on the repairs of the local British embassy.

TUG OF WAR TEAM VIOLATES RULES OF THE CONTEST.

Men Wear Steel Shod Shoes—Americans Retire After Making Protest That Is Not Allowed.

London.—A serious controversy has arisen between the American athletes and the British Olympic association. The Americans' chief cause of complaint is the arbitrary manner in which their protest against "the flagrantly unfair method of conducting the tug-of-war," was dismissed. Every unprejudiced spectator present at Friday's meeting was convinced that the Americans were justified in refusing to go on with that event.

The United Kingdom had three teams entered in the tug-of-war, made up of the police of the city of London, Liverpool and the metropolitan forces. The drawings brought the American and Liverpool teams into the arena first. The American team complied with the rule which says:

"No competitor shall wear prepared boots or shoes or boots or shoes with any projecting nails, tips, sprigs, points, hollows or projections of any kind."

The Liverpool police appeared in enormous shoes which had steel rims around the heels. The Americans pulled, under protest and making little effort, and then filed a formal protest, which was ignored.

In the semi-final in the fancy diving competition, George W. Gaidzik of the Chicago Athletic association won his heat by a handsome margin. He scored 85.6, while Zurner of Germany was second with 82.8.

As was expected, C. M. Daniels of the New York Athletic club won his heat in the first round of the 100-meter swim, his time, 1:05 4-5, being several seconds below that of the winner of another heat. The heat winners in this contest included H. J. Hepner of the Illinois Athletic club and L. G. Rich, Brookline Swimming club.

London.—Thursday was America's day in the Olympic sports at the stadium, both big events which reached the finals, throwing the discus, free style, and putting the shot, being carried off by Martin J. Sheridan of the Irish-American Athletic club, and Ralph Rose of the Olympic club, San Francisco, respectively.

London. — The gold medals went to Great Britain, France and Sweden, as the winners of the finals of Wednesday's events at the Olympic games. Great Britain was a double winner and France and Sweden each secured one first.

WOMAN FASTS FIFTY-SIX DAYS.

Remarkable Efforts of Mrs. John F. Dietz of Wisconsin.

Winter, Wis.—Mrs. John Dietz, wife of the famous defender of Cameron dam, has just finished a fast of 56 days. Not only does she know no ill effects of this world's record-breaking effort, but she probably owes her life to it. She underwent the trying ordeal to cure appendicitis and according to her husband she has succeeded.

"Mrs. Dietz has just concluded a 56-days' fast and now is free of all pain," declared Mr. Dietz. "She lost 50 or 60 pounds in weight but she will soon regain that."

She was unable to get a doctor because of the legal war that has been waged against Dietz for five years. Dietz has not been arrested during all that time, although all the court machinery of the state was invoked.

Shriners Select Louisville.

St. Paul, Minn.—The Imperial Council of the Ancient Arabic Order Nobles of the Mystic Shrine Wednesday elected officers headed by E. L. Alderman, Marion, Ia., as imperial potentate, and decided to hold the conclave of 1909 in Louisville, Ky. Four cities were contestants for the gathering of next year, Seattle, Louisville, Atlantic City and Detroit. The matter was referred to a committee which reported in favor of Louisville.

Double Shooting; Two Dying.

Dayton, O.—Clyde Zar, aged 20, and Walter Cowitz, aged 14, were killed by lightning on a farm near Vandalia Friday.

ALABAMA TROOPS CALLED OUT.

Strike Situation Is Serious—Fatal Conflict at Adamsville.

Birmingham, Ala.—While the reports concerning the strike situation are greatly exaggerated, there was sufficient cause for alarm to induce Gov. Comer to order the militia of the district to sleep on their arms and remain in readiness for an emergency call.

Friday Gov. Comer, together with Sheriff Higdon and a number of deputies, made an automobile tour of the strike district. So impressed was the governor with the seriousness of the strike situation that on his return to Birmingham three local companies of militia were ordered under arms. A mixed company numbering 100 men went to Adamsville, where Friday afternoon an engagement between strike sympathizers and deputies took place, in which one deputy was killed.

Montgomery, Ala.—Troop D of the First squadron, Alabama cavalry, which has been in camp here participating in the practice shoot, received orders Friday afternoon to report in Birmingham to Sheriff Higdon. The troops left Montgomery on an early train Saturday.

BANKER ZOTTI ARRESTED.

New Yorker Arraigned on Charge of Grand Larceny.

New York. — Frank Zotti, head of the banking institution of Frank Zotti & Co., on Greenwich street, which went into the hands of a receiver on Wednesday, was taken into custody Friday and arraigned before Magistrate Corrigan on a charge of grand larceny. The banker was remanded to the Tombs under $25,000 bail for examination.

The specific charge against Zotti, according to the affidavit of the police, is that he failed to forward to Bulgaria $225 given him by a customer of the bank. Detective McConville in the affidavit adds to the specific charge, that "he had been given to understand that the defendant had withheld other monies amounting to more than $100,000." The banker declared he was the victim of a plot to ruin him. He said that three Pittsburg men had started the trouble which resulted in a receiver being appointed for his bank recently.

HISTORIC BUILDING BURNS.

Structure in Which First Volunteer for Civil War Enlisted.

St. Paul, Minn.—By the burning of a one-story frame building at Market and Third streets, the structure in which the first volunteer for the union armies enlisted in 1861 was destroyed. The building was erected in 1857.

When President Lincoln issued his call for volunteers Gov. Alexander Ramsey of Minnesota, who was then in Washington, was accorded the privilege of offering the first regiment. Immediately a recruiting office was opened in the building that was burned, and within a few minutes Charles Eichler enlisted.

MERCHANT CALLED FIREBUG.

Owner of Fond du Lac Store Arrested on Arson Charge.

Fond du Lac, Wis.—On complaint of State Fire Marshal T. M. Purtell, Isaac Rosenblatt, manager and part owner of the Fair store, one of the largest dry goods stores in Fond du Lac, was arrested on the charge of arson Friday afternoon. It is alleged that he set fire to his store on the morning of July 13. When Rosenblatt was arraigned in court he waived examination and the case was adjourned until July 24. Bail was fixed at $5,000.

E. W. CHAFIN NAMED

CHICAGO LAWYER HEADS THE NATIONAL "DRY" TICKET.

CHOSEN ON THIRD BALLOT

Prof. A. S. Watkins of Ohio Is Put Up for Vice-President at Columbus Convention—Platform Is Short.

Columbus, O.—For president, Eugene W. Chafin, Chicago; for vice-president, Prof. Aaron S. Watkins, Ada, O.

The above ticket was nominated Thursday by the Prohibitionist national convention, both men being chosen unanimously. The full indorsement of the convention was not, however, given to Mr. Chafin until after three ballots had been taken.

On the first two ballots Mr. Chafin did not show a great amount of strength, receiving but 195 out of 1,083 votes on the first and 376 out of 1,087 on the second ballot. His nomination was practically assured, however, when the roll call began for the third ballot. His own state, which had voted largely for Daniel R. Sheen of Peoria, and the New York delegation, followed by those of Indiana and Wisconsin, came over to Mr. Chafin, and on the third ballot he received a total of 636 votes. The strongest competitor of Mr. Chafin was Rev. William B. Palmore of St. Louis, who received 274 votes on the first ballot and 418 on the second, and a comparatively small vote after it was evident that the nomination of Mr. Chafin could not be prevented.

Palmore Refuses Second Place.

The convention up to this time had run smoothly and without the slightest friction. It was decided to make Mr. Palmore the vice-presidential nominee and he was named by acclamation. He declined to accept the office, however, and persisted in his attitude despite the strong urgings of his friends. The convention, finding itself confronted with the necessity of naming another vice-presidential candidate, and many of the delegates, being anxious to catch the early night trains for their homes, became involved in a deep parliamentary tangle. The rules were several times suspended and the suspensions immediately revoked. Finally it was decided that Prof. Watkins should be named by acclamation.

There was no opposition to him at the moment and Chairman Scanlon was on the verge of declaring Prof. Watkins the nominee when delegates in various parts of the hall broke in with a flood of motions, counter motions, amendments and suspensions of the rules.

Watkins on First Ballot.

An extended debate followed which finally resulted in the restoration of the rules and a ballot for the vice-presidency. Three men were named, Prof. Watkins, T. B. Demaree of Kentucky and Charles S. Holler of Indiana. The ballot resulted in the nomination of Prof. Watkins by an overwhelming majority, and he was immediately thereafter, upon motion of the Kentucky delegates, made the unanimous choice of the convention.

Both the presidential and vice-presidential nominees are candidates for governor in their respective states on the Prohibition tickets.

Eugene W. Chafin, who leads the Prohibition party this year, is an attorney residing in Chicago. He is a native of Waukesha county, Wis., and for some years practiced law there.

The forenoon session of the convention was devoted to the discussion and adoption of a platform which is probably the shortest on record, containing not more than 350 words.

RETURNS TO HIS PRISON CELL.

Escaped Prisoner Gives Himself Up at Indiana Penitentiary.

Michigan City, Ind.—Thomas McCarthy, aged 40 years, for whose capture the warden of Indiana state prison here has had a reward standing for three years, returned to prison Tuesday evening voluntarily and gave himself up, with the prospect of serving 12 more years, unless the governor or parole board should release him sooner.

In 1905 McCarthy escaped after having been paroled. He went to the Pacific coast and after leading a precarious existence he joined the Salvation Army at Yakima, Wash. His conscience troubled him and after he had earned enough money he started back to prison, paying all his own expenses.

St. Paul's Population 225,300.

St. Paul, Minn.—St. Paul on June 1, 1908, had a population of 225,300, according to the new city directory for this year, which will soon be ready for distribution. This estimate is based on an increase of 12,566 names in the 1908 directory over that of 1905, when the state census showed St. Paul to have a population of 197,025.

The lawyer was drawing up Enpeck's will.

"I hereby bequeath all my property to my wife," dictated Enpeck. "Got that down?"

"Yes," answered the attorney.

"On condition," continued Enpeck "that she marries within a year."

"But why that condition?" asked the man of law.

"Because," answered the meek and lowly testator, "I want somebody to be sorry that I died. See?"

AN HONEST DOCTOR ADVISED PE-RU-NA.

MR. SYLVESTER E. SMITH, Room 218, Granite Block, St. Louis, Mo., writes: "Peruna is the best friend a sick man can have.

"A few months ago I came here in a wretched condition. Exposure and dampness had ruined my once robust health. I had catarrhal affections of the bronchial tubes, and for a time there was a doubt as to my recovery.

"My good honest old doctor advised me to take Peruna, which I did and in a short time my health began to improve very rapidly, the bronchial trouble gradually disappeared, and in three months my health was fully restored.

"Accept a grateful man's thanks for his restoration to perfect health."

AMOS

BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. S. Edson.)

Scripture Authority—The Book of Amos.

The Prophet Amos.—A herdsman prophet to Israel. His native town was Tekoa, a small place in Judea, six miles from Bethlehem. As the meaning of his name ("a burden") indicates, Amos was of humble rank, and probably never had any training in the schools of the prophets, but was called from the field to his prophetic ministry. His period of service, according to the opening verse of his message, was during the "days of Uzziah, king of Judah, and in the days of Jereboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel," about 792 B. C. He was a contemporary of Hosea, although his ministry ended with the reign of Uzziah, while that of Hosea continued through subsequent reigns. There are three main divisions to the book covering, 1, discourses concerning the nations, 1-2:3. 2; discourses concerning Judah, 2:4-5, 3, discourses concerning Israel, 2:6-9:15. From chapter seven to ninth of book, instead of a series of discourses we have rather a series of visions, each of which may have been expanded into a discourse. In the first two, God is represented as forgiving Israel at the prophet's intercession. In the following visions forgiveness is seen to be past. In connection with the closing vision, however, we have an outline of the promises for the future.

SERMONETTE.

"Thus saith the Lord."—One cannot read the prophecy of Amos without being deeply impressed by the iteration and reiteration of the phrase: "Thus saith the Lord."

It is at once the end of all argument and the limit of human questioning. The words thunder forth with a challenge to mankind to either bow before the message or be crushed and destroyed by the final judgment of the omnipotent will.

There is no temporizing on the part of the prophet. There is no effort on his part to modify his message.

Dogmatism in theology may not be justified. But it is no dogmatism to stand fearlessly and unflinchingly upon the plain declarations of God's word.

Why should we strive for an emasculated message, when the vigor and fire of a "Thus saith the Lord," runs all through God's word, from Genesis to Revelation?

Two qualifications are essential in every preacher whom God sends forth into his service: First, he must be a good listener, and in the second place he must be a faithful repeater.

How can a man deliver God's message save as his heart has been still in the Divine presence and has listened long and intently and yearningly for the voice of God?

How dare a man after he has heard God speak, get up and pare God's word down to fit the conceptions, or, rather, the misconceptions, of man?

It takes the prayerful heart and the humble spirit to key the heart into unison with the Divine nature and fit it to receive accurately the messages flashed forth from the throne of heaven.

It takes the courage of a Daniel, the faith of an Elijah, and the unswerving loyalty of a preacher like Paul to speak forth the message of God.

God's message has never yet been the popular message, for it condemns the sins which the world loves and points the humiliation of the cross as the only way of salvation.

The world is not ready to give up its sin; it is not ready to bow before the cross and acknowledge Christ as Saviour.

In its last analysis, sin is rejection of Christ, for Jesus declared: "This is the condemnation, that light is come into the world, and men love darkness rather than light, because their deeds were evil."

THE STORY.

WHAT boy is there who has not been thrilled and fascinated with the story of David the shepherd boy? With what intense interest mother or father has been followed as the story of the young shepherd and his sheep has been told, of his devotion to duty, of his courageous facing of the lion and the bear when they came to attack the lambs of the flock, and how after a fierce struggle he had killed both these savage beasts; of his call from the field one day to meet the prophet Samuel and be told that he was some day to be made king of Israel; of his battle with the giant Goliath; of his leaving the flock on the hillsides of Bethlehem, to go to the palace of King Saul; of the sweet songs he had learned to play in the woodlands and meadows where the birds and the musical ripples of the brooks down the hillsides taught him his first lessons in the melody of song, and of how his music upon his harp soothed the troubled spirit of the king.

No matter how old the world grows it will never grow weary of this story of David. And if we of to-day find delight in the story, what must have been the charm and inspiration of the story to the boys of the land and nation in which David lived?

The time of our story was some 300 years after the time of David, but the same Judean hillsides and valleys through which David had led his sheep were there to furnish the setting of our story. Not more than six miles from the town of Bethlehem where David was born and brought up was another little village known as Tekoa, and it was there that the hero of our story was born. His parents were poor, as were most of the people living in Tekoa, and for most part followed the calling of shepherds and vine dressers.

Almost the first recollection which Amos had was being set on the hillside near his home to watch the sheep and call his mother if they should show a disposition to stray, for he was yet too small to run after them and bring them back. But he could use his bright little eyes and his shrill little voice, and with remarkable faithfulness in a child so small he performed the task assigned him.

As an incentive and encouragement his mother, who was a devout soul and quite familiar with the history of her nation, would tell him the stories of the long lines of Jewish heroes, from Moses down, and as he would sit through the long hours of the day he would go over these stories, repeating them to himself and thinking of a thousand and one questions he would ask his mother in the cool of the evening as they sat and talked before he went to his rude little couch for the night.

Thus it was that as he grew into sturdy boyhood and was sent out with the flock all by himself he carried with him a mind stored full of thoughts which led his heart towards the God of his nation and his people. He had heard and observed enough of current history to know that the days in which he lived were apostate days, and that the nation was suffering from the sins of idolatry and moral and spiritual corruption. And young as he was when the first consciousness of the wickedness of the nation was pressed in upon his heart he remembered lifting his eyes towards heaven and asking God to help him not to forget him and to help him to be a good boy, so that some day he could tell others about the God who would bless them if they would only serve him.

These were the days when the religious teachers were scarce, and with but few exceptions corruption had crept into the priesthood, so that it was little wonder that the spiritual life of the people was at low tide. How often Amos yearned to talk with some one of the priests.

Once it had been his privilege to go to Jerusalem to one of the feasts, and he had there spoken with one of the priests of the temple asking him why he did not cry out against the evils which were apparent on every hand. But with a muttered word which sounded much like an oath, the priest reminded him that they were able to attend to the affairs of the temple worship without his help, and noting his plain shepherd garb he contemptuously told him that he better get back to his flocks.

The impressions received at that time remained with him throughout his life, and he awoke then to a consciousness that if he was to learn of God it must be while in the solitudes of the Bethlehem hills, rather than in the presence of the supposed ministers of God. Thus it was that Amos came more and more to shut himself away from human fellowship and to find in the seclusion of the pasture lands dying all around Tekoa, whither he led his flocks, that opportunity for communion with God which expands the soul and makes it receptive to the Divine will.

And thus shut away from active contact with the life of the nation, he was able to study the events of the nation and to get the true perspective. It was remarkable how well-posted Amos was able to keep concerning current events, but he had a retentive memory and a quick grasp of details, and upon his occasional visits to town, and less occasional visits to Jerusalem, he was able to follow with accuracy the trend of affairs, and to note conditions which would have escaped a mind less keenly alive to the spiritual needs of the nation.

"But some one ought to tell both the nation of Israel as well as of Judah, that the sins of the nations will destroy them," he exclaimed to himself one day.

"And why not you?" came a voice, clear and distinct to his soul.

"Me!" exclaimed Amos. "Why, I am only a shepherd."

"But it shall not be thy message, but mine," came the voice.

"As the Lord speaks thus will I speak," assented Amos. And true to his vow, his messages rang clear and strong with the cry: Thus saith the Lord."

Rabbit Attacks a Horse.

In defense of her offspring a mother rabbit attacked a colt belonging to Charles Miller of Jamaica, a suburb of New York, and sinking her teeth in the horse's foreleg continued the struggle until she died.

While romping at pasture the colt, which is six months old, ran a leg into a rabbit hole. The colt was unable to free itself and was found partly buried in a snowdrift by Miller.

It did not take Miller long to pull the colt's leg from the hole, and as he did so he found the body of the mother rabbit encircling the leg above the hoof. The rabbit's life was extinct, but its teeth were still sunk deeply into the leg. Miller drew from the hole four rabbits a few days old. He took them and the body of their mother to his home.—Philadelphia Evening Telegraph.

SHAKEDOWN NEAR

REPUBLICANS PREPARE TO BLEED THE CORPORATIONS.

Probability That the Railroads Will Be Largely Called Upon for Funds to Keep Friends of Monopoly in Power.

What Republican is to do the "fat frying" this year? There is no doubt that Mr. Corteiyou would be best able to undertake it. He knows all about the weak spots in the armor of the trusts and protected monopolies and, therefore, just about how much fat can be squeezed out of each corporation without making them feel they are being imposed upon. Then the Wall street financiers, who have heretofore been charging up their donations to some corporation, must also be dealt with tenderly now they have to draw against their own bank accounts, and who knows better than Mr. Corteiyou just how much to assess them?

But there are peculiar difficulties this year in making collections, because the interests that give do not repay for what has been done for them, but expect promises of protection and advantages in the future. The tariff-protected trusts will require assurances that their particular schedule shall not be revised, and with a platform promising all kinds of reform, although none is intended, it will be difficult to make a skittish trust magnate believe he and his interests will be left alone, when the Republican spellbinders and candidates are assuring the gullible Republican voters that real reform is intended. Rockefeller and Morgan will evidently have to do the bulk of the giving for the financial interests, for they hope to have the currency law made perpetual.

But there is a rich kettle of fat in the railroads that will yield enough to grease all the Republican machinery, and allow the politicians to live in luxury. The railroads are poor now, in consequence of the Republican panic and the continued business depression, but if they don't yield to the fat fryer, they may expect that reform legislation, heretofore threatened, might become a reality. Then, too, nearly every railroad has been a law breaker, and some are still at it, and the evidence is on file in the secret archives of the interstate commerce commission. Yes! Harriman will have to come down again. The Republican fat fryer will have the evidence of rebating and restraint of trade and high rates at his fingers' ends before he starts on his mission of collecting the tainted funds to save the country and incidentally, of course, to save the railroads and the Republican party.

The poor old Democracy will have to trudge along with about enough to pay printing and postage, and rely upon dollar subscriptions and volunteer help. Unless all signs fail, the Republicans will be swimming in fat, and all the new, so-called reform laws and regulations have been arranged to help the frying process.

Still, it will need an adroit fat fryer. If the Democratic candidates would demand publicity as to where all funds come from and for what expended, to be published every day from the opening of the campaign, they could put the party of great moral ideas, but of corrupt purposes and actions, into a hole that would keep them busy to escape from until election was over.

People Still to Be Milked.

The remarkable "reasonable-profit" tariff plank of the Chicago platform ought to satisfy every patriot that thinks it right to compel the people to help him pay the cost of carrying on his business. It goes stand pat one better! But what will those manufacturers think of it who are being held up to the last penny for their raw material? What will those think of it who are paying higher prices for goods made in this country than are paid for these same goods by consumers in other lands thousands of miles away? An entirely Rooseveltian convention, Mr. Roosevelt himself, and Mr. Roosevelt's candidate are all agreed that we ought, not only to start our industries fairly in the race for supremacy, not only to remove every obstacle and handicap, but also to adjust tariff taxes so as to give them "a reasonable profit" after everything heretofore deemed necessary had been done. In thinking about this we fear that many people will have to revise their views as to who are the reactionaries.

CAN NOT EVADE THE BLAME.

Republicans in Vain Seek to Lay Panic to Democrats.

The Republicans in 1896 had no doubt as to who should be blamed for the panic of 1892-3, which was brought on by the reckless silver purchase act of 1890. That law was proposed by a Republican administration and passed in the house of representatives with a unanimous Republican vote in its favor, and a unanimous Democratic vote against it. Therefore, the Republican party proceeded to resolve that the Democratic party was responsible, for: "It has precipitated panic, blighted industry and trade with prolonged depression, closed factories, reduced work and wages, halted enterprises and crippled American production."

The Democrats can now retort in kind by adopting that Republican plank as exactly fitting present conditions for "every consideration of public safety and individual interest demands that the government shall be rescued from the hands of those who have shown themselves incapable of conducting it." The Republican party having had full control of the government for the past 12 years, there can be no just accusation that the devilish Democrats have "precipitated panics, blighted industry and trade, with prolonged depression," etc.

But the brazen effrontery of our Republican friends was quite equal to the occasion, for to get out of the panic mess they could not charge to the Democrats, the platform just adopted at Chicago declared that:

"Nothing so clearly demonstrates the sound basis upon which our commercial, industrial and agricultural interests are founded, and the necessity of promoting their continued welfare through the operation of Republican policies, as the recent safe passage of the American people through a financial disturbance, which if appearing in the midst of Democratic rule or the menace of it, might have equaled the familiar Democratic panics of the past."

But have the American people had a safe passage through "the financial disturbance?" That great barometer of trade, the iron industry, is still sleeping to all intents and purposes; bank clearances show a universal decline; many thousands of unemployed workmen still hunting a job; railroad earnings still failing and many dividends unpaid or reduced; many industrial plants closed or running on short time, does not clearly show "their continued welfare through the operation of Republican policies," but rather the reverse. But, of course, the Republican party still holds to the familiar theory that Providence is backing the party of "great moral ideas," but of most astounding political corruption and viciousness.

A Scared Stand Patter.

The Protective Tariff league must be singing loud hallelujahs in its sanctum sanctorum that the sacred tariff will be revised higher if the Republicans are successful at the election. The league holds fast to the fundamental absurdity that a high tariff protects not only the manufacturer, but the laboring man as well. In fact, Mr. Charles A. Moore, president of the league, who was in Chicago at the convention to see that no harm came to the sacred Dingley tariff from its friends, the Republicans, said:

"If the alleged tariff reformers or revisionists prevail at the convention the incoming administration will be pledged to a revision downward, meaning greater importations of foreign goods and the displacement of American products, less production, less employment, and reduction of wages, and placing our people on the same basis as foreigners."

But the danger from all these dire ful predictions of disaster have been warded off, and instead of "revision downward," we are promised "revision upward," through the addition to the present law of a higher scale of duties, to be known as the maximum tariff.

So Mr. Moore and his league of tariff-pampered trusts can now be calm as far as the Republican party is concerned and turn their attention to the Yerked Democrats, who are for real tariff reform that will curb trust high prices.

Taft may be the best man the Republicans could have nominated, but the Democrats have done better. This is a mighty good year for Democrats to vote the national ticket straight against the Rooseveltian heresies which are Taft's only political stock in trade.

FLEET REACHES HONOLULU

BATTLESHIPS ENTER HARBOR OF THE ISLAND CAPITAL.

Welcomed by Thousands—Entire Run from San Francisco Was Pleasant and Uneventful.

Honolulu.—The Atlantic battleship fleet arrived here at noon Thursday. By universal consent the day was made a complete holiday, all business being suspended and thousands of people from the different islands of the territory assembled on Diamond Head and other heights and points of vantage southeast of this city to view the approach of the armada.

Early in the morning the crowds began scrambling up the bluffs to catch the first sight of smoke above the southeastern horizon, and the first realization of the long-cherished hope came at 7:20 in the morning, when a message came from the leper settlement on the island of Molokai that the fleet had been sighted there, steaming in line of squadron formation at a speed of ten knots. An overcast sky prevented the watchers near here from seeing far out to sea, but the patience of the lookouts was rewarded by the appearance of the Connecticut off the entrance to the channel at noon.

During the entire run to Honolulu the fleet experienced pleasant weather and smooth seas. For two hours or more daily, except on Sunday, the fleet had tactical evolutions and at the same time routine drills were carried on. No noteworthy incidents occurred on the entire voyage, and as a matter of fact, this, the first leg of a long cruise, was rather more uneventful than usual. The fleet never had to stop or slow down nor did any of the ships have to fall out of formation through accidents to steering gear.

The health of the crews has been very good and there have been no deaths or serious accidents since leaving San Francisco. The Nebraska, which was left behind when the fleet sailed from the Golden Gate on account of scarlet fever cases among her crew, overtook the fleet at 6:30 a. m. Wednesday.

THOMAS D. JORDAN DEAD.

Indicted Ex-Comptroller of the Equitable Expires Suddenly.

New York.—Thomas D. Jordan, formerly comptroller of the Equitable Life Assurance society, dropped dead of heart disease late Tuesday afternoon in the Wall street station of the subway. Mr. Jordan had parted from his son, Frank B. Jordan, only a moment before, and a messenger overtook the young man on the street and informed him of his father's death. It was in the course of the Armstrong committee investigation that Mr. Jordan's name came prominently before the public. It was brought out then that Comptroller Jordan had secured loans aggregating $685,000 for himself and James W. Alexander former president of the Equitable, from the Mercantile Trust company, and that these loans had been covered up on the books of the company. This $685,000 came to be known as the "yellow dog" fund.

As a result of the disclosures the grand jury found 18 indictments for forgery and one for perjury against Jordan. Only recently Mr. Jordan appeared before Justice Goff to plead not guilty to the indictments. His trial was set for the fall.

TRAIN HURLED INTO DITCH.

White Mountain Express Wrecked, One Woman Being Killed.

Greenwich, Conn. — One woman was killed, two were perhaps mortally injured, and nearly a dozen persons were seriously hurt when the White Mountain Express, of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, was wrecked 100 feet west of the station here at 9:20 o'clock Thursday morning. Spreading rails caused the ten-car train to leave the tracks while it was crossing a bridge over Steamboat road, and five of the passenger coaches, including four Pullmans, were hurled into a ditch, where they collapsed like paper boxes. That so few of the 180 passengers were killed or injured seems little short of miraculous, as the train was going 50 miles an hour.

Plan to Help Illinois Blind.

BASE BALL.

Manager John D. Cloud of Hebron, came over last Saturday afternoon with his team and for six innings had everything his own way on the local diamond, making the Burlington team look like 30 cents or less. The visitors got busy with their stick in the first inning and kept up their bombardment throughout the game, but Brady, that foxy old box artist, kept their bingles so well distributed that in the final result no harm came of them. Phelps Walton, who has always been a hard proposition for Burlington willow wielders, kept them guessing again last Saturday afternoon for five innings. McGuire being the only Burlington batt r who had registered a safe hit in that time, and which he followed up with a score, while Hebron in the same time was seven hits and five runs to the good and had grown sure of the victory, but in the sixth inning their troubles began. Snyder, the first Burlington man up in the last half of the sixth struck out, but Ernst dropped the ball and then made a bad heave to first—Snyder safe. Slayback followed with a hit, and Brady and Smith each sacrificed, and Clore made the third out. The mixup resulted in two runs. In the seventh inning each side went out one, two, three, which was repeated by Hebron in the eighth. Tolin, the first Burlington man up in the eighth, tore off a nice single to center; Ernst got Snyder's foul fly; Slayback made a hit past third, and Brady landed one safe in left field, putting Tolin across home plate; Clore sent a beaut to center field and Slayback and Brady scored, White fanned. The local team was now one to the good. Mike Clore, the first Hebron man up in the ninth made a hit, and the visitors manifested a disposition to get troublesome again; Souther's fly was captured at first; Garnett forced Clore at second, Houston safe at first on error at third, but Graves hit to pitcher and was out at first, and the agony was over, and what for seven innings appeared to be a cinched victory for the visitors had been converted into a clean-up for the home team. Following is the score by innings:

Hits	0	0	4	0	0	1	0	4	*	—6
Hebron	1	0	1	0	1	2	0	0	0	—5
Hits	2	0	1	2	1	0	0	0	1	—9

Base hits—By Burlington, Slayback 2, Brady 1, Clore 1, McGuire 1, Tolin 1—6. Hebron—Clore 2, Garnett 1, Houston 3, Graves 1, Ernst 1. —8. Two base hit—Allie Walton. Struck out—By Brady 6; by Walton 8. Errors—Burlington 4, Hebron 1, Earned runs—Burlington 4, Hebron 2. Umps.—Souther and Smith. The Burlington team will go to Hebron next Saturday.

The Remedy That Does

"Dr. King's New Discovery is the remedy that does the healing others promise but fail to perform," says Mrs. E. R. Pierson, of Auburn Centre Pa." It is curing me of throat and lung trouble of long standing, that other treatments relieved only temporarily. New Discovery is doing me so much good that I feel confident its continued use for a reasonable length of time will restore me to perfect health." This renowned cough and cold remedy and throat and lung healer is sold at Bentler's drug store, Erlanger. 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Elbert Roberts, who started with Callie Baldon's threshing machine on Monday of last week, was overcome by heat on Wednesday at Ed. Borders' yard, and was brought home in a precarious condition, and it will take him several days to recover entirely.

The refreshment privileges for the next fair at Florence will be rented on the grounds at Florence at 2 p. m. on Saturday, August 1st.

Local News.

Pastures in this part of the county are about done up by the drought.

J. E. Smith harvested about 100 tons of timothy hay which he barned.

The 1908 premium list for the fair at Florence has been issued and is being distributed.

James Jones, who lives down on Gunpowder, has been a very sick man for several days.

Several drummers called on the local merchants, last week, seeking their orders for fall supplies.

Indications now are that corn will go above the $1 a bushel mark in some parts of this county this fall.

In another column appears the advertisement for bids for painting the interior of the county infirmary.

Judge Tomlin, of Walton, came over one day last week, to look after some business up at the court house.

Everybody who has hogs will be wanting to sell them owing to the very slim prospects for a crop of corn.

Under the new order of things the telephone service between Walton and Burlington is as good as could be desired.

H. G. Blanton, the popular Erlanger undertaker, has added a fine, white funeral car to his undertaking equipment.

It is said that the cisterns at Belleview all failed at the same time last week, something very unusual in that village.

County Clerk B. W. Adams was considerably indisposed several days last week.

Several personal items which the sender desired published last week did not reach this office until the paper was printed.

Enoch White, of Lawrenceburg ferry neighborhood, is recovering from a light stroke of paralysis he suffered several days ago.

Archie Acra, of Rising Sun, was among those from a distance in Burlington, last Thursday. Father Time is placing his marks on Archie.

Bills were printed at this office, last week, to advertise the Odd-Fellows' picnic at Harvest Home grounds on the afternoon of Saturday, August 1st

Some of the local chicken thieves have been spotted, and about the next thing somebody will be hauled up for prosecution for that offense.

Water got scarce on Albert Conner's premises, last week, and he put a man to dynamiting to replenish the supply. The work was successful in a measure.

A. B. Renaker and N. E. Riddell went to Walton and back last Friday morning, reaching home by noon. That was "going some," as the boys say.

A postmortem revealed the fact that Mr. Joel K. Corbin died of cancer of the stomach. He nor his family had never suspected that he was thus afflicted.

Attorney Sidney Gaines spent last Thursday interviewing citizens along the Burlington and Petersburg pike, collecting their contributions for the Plattsburg bridge.

Next Saturday is the day to sow turnips wet or dry. Turnips will be mighty handy vegetables to have access to this winter, owing to the short crop of potatoes.

Jug fishers have been having some fine sport fishing in the Ohio river the past few weeks. Fish weighing as much as 75 pounds have been caught at some points along the river.

Hear that it is proposed to build concrete abutments for the bridge at Plattsburg. The main span of the bridge will be ninety feet, ten feet longer than either of the bridges that heretofore spanned the creek near Plattsburg.

Dr. Shaler Berry, son of ex Congressman Albert Berry has set at rest the rumor that he would be a candidate for Congress. Mr. Berry said he never had any idea of running for the office, as he could not see how he could attend to Congress and his practice at the same time.

There are some fields of corn in this county that look well, but a very large percent of the acreage, especially the late planting, has had very little rain since it was put in the ground, consequently its growth has been slow, and the stalk is "stunted" until it will make a very poor yield.

Peter Hager and Ernest Stephens, of East Bend, were callers at this office, one day last week. They reported crops in that part of the county as suffering for rain and the prospects very discouraging. Wheat had yielded from 10 to 12 bushels, except the crop of Mrs. Annie Hager, which made over 25 bushels to the acre.

It is conceded by all that rural mail route No 1 out of Burlington, has had considerable influence on behalf of the proposed bridge across Woolper creek at Plattsburg. If the bridge is built, and there is no doubt but what it will be, the public generally will have been benefitted materially by that rural route, and all can point to the rural mail route as very much of a benefactor.

A class of 16 teachers registered for examination, last Friday morning, the largest number that has been examined at one time for several years. There were 9 female and 7 male applicants, as follows: Mrs. F. E. Kirtley, Carrollton; Robert McNeely, Jas. Stephens, Willie Smith, Nancy Ryle, Elijah Stephens, Hathaway; Robt. E Grant, Idlewild; Mrs. D. M. Bondurant, Eulie Stephens, Susie Helms, Petersburg; Katherine Berkum, Indiana; Garnett Huey, Burlington; H. L Harrison, Bullittsville; May D. Sandford, Kenton county; Wilelia Hance, Walton; Bettie Dolph, Rabbit Hash. Stewart Berkshire, of Petersburg, and Earl Robinson, of Richwood, took the examination for the scholarship in the State College at Lexington.

A telephone message from W. W. Grimsley, who resides at the mouth of Big Bone creek, last Thursday morning, stated that from the proceedings over on Big Bone Island in the Ohio river, he believed the next session of the Kentucky court of appeals will be held there. Judge Lasing was in full charge of the work that was under way when the message was sent up.

W. W. Mills, of Covington, representing the Oregonian Bridge Company, of Lebanon, Ohio, was in Burlington, one day last week. He was accompanied by his son, and they visited the proposed site of the new bridge at Plattsburg, on Woolper creek, and took several measurements with a view to bidding for the contract for putting in the structure. Mr. Mills has been in the bridge building business for many years.

The Houston (Texas) Post thus describes a Texas bride:

"The Texas bride has a mission in life. She has a husband to direct and control. She keeps him in neat trim all the time and feeds him until he is so happy that it would require a sheriff and four constables to drag him away from home at night. She is no hammock swinger, languidly dreaming the days away. She is no poodle-fondler. She never suffragettorates. She is a jasmine-scented, rosy cheeked red-headed pinioniess angel, and more. She is a sock darner and a pants patcher. She is a buttercake flipper and a waffle-turner. She is a layer-cake contractor. And a chicken-fryer and a hash constructor for the gods. The roses clamber over the lattices of her home. The honey-suckles cling to her front yard fence. The mockingbirds sing all night long in the tree tops while she sleeps."

The Attorney General of the United States has rendered a decision of vital importance to river land owners. He decides that land along navigable streams below low and high water mark (to danger line from 20 to 60 feet according to grade of bank) belongs to the government and not to the repairing owners. Coal men who have been paying immense sums annually for the privilege of tying their boats and barges to the banks of streams, and in many cases never use any land except that between low water mark and danger line will, under this decision, stop these payments and demand restitution for what they have already paid. Under this decision, boats of every kind will have free use of the river front. It is therefore illegal to collect wharfage where there is no wharf, as the property belongs to the Government and not to the State, County, City or individual.—Carrollton News.

Under date of July 13th, the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General, writes Congressman Joseph L. Rhinock, in regard to proposed rural route No. 3 from Burlington, as follows:

Hon. Joseph L. Rhinock, Covington, Kentucky.

Sir:—Replying to your recent inquiry as to status of proposed rural route No. 3 from Burlington, Kentucky, you are advised that requirements for establishment of this service have been met, but as the appropriation available for new service is limited, it is necessary to restrict the number of routes installed each month so as to allow the establishment of a larger number of routes throughout the year. Accordingly, action looking to installation of service on the proposed route from Burlington has been deferred until it is reached in its turn, and while it cannot be definitely stated at the present time when the route will be established, orders will be issued at the earliest practicable date.

Very Respectfully,
P. D. DeGraw.
Fourth Assistant Postmaster General."

THE WELL CEREMONY

MANCHU GROOM AND HIS BRIDE

A GRECIAN PEASANT BRIDE

NORDFJORD BRIDE AND GROOM

A KOREAN BRIDEGROOM

THERE may be special months or seasons favored by brides to be in different climes for the ringing of wedding bells but any old time is a good time. From China to America and from Iceland to Patagonia the whole earth is perpetually smiling with brides. Think of the trousseaus that are being prepared, from the red silk veil of the orient to the white tulle of the occident; of the girls that are being given, of the odd, strange ceremonies that are being performed, of the rites and feastings! Indeed it is a wonderful time; and a time when all should be happy. And, in general, we may suppose that all brides are happy, but—

In the land of the joss the little Chinese maid who is about to be married doesn't seem to look forward to the venture with anything like the enthusiasm of her American sister. It is a time of wailing and lamenting with her. She is looked upon from her very birth—it, indeed, she is not smothered as a babe—as something despicable. A girl baby finds no favor in the eyes of the gods of the Flowery kingdom; all honor goes to the male child over there. Hence when the girl baby grows up there is small wonder that she is disposed of lightly to some man who, instead of looking upon her as a wife, views her as a servant, and a profitable one, too, inasmuch as he doesn't have to pay her anything for her services. And this is even shown in the marriage service; for at the conclusion of the rites she is received by the austere groom as he sits upon a high stool, indicating his superiority, and is made to prostrate herself at his feet! The women of the east, it must be observed, are far more abject and dependent that the women of the west.

In Japan, the dear little island of cherry blooms, the woman is treated with respect; inasmuch as this modern country is rapidly taking on the customs and manners of Europe, their treatment of the fair sex is considerably "fairer," and this is shown in many ways. The young girl is given the opportunity of refusing her suitor if she doesn't want him, a privilege that is frequently denied the Chinese bride. In Nippon the wooer comes and places a sprig of shrubbery on the house of the maid he would like to marry; if this shrub is neglected, it shows him that he is rejected. If it is taken into the house and placed upon the wall, it means the young lady "has no objections." Then she, to show him that she returns his affectionate regard, blackens her teeth. After they are married she plucks out her eyebrows, and then the husband and wife are allowed to talk together; for, you must know, the young men are not often allowed to talk to the girls over in the mikado's realm.

In Korea, close at hand, men of all ages take up the benedict's life. It frequently happens that young boys, scarce 12 years old, are married to girls of the same age. The price of a wife is a bullock, and, needless to say, a good bullock is regarded over there as a thing of much more value than a mere woman. The photograph shows a bridegroom on his way to the wedding; it is taken at Seoul, in the southern part of the island, where the sun is hot, and a servant is seen protecting the speeding groom from the rays of the sun with a large umbrella. A curious [illegible] in connection with Korean weddings is that concerning the bridegroom's hair. Before his marriage it is left long and braided down his back; but afterward it is coiled on top of his head, much as the American woman coils up her hair, and is surrounded by a wire apparatus not unlike a bird cage or a mouse trap and left that way as a sign; doubtless to all scheming widows that he is already "took" and is not to be tampered with.

In Norway the crown is on the woman's head, as can be seen by a reference to the photograph. It is a magnificent affair, but it is rather cumbersome and unwieldy and, while [illegible] it is considered quite a luxury, the many [illegible] that the bride has to wear it night and day for a week would make it a decidedly unpopular custom in this country. The methods of the suitor are unique, as is the case in almost every foreign country. If a man and a maid happen to eat off of the same piece of bread it is taken for granted that they are sure to fall in love, then, after the marriage, the bride runs away the next day and hides. She is sought out by the whole village and, when found, is brought back, set up in her new home, and made to dispense liquor to the villagers. A week is generally given over to the bridal festivities.

The "match-maker" is always a prominent institution among foreign brides and bridegrooms; he (or she, as the case may be) is a sort of bride-merchant, a middleman, who sorts out a likely husband for an anxious wife, and vice versa. Generally it is the other way; generally the wife has to be sought, and sought with care. The matter of the dowry has to be arranged, and the match-maker has to be paid by the wife's parents. In the United States we frequently hear, among the Ghetto tribes, of the "shaetchen," which is the same thing as the old world "match-maker." Greece, Palestine, Persia, India, practically all the eastern countries have this sort of traffic; and these wily wife-merchants make a very good living, indeed.

In Greece the "match-makers" practically arrange all the marriage among the lower classes. There, too, are orange blossoms used, one of the few countries besides our own in which this flower has some especial significance. There also the best man has a rather delicate job which probably would not be popular in this country. The groom presents his bride with a pair of shoes and it is part of the best man's duties, during the ceremony, to get down and put these shoes upon her dainty feet. In the photograph here given the Grecian woman has arrayed herself in a splendid costume and is standing in mock simplicity (the usual Grecian custom) while a part of the ceremony is being performed. It is this traditional affectation of hers which has given rise to the Greek saying, "as affected as a young bride."

In India there is a curious way of "getting rid of the woman," if it may be said in that brutal phrase. There a young bachelor is apt to wait a long time before purchasing a bride, because the cost is too great. Widows, however, are cheap! What does the wily father of the rapidly aging daughter do, in order to make her readily marriageable? He marries her to a bouquet of flowers and then throws the flowers in a well! This makes her technically a widow and as such, very cheap, on the market. After that, the process of wedlock is easy. A wife is a decidedly handy thing to have around the premises. She can work equally as well as the man and, in time of debt, she is accepted by the creditor as so much cash.

We are apt to gather from the Rubayat of Omar Khayyam and from other Persian poets that the Persian is a very poetical man, yet here is the burden of one of his wedding songs:

"Ah, Laila, Laila, you have made roast meat of my heart!"

But to tell all the customs of all the tribes of the universe in regard to weddings, betrothals, and married life would fill a big book; indeed, it has been written about extensively enough to fill two volumes.

The thing that is of most interest to American women, naturally enough, is the American proposal and the American marriage. How many of our love songs have been written around this enduring topic? How many of the very greatest love poems have breathed this sentiment? Under a moonlit sky, by the ocean side, on the western plains, on the European-bound steamers, in the silence of the parlor with the gas turned low (as in our picture)—every conceivable place has marked the setting of a love affair and a proposal. "Faint heart ne'er won fair lady;" and the brave-hearted have not balked to propose even in a motor car going at the rate of 50 miles an hour! Such is America. Then, after the proposal, comes the solemnization of the new life before the two young people—the wedding ceremony itself. More and more in the United States is this function becoming a "home affair," as is shown in the picture. Then follows the period of congratulation—the wedding supper or breakfast, with smiling friends and happy faces around the festive board. And last of all, the sweet, silent moment when the bride and groom are clasped in each other's arms, the moment of highest consummation. Alone at last!

The Dauphine maiden is past mistress in the art of encouraging or discouraging a lover's attentions besides saying in so many words that he is welcome or had better be gone. When a swain's visits are pleasing to her, she makes his soup thick with grated cheese; if the contrary, he will find a handful of oats in his pocket. Should he persist she will turn the blackened ends of the firebrands towards him, a sign there is no mistaking. The peasant girl admits a favored lover to a parlement which corresponds to a consent to "keep company," as we say in this country. The swain is now allowed to dance with and call upon her, and to make himself useful in a thousand little ways. Should no better suitor come forward, the two will probably become man and wife.

But with the better classes in France there is little opportunity for courtship. In Paris young unmarried girls go out occasionally into society; in the provinces this is not allowed. When a young man resolves on matrimony, and hears of a young lady whose family and circumstances are in every way suitable, he makes informal inquiries, through a priest or some lady of her circle, about the girl's domestic qualities—and amount of dowry. This last particular is of the highest importance. It is rare for a dowerless girl to marry in France, though the portions which wives, even of the comfortable middle-class, bring their husbands only consist of a sum of three or four figures. On receiving satisfactory information the suitor who wishes to do the thing in a decorous manner commits the affair to some elderly woman, perhaps his mother or aunt. This good lady hastens to acquaint the girl's family with the offer, and in her turn informs them of the suitor's unimpeachable character and good circumstances.

Marriage is more difficult of accomplishment in England from the fact that there is so much red-tape attached to it. Most of our customs have come from England, though born of earlier times. The "best man" dates back to the days of marriage by capture, as he helped the bridegroom to catch his bride. Nor is this the only relic of the most ancient of human institutions; for what was the honey-moon? It was not merely a pleasure trip as now, but a rapid and hurried flight of bride and bridegroom, rendered necessary by the anger of an outraged father.

Presents to the bridesmaids form another interesting link with primeval days. They were originally a form of toll which the couple were glad to pay in order to be alone. By the act of uniformity only one method of marriage can be used, but the state allows certain indulgences to the wealthy, who may be married privately by a special license; or by a license, given upon the oath of the man that he knows no legal obstruction to his union; or by the publication of banns used among the poorer classes. As in other countries, so in England, there is much joyous feasting on the occasion of a wedding. This is clearly shown by the very word "bridal," which is simply another form of "bride-ale," or "bride-feast." Originally it meant only the carousal, or drinking in honor of the bride.

WHERE MR. PLUNKETT SCORED.

Female Readers Will Say He Took Advantage of Trusting Wife.

There had been a long-standing difference of opinion in the Plunkett family concerning the dining table. Mrs. Plunkett maintained that its legs were too short and ought to be lengthened at least half an inch.

"It doesn't fit our chairs, Jared, and you know it," she continued. "When we sit down to this table we're too high above it. You could have pieces of wood glued on the ends of the legs. That would be easier than to saw off the ends of all the chair legs."

"I don't agree with your proposition at all, Cordelia," said Mr. Plunkett. "I think the table is just right. But I'm willing to compromise the matter. You have been wanting a hardwood floor in this dining room for a long time, haven't you?"

"Yes."

"Well, we can have that new kind of hardwood flooring that is laid on top of the old floor. That will raise the entire surface three-eighths of an inch or more, and that will raise the table, of course, just so much. How will that do?"

This seemed to be a fair proposition, and without a moment's hesitation Mrs. Plunkett accepted it as a satisfactory compromise.—Youth's Companion.

LIMITATIONS OF A WRITER.

O. Henry's Small Choice as to Costumes of His Heroines.

O. Henry got married not long ago, and shortly after the wedding a literary friend gave a reception in honor of the story writer and his wife. Late in the evening a woman stepped up to Mrs. Porter (that is O. Henry's real name) and said:

"May I ask a question that I have been dying to ask your husband for a long time?"

"Why, certainly," said Mrs. Porter.

"Well," continued the woman, "why does your husband always have the ladies in his stories wear crepe de chine?"

"I give it up," was the reply. "Let's ask Mr. Porter." Whereupon he was called over. On being asked he volunteered the following explanation:

"To tell the truth," he said, "I only know two kinds of goods, calico and crepe de chine. When the girls can't wear calico I make them wear crepe de chine. That's all there is to it."—Saturday Evening Post.

Woman Bags Big Game.

Mrs. Amar D. Saunderson of County Cavan, Ireland, has reached New York on a visit, bringing with her three sets of elephant tusks, a lion pelt and two lion cubs. Mrs. Saunderson recounted with pride how she slew her elephant and lion while she and her husband were roughing it in East Africa. "Two of the elephants were killed by my husband; but I shot the third one—and the lion, too," said Mrs. Saunderson. "We stood the charge of the elephants before they came close enough for us to fire. Yes, it was rather—very exciting," she added with a laugh. "I sent three shots into my elephant before he dropped. Two of them went through his armor-plate skin, but the third struck his heart. I shot my lion at a sort of reunion of a lion family in the jungle. After I had killed the father, when the mother and two of the cubs escaped, we captured the other two cubs, and we will present them to the Bronx Zoo."

New Serum for Pneumonia.

A noted Belgian bacteriologist, Dr. Leon Bertrand, claims that he has discovered a much more powerful serum as a cure for pneumonia than that now in use. It is a bactericidal, not an antitoxic agent.

Most Fitting.

"What official title would properly apply to the head of a criminal society?"

"The leader couldn't properly be the head; he would have to be a vice president."

ENJOINED "EQUITY BUSTERS."

Injunction Issued Against Buying or Selling of Pooled Tobacco.

Lexington, Ky.—On petition of the Fayette county board of control of the burley tobacco branch of the Society of Equity, Judge Parker, in the circuit court, granted a temporary injunction against B. O. Dincler and R. K. Combs. The order prevents Dincler from selling and Combs from buying a half interest in a 14-acre crop of tobacco, which the plaintiffs allege has been pooled. The case will be heard July 25.

The claim is made that buyers of tobacco, commonly designated as "Equity busters," are operating among dissatisfied tenants in Fayette and adjoining counties and that they have been able to purchase within the last 20 days nearly 1,000,000 pounds of the weed. The plan is to offer Equity prices, and in some instances, it is said, more on condition that the owner of the tobacco can secure a release from the pool. On one pretext and another, it is alleged, such releases have been secured and turned over to the "busters."

BREAKING DOWN

Is Beech Hargis, Slayer of His Father, and Special Court Is Asked.

Jackson, Ky.—Beech Hargis, awaiting trial for the murder of his father, Judge James Hargis, is breaking down in health in jail, and a special term of court may be called soon to prevent serious consequences.

His relatives have appealed to the circuit judge and commonwealth's attorney to give him either a quick trial or allow bail, but so far no action has been taken.

The regular term of Breathitt circuit court begins the first Monday in August, but it will require several weeks to dispose of the docket.

Child's Illness Secures Father's Release

Lexington, Ky.—Wm. Spanier, formerly cashier for the Lexington Brewing Co., and indicted on a charge of embezzling funds of that concern, left a free man to return to his wife and eight children, one of whom is dangerously ill in Chicago. Commonwealth's Attorney Allen, after looking into the records of the case, announced to Judge Parker that he did not believe a conviction possible, and recommended that the case be dismissed.

Warned of Death.

Paducah, Ky.—H. B. Bennett, who was whipped with thorn switches by night riders at Dycusburg a few months ago, has been warned that he will be killed within two weeks. The information was conveyed to him by a young woman. Bennett stated that he had been sleeping in the woods ever since he was whipped. He says it would be dangerous for him to remain at home at night. The night riders have ruined him financially.

Uncle Sam Is Generous.

Louisville, Ky.—Louisville is the first city where the government has given permission for use of grounds contiguous to public buildings for park purposes. The large lot next to the custom house, in the center of the city, will be made into a park by the Outdoor Art league and the Commercial club.

Big Increase in School Census.

Frankfort, Ky.—From the preliminary estimate made by Superintendent of Public Instruction J. G. Crabbe of the school census in Kentucky this year a total of 750,000 children is shown, as against 734,000 for last year. The school per capita this year will be $3.45, as against $3.40 last year.

Powers To Address Chautauqua.

Lexington, Ky.—It was announced here that Caleb Powers will deliver his first lecture at Elgin (Ill.) Chautauqua. The subject will be "Right Upon the Scaffold; Wrong Upon the Throne," which was suggested by Maj. W. C. Owens' closing words in a speech in Powers' defense.

Farmers' Institute Closes.

Bardwell, Ky.—The Carlisle County Farmers' Institute, under the direction of the state agricultural department, closed a successful session here. C. M. Hanna, G. P. Rogers, John A. McClure and Prof. Roberts represented the state department. There were also several local speakers.

Woman Sentenced To Prison.

Frankfort, Ky.—Mrs. Sarah Steely, of Williamsburg, was sentenced to the penitentiary for five years for enticing M. B. Snyder to her home on July 4 last, where her son, Granville, 16, stabbed him to death. The boy's case was continued.

Work of Vandals.

Lexington, Ky.—Fifteen sheep, poisoned by paris green spread on the grass by some unknown person, were found dead on the farm of S. L. Vanmeter, former representative of Fayette county.

Oil Company Wins.

Frankfort, Ky.—The Indian Oil Refining Co., of Georgetown, won a victory in the suit filed against it for alleged pollution of Elkhorn creek, the Frankfort Distillery Co. dismissing its $25,000 damage action.

BREEDERS WILL ORGANIZE.

Kentucky Horsemen Take Steps Toward Protection.

Lexington, Ky.—Col. E. W. F. Clay, Bourbon county, member of the racing commission, one of the most extensive thoroughbred horse breeders in the state, issued a call for a mass meeting here of breeders, owners and business men generally of Central Kentucky, who are affected by adverse racing legislation, to take action for mutual protection.

An organization will be affected and means for mutual protection will be discussed.

The recent passage of anti-betting bills in New York and Louisiana has caused the loss of millions of dollars to the horse interests of Central Kentucky, and such action is deemed necessary to save property from practical annihilation.

NEARLY ONE-THIRD

Of the Applications For Renewal of License At Louisville Protested.

Louisville, Ky.—Written protests against granting renewal of licenses to 200 of the 700 applicants to sell liquor will be filed before the license board. The protests will be based upon the fact that the parties objected to have been convicted of some offense or other during the past five years. Also, protests will be filed against men whose places of business are too near churches, or where there are too many saloons in a precinct.

Chief of Police Hagger has filed affidavits in support of remonstrances against sixteen saloons alleged to be disorderly houses.

Fruit Trees Ruined by Fire.

Newport, Ky.—A fire which started in the dry grass in the orchard on the farm of Henry Farney, near Coldspring, east of here, destroyed nearly a hundred fruit trees and caused a loss of several hundred dollars. An employe on the farm accidentally dropped a lighted match in the grass, and because of the drought the grass ignited and the fire rapidly spread over the entire orchard before the flames could be checked.

Prominent Young Woman Dead.

Glasgow, Ky.—Mrs. A. W. Allon, of this place, received a telephone message from Bakerton, Ky., announcing the sudden death of her neice, Mrs. Marsh Dillon, a prominent young matron of that place. Mrs. Dillon is survived by her husband and one son.

Warrants For Lid Tilters.

Frankfort, Ky.—Occasional tilting of the lid has caused another crusade against the violation of the Sunday closing laws in this city. City Prosecutor Davis had warrants served on the Frankfort Hotel Co. and C. W. Bruner for alleged violations.

Store At Beattyville Burns.

Beattyville, Ky.—An early morning fire destroyed the storehouse of Jas. Brandenburg. Loss $3,500; insurance $3,000. Brandenburg had a narrow escape from death, having to jump from the second-story window of the burning building.

Succumbs To Operation.

Lexington, Ky.—Orlando P. Cox, cousin of Lieut. Gov. Cox, died at Maysville following an operation of trepanning of the skull. His skull was crushed when he was caught in a gasoline engine belt and hurled against the machinery.

Settle's Western Trip.

Frankfort, Ky.—Judge W. E. Settle, of the court of appeals, is in the western part of the state looking over the field with a view of soon announcing his candidacy to succeed himself on the bench. Friends of Judge Settle say he will have no opposition.

Mother of Murderer Sentenced.

Williamsburg, Ky.—Sarah Steely, mother of Granville Steely, who killed Martin Snyder July 4, was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary as an accomplice in the crime. The proof showed she told Granville to kill Snyder.

Alleged Murderer Jailed.

Lexington, Ky.—Wm. Keaton, who murdered his son-in-law, Henry Kalor, in Madison county, while Kalor was walking with his wife and children several weeks ago, was captured in the mountains of Estill county.

Hotelkeeper Shot.

Carlisle, Ky.—Ed Lester, of Carlisle, a hotel keeper, was shot by Henry Bell. Bell and C. C. Dunn were attempting to arrest Lester for an alleged violation of the local option laws. Lester will recover.

Met With Bullets.

Lexington, Ky.—George Smith, a negro, slipped into the home of C. S. Wilmot at Sandersville, but came out on the run with two bullet wounds in his body. He was shot by Wilmot.

Wants Seat in House.

Burkesville, Ky.—Allen H. Biggerstaff, of Otis, Monroe county, has announced himself for the democratic nomination to represent the Monroe-Metcalf district in the lower house of the next legislature.

LUNATICS ALLOWED AT LARGE.

They Are a Menace to the Public, But Under No Restraint.

There are many lunatics at large right now who should either be in asylums or under restraint at home receiving the attention of physicians, says the New York Telegram. Many persons have been killed by maniacs, and relatives of the killers knew they were insane and swore to it on the witness stand at the subsequent trials. No insane person is harmless. One frequently hears it said of an eccentric person: "He's crazy, all right, but he's a harmless man." Every lunatic is a menace. It is better for him and for all his relatives that he be locked up. You never can tell what a madman will do, and if he takes human life he cannot be punished for it.

There are few persons who go up and down the face of the earth who are not acquainted with one or more lunatics. I know two crazy men who go about their business the same as other men do. One of them is single and is an egomaniac. He thinks of no one and nothing but himself. It is virtually impossible for him to talk about any subject except his business affairs and his wonderful doings. All of his acquaintances treat him indulgently and laugh at his boasts. He is quick-tempered and quarrelsome and some day he'll do some one a mischief. Then all his friends will swear that he is crazy and that they have known it for a long time and never thought he was dangerous. Insanity is in the man's family. Two of his relatives are in asylums.

The other lunatic with whom I am acquainted believes that every man's hand is against him. If you pass him on the street and fail to greet him with effusiveness you are certain to receive two or three menacing letters. If he invites you to go somewhere with him and you decline with all the politeness imaginable he will threaten to kill you.

Lengthy Lineage.

In "Leaves from the Note-Books of Lady Dorothy Nevill," recently edited by Lady Dorothy's son, Mr. Ralph Nevill, there is an amusing story of an old peer whose considerable family pride was agreeably tempered with humor.

One day he was surprised to be told by his sister that she had conceived a great affection for a well-known although somewhat eccentric man of science, who, although generally esteemed, was of very humble Semitic origin.

Not quite determined as to what course of action he should take, he sent for the prospective bridegroom with the intention of talking matters over. After some conversation, he said:

"And now, sir, I should like to know something about your family."

"I think," replied the other, "that it will be sufficient to say that I am of the descent of the illustrious blood of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob."

"Oh," said the peer, "of course our family has nothing to compare with that. If my sister likes you, you had better take her."—Youth's Companion.

He Grasped the Idea.

"Tommy," said his teacher, "the words 'circumstantial evidence' occur in the lesson. Do you know what circumstantial evidence is?" Tommy replied that he did not.

"Well, I will explain it to you by an illustration. You know we have a rule against eating apples in school. Suppose some morning I should see you in your seat with a book held up in front of your face. I say nothing, but presently I go round to where you are sitting. You are busily studying your lesson, but I find that your face is smeared, while under the edge of your slate I see the core of a freshly eaten apple."

"I should know, just as well as if I had caught you at it, that you have been eating an apple, although, of course, I did not see you do it. That is a case in which circumstantial evidence convicts you. Do you think you know what it is now?"

"Yes, ma'am," said Tommy. "It's eating apples in school."—Youth's Companion.

Cure for Fainting Fit.

There is no more sure cure for an attack of faintness than a hearty sneeze. It immediately stimulates the blood vessels of the brain. In many persons fainting never goes so far as a loss of consciousness or loss of control of the limbs. And in these the sudden weakness is often brought to an end by a sneeze caused by nature herself without any external aid. A grain of two of pepper, snuff or tobacco introduced into the nose or tickling its interior lightly will usually insure a sneeze. These simple procedures or others similar in character may prove invaluable when smelling salts and other elegant aids are absent.

A Social Impression.

"So," remarked the boyhood friend, "you are in the swim."

"Mother and the girls think I am," answered Mr. Cumrox. "But my personal feelings are those of a man who has fallen overboard and ought to be hollering for help."

Something There.

"Mercy!" exclaimed Cholly Kallow, "I've got such a cold in my head."

"Why, so you have," said Pepprey; "I'll have to call Knox down the next time I see him for libeling you. He said you had nothing in it."—Catholic Standard and Times.

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physicians' Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington Sts., Centralia, Wash., says: "For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and the secretions were troublesome; pains were intense. I was fast in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me, and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better, and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

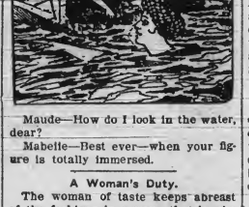
WAS ONLY RED BLOOD.

And Three-Year-Old Had Been Told That It Was Blue.



Three-year-old Allan had a very aristocratic grandma, who prided herself on her own and her husband's blue-blooded ancestry. She told him heroic deeds of them and warned him from ever playing with boys of low degree.

One day Allan came screaming upstairs to his mamma and grandma, holding his hand up covered with blood, where he had cut his little finger. They were both greatly alarmed, as he was a child who rarely cried or complained when hurt. Mamma washed the blood off and, examining the cut, said:

"Why, dear, it's not so very bad. Does it hurt you so much?"

"I'm not cryin' 'cause it hurts," he said, "but 'cause it's only red blood, and grandma said I had blue."—Philadelphia Ledger.

A Woman's Duty.

The woman of taste keeps abreast of the fashions in a way—that is, she drops wornout styles and adopts whatever new ones she can adapt to her use. If she can afford it she patronizes first-class dressmakers and gets her money's worth by wearing her clothes two or three seasons without losing her prestige as a well-dressed woman. There is an advantage in this method, as you can see, and I have been told by women who use it that there is economy as well.

It is no economy to save at the expense of good looks. It is a woman's duty to look her best, a duty she owes to her family. If she can secure it by a small expenditure, so much the better, but to save by accepting shabbiness is not creditable save in dire stress of circumstances. Poverty is an excuse for shabbiness and nothing else is accepted by the world, save in the rare cases of shabby millionaires. —Chicago Journal.

DROPPED COFFEE

Doctor Gains 20 Pounds on Postum.

A physician of Wash., D. C., says of his coffee experience:

"For years I suffered with periodical headaches which grew more frequent until they became almost constant. So severe were they that sometimes I was almost frantic. I was sallow, constipated, irritable, sleepless; my memory was poor, I trembled and my thoughts were often confused.

"My wife, in her wisdom, believed coffee was responsible for these ills and urged me to drop it. I tried many times to do so, but was its slave.

"Finally Wife bought a package of Postum, and persuaded me to try it, but she made it same as ordinary coffee and I was disgusted with the taste. (I make this emphatic because I fear many others have had the same experience.) She was distressed at her failure and we carefully read the directions, made it right, boiled it full 15 minutes after boiling commenced, and with good cream and sugar, I liked it—it invigorated and seemed to nourish me.

"This was about a year ago. Now I have no headaches, am not sallow, sleeplessness and irritability are gone, my brain clear and my head steady. I have gained 20 lbs. and feel I am a new man.

"I do not hesitate to give Postum due credit. Of course dropping coffee was the main thing, but I had dropped it before, using chocolate, cocoa and other things to no purpose.

"Postum not only seemed to act as an invigorant, but as an article of nourishment, giving me the needed phosphates and albumens. This is no imaginary tale. It can be substantiated by my wife and her sister, who both changed to Postum and are hearty women of about 70.

"I write this for the information and encouragement of others, and with a feeling of gratitude to the inventor of Postum."

Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich. Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a Reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

SAVED FROM MATERNAL WRATH.

Boys' Fervent Prayer Was Answered in the Nick of Time.

A suburbanite is fond of telling this story of his five-year-old son Bobby. Being of an inquiring turn of mind the youngster one day managed to turn on both faucets in the bathtub to see what would happen. It chanced that the stopper was in place, and the tub rapidly filled up, to the great delight of Bobby. Finally, however, the tub became so full that it threatened to overflow on to the floor, and Bobby, having a proper respect for the maternal slipper, became frightened and tried vainly to turn off the water. Being unable to, for some reason, he gazed tearfully at the ever-rising flood, and then, mindful both of his religious training and the occasional visits of the plumber, he plunged down on his knees, and his elder sister, who happened to be passing at the moment, heard him exclaim, fervently:

"O, Lord, please stop this water running! And, O, Lord, if you can't do it, please send somebody that can!"

His prayer was answered, for his sister rose to the occasion and turned off the water and temporarily saved Bobby from the much-feared slipper.

ITCHING HUMOR ON BOY

His Hands Were a Solid Mass, and Disease Spread All Over Body —Cured in 4 Days By Cuticura.

"One day we noticed that our little boy was all broken out with itching sores. We first noticed it on his little hands. His hands were not as bad then, and we didn't think anything serious would result. But the next day we heard of the Cuticura Remedies being so good for itching sores. By this time the disease had spread all over his body, and his hands were nothing but a solid mass of this itching disease. I purchased a box of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment, and that night I took the Cuticura Soap and lukewarm water and washed him well. Then I dried him and took the Cuticura Ointment and anointed him with it. I did this every evening and in four nights he was entirely cured. Mrs. Frank Donahue, 208 Fremont St., Kokomo, Ind., Sept. 16, 1907."

The Candy Girl.

He was one of those sentimental chaps who imagine the only way to capture a girl's heart is to send her volumes of poetry. Selecting a book of seasonable verse he sent it to his lady fair with the following scribbled on the fly-leaf:

"Dearest, as I seek your heart,
A book of verse I do impart!"

And the pretty but sensible girl, who did not care a rap if Shakespeare had been a pirate instead of a poet, returned the verses with the following lines:

"To the woods with this sludge.
If my heart you'd really budge,
Send me up a pound of fudge."

A Favored Fowl.

"I has been told," said Miss Miami Brown, "dat de parrot is one of the longes'-lived birds dat is."

"De statement," replied Mr. Erastus Pinkley, "is strictly ornithological."

"I wonder why?"

"I 'specks dat one reason why de parrot lives so long is dat he ain' good to eat."—Washington Star.

Dad's Dilemma.

"I see your girl has a beau."

"Yes," said the damsel's father, "and I don't know just how to handle the matt. Shall I be friendly with him, and lose my dignity; or shall I hold myself aloof and be considered an old grouch?"

ELLEN M. OLSON

Miss Lillian Ross, 530 East 84th Street, New York, writes: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound overcame irregularities, periodic suffering, and nervous headaches, after everything else had failed to help me, and I feel it a duty to let others know of it."

Katharine Craig, 2355 Lafayette St., Denver, Col., writes: "Thanks to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I am well, after suffering for months from nervous prostration."

Miss Marie Stoltzman, of Laurel, Ia., writes: "I was in a run-down condition and suffered from suppression, indigestion, and poor circulation. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong."

Miss Ellen M. Olson, of 417 N. East St., Kewanee, Ill., says: "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cured me of backache, side ache, and established my periods, after the best local doctors had failed to help me."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness, or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts, with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed as the best of remedies, when required, are to assist nature and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally.

A Philadelphia lawyer, retained as counsel for the defense in a murder trial, tells of the difficulties in getting together a jury.

"Counsel were endeavoring," says this lawyer, "to elicit from the various prospective jurors their views concerning the death penalty.

"One man to whom the question was put, 'Are you against the infliction of the death penalty?' replied, 'No, sir.'

"'What is your business?' he was asked. 'I am a butcher,' he replied.

"When the same question was put to the next man he answered that he was against the death penalty.

"'What is your business?'

"'Life insurance,' said he."

Omer Sanders, while employed at his trade of painting at Oak Island church, had a severe fall last Friday, and narrowly escaped serious injury. The scaffold on which he was working broke and he fell to the ground a distance of about 10 feet, and sustained a dislocated ankle and painful bruises. Mr. Sanders was brought home and Drs. J. G. Slater and A. N. Jones gave him the necessary medical attention and he is now about well.

S. W. Bevarly and Sleet West enjoyed the pleasures of several days' outing with Judge John M. Lassing and family at Big Bone Island in the Ohio river, going down there on Friday night and returning Tuesday. Judge Lassing and family went there last week for a week's camping out and to enjoy the pleasures of fishing and boating on la belle riviere. We venture the opinion that they will appreciate more fully the comforts of their pleasant home after a week's roughing it on the sands.

Col. Elijah Green, who has been serving as Assistant Adjutant General of Kentucky, resigned his position, last week, to take charge of the State Immigration Bureau as Superintendent, a much better and more important position, and one wherein Col. Green will have great opportunities for the advancement of the interests of Kentucky. Col. Green is a brother of Robert C. Green of this place, and was one of the first Republicans to be appointed to an office under Gov. Wilson's administration, and he has been at Frankfort for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Tomlin entertained with a card party at their elegant home, last Tuesday evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dean, of Marble Hill, Indiana, and the pleasures of euchre were enjoyed by the guests until a late hour. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Gaines, Dr. and Mrs. B. K. Menefee, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Vest, James R. and D. B. Wallace. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and the gentlemen enjoyed the delights of a smoke together. The evening was most pleasantly spent, due chiefly to the charming manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Tomlin always entertain their guests.

Thursday night the residence of Mrs. McAvoy, situated on the railroad between Walton and Richwood, was destroyed by fire, Mrs. McAvoy narrowly escaping with her life. It was about 9 o'clock when she was awakened by a noise and found the house on fire and the roof falling in. Mrs. McAvoy donned what clothing she could in a hurried manner, and escaped from the burning building just in time to avoid injuries from the falling ruins. Mrs. McAvoy is a widow and has several children, but all were absent at the time of the fire, and she was alone in the house. There was no insurance on the property and the loss falls heavily on one not able to bear it. The general supposition is that the fire originated from a spark from a passing locomotive. A field of grass in that neighborhood had been on fire that day from the same source, and the section hands had considerable trouble subduing the flames.

S. W. Bevarly, the Station agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Walton, has been ordered to close his office at 7 o'clock every evening, and go away from the building, so as to not be in the reach of possible passengers who may want service for the train known as No. 6, which passes by Walton every evening at about 7:55. There is only one employe at the Station, that being Mr. Bevarly, and as he is obliged to be on duty by 6 o'clock in the morning in order to meet the early trains, it is supposed this recent order is for the purpose of shortening Mr. Bevarly's hours of service to thirteen. Under this order Mr. Bevarly will not be permitted to sell a ticket for this train or check any baggage, and we will bet there will be a loud howl set up by the traveling public for the lack of these accommodations. What is needed here is an additional clerk to care for the business which is too great for one man, and with an extra a lot of new business could be created, as the Q. & C. is neglecting Walton and the L. & N. could profit by making a pull for the public favor.

Notice of Primary Election!

Resolutions adopted by the Sixth District Congressional Committee at a meeting held at Walton, Ky., June 26th, 1908:

Be it resolved that for the purpose of nominating a Democratic Candidate for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, to be voted for at the November election, 1908, a primary election to be held at the various voting precincts throughout the District on between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time.

Saturday, August 22nd, 1908,

It is the purpose of this committee to secure the full, fair and free expression of the will of the people in selecting their nominee, and it is therefore ordered that this primary election be held under the rules and regulations fixed by the Statute governing primary elections, and it is further ordered that to prevent even the possibility of fraud, bribery or corruption in said primary, certain additional safeguards are adopted and incorporated in this order and call for a primary.

The additional safeguard herein provided for are as follows:

1st. Before any Democrat can become a candidate to be voted for in this primary in addition to paying his assessed share of expenses for conducting same, he shall subscribe to an oath to the effect that he has not and will not either personally or by his direction or by his friends with his knowledge and consent either directly or indirectly give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing his election. The vote of said candidate thus offending shall be thrown out and not counted and he shall not be declared the nominee. No candidate will be permitted to hire any person or persons to work for him or hire conveyances of any kind to carry voters to the polls, or to pay for meals, necessaries or luxuries of any kind or to pay a voter for loss of time.

2nd. No voter who has violated any of the provisions of Article 1 shall be permitted to vote in this primary when the officers conducting this primary shall be satisfied by affidavit or personal knowledge that he has done so; and in any event where his vote is challenged he shall not be permitted to vote until he has subscribed to an oath to the effect that he has not violated any of the provisions of Article 1, and said oath shall be preserved by the officers of the primary and returned by them to the County Committee for its preservation and use before the grand jury if necessary. No person shall be allowed to vote unless he pledges himself to support the nominee of this primary.

3rd. Before the candidate, before this primary who by the returns is shown to have received the highest number of votes shall be declared the nominee, he shall file with this Committee an itemized statement of his expenses during the primary and this statement shall be verified by oath.

In this primary all known Democrats of lawful age shall be permitted to vote who have not violated the provisions of Art. 1 above.

In cities and towns where registration is required the provisions of the Statutes governing same are adopted and shall apply.

It is the sense of this Committee that it will cost $5000.00 to conduct this primary and the Candidates announcing will be required to deposit with the Chairman of this Committee their proportionate share of same; if but two candidates, each shall pay one-half; if three, one-third, etc., if but one candidate has been announced by the 7th day of August, 1908, and paid his assessment, the Chairman of this Committee shall call off this primary and call this Committee to meet at Walton, Ky., on the 14th day of August, 1908, for the purpose of declaring said announced candidate the nominee for Congress in this District and certifying his nomination as the law directs, and his assessment less such sum as this Committee has actually expended in making preparation for this primary shall be returned to him.

Each candidate may submit a list of four names for election officers for each precinct in the district. These lists shall be referred to the County Committee in each county and the officers of election shall be chosen from said list and apportioned as nearly as possible among the candidates.

Each candidate shall be entitled to a challenger at the polls and an inspection at the count.

If the candidates or any one of them fail to submit a list, then the County Committee shall appoint the officers of the election for the various precincts in the county, selecting men of standing and character.

When the polls are closed the votes shall be counted by the officers of the election in the presence of the inspectors and the ballots, stub books, spoiled, mutulated and questioned ballots and all affidavits taken by said officers of election shall be certified to the County Committee within the time and manner fixed by law regulating the same.

The County Committee in each county shall meet in the county seat on the third day after the election and canvass the result of said election in their county and shall certify same together with all evidence that may be before them of any violation of any of the provisions of this call by any candidate, to this Committee and this Committee shall meet at Walton, Ky., on the 29th day of August, 1908, to canvass the returns from this district.

The candidate receiving the highest number of votes in said primary shall be declared the nominee, and his nomination certified as the law directs, unless such candidate is shown by his oath or other evidence to have violated the provisions of this call, in which event he shall be denied a certificate and this Committee shall thereupon declare no election was held.

Each County Committee shall appoint a committee of not less than five trustworthy Democrats for each precinct in said county whose speedy duty it shall be to report any violation of this call. The names of said sub-Committee shall not be made known until after the election.

The following shall be the form of the oath above provided for:

OATH FOR CANDIDATE UPON ANNOUNCEMENT:

I, ..., desire to become a candidate for Congress in this District before the primary, and as an evidence of my good faith and desire to co-operate with the Congressional Committee, I hereby bind myself to abide by the rules and regulations adopted by said Committee to govern said primary, and especially do I agree that I have not and will not either personally or through my friends directly or indirectly, give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing my election, nor will I permit the same to be done for me by any one nor will I reimburse anyone for any money so expended in my behalf if I should afterwards learn that it had been done.

OATH FOR CANDIDATE BEFORE RECEIVING CERTIFICATE.

I, ..., solemnly swear that I have not violated any of the provisions of the call governing this primary and especially that I have not directly or indirectly used money, liquors, cigars or property of any kind for the purpose of influencing or promoting my election, nor have I knowingly, permitted same to be done nor will I reimburse anyone so offending if it shall hereafter develope that such has been the case.

OATH FOR VOTER:

I, ..., swear that I am a legal voter in.....precinct in.....county, and that I am affiliated with the Democratic party, that I have not used, money, property, liquors, cigars or other things of value either directly or indirectly for the purpose of promoting the interest of any candidates before said primary.

Each of these oaths shall be taken before someone authorized to administer an oath in this Commonwealth.

For purpose of carrying out the provisions of this call, and looking after the detail work of conducting this primary, Chairman A. B. Rouse is appointed a special committee of one, and he may call to his aid such members of this Committee as he desires.

This shall be published in every Democratic and Independent Newspaper in the District.

The position of the names of the candidates on the ballots shall be chosen by lot.

S. M. Caldwell, of Price Hill, Cincinnati, spent Saturday and Sunday here, guest of his brother-in-law, J. D. Daubman and wife.

Miss Willeve Tillman returned home here Monday from a delightful visit of three weeks to her aunt, Mrs. Hattie Mire, near Williamstown.

Rev. J. D. Norris and wife spent Monday at Latonia, guests of friends. Mrs. Norris, who has been at Louisville, on a visit arrived here last week.

Mrs. Mary Glacken, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Corbin, Miss Etta and Nellie Seniour and Mrs. Caroline Seniour, of Erlanger; Mr. and Mrs. Eli Surface, Mrs. John Hogan and Walter Grubbs and family were guests at Tom Rice's Sunday.

E. P. Northcutt spent part of the past week in Cincinnati on business, and Chas. R. Slater, of Big Bone Springs, had charge of the store during his absence, and is assisting as a clerk during busy days as Thos. Percival, who was employed there, has resigned.

Miss Isabelle Tompkins, who went with Judge Lassing's family on an outing on the Ohio river near Hamilton, became ill last Thursday and her mother, Mrs. A. B. Tompkins, and Dr. B. K. Menefee, went down there and brought her home. She has now about recovered.

Omer Sanders, while employed at his trade of painting at Oak Island church, had a severe fall last Friday, and narrowly escaped serious injury. The scaffold on which he was working broke and he fell to the ground a distance of about 10 feet, and sustained a dislocated ankle and painful bruises. Mr. Sanders was brought home and Drs. J. G. Slater and A. N. Jones gave him the necessary medical attention and he is now about well.

S. W. Bevarly and Sleet West enjoyed the pleasures of several days' outing with Judge John M. Lassing and family at Big Bone Island in the Ohio river, going down there on Friday night and returning Tuesday. Judge Lassing and family went there last week for a week's camping out and to enjoy the pleasures of fishing and boating on la belle riviere. We venture the opinion that they will appreciate more fully the comforts of their pleasant home after a week's roughing it on the sands.

Col. Elijah Green, who has been serving as Assistant Adjutant General of Kentucky, resigned his position, last week, to take charge of the State Immigration Bureau as Superintendent, a much better and more important position, and one wherein Col. Green will have great opportunities for the advancement of the interests of Kentucky. Col. Green is a brother of Robert C. Green of this place, and was one of the first Republicans to be appointed to an office under Gov. Wilson's administration, and he has been at Frankfort for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Tomlin entertained with a card party at their elegant home, last Tuesday evening, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dean, of Marble Hill, Indiana, and the pleasures of euchre were enjoyed by the guests until a late hour. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Dean, Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. W. Lee Gaines, Dr. and Mrs. B. K. Menefee, Mr. and Mrs. John L. Vest, James R. and D. B. Wallace. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and the gentlemen enjoyed the delights of a smoke together. The evening was most pleasantly spent, one chiefly to the charming manner in which Mr. and Mrs. Tomlin always entertain their guests.

Thursday night the residence of Mrs. McAvoy, situated on the railroad between Walton and Richwood, was destroyed by fire, Mrs. McAvoy narrowly escaping with her life. It was about 9 o'clock when she was awakened by a noise and found the house on fire and the roof falling in. Mrs. McAvoy donned what clothing she could in a hurried manner, and escaped from the burning building just in time to avoid injury from the falling ruins. Mrs. McAvoy is a widow and has several children, but all were absent at the time of the fire, and she was alone in the house. There was no insurance on the property and the loss falls heavily on one not able to bear it. The general supposition is that the fire originated from a spark from a passing locomotive. A field of grass in that neighborhood had been on fire that day from the same source, and the section hands had considerable trouble subduing the flames.

S. W. Bevarly, the Station agent of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad at Walton, has been ordered to close his office at 7 o'clock every evening, and go away from the building, so as to not be in the reach of possible passengers who may want service for the train known as No. 6, which passes by Walton every evening at about 7:55. There is only one employe at the Station, that being Mr. Bevarly, and as he is obliged to be on duty by 6 o'clock in the morning in order to meet the early trains, it is supposed this recent order is for the purpose of shortening Mr. Bevarly's hours of service to thirteen. Under this order Mr. Bevarly will not be permitted to sell a ticket for this train or check any baggage, and we will bet there will be a loud howl set up by the traveling public for the lack of these accommodations. What is needed here is an additional clerk to care for the business which is too great for one man, and with an extra a lot of new business could be created, as the Q. & C. is neglecting Walton and the L. & N. could profit by making a pull for the public favor.

Notice of Primary Election!

Resolutions adopted by the Sixth District Congressional Committee at a meeting held at Walton, Ky., June 26th, 1908:

Be it resolved that for the purpose of nominating a Democratic Candidate for Congress in this the Sixth Congressional District of Kentucky, to be voted for at the November election, 1908, a primary election to be held at the various voting precincts throughout the District on between the hours of 6 a. m. and 4 p. m. standard time.

Saturday, August 22nd, 1908,

It is the purpose of this committee to secure the full, fair and free expression of the will of the people in selecting their nominee, and it is therefore ordered that this primary election be held under the rules and regulations fixed by the Statute governing primary elections, and it is further ordered that to prevent even the possibility of fraud, bribery or corruption in said primary, certain additional safeguards are adopted and incorporated in this order and call for a primary.

The additional safeguard herein provided for are as follows:

1st. Before any Democrat can become a candidate to be voted for in this primary in addition to paying his assessed share of expenses for conducting same, he shall subscribe to an oath to the effect that he has not and will not either personally or by his direction or by his friends with his knowledge and consent either directly or indirectly give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing his election. The vote of said candidate thus offending shall be thrown out and not counted and he shall not be declared the nominee. No candidate will be permitted to hire any person or persons to work for him or hire conveyances of any kind to carry voters to the polls, or to pay for meals, necessaries or luxuries of any kind or to pay a voter for loss of time.

2nd. No voter who has violated any of the provisions of Article 1 shall be permitted to vote in this primary when the officers conducting this primary shall be satisfied by affidavit or personal knowledge that he has done so; and in any event where his vote is challenged he shall not be permitted to vote until he has subscribed to an oath to the effect that he has not violated any of the provisions of Article 1, and said oath shall be preserved by the officers of the primary and returned by them to the County Committee for its preservation and use before the grand jury if necessary. No person shall be allowed to vote unless he pledges himself to support the nominee of this primary.

3rd. Before the candidate, before this primary who by the returns is shown to have received the highest number of votes shall be declared the nominee, he shall file with this Committee an itemized statement of his expenses during the primary and this statement shall be verified by oath.

In this primary all known Democrats of lawful age shall be permitted to vote who have not violated the provisions of Art. 1 above.

In cities and towns where registration is required the provisions of the Statutes governing same are adopted and shall apply.

It is the sense of this Committee that it will cost $5000.00 to conduct this primary and the Candidates announcing will be required to deposit with the Chairman of this Committee their proportionate share of same; if but two candidates, each shall pay one-half; if three, one-third, etc., if but one candidate has been announced by the 7th day of August, 1908, and paid his assessment, the Chairman of this Committee shall call off this primary and call this Committee to meet at Walton, Ky., on the 14th day of August, 1908, for the purpose of declaring said announced candidate the nominee for Congress in this District and certifying his nomination as the law directs, and his assessment less such sum as this Committee has actually expended in making preparation for this primary shall be returned to him.

Each candidate may submit a list of four names for election officers for each precinct in the district. These lists shall be referred to the County Committee in each county and the officers of election shall be chosen from said list and apportioned as nearly as possible among the candidates.

Each candidate shall be entitled to a challenger at the polls and an inspection at the count.

If the candidates or any one of them fail to submit a list, then the County Committee shall appoint the officers of the election for the various precincts in the county, selecting men of standing and character.

When the polls are closed the votes shall be counted by the officers of the election in the presence of the inspectors and the ballots, stub books, spoiled, mutulated and questioned ballots and all affidavits taken by said officers of election shall be certified to the County Committee within the time and manner fixed by law regulating the same.

The County Committee in each county shall meet in the county seat on the third day after the election and canvass the result of said election in their county and shall certify same together with all evidence that may be before them of any violation of any of the provisions of this call by any candidate, to this Committee and this Committee shall meet at Walton, Ky., on the 29th day of August, 1908, to canvass the returns from this district.

The candidate receiving the highest number of votes in said primary shall be declared the nominee, and his nomination certified as the law directs, unless such candidate is shown by his oath or other evidence to have violated the provisions of this call, in which event he shall be denied a certificate and this Committee shall thereupon declare no election was held.

Each County Committee shall appoint a committee of not less than five trustworthy Democrats for each precinct in said county whose speeial duty it shall be to report any violation of this call. The names of said sub-Committee shall not be made known until after the election.

The following shall be the form of the oath above provided for:

OATH FOR CANDIDATE UPON ANNOUNCEMENT:

I,....., desire to become a candidate for Congress in this District before the primary, and as an evidence of my good faith and desire to co-operate with the Congressional Committee, I hereby bind myself to abide by the rules and regulations adopted by said Committee to govern said primary, and especially do I agree that I have not and will not either personally or through my friends directly or indirectly, give, loan or promise to any voter or anyone for any voter, money, property, spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, soft drinks, cigars or anything of value for the purpose of promoting or influencing my election, nor will I permit the same to be done for me by any one nor will I reimburse anyone for any money so expended in my behalf if I should afterwards learn that it had been done.

OATH FOR CANDIDATE BEFORE RECEIVING CERTIFICATE.

I....., solemnly swear that I have not violated any of the provisions of the call governing this primary and especially that I have not directly or indirectly used money, liquors, cigars or property of any kind for the purpose of influencing or promoting my election, nor have I knowingly, permitted same to be done nor will I reimburse anyone so offending if it shall hereafter develope that such has been the case.

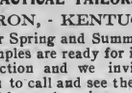
OATH FOR VOTER:

I....., swear that I am a legal voter in.....precinct in.....county, and that I am affiliated with the Democratic party, that I have not used, money, property, liquors, cigars or other things of value either directly or indirectly for the purpose of promoting the interest of any candidates before said primary.

Each of these oaths shall be taken before someone authorized to administer an oath in this Commonwealth.

For purpose of carrying out the provisions of this call, and looking after the detail work of conducting this primary, Chairman A. B. Rouse is appointed a special committee of one, and he may call to his aid such members of this Committee as he desires.

This shall be published in every Democratic and Independent Newspaper in the District.



The position of the names of the candidates on the ballots shall be chosen by lot.

HOPEFUL.

A large attendance at church here, Sunday.

For sale—Mare and colt. Apply to Ed Rouse, Erlanger.

Mrs. E. K. Tanner, who has been very sick, is improving slowly.

Robert Snyder and family, August Drinkenburg and family, Chas. Popham and family, and Mose Clarkson spent Sunday with Ed Clarkson.

H. L. Tanner has been doing some good work on the public road, such as new bridges, hauling rock, making the road better than the new pike to Hebron.

Last Friday about 4 p. m., one of the heaviest rains fell here that has fallen for several years, washing land badly. The rain was accompanied by heavy wind. During the storm E. O. Rouse's front doors to his barn were blown open and a heavy road wagon sitting in the barn was hurled thru the doors on the opposite end of the building, down over an embankment fifty yards away. Nothing broken.

Lightning struck and burnt a large haystack for G. T. Gaines, while the wind unroofed Richard White's old barn, Monday afternoon.

Finger Marks on Ale Glass Restore Lady Hart's Gems

Master of Scotland Yard Solves Intricate Jewel Mystery

By GEORGE BARTON

Marvelous Insight of Sherlock Holmes' Prototype Reveals a Professional Bandit in Man Servant of Sir Archibald Hunter—Tell-Tale Impress of Thirsty Thief's Digits on Receptacle and on Cab Door Furnishes Connecting Links in Queer Robbery Solution.

THE HART GEMS WERE GONE!

(John Sweeney, for many years an inspector-detective at Scotland Yard, long ago won a reputation on both sides of the Atlantic. He became connected with the English police when quite young and soon earned a transfer to the Bureau of Criminal Investigation which is better known to the American public as "Scotland Yard." The case of the Hart gems to which he was assigned is given herewith more as an example of the methods pursued by English detectives than as a specimen of Inspector Sweeney's individual skill. The name of the nobleman has been disguised and some permissible license taken with the construction of the story, but the main facts, though presented in composite form, are true, and demonstrate that Sherlock Holmes has his prototypes in real life among the professional police of Great Britain.)

Sir William and Lady Hart had the reputation of being the most hospitable pair in all of Great Britain—and that is saying a good deal. They had a beautiful country seat just outside of London where they entertained on a palatial scale.

On the occasion to which the present story refers Sir William and Lady Hart gave a particularly elaborate affair. It was a seven-day house party concluding with a brilliant ball. There were some 40 guests in all, and four of them at least were related to the royal family.

On the evening of the final day—it must have been a Friday—there was a great ado over the preparations for the ball. No one was more excited than Lady Hart herself. And well might she be, for on that occasion she was to wear for the first time a magnificent creation from Paris. Besides, she was to deck herself out in the Hart gems. Anyone who has ever had the pleasure of seeing these rare old family heirlooms need not be told that they are both unique and costly. My lady had been busily engaged in her boudoir with her maid for over an hour. She was all ready for the ball. Everything was in place except the gems—they lay on the dressing table ready to be fastened in Lady Hart's corsage. The clock on the mantel pealed out seven silvery strokes. Lady Hart looked at her maid. She was a compassionate woman. She said:

"My child, you look thoroughly exhausted. I'm through with you for the present. I can attach the jewels to my dress without your aid. Go to your room and rest and report to me again at midnight."

The girl thanked her mistress and left the room. Lady Hart gave a final survey of herself in the long pier mirror. It was satisfactory. But the feminine desire to get the judgment of some one else took possession of her mind. She picked up the jewels and was about to put them on. The large one was magnificently beautiful. It was a great ruby surmounted with a glittering framework of the purest diamonds. Two others, in the forms of crescents, were pure pearls. Altogether they represented a modest fortune. Lady Hart hesitated for a moment. She wanted to know what another woman would think of her Parisian gown by itself—minus the prestige which would be given it by the famous gems. Lady Sutherland, her special friend, was near by in a room on the other side of the corridor. She laid the jewels on the dressing-table and tripped out of the room. She was gone less than five minutes.

The Hart gems were gone!

As the result of that, John Sweeney, detective-inspector of Scotland Yard, appeared on the scene.

Sir William joined him in the library and the two men went over all of the facts in the case. The first order of the detective was that no one should leave the house that night—it was then about ten o'clock—without the permission of the host.

Detective Sweeney then inquired about Lady Hart's maid. She seemed a natural object of suspicion. But it soon appeared that the young woman had a complete alibi. It was proven that she had gone to her room immediately after being dismissed by her mistress and being very tired had thrown herself on her couch and had slept soundly amid all the excitement over the stolen jewels.

Finally the servants were brought in and cross-questioned. They exhibited all sorts of queer mental traits from gross stupidity to imbecile indignation. The only testimony that had the slightest value was given by a pert maid who said John Martin had been seen in the corridor leading to Lady Hart's room about the time of the robbery.

"Who is John Martin?" quickly queried the detective.

"He is the valet and attendant of Sir Archibald Hunter," replied the host.

"He must be the man!"

Sir William smiled sarcastically.

"There's only one flaw in that theory."

"What is it?"

"Sir Archibald and his attendant left yesterday. I forgot to mention that when we were going over the list of the guests."

"How can we prove that?"

"It don't have to be proven. It's a fact. I accompanied Sir Archibald to his carriage and saw him drive off, and his man was with him."

"That's too bad."

The host smiled

"I think it's good—for Sir Archibald's man."

After some further talk Sir William and the detective took a walk about the premises and made an examination of locks and bolts. They strolled into the grounds and interviewed the two gate-keepers. The gate-keeper at the south entrance said one of the servants had brought him a message that no one was to be permitted to leave the house that night. The servant, whom he did not recognize, then volunteered to stay on guard until he—the south gate-keeper—should go and give similar instructions to the gate-keeper at the north entrance. He was gone but a few minutes, but on his return the servant was nowhere to be seen.

Detective Sweeney let out an exclamation of impatience.

"What's the matter?" asked the host.

"This man had no right to leave his post. Don't you see that a regiment of thieves could escape while he was away?"

"But my dear sir," replied Sir William, "don't you understand that the servant remained here while the man went to warn the other gate-keeper?"

"And was gone when he returned."

"Oh," said the baronet, easily, "I don't attach any significance to that. Simply the dereliction of a careless servant. I doubt whether anyone has left the premises to-night."

"Then one of your guests must be guilty," retorted the detective quickly.

"Stop—stop at that," was the angry retort; "if you find it necessary to suspect my guests your work shall stop at once."

"I propose that the credentials of every one of your servants be carefully investigated—and that the antecedents of every servant belonging to your guests be probed."

The suggestion met with so much opposition that it was abandoned. The detective remained in the library until nearly midnight. He seemed to have run up against a dead wall. But he had been doing a lot of thinking. As he started to leave one of the servants tapped on the door.

"What is it?" cried Sir William impatiently.

"A telegram for Lord Mortimer," was the response.

Lord Mortimer was the impecunious earl. The host was instantly all attention. He took the telegram and excused himself to the detective.

"Pardon me a moment until I give this to Mortimer."

He left the room and was gone 10 or 15 minutes. He returned with a perplexed look.

"What is it?" asked the detective.

"Mortimer's not in his room, and I can't locate him anywhere.

"Of course," he said almost rudely, "there's no significance in his absence from his room. He's about somewhere."

"Of course," assented Sweeney, tactfully.

The detective remained at the house all night. When he departed for Scotland Yard in the morning he carried with him an ordinary drinking glass—a dirty glass that looked as if it might have contained stale ale the night before. He had picked it up in one of the rooms of the house and the care he bestowed upon it almost bordered on the ludicrous. He seemed particularly anxious not to permit the glass to rub against anything.

An hour later a chance visitor at Scotland Yard might have witnessed a curious experiment being made with an ordinary drinking glass. The experiment was a success. The operative discovered on the glass the imprints of four fingers and a thumb. The marks were perfectly distinct and the finger and thumb prints had been reproduced perfectly on sensitized paper.

A visit to the office of the railroad company resulted in finding the conductor who had charge of that particular train. He remembered that one passenger had boarded the train at the station.

"Did he go on to London?" he was asked.

"No," was the response, "he alighted at the first station this side of London."

The trail was becoming interesting. It was followed until it led to the station this side of London. The only cabman at that station was awakened from his slumbers to answer the questions of the detective. He was a typical "night hawk." Yes, he had answered, he had one customer that night. Could he let the representative from Scotland Yard look at his cab? Most assuredly he felt complimented at such attention. The ramshackle old vehicle was found in the stable. A careful examination was made. The result was remarkable.

There were five distinct spots on the dirty cab door and they were the imprints of four fingers and a thick thumb.

Most startling of all, the prints on the cab door and those on the unwashed glass were identical.

"Cabby," said the detective, "you know where you took your customer last night?"

The cabman harnessed up his vehicle and drove off with the detective as his passenger. In about ten minutes he halted before a mean-looking frame house in the suburbs. Sweeney alighted and rapped at the door vigorously. After a long wait, a smooth-shaven man in his shirt sleeves responded. The detective was keyed up to his responsibility. He did not give the man time to speak, but said sharply:

"Good morning, Mr. Martin."

The man drew back.

"How did you know—" he began, then changing his manner to one of defiance, he cried: "My name's not Martin."

"Oh, yes, it is," was the cheerful response, "you're John Martin."

"Well," was the surly response, "what do you want?"

"I want Lady Hart's gems," snapped the detective.

That night John Martin was behind prison bars and Lady Hart's precious gems had been restored to her.

John Martin proved to be a professional thief. On numerous occasions he had acted as an extra servant at house parties. Forged references and a month of faithful service enabled him to get a position with Sir Archibald Hunter, who was the respected younger son of an aristocratic but not particularly wealthy family. In due course of time he formed one of the inhabitants of Sir William Hart's house in the name and capacity of John Martin, valet and attendant to his master, Sir Archibald.

Martin made a great show of instructing the servants, but his sole object was to become intimately acquainted with the geography of the house. Under the guise of carefully examining possible exits in case of fire, of arranging where hydrants should be stationed, inspecting the windows, doors and staircases, and the general structure of the house, Martin was not only able to get an accurate idea of where the various rooms were situated but he became acquainted also with many points of detail important to his contemplated enterprise.

He left Sir William's house with his master on the night before the conclusion of the house party so that his absence in that connection was secure enough, but he made it a point to return on the following night. Being well known to all of the servants he met with no obstacle and actually found his way to the corridor of the second story leading to Lady Hart's room. He had not thought of robbery at that particular moment, but the sight of Lady Hart leaving her room and the jewels lying exposed on the dressing-table proved too strong a temptation for the avaricious nature. He quickly slipped in, put the jewels in his pockets, and then calmly mingled with the other servants. Later on he was the man who went out to the gate-keeper and instructed him not to permit anyone to leave the house that night, and after sending the man on a fool's errand, he coolly marched out of the grounds. He took the first train to the London suburb and hoped by the next day to be able to dispose of his loot. His one mistake was in pausing in the servants' hall long enough to drink the ale out of a dirty glass. The impress of his fingers on the glass and on the cab door at the suburban station proved to be his undoing and furnished food for contemplation in the long term of penal servitude to which he was sentenced.

A Story of the Prophet Hosea.

BY THE "HIGHWAY AND BYWAY" PREACHER

(Copyright, 1908, by the Author, W. E. Edson.)

The Prophet Hosea.—The name means "salvation," and in the personal history of the prophet—which many of the deepest and most spiritual Bible scholars such as G. Campbell Morgan, of England, and James M. Gray, dean of the Moody Bible Institute, consider a literal portrayal of the prophet's life—we find a type or illustration of Jehovah's relations to Israel. Hosea's field of labor was Israel, and he prophesied during the reign of Jeroboam II., about 784 B. C., down to the captivity. An outline of the book is as follows: 1. Historico-prophetic, chapters 1 to 3; 2. General discourses, chapters 4 to 13; 3. Promises, chapter 14, (a) Appeal of God, vs. 1-3; (b) Promised blessing, vs. 4-8; (c) Application to all, v. 9. The personal history of the prophet may be divided into three periods as follows: (1) A Happy Union—The prophet marries a woman who had lived an impure life, but who had reformed. (2) A Ruined Home—Three children came to bless the home, and then the wife, forgetful of obligations of wifehood and motherhood, deserts her home for her former lovers. (3) Love Unfailing—But her true lover-husband never loses sight of her, and at last after she had sunk to the very depths of sin he buys her back so that he may restore her to her old place in the home.

A Happy Union.—This period in the prophet's life is a type of Jehovah's union with a non-righteous people, Israel. Notice in the chapter the symbolic nature of the names of the children born of this union, and also the promises of restoration and blessing for Israel in the latter days.

SERMONETTE.

Love will travel far and stoop low to save the object of that affection.

How may we know the strength of the Divine love save as some faint conception of it is borne in upon the heart through the revelation of the human relationship?

All through those long years the love of Hosea followed the wayward wife while she sank lower and lower, until at last she had touched the very depths of human degradation. Deserted by her lovers and sold as a slave into the lowest forms of iniquity, still the husband love follows, and is strong enough to bring him to her side and to redeem her by paying the price of her enslavement.

How like this is the Divine love. "While we were yet in our sins, Christ died for the ungodly." From the heaven above God was able to reach down by his infinite love and find a way to save lost and ruined man.

And if God has so manifested his love towards us in that he has given his only begotten Son that we might be delivered from the slavery into which sin has plunged us, how ought we to follow his example and hold on to the wayward soul and love, and love, and love yet still more until at last love is triumphant?

It is not love that casts off forever the one who has done the wrong and who never thinks or purposes that the transgressor shall be won back.

Sin of one against another does not relieve of obligation, but rather does it obligate the one against whom the sin has been committed to help the erring one back to the right way of living.

True love not only can stoop low but it can wait long. But there is reward in the waiting, for love must triumph, and at last the wayward one is brought to the place where it can hear love's message and be stirred to high and holy aspirations. How wonderful is the love that never fails.

THE STORY.

IT WAS in the days of the wicked King Jeroboam II., ruler over the northern kingdom of Israel, that a son was born to Beeri, a devout man, and one that kept himself free from the corrupting influences all about. Now, there was nothing in the birth of this child that marked it as different from that of multitudes of other children throughout the kingdom, save that with the coming of the babe there had been given a vision to the father, and he had insisted on calling the name of the boy Hosea, for, said he: "He shall bring a message of salvation to his nation."

This was all he would say, steadfastly refusing to reveal anything concerning his vision, but that he had beheld some unusual appearance and that it always had some influence upon the manner of the rearing of the child was manifest to all those who gave the matter any thought at all.

But fortunately, perhaps, for the father, Beeri, and for the son, Hosea, they occupied a very lowly place in the tribe and the community where they lived, and so they lived their simple life almost alone and unnoticed.

It was a time of great moral and spiritual decay in the nation, but notwithstanding the destructive tendencies at work, and the demoralizing example of the king and his court, King Jeroboam was a strong leader, and did much to build the kingdom along material lines.

This very condition of prosperity contributed to the general moral decay, and inevitably hastened the day when the judgment of God must fall upon the nation for its wickedness.

It was in such an atmosphere and surroundings as this that the boy Hosea was reared, but under the faithful guidance and instruction of his godly father the lad early learned that right, not desire, should rule the life, and that obedience to God's law brought a more priceless heritage than all that the nations could bestow upon the kingdom. He also learned that the greatest battles a nation can fight are not those in which one army is pitted against another and one nation mounts to power and plunder over the mangled and bleeding body of the other, but rather those battles in which temptation to sinful indulgences are overcome, and the fight is made for the maintenance of righteousness.

While yet a tender lad Hosea had come under the influence of Jonah the prophet, and had been deeply impressed with the great mercy and love of God as manifested in his dealings with the wicked Nineveh under the preaching of the prophet. He was familiar with all the history of his nation and was a close student of the current times and conditions.

And because he was such a man a he was, because he had profited by the instruction of his father and had yielded himself to the perfect will and law of God, it became known in his early manhood that God had called him to fill the place of prophet to Israel. He knew it because in the hour of quiet communion he had heard the voice of God calling him to the work, and the people among whom he mingled knew it because the man with a God-given message is always recognized, even though the message may be spurned and rejected.

But one thing greatly troubled Hosea, and that was the self-satisfied condition of the people. In their prosperity and the pleasurable ease in which they lived the people appeared utterly unconscious of their need of God. What more could be desired than ease and comfort and a good time? So it was that Hosea found his message to the nation made no impression. What was there that he could do to make them realize their condition and their need?

At such a time as this a strange thing happened, or rather it was not such a strange thing, after all, for love is always mysterious. Hosea had fallen in love with a beautiful young woman named Gomer, but one about whom there clung the dark stories of a wayward life. And strange as it may appear, this beautiful woman seemed to return the warmth of his affection and seemed to find a real joy in the things that were nearest and dearest to the heart of the young prophet.

But the woman's past troubled Hosea, and his friends urged upon him the folly and danger of yielding to such associations.

"Konwest thou not what God has said in judgment upon the woman who plays the harlot?"

"Yea," quickly retorted the prophet, "and knowest thou not how the grace and mercy of God can exalt such an harlot as Rahab was and make of her an exalted name and tribe?"

Strange indeed was the romantic experience of the prophet, but he did not understand the purpose God had in it all until one day in vexation of spirit over the problem that confronted him in reaching the hearts of the people, and making them realize their great need of God, there came to him the thought:

"How is it that the holy God can desire to be the God of such a sinful and wayward people? Surely it is not what the people can give to God so much as what God can give to the people."

And almost in the next instant there swept over his heart the thought of the life of this woman who had so unexpectedly and strangely entered into his life.

"Yea, in this shall Israel see an example of herself," exclaimed the prophet as he arose, conscious that the spirit of God had spoken to his heart and was leading him.

With unfaltering step the prophet made his way to the presence of Gomer, and ere long all the community about knew that the prophet had plighted his troth to the woman with a past.

"What could it mean?" asked the people one of another, "that this man of God should link his life with such an one? How can there be anything in common between the two?"

"How is it," retorted the prophet, when he heard their words, "that God should consider this people who have gone after other gods and hath forgotten him? Why is it, in spite of the wickedness and disobedience of the past, that God desires union with thee? What fellowship can he have with such as you? Think on these things, and realize that the love and mercy of God are able to bridge the chasm which sin has made, and that he finds joy in bringing the sinner into union and fellowship with himself."

Bartenders Do Not Drink.

Chicago has a novel organization in the Bartenders and Saloonkeepers' Total Abstinence society, which is now said to have 2,000 members. Many saloon keepers in the windy city, it is reported, are bound by an agreement not to employ men who drink. While New York grog sellers have no such society and no such agreement, so far as the public has ever heard, all the better class of drinking places strictly enforce rules against employes drinking while on duty, and there are scores of bartenders in this city who never drink a drop of the liquids they dispense.—New York Tribune.

THE GARDEN SPOT OF THE EARTH

Many People Planning to Go to Southwest Oklahoma.

The removal of restrictions on Indian lands in the Indian Territory portion of Oklahoma, is creating great interest throughout the nation among capitalists looking for investments and planning to establish manufactories, as well as among the tillers of the soil who hope to better their condition.

Chickasha is situated in the Washita valley, the center of the choicest of the Indian lands, and to that city will go those who study the situation intent on reaching the vantage point. Seven railroad lines diverge there. Water plants will furnish to manufactories cheap electric power.

Chickasha ships more corn, more cotton and more live stock than any other point in Oklahoma.

The modern built business district in the valley and beautiful residence portion on hills make a veritable dreamland. The imposing churches and modern school buildings are monuments to the character of the citizens who erected them.

The country for which Chickasha is the market center ranks with the most productive in the world. Corn, cotton, wheat and alfalfa are grown with equal success to that of either crop in a one crop country. Garden trucking is to be one of the most profitable pursuits. Fruits of all kinds grow and produce luxuriantly. In fact, Grady county, of which Chickasha is the capital, is the garden spot of the earth.

Chickasha has a live Commercial Club which promptly answers letters of inquiry regarding the section to which the eyes of the nation are just now directed.

NOT ONLY COULD, BUT DID.

Mr. Grandon Able to Bear Testimony to Wife's Accomplishments.

Sometimes there is a drop of regret in the cup of joy served by fate to the husband of a brilliant talker. "I should think it would be a privilege to sit at the table with your wife three times a day," said one of Mrs. Grandon's ardent feminine admirers.

"Only twice a day," said Mr. Grandon, with a bow. "I do not go home at noon."

"Too bad!" said the admirer. "We could not get on without her at club I'm sure. Why, I believe she could talk intelligently on a thousand topics!"

"She can—and does," said Mr. Grandon, and with another bow he slipped out just as his wife appeared.—Youths' Companion.

THE REASON WHY.

First Passenger—I wonder why the train is making such a long stop at this station.

Second Passenger (experienced traveler)—I suppose it is because no one happens to be trying to catch the train.

Proof Positive.

There is usually some convincing argument to a question of doubt, if one is only bright enough to think of it at the time of controversy. The farmer was able to produce the indisputable without delay of circumlocution. A number of people were gathered 'round the bulletin board of the Reading Eagle, on which was announced "Death of Frank Miller."

Two farmers from the extreme backwoods were gazing at the various items of news, when one of them spied the lugubrious statement, and pointing it out to his rustic comrade, remarked innocently:

"It says on that board: 'Death of Frank Miller.' Is that you?"

"No," replied the other, in all seriousness. "My name is John."

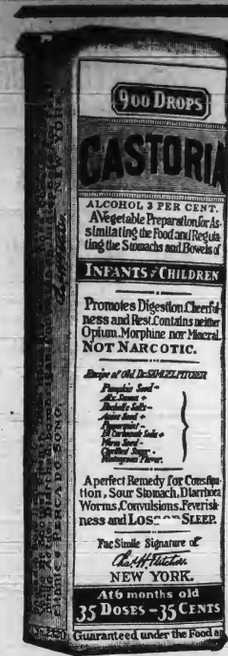
HEALTH AND INCOME

Both Kept Up on Scientific Food.

Good sturdy health helps one a lot to make money.

With the loss of health one's income is liable to shrink, if not entirely dwindle away.

When a young lady has to make her own living, good health is her best asset.



"I am alone in the world," writes a Chicago girl, "dependent on my own efforts for my living. I am a clerk, and about two years ago through close application to work and a boarding house diet, I became a nervous invalid, and got so bad off it was almost impossible for me to stay in the office a half day at a time.

"A friend suggested to me the idea of trying Grape-Nuts, which I did, making this food a large part of at least two meals a day.

"Today I am free from brain-tire, dyspepsia, and all the ills of an overworked and improperly nourished brain and body. To Grape-Nuts I owe the recovery of my health, and the ability to retain my position and income." "There's a Reason."

CUTICURA CURED FOUR

Southern Woman Suffered with Itching, Burning Rash—Three Little Babies Had Skin Troubles.

"My baby had a running sore on his neck and nothing that I did for it took effect until I used Cuticura. My face was nearly full of tetter or some similar skin disease. It would itch and burn so that I could hardly stand it. Two cakes of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment cured me. Two years after it broke out on my hands and wrist. Sometimes I would go nearly crazy for it itched so badly. I went back to my old stand-by, that had never failed me—one set of Cuticura Remedies did the work. One set also cured my uncle's baby whose head was a cake of sores, and another baby who was in the same fix. Mrs. Lillie Wilcher, 770 Eleventh St., Chattanooga, Tenn., Feb. 16, 1907."

Politeness.

It was the last day of the term in one of our public kindergartens. The children were all seated around the tables thoroughly enjoying the treat of ice cream which the teacher always provided on this occasion.

Glancing around the room at the beaming faces of the children, the kindergartner noticed one child pick up his plate and lick it.

She went up to him and said in a low tone of voice: "Freddie, put down your plate; it is not polite to pick it up and lick it."

Fred obeyed at once, quietly placing his plate on the table. He then put his head down to the plate and licked it.

Tommy's Streak of Luck.

"Tommy," said a young lady visitor at his home, "why not come to our Sabbath school? Several of your little friends joined us lately."

Tommy hesitated a moment. Then suddenly he exclaimed: "Does a little red-headed kid by the name of Jimmy Brown go to your school?"

"Yes, indeed," replied the new teacher.

"Well, then," said Tommy, with an air of interest, "I'll be there next Sunday, you bet. I've been laying for that kid for three weeks, and never knew where to find him."

A Sensible Literary Chap.

"I'm not runnin' a ten-acre farm in connection with the literary business," says the Sweet Singer of southwest Georgia, "and so, the outlook is more cheerful. I hope to make enough cotton to have my poems published in a book and enough corn to feed the family while I'm waitin' for the public to buy the book. I also take contracts for the digging of wells, and these little side issues will enable me to show American literature just what I can do!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Melba in Paris.

Mme. Melba has seldom received such a remarkable ovation as that which greeted her appearance at the recent opera gala performance in Paris. It cannot, however, compare in delirious enthusiasm with one she received some years ago in St. Petersburg. On one memorable night, after the close of the opera, she was called before the curtain again and again for more than an hour, until she was so exhausted that she could scarcely stand. Her enthusiastic admirers then followed her carriage to the hotel, where they serenaded her, although it was a bitterly cold night, until three o'clock in the morning. On the following day when she reached the station to depart the platform was crowded with hundreds of adoring music lovers. As the train was leaving they took the pencil with which she had written her autograph for all who could get near her, hit it into small pieces and passed them around as souvenirs.

Weary Willie's Complaint.

William J. Ryan, president of the supreme council of public hackmen of New York, said the other day that the winter panic had reduced the hackmen's receipts considerably.

"We'll have to come down to English rates—12 cents a mile instead of 50 cents—if we have many more such panics," Mr. Ryan said. "Everybody felt the pinch. I overheard a tramp grumbling in a public square.

"'The trade ain't like it used to be,' he said. 'Here ten times running today I've asked for a bit of bread, and what do they give me? Why, durn it, just a bit o' bread.'"—Exchange.

HON. D. LINN GOOCH, CANDIDATE FOR CONGRESS.

In this issue of the RECORDER appears the announcement of Hon. D. Linn Gooch, of Covington, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress. Mr. Gooch was the Democratic candidate for that office in 1900 and was elected, and elected again in 1902, consequently he is no stranger to the duties of the position to which he aspires. While in Congress Mr. Gooch made the district a faithful representative, which he will do again if the Democrats will honor him with the nomination he is now seeking at their hands. During his two terms as Congressman he made many warm friends in this district who will be glad to learn of his candidacy, that they may have the opportunity to testify to their appreciation of his services as a public servant by casting their ballots for him. Mr. Gooch points with pride to his consistent record as a Democrat, and is heartily in accord with the declaration of principles adopted by the National Democratic Convention at Denver. Being a Democrat without spost peck, or blemish, he asks the Democrats in the 6th Congressional District to make him their representative in the National Congress.

The citizens of Florence have become aroused in the matter of the improvement of their town, and have organized the Florence Improvement Association, one of the prime objects of which is to secure rapid transit to Cincinnati and Covington by way of a traction road, the construction of which the association proposes to encourage in every way possible. Had the desire for rapid transit prevailed in Florence and vicinity at the time the southern railroad was built, that prevails there now, the probability is the town would have been made a point on that great road. But at that time the railroad was not desired by the then prominent and influential citizens, and a greater mistake was never made by any community. Since the location of the southern railroad the citizens of Florence and vicinity, who opposed it touching the town, have passed away, and another people have taken their places and realize the fearful mistake their predecessors made, and are now endeavoring to overcome the disadvantage to which they and their successors are to submit unless a traction road can be induced to come their way. The Improvement Association believes it can present facts sufficient to induce a favorable consideration on behalf of the town of Florence, and ask the hearty cooperation of the people of the surrounding country in the presentation of these facts to a Traction Company which it is hoped to interest. With Florence the terminous of a traction road a very large and thickly populated territory would contribute a great and continuously increasing volume of passenger traffic to and from the cities, making Florence the liveliest town in the county from a business standpoint. The enterprising citizens of Florence realize that the time has come when they must be up and doing, and they have put their shoulders to the wheel with a determination to bring results, and nearly the entire county is interested in their success. The Association will hold a meeting in Florence next Monday night which everybody in Burlington, Richwood and Union neighborhoods are invited to attend.

Everything on the Republican side in the Presidential campaign is to bear the Roosevelt stamp, therefore the President will be called on by candidate Taft to edit his speeches, consequently all his public utterances, are in one sense of the word, second handed, President Roosevelt having given them his o. k. before they go to the public.

Personal Mention.

Ben Jones was among the RECORDER'S Monday visitors.

Mr. and Mrs. S. Gaines entertained Leslie Goodridge and wife, last Sunday.

CABLE

Southern Indiana Telephone Company Connects Aurora With Kentucky.

For some time the Southern Indiana Telephone Company have contemplated laying a steel cable across the Ohio river thereby shortening the distance in the connection with their subscribers on this side of the river with those of Kentucky, and on last Thursday the cable was successfully laid across and under the river at the foot of Fourth street. The cable was manufactured by The American Steel & Wire Company at Worcester, Mass., and is one of the best ever turned out. This service will be ready, just as soon as the connections can be made in the country adjacent to Aurora from Petersburg to Belleview, Kentucky. Heretofore it has been necessary to make a circuit of sixty miles to reach Petersburg and this new service will shorten the distance very materially. The cable was designed and laid under the supervision of E. W. Swarthout, Manager of the Telephone Company and who has already tested it with pleasing results. The first message will be between Judge Downey and W. T. Stott of Petersburg.—Aurora Bulletin.

The sale of the personal estate of Mrs. Sarah Ann Jarrell, will be held on the afternoon of the 8th day of August.

A hail storm visited Florence, last Friday afternoon. The hail stones were as large as guinea eggs.

Some very heavy thunder last Friday evening. Two peals sounded like the explosion of a tremendous gun.

In some cases they last longer. They never need repairs. They're fire-proof, storm-proof. They reduce the cost of insurance, and they're easy to lay. They preserve the building too, by keeping out dampness: so if you want a thoroughly cozy home in winter, and a cool house in summer, you can't do better than see that Cortright Shingles are used for the covering.

HON. D. LINN GOOCH, of Covington, is a candidate for Congress from the Sixth Kentucky District, subject to the Primary Election, Saturday, August 22.

Georgetown fair is in progress this week.

Mrs. Sam Houston, of Bullittsville, is very ill.

For Sale—At cost barrel good roofing paint. Apply to N. E. Riddell.

R. W. Clark, Burlington, will save you money in the purchase of a watch or clock.

John Clore, of Hebron, was over last Friday talking Harvest Home to beat the band.

Miss Nannie Kyle, of Danville, Illinois, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. George Kreylich.

One hundred young chickens have been stolen from Mrs. Jas. E. Smith in the last ten days.

Leonard Kite, of Waterloo, sold his fine sorrell saddle and harness horse to B. B. Hume for $290.

Attorney O. M. Rogers, of Erlanger, was the guest of County Attorney N. E. Riddell, Monday night.

It is too late for a "rubbin stretcher" to accomplish anything in this county in the good year of the Lord, 1908.

Mrs. J. C. Revill and daughters, Misses Jonette and Pattie, have returned from their visit with friends in Owen county.

Next Monday is county court day and on the Monday following circuit court will convene for the two weeks August term.

The high price of both corn and hogs will cause the sale of everything in that line that will at all do to put on the market.

E. H. Baker, of Hathaway neighborhood, has filed his petition in bankruptcy. His liabilities are about $16,000; assets about $2,000.

Complaints of petty thieving pour in from every direction in the county. Chicken yards come in for their full share of the nocturnal raids.

For Sale—15 months old Jersey bull. Address Hebron, Ky., or call at Sand Run, Ky. MANLIUS GOODRIDGE.

Found—A few days since on Woolper pike pair of eye glasses belonging to an aged person. Call on or address Woodie Sullivan, Burlington, R. R. 1.

Those interested in the Commissary beef club are requested to meet at the Commissary, Saturday, afternoon August 1, at 2 p. m. for the purpose of orgauizing.

C. W. and H. W. Robinson, of Constance, spent one day last week in Burlington, looking after some business they have pending in the Boone circuit court.

The McGlasson boys wheat, in Francesville and Taylorsport neighborhoods, was a great disappointmeut to them, the yield being about 1½ times what they expected.

The posters advertising the approaching Harvest Home were printed last week, and contain the usual premium list. The catalogue of premiums will be issued in due time.

Thieves visited J. E. Smith's chicken house, one night last week, and were glad to escape with no holes in their hides, as his son, Earl, heard the noise and hustled out with his shot gun.

The drought destroyed what early in the season promised to be a very fine crop of blackberries, and the supply of jam will be correspondingly small.

A thrilling balloon ascension and parachute leap will be a popular attraction at the Florence fair this year. From the fair grounds a good ascension ought to follow every effort and doubtless will.

Attorney Joel C. Clore, of Cincinnati, was in Burlington, one day last week, taking depositions in one of the several cases the law firm of which he is a member, has pending in the Boone circuit court.

Misses Mary and Sallie Castleman entertained, last Thursday, from 7 p. m. to 9 p. m. A large number of their young friends were present and a most delightful time was had. Refreshments were served.

An iron bridge will be built on the Woolper pike at the point where it crosses the ravine that comes down from Edward Botts'. The old bridge at that point has been a menace to the traveler for a long time.

The busy season with the farmers is at an end for a period of several weeks. The wheat and hay harvest is through with and there is no tobacco to claim their attention, consequently briars and grubs ought to suffer.

Don't forget the O. d-Fellows' picnic at Harvest Home grounds next Saturday afternoon. Good music will be at the service of those who delight in tripping the light fantastic, and for the pleasure of those who enjoy hearing it.

The ladies seemed to enjoy Mr. Weaver's closing out sale last week and were the best bidders. But it is said James Slayback bought so largely of drugs and patent medicines that it is believed he intends starting a rural drugstore.

The drought has done up the corn crop in this county. There are many fields that were planted to corn that will not make to exceed two barrels to the acre. Considerable hay was saved but the oats crop was very poor, in many fields the straw being so short it could not be cut.

Saddle horses are said to be scarce in Boone county, but when B. B. Hume finds a customer who is willing to pay a long price for a good saddle animal he is always able to locate one in a short time somewhere in the county.

Col. Clifford E. Nadaud, candidate for Congress in this district, will speak as follows in Boone county: At Burlington at 1 p. m., Monday, August, 3d, at Petersburg at 7:30 p. m, same day; at Belleview, 7 p. m., Tuesday, August 4th. Everybody is invited to attend.

J. A. McPherson, born on a farm near Verona, this county, September 6, 1828, died at his home in Williamstown, Grant county, on the 21st inst., after an illness of about six weeks. Mr. McPherson was a loyal and prominent Republican, and was the oldest Mason in Grant county, having been a member of that order since 1852.

Fernando Carpenter, who resides on the Lexington pike above Florence, was transacting business in Burlington, one day last week, and while here paid his respects to the RECORDER. Mr. Carpenter but recently sold his very desirable farm, the Woodford Carpeuter homestead, to parties in Lexington, and has bought a nice home at Richwood, to which place he will move this fall. Mr. Carpenter is one of the many very clever gentlemen in his neighborhood.

Already are people talking about the delicious barbecued meat and the excellent burgoo that Wash Tanner, the caterer, will prepare for their consumption at the fair this year. The barbecuing of the meat will be an interesting sight never before witnessed by thousands of people who will visit the cooking pits during the week. Mr. Tanner is an expert at barbecuing meat and preparing burgoo, and he will make an extra effort on the occasion of the fair.

Having secured a bridge at Plattsburg the people in that neighborhood ought to take pleasure in putting the old pike in good order this fall. If each man who is directly interested in the road will contribute a few days work on the road it will be put in first-class condition and no one will feel the expense of the labor required. There will be an abundance of time this fall in which the work can be done, and the people along the road ought to take pride in doing it.

The farmers, as a class are in fine shape. Cattle are selling from 4½ to 6½ according to quality. Fat hogs $6.50 to $7.00; lambs 5½ to 6 cents; stock ewes from $4.50 to $6.00 per head. Southdown bucks and short horn bulls are ready sale. Good fresh Jersey cows in big demand; good horses and mules always sell for their worth. Corn $4.50 to $5.00 per barrel; Oats $10 to $12 per ton out of the field. Hay is the only thing cheap, selling from $8 to $10 per ton. It was never better and will pay to hold it. Blue Grass Clipper.

W. C. Weaver's bargain feast closed with an auction, last Thursday, at which that popular auctioneer, Chas. Garnett, of Kidville, presided. Bidding was brisk and sales were made rapidly and by night, besides a considerable amount of groceries, a large stock of drugs and patent medicines had been disposed of to citizens of the town and surrounding neighborhood. Some of the patent medicines sold had, doubtless, been in stock in Burlington for half a century, and had been handed down from one local dealer to another until some of the bottles were badly worn. The building which was occupied by the store is now closed and awaits the coming of a new tenant.

County Clerk Adams has placed the order for the ballots and ballot boxes to be used at school elections held under the new law from 1 o'clock p. m. to 5 o'clock p. m. on the first Saturday in August. The elections will be held for one trustee in each educational subdivision, and in this county the subdivisions are the same as the districts heretofore. The elections will be held at the school house in each subdivision. The Walton, Petersburg and Belleview graded school districts do not come under the provisions of the new law, they having been excepted by the law makers. A friend of education who is a good business man should be chosen in each subdivision, as the success of the new school law depends largely upon the ability of those who assist at its inauguration.

New Bridge Across Woolper.

The steel bridge to be built across Woolper at Plattsburg will be composed of three spans, the channel span 90 feet, while the south shore span will be 25 and the north shore span 30 feet. The road-way will be 12 feet wide. The capacity of the bridge is to be 100 pounds to the square foot—live load, or a total of 174,000 pounds for the entire bridge. The shore abutments are to be concrete reenforced by 6-inch I beams. The channel span is to be supported by four round iron columns, 24 inches in diameter and 20 feet long, filled with concrete. Each of these columns is to rest on a concrete foundation extending to bed rock. The floor of this bridge will be about six feet above high water mark. This bridge will have a water way of 145 feet being 65 feet more water-way than the old bridge had. The contract for the construction of this bridge has been let to the Oregonian Bridge Co., of Lebanon, Ohio, for $2,600, not including the cost of the approaches. Had the first of the two old bridges been located at the point where the new bridge will be built a great probability is it would have been in use at the present time. That the first bridge did not occupy a better location was no fault of the gentlemen who engineered the pike and protested against the construction of the bridge at the point where it was destroyed, the fate foretold by the engineer, whose advice in the matter was rejected. The people of the Plattsburg neighborhood are to be congratulated on having succeeded in getting the new bridge, but they alone will not be benefitted by it, as it will span a crossing on one of the important highways of the county, which, at times, is very dangerous, one human life having been snuffed out there a few years ago, while the unfortunate man's companion and a team had a narrow escape from a watery grave.

The State fund for the payment of teachers, this year, is $2,661,667 20. The State per capita last year was $3 40 cents, this year it will be $3.60, with an increase of 4 735 pupils in the State. The county will be $8.25.

Deputy Sheriff W. D. Cropper has completed his first round of appointments for meeting the taxpayers of the county to receive their taxes, and reports that the amount of the collections falls far short of the amount collected on his first round in 1907. This shows that money is not so plentiful in the country as it was last year at this time.

The body of Mrs Sarah Ann Jarrell, who died at her home on Woolper creek on the 20th inst., was brought to the Burlington Baptist church on Wednesday, where Rev. Stith delivered a funeral discourse in the presence of a large congregation of relatives and friends, after which the remains were interred by the side of those of her husband in the Odd-Fellow's cemetery east of town. H. G. Blanton had charge of the funeral.

Selling Pooled Tobacco.

The selling of pooled tobacco in this and other counties in the Burley belt has occasioned no end of discussion and trouble, threatening in fact the security of the permanency of the organization. In discussing this disturbing force the Winchester Democrat says:

"From time to time sales of pooled tobacco have been made, the tobacco to remain in the pool. Not very much of this has been done in this county, but in some counties the habit has become quite prevalent. The local Boards of Control as well as the District Committee of the Burley Tobacco Society have sought to discourage this practice as they with the actual grower to get all the advantage of the organization. Argument and appeal have so far been the only means adopted to prevent these sales, but in some counties more stringent measures will be taken. According to the Crecelius Bill, which became a law this spring, it is an offense either to buy or sell pooled tobacco and a penalty is affixed to both buyer and seller. The constitutionality of this law is doubted by some, but it has never been tested and is good law until the Court of Appeals decides otherwise. It is this law that will be invoked to prevent speculation in pooled tobacco."

No Short Cut to Nationality.

There is no short cut to Philippine nationality. Its attainment is a long task, calling for infinite patience and self-control. The population must greatly increase and must effectively occupy the entire archipelago, satisfactory relations with the Pagan and Mohammedan peoples must be established, education must do its work, and the social order be entirely transformed, before the basis of national life is laid. Yet the aspiration for national existence cannot justly be discouraged. It is the motive power under which the greatest of popular triumphs have been achieved, writes Dr. David P. Barrows, in his "History of the Philippines." The situation is one peculiarly delicate, and yet full of the greatest promise. There is every reason why both Americans and Filipinos should hold their tasks with constant devotion and watchfulness over self. There could be no better motto for all who are engaged in this undertaking than the words of Secretary of War Taft, on whom, more than on any other man, rests the immediate future of the Philippines: "In my view, a duty is an entirety, and it is not fulfilled until it is entirely fulfilled."

Emil Zerkowitz, comercial councilor of Hungary, stationed in New York city, makes an interesting statement of conditions and possibilities in his country. He shows that there has been much progress in material development, and in this connection remarks: "Hungary offers great resources for enterprises of every kind —a rich market for American exporters, a fertile soil for financial and industrial investments and advantageous business relations for importers." In this connection there is furnished also much information going to show the extent of Hungary's foreign trade. This trade is large and increasing, and the Commercial Councilor adds: "Efforts of the Hungarian government and of the different business and social circles in Hungary to bring Hungary in closer connection with the United States have not been without effect, and we hope that these efforts will steadily increase the friendly feeling and the commercial relations between both nations." The doors are opening in various directions, and the American producer and consumer may find Hungary a profitable field.

If anyone is laboring under the delusion that our South American friends are not progressive he should at once get rid of the notion. The Chilean government has entered into a contract for improvements in the harbor of Valparaiso that will cost $20,000,000, and the Argentine congress has been asked to approve plans for additional docking facilities at Buenos Ayres involving the expenditure of $9,000,000. The people down that way are building railroads in every direction and are utilizing every means of developing the material interests of the country. And the field promises rich returns for the people of the United States. What is needed, declares the Troy (N. Y.) Times, is closer commercial relations and a supply of American ships.

Now the Cuban women have formed a league for the gaining of equal suffrage. There seems small doubt that this question is one which the century will be called upon to settle, but it must be removed from the field of hysterical demand on the one hand and prejudiced opposition on the other, and be judged in a calm and liberal spirit by both men and women on its merits and the benefits and consequences to the community of its acceptance or rejection. It is not a question, says the Baltimore American, which can be settled at all on its sentimental side; on the contrary, it must have the most practical solution.

The treasury building at Washington is undergoing important repairs that in some respects amount to a reconstruction and which will assure greater stability to the historic structure. The east side of the building is being removed, the sandstone to be replaced by more durable granite. The fine architectural appearance will be in no way altered, but there will be less likelihood of collapse. The sandstone columns, in the language of the experts, are "dead" as a result of long exposure to the elements and are liable to disintegrate. The granite pillars will be of the sort that will endure indefinitely.

A Boston woman who has just celebrated her golden anniversary as a cook, boasts of having made and baked 365,000 pies, 2,000,000 doughnuts and something more than 1,500,000 puddings, besides a multitude of other dainties and no end of baked beans.

The British Medical society says that smoking will make the nose red, but it will probably be a long while before the majority of persons will consider a brilliant nose with any of those unenviable reflections.

TRUSTS SEIZE ALL

REAL EFFECT OF REPUBLICAN TARIFF PROTECTION.

Prosperity of Which the Party Has Boasted Confined to the Few Who Became Millionaires, Not to the People.

When four years ago the Democrats predicted that the high tariff would beget panic instead of prosperity and that Republican policies would produce business depression in place of welfare and happiness, the whole pack, from Roosevelt to the littlest spellbinder of them all, pointed with pride, etc., to the achievements of the G. O. P. But the panic came and the business depression still continues, although our Republican friends are trying to make us believe that it all has been but a little "financial flurry."

When we come to consider what effect this exaggerated tariff protection has had upon the industrial condition in this country, how far it has produced prosperity, to what extent it is responsible for the perils which now confront us, and which have involved the industrial system of this country in confusion, if not in paralysis, no wonder our Republican friends change front and instead of standing pat are now promising tariff revision. The Republicans still boast of the prosperity which they have produced in this country, but no real prosperity has existed. It was sham and not genuine, and the first breath of adversity has blown down the whole fabric like a breath demolishes the child's house built of cards.

Not that there has been no prosperity, far from it. The too prosperous trusts have flourished amazingly, but it was not the well doing that comes from successful labor, but the fortune produced by successful plunder. The few have become millionaires and the many have just contrived to live and but few of them to save. Such are the fruits of protectionism. High prices for speculative securities and watered stock doled out to gullible victims is the Republican conception of prosperity, and that is the only kind of prosperity they have ever shown in the long years they have controlled the government.

Now, the Democratic notion of prosperity—real prosperity—consists in the abundance of commodities fairly distributed among those who produce them. It means more houses, larger and more commodious rooms with healthier people dwelling in them; it means warmer clothing, covering stronger and more healthy limbs; more abundant food of better quality; more shoes and more of everything in the nature of comfort that man can use—more books, higher wages and shorter hours; more leisure to enjoy what increased earnings can buy. This alone is what Democrats mean by prosperity, and this alone is a prosperity which is genuine.

Now, how is that prosperity to be reached, how are things available for the comfort of men to be reached?

Can Theodore Roosevelt or Taft produce a dollar's worth of such things? Can the whole Republican party insure the farmers good crops, although it impiously claims to be allied with omnipotence? Have any of them, great or small, or all combined as the government, the capacity to increase anything on the face of the earth? They have shown themselves to possess the power of spending, so much so that with the end of the fiscal year at hand there is a deficiency of $60,000,000 of revenue to meet their expenditures. But it requires the farmer and the laborer to produce, for the trusts, aided by the politicians, to dissipate. The Republican national platform ascribes in fulsome terms all the benefits that any of us have been fortunate enough to receive to our "most exalted servant." Theodore Roosevelt, and then boastfully describes a long list of accomplishments most of which have not yet been achieved and never will be under the plutocratic-bred policies for which the Republican party is famous.

But, after all, the Republican party has had to turn tail and run for cover from the righteous wrath of an injured people. It declares its cardinal policy of protection to have been a failure and promises to revise it "after election." What the promise stands for no one knows. The organ of the Protective Tariff league with joy declares that it means revising the tariff higher, while Reformer La Follette and Reformer Cummins, the father of the "Iowa Idea" of tariff reform are satisfied.

The disastrous effect of tariff protection leads many people to doubt the honesty of Republican profession and to hope for real tariff reform that will curb the trusts.

Hamiltonian Republicans.

The Republicans evidently believe that the constitution does not count for much nowadays, for the word constitution does not appear in the speeches of Senator Lodge, or Mr. Burton, made at the Republican convention, and only one reference to that instrument is made in the platform. This reference occurs in the resolution relating to the enforcement of the thirteenth, fourteenth and fifteenth amendments.

An Era of Extravagance.

The Roosevelt administration now places to its account the third deficit in seven years. With deficits of $42,000,000 in 1904, $23,000,000 in 1905 and now $60,000,000 in 1908—considering the flush times it has enjoyed up to nine months ago—it makes a shockingly bad showing.

BOASTING THAT IS VAIN.

Facts Disprove Extravagant Claims Made by Republicans.

The national Republican platform is nothing if not boastful, nor can it be said that it is any more truthful than bashful. That bundle of fabrication and misrepresentation, amongst other things, declares:

"Under the administration of the Republican party the foreign commerce of the United States has experienced a remarkable growth, until it has a present annual valuation of approximately three billions of dollars and gives employment to a vast amount of labor and capital which would otherwise be idle."

On that general declaration the New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin says:

"Now, whatever may have been the influences which have contributed to the development of our foreign commerce, the policy of the Republican party is certainly not one of them. The protectionist theory contemplates the absolute elimination of the import of products which the country does not produce, and necessarily tends to the hampering of the process of commercial exchange which, in the last analysis, resolves itself into barter. Compared with the other great nations of the world the ratio of our foreign trade to population is certainly not impressive.

"By the way of supplementing the general claim that the Republican party has fostered and promoted foreign commerce, the assertion is added that it has also inaugurated through the recent visit of the secretary of state to South America and Mexico a new era of Pan-American commerce, bringing us into closer touch with our 20 sister American republics, and offering us a limitless field of legitimate commercial expansion. The specific claim has even less foundation than the general one. Eminently beneficial for the promotion of a better understanding between the United States and Latin America as the visits of Secretary Root unquestionably were, they 'inaugurated' nothing in the way of commercial initiative, not even the postal subsidies which Mr. Root so urgently demanded."

The fact is that the tariff has been a great barrier, which the South American republics have found it almost impossible to surmount in their trade with us, the exception being the enormous trade in coffee from Brazil, and without which the trade with that country would be comparatively insignificant.

But then, there is free trade in coffee, so the Republicans can hardly claim that the Republican policy of protection has built up that trade.

Do We Want a Great Army?

The president's plan for a standing army of 250,000 men naturally appeals to the hero of San Juan hill, but how it will strike the people is another question. They will be likely to ask what is the need for an enormously increased standing army in the United States.

It is proposed to organize the regulars of the army and the state militia together and mobilize them in army corps. For this purpose the regular army is to be enlarged, and the militia, since a recent law was passed, now become national volunteers, will be called upon to join the establishment in a tentative way. Eight great maneuver and instruction camps are to be formed and there 50,000 regulars and volunteers will be drilled together for a month every year. By two years from now the war department expects to have a well-trained, coherent force of 250,000 men, ready for action at an hour's notice.

How the country will take to this project remains to be seen. Do taxpayers wish to support an enlarged regular army, besides paying salaries and expenses to 150,000 volunteers? What do we want of a great military force? If we mind our own business we shall not get into another war beyond our present power to handle. The day when war had glory in the average man's eyes and when every citizen was anxious to display himself in uniform has passed, it is to be hoped, forever.—Chicago Journal (Rep.).

From an Unprejudiced Standpoint.

Thread advances—presumably because the lumber for spools is advanced; lumber for spools has advanced because oats are high (the logging teams require grain three times a day, and that mounts up), oats are high because of a wet spring, and as the wet spring was sent presumably by Providence, certainly my lady must not protest when her gown costs more by 50 per cent. It is put forward by some social economists that dear money, as the term expresses it, is a sign of prosperity. But is it? Is it, when the prosperity of the many is being milked to swell by greater ratio the prosperity of the few? Is the average man to-day getting his money's worth? Occasionally (we would not breathe the confession outside of our own booming country)—occasionally into the minds of some of us creeps the suspicion that the average man—who occupies the bottom of the heap—is not.—Lippincott's.

Difference in Conventions.

The work of a Democratic national convention never has represented the coercion of federal officeholders. The results of Democratic conventions mean that the men sent to carry out Democratic instructions are controlled by those they meet when they go back home to give an account of themselves and the result.

HISTORY OF COPPER CENT.

Interesting Facts in the Evolution of the Coin.

The evolution of our present copper cent is one of the interesting facts of American coin history. Every one will concede that the very meek and feminine-looking Indian on the face of this coin is nothing short of ridiculous; its symbolism is meaningless, its idea weak and un-American. It was out of the coin portrait of the terrified woman whose back-hair had broken from its moorings to be immortalized on the penny of 1793—the penny for which Hamilton and Washington were so justly criticised—that the characterless red person on our one-cent pieces has grown. The streaming hair of the 1793 model was carefully combed back in the 1794 penny, and in 1796 the young woman looms up with positive comeliness, her rebellious locks neatly arranged and on the back of her head a little cluster of saucy ribbons. Then after passing through a strange and ugly metamorphosis, in which there is an admixture of Greco-Teutonic types, this same reformed female comes into being once more on the one and three-dollar gold pieces of 1854, this time gorgeously bedecked with a high headgear of ostrich plumes. It was an easy transformation from curled plumes to straight feathers as worn by the American Indian chiefs; that the colonial girl's features were retained and the headdress of savages put a-top of them did not seem to perturb the stolid designer of our copper currency. And so to-day we have millions of red pennies afloat, and still other millions being constantly issued from the same old design of 1859, which as works of art are nil, as pieces of practical or commercial symbolism are entirely without meaning, and as money are too low in denomination to command even a miser's respect except in enormous quantities.

It is alleged that the feminine fright on the 1793 penny was copied from the unique "half disme" (dime) struck off experimentally in 1792, and the portrait on which is that of Martha Washington, who is said to have sat to the artist while he was designing it. If this is true Lady Washington is then the great-grandmother of the Indian freak on our present copper cent.—Perriton Maxwell, in the Bohemian Magazine.

Most Rapacious of Trusts.

A New York merchant, writing from Europe, says: "All over the old world, but especially in Germany and France, 't-r-u-s-t' spells 'American,' and a man from our part of the globe needs but to have money enough to ride first class and smoke a good cigar to be a 'trust koenig' in Germany. But I think that the suit brought by the heirs of Donizetti against the Society of Dramatic Authors and Composers shows that crowd to be the king among trusts. The great composer died in 1848, years before his 'Lucia,' 'Linda,' 'Don Pasquale,' 'Favorita' and 'Daughter of the Regiment' had become financial successes. The society collected the royalities and paid them over in part to the heirs until 1865, and since then has paid the heirs nothing. The society has the right, it says, to collect royalties on all dramatic and musical works, and it does collect to this day on the productions of Sophocles, Shakespeare, Racine, Moliere and hundreds of other writers who probably had no idea that they would become contributors to the great literary and musical trust of France."

BORAX! NATURE'S DISINFECTANT, CLEANSER AND PURIFIER

Everybody realizes the necessity of some method of purification of sinks, drains and utensils in which may lurk the germ of a dreaded disease.

Health is a question of cleanliness and prevention.

Most people are familiar with the use of disinfectants in their ordinary sense—all of which are unpleasantly associated with disagreeable odors, on which are depended to kill the contagion (which disinfectants must of necessity be of a more or less dangerous character) and must be used for this purpose and for no other, and in consequence kept from children and careless handling.

There is, however, within the reach of all our readers a simple, safe and economical article that will not only answer for every disinfecting purpose —but can also be used for a multitude of domestic cleansing and purifying purposes—Borax.

Borax is a pure, white harmless powder coming direct from Nature's laboratory; in fact Borax has often been called "Nature's Cleanser and Disinfectant."

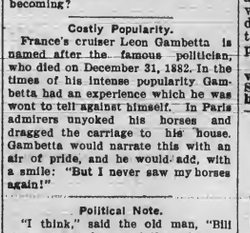
Two tablespoonfuls of Borax in a pailful of hot water poured down the grease-choked pipes of a sink, or flushed through a disease-laden drain, cleanses and purifies it, leaving it clean and sweet.

Bed clothing and clothes used in a sick room can be made hygienically clean and snowy-white, if washed in a hot solution of Borax water.

Kitchen and eating utensils, used during illness will be kept from all possibility of contagion if Borax is used when washing them. Pure as snow and harmless as salt, and because it can be used for almost every domestic and medical purpose, Borax must be considered the one great household necessity.

SAVAGE FLING AT AUDIENCE.

Inebriated Orator Resented Disapproval of His Condition.



"Like many a statesman of the past," said Senator Beveridge, "he drank too much. And one Fourth of July morning, on a platform hung with flags and flowers before the courthouse of a country town, facing an audience of farmers and their families that had come from miles around, the statesman arose to deliver the Independence day oration in a slightly intoxicated state.

"He was not incapable of an oration, but his unsteady gait, his flushed face and disordered attire spoke ill of him, and the audience hissed.

"He held up his hand. They were silent. Then he laughed scornfully and said:

"'Ladies and gentlemen, when a statesman of my prominence consents to appear in such a little, one-horse town as this, he must be either drunk or crazy. I prefer to be considered an inebriate.'"—Washington Star.

Costly Popularity.

France's cruiser Leon Gambetta is named after the famous politician, who died on December 31, 1882. In the times of his intense popularity Gambetta had an experience which he was wont to tell against himself. In Paris admirers unyoked his horses and dragged the carriage to his house. Gambetta would narrate this with an air of pride, and he would add, with a smile: "But I never saw my horses again!"

LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND

For proof of this statement read the following letters.

Mrs. Barbara Base, of Kingman, Kansas, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"For eight years I suffered from the most severe form of female troubles and was told that an operation was my only hope of recovery. I wrote Mrs. Pinkham for advice, and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it has saved my life and made me a well woman."

Mrs. Arthur R. House, of Church Road, Moorestown, N. J., writes:

"I feel it is my duty to let people know what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered from female troubles, and last March my physician decided that an operation was necessary. My husband objected, and urged me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to-day I am well and strong."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, and backache.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

STANDARD OIL WINS

COURT OF APPEALS KNOCKS OUT $29,240,000 PENALTY.

JUDGE LANDIS REVERSED

His Conduct of the Famous Rebate Case Is Severely Arraigned and a New Trial Is Ordered.

Chicago.—Federal judges in the court of appeals lifted the burden of a $29,240,000 fine from the shoulders of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana Wednesday and reversed the judgment of Judge Landis, by which the heaviest fine ever imposed in a federal court was saddled upon the oil company found guilty on 1,462 counts of accepting rebates from railroads. Speedy rehearing of the case, which has attracted widespread attention, is considered improbable, and the counsel for the oil company contend that a second conviction cannot be obtained.

The case was remanded with instructions that a new trial be held.

The jurists making up the court of appeals are Judges Grosscup, Seaman and Baker.

Judge Grosscup delivered the opinion of the court, Judges Baker and Seaman concurring, and in sharp arraignment of the conduct of the trial judge intimated that he may have presumed to hold himself above the law.

Judge Landis Called Arbitrary.

The decision declares that the manner in which Judge Landis decided upon the number of offenses that had been committed by the defendant company was arbitrary. It holds that some other method than the one he used should have been applied.

Then it passes to the amount of the fine, which it declares was "sufficient to have wiped out many times the property of the defendant." The court holds that the only company on trial was the Standard Oil Company of Indiana. It says that this corporation alone could be punished and that to attempt to punish its holding corporation would be to assert that a person could be punished who was never before the court or who had never stood trial. This, the judges say, would be to assert a startling principle of law.

Others Than Commerce Law.

The court declares that the arraignment of the violation of an interstate commerce law was to be commended and that the results of such violations were not too strongly stated. It says, however, that the interstate commerce law is not the only one in the United States, and that it is because there are others that the case is reversed and remanded.

On the amount of the fine, the upper court said:

"Did the court in the fine imposed abuse its discretion? The defendant indicted, tried and convicted was the Standard Oil company, a corporation of Indiana. The capital stock of this corporation is $1,000,000. There is nothing in the record in the way of evidence that some of the assets of the corporation were in excess of that amount. It may therefore be safely assumed that but for the relation of the defendant to another corporation not before the court, the court would have measured out punishment on the basis of the facts just stated."

The judges then commented on the punishment of the defendant in such a large amount and continued, saying:

"Briefly stated, the reason of the trial court for imposing this sentence was because it was brought out on examination that the capital stock of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana was principally owned by the New Jersey corporation, a corporation not before the court. The trial court, adding that in concessions of the character for which the defendant before the court had been indicted, tried and convicted, the New Jersey corporation was not a 'virgin' offender.

"Can an American judge, without abuse of judicial discretion, condemn anyone who has not had his day in court? That to our minds, is strange doctrine in Anglo-Saxon jurisprudence."

"TAILS" UP TOSSED COIN FELL

Standing in Front of a Mirror O'Brien Sent a Bullet Through His Heart.

Los Angeles, Cal., July 27.—The toss of a coin led John W. O'Brien, Shakespearean student, mining expert and globe trotter, to suicide in an apartment house on Grand avenue. He was well known in St. Louis and Chicago, having visited both cities frequently.

Goaded to the deed by financial reverses and possibly by a suicide pact, which was hinted at in a letter from a friend found among his possessions, O'Brien placed himself in front of a large mirror and sent a bullet through his heart. On the floor, by his side, was found a dime lying "tails" up, and on the table a note saying he would flip the coin to determine whether he would kill himself.

Among his possessions was found a volume of Shakespeare's works, besides numerous note-books and newspaper clippings concerning the writings of the English author. Many passages were marked.

The letters which hinted at a suicide pact were from G. W. Langford, an official of the Philippine Fishing Co. in Yamboango, Philippine islands. In one of these, dater March 25, 1908, Langford advised O'Brien against getting married, saying that such "entanglements would bring grief and sorrow to dear ones when the time came for them to fulfill their pledge to each other, unless fortune soon smiled upon them." Many letters in the same vein were found.

PHYSICIAN'S WIFE RUN DOWN

By Touring Car of Millionaire Tobacco Manufacturer.

St. Louis, Mo., July 27.—The wife of Dr. H. N. Lyon, a prominent physician, of 5303 Cabanne avenue, was run down and probably fatally injured Sunday night by a heavy touring car belonging to Fred. C. Peper, the millionaire tobacco manufacturer, also of this city.

Mrs. Lyon, who is prominent in society, was crossing the intersection of Hamilton and Maple avenues, when the big car, occupied by Peper and his chauffeur, came up, and before he could avoid it struck the woman, hurling her to the ground with crushing force. She was picked up in a dazed condition and sent to St. Luke's hospital, where it was found that, in addition to several internal injuries, she has suffered a fracture of the right leg and numerous bruises.

Millionaire Peper was arrested and locked up in the Twelfth district police station. He figured in the recent suit of heirs contesting Christian Peper's bequest to Christian Cornelius, Christian Peper's foster son.

Occupants of Auto Burned To Death.

Port Henry, N. Y., July 27.—J. E. Dodge, of Walden, Mass., and Lockwood Reed, of this place, met with a horrible death in an automobile accident Sunday night. While crossing Black brook, six miles west of here, Mr. Dodge, the owner of the car, who was driving, lost control of the machine, which left the road, pitched over the embankment, turning completely over as it fell causing the gasoline to explode. Dodge and Reed were caught under the machine and burned to death. S. E. Titus, of Syrocuse, also a passenger, escaped injury.

Three Persons Killed.

Fort Smith, Ark., July 27.—Three persons were killed and three others more or less seriously injured between Goodland and Hugo, near here, Sunday afternoon when Frisco passenger train No. 6, due in Fort Smith at 6 o'clock Sunday night, was derailed. The dead are Mike Hickey, engineer; E. D. Clark, express messenger, and a tramp. The injured are Postal Clerk Miller, Fireman Jackson and a news agent. None of the passengers were hurt.

Falls in Boiling Vat of Sugar.

Philadelphia, Pa., July 27.—When stirring the melted sugar in a huge vat at the Spreckles refinery Sunday Albert Kasemsky, of this city, lost his balance and fell into the hot liquid. He was rescued, completely covered with a coating of crystlized sugar, like a huge bonbon. He will die of his burns. The liquid at the time of the accident was at a temperature not far from the boiling point.

Lieut. Oswalt Killed.

Manila, July 27.—Lieut. Bernard Oswalt, Twenty-ninth United States infantry, stationed at Ft. McKinley, was electrocuted Sunday while taking a tub bath. His death was caused by an amateur electrician attempting to electrify the water. He made an error. Lieut. Oswalt was from Alabama.

Cuxhaven, July 27.—The Russian cruiser Almaz, with Premier Stolypin aboard, went aground Sunday near Gluckstadt, a seaport near Hamburg.

Levee Broke; Whole Island Submerged

Antioch, Cal., July 27.—Early Sunday morning 200 feet of San Joaquin river levee gave way, and Jersey island comprising 4,000 acres, including 300 acres of celery, was flooded. The property loss is estimated at $5,000,000.

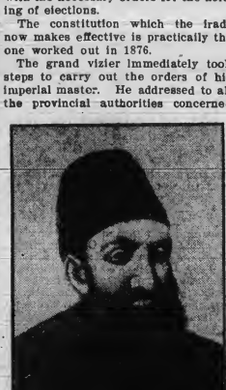
LIBERTY DAWNS FOR TURKS



SULTAN ABDUL ISSUES IRADE RESTORING CONSTITUTION.

Deputies Are Convened, Said Pasha, New Grand Vizier, Carrying Out the Reform.

Constantinople.—An imperial irade issued Friday ordains the assembling of a chamber of deputies in accordance with a constitution which has been elaborated by the sultan. The irade has been communicated to the vails and the district lieutenant governors with the necessary orders for the holding of elections.

The constitution which the irade now makes effective is practically the one worked out in 1876.

The grand vizier immediately took steps to carry out the orders of his imperial master. He addressed to all the provincial authorities concerned a circular telegram convening the chamber of deputies, in which he pointed out that the method of forming the chamber is determined by an organic statute which, according to the official communication, is "an illustrious institution of the sultan."

Startling as was the sudden dismissal of Ferid Pasha from the grand viziership and the appointment of Said Pasha in his place, this step was as nothing compared to the sensation created in all quarters by the official announcement that the sultan had decided to convoke a parliament.

Belgrade, Servia. — Cipher dispatches received Friday night from the European villages of Macedonia declare that the Young Turks are complete masters of the situation.

All the Turkish authorities have surrendered themselves into their hands.

Vienna.—It is reported here that the towns of Monastir, Uskub and Saloniki are in the hands of the Young Turks. Order has been maintained everywhere.

Hughes Will Run Again.

Saranac Inn, N. Y.—Gov. Charles Hughes will accept a renomination if the Republican party of this state desires him to again be its candidate. In a statement made public Friday night the governor so declared himself and said the personal reasons which prompted him to say privately some time ago that he did not desire a renomination are not controlling and that "if renominated I ought to accept."

Eight Cadets Suspended.

West Point, N. Y.—Eight cadets in the United States Military academy here were sent to their homes Thursday as a result of hazing members of the fourth class.

M. A. Walsh for Congress.

Davenport, Ia.—The Democratic congressional convention of the Second district of Iowa Thursday ratified the result of the June primary and nominated Mark A. Walsh of Clinton as candidate for congressman.

Gamble Convicted of Arson.

Bellefontaine, O.—George R. Gamble was found guilty of arson Thursday by a jury after an hour's deliberation. He was charged with burning a mill in this county in October, 1906, and collecting the insurance.

WINS IN OLYMPIC MARATHON.

American Captures Great Olympic Games Race.

London.—It would be no exaggeration, in the minds of the 100,000 spectators who witnessed the finishing struggle of the Marthon race at the Olympian arena Friday, to say that it was the most thrilling event that has occurred since that Marthon race in ancient Greece, where the victor fell at the goal and, with a wave of triumph, died. And it was won by an American.

It was an American day and the resentments of Thursday, which rankled strongly in the breasts of Americans here when they came to the stadium, were forgotten not only in the victory of John F. Hayes, the Irish-American Athetic club runner, but in the splendid record made by the other Americans, who were well to the front in the line of those that finished.

Six Americans started in the Marathon race and nine English runners. Of the first ten men to reach the coveted goal, four were Americans.

The second man was Hefferon of South Africa. The first Englishman who crossed the line came in twelfth. He was W. T. Clarke.

Dorando was first to enter the stadium at the finish. He staggered, dazed and delirious, and in the last 300 yards fell four times and was helped up by track officials, who finally half-carried him across the line. Because of this he was disqualified.

TWO DEAD, TWELVE WOUNDED.

Bloody Career of Desperadoes in Jamaica Plain, Mass.

Boston. — Two dead, a man and a woman probably shot fatally, and ten others suffering from bullet wounds, sums up the record of the murderous career of two bandits who Wednesday terrorized the Jamaica Plain district, eluding the pursuit of hundreds of policemen and thousands of citizens. Starting on Tuesday night by entering a saloon in Jamaica Plain, three men, who are supposed to be Italians, killed one man with revolvers, wounded two others and, rifling the cash register, got away with $90.

Early Wednesday evening, after the police had searched for them unsuccessfully all day, two of the robbers again appeared in Jamaica Plain and, firing revolvers, ran through the most thickly settled part of the district, leaving a trail of victims behind them.

Early Thursday the pair were supposed to be hiding in Forest Hills cemetery, which was surrounded by several hundred heavily armed policemen.

Herbert S. Knox of Roslindale, night watchman at the cemetery, is the victim who is dead.

Boston.—One of the bandits who "shot up" Jamaica Plains, killed two persons, wounded 11, and then took refuge in a cemetery, was killed by the police, another was wounded and the third was arrested.

Forty Hurt in Collision.

Lovedale, Ill.—Forty persons were injured, some of them probably fatally, and more than a dozen so severely that they had to be taken to hospitals. Tuesday in a head-on collision between two Aurora, Elgin & Chicago cars at Lovedale station. The disaster occurred when the coaches were each running at a speed estimated at 40 miles an hour and the crash when they came together was terrific.

"Bill" Hazard Is Rescued.

Bassett, Neb.—"Bill" Hazard made his escape from jail at this place Friday. Several weeks ago he broke jail at Gregory, S. D., where he was held on the charge of stealing horses, and was captured last Thursday at Newport by Sheriff Marsh of Rock county and placed in jail here.

Tap Hidden River; 25 Dead.

Berne, Switzerland.—There was a frightful accident Friday in the Loetschberg tunnel, in the Bernese Alps, which resulted in the death of 25 workmen. The men were drilling inside the tunnel. Without warning their tools pierced the wall that separated them from a subterranean river or lake, the existence of which was not known. The wall gave way with a crash and a torrent of water and mud rushed into the tunnel and filled it. All of the workmen were drowned. They were Italians.

Round About the State

What Is Going On in Different Sections of Kentucky.

PRICE OF BURLEY

Will Be Fixed By Samples, Despite the Pleas of Growers.

Lexington, Ky.—Despite the pleas from all over the white burley district that the board of control place the price for the 1907 crop in a pool at 25 cents per pound, it was announced here that this will not be done. Samples in all grades from every county in the district will be secured at Winchester by September 1, when the price will be fixed according to sample. It is believed the price will be at least 20 cents per pound. There are about 40,000,000 pounds in the 1907 pool. The 1905 and 1906 crops are about all sold, and over $1,000,000 has been distributed among the growers.

SALOONIST'S WIFE

Charged With Attempt to Bribe Alderman With Check.

Paducah, Ky.—Following an exposure by Alderman W. T. Miller, of an alleged attempt to bribe him, Mrs. Maggie Stephen, wife of Philip Stephen, a saloon proprietor, was arrested here.

Miller claimed that Mrs. Stepheu called on him twice in the interest of her husband's application for a license. The second time, he said, she offered him a slip of paper resembling a check.

After she left the alderman claims he found a check on his desk for $100, it being signed by Mrs. Stephen.

Well Known Editor Passes Away.

Somerset, Ky.—F. J. Campbell, aged 60 years, editor of the Somerset Journal, and known through Central Kentucky, died here. The deceased was for several years under the administration of Gov. Beckham a member of the state board of equalization. He served through the civil war on the union side, and though his weakened condition lately was due to that service, he would not accept a pension.

Child Falls From a Dizzy Height.

Middlesboro, Ky.—A fall of perhaps 60 feet from the third story of the Delmonico building resulted only in a cut lip and a slight bruise on the head of 2-year-old Pierrie Frazier, of this city. The little one was playing in a room when she fell out of the window, striking her head on the asphalt pavement. She was rendered unconscious, but soon recovered. Dr. John Howard says there will be no serious results.

Riders After Him.

Frankfort, Ky.—Louis W. Cook, a merchant living in this county, has requested Adjt. Gen. Johnston to send soldiers to his house to protect him from what he believes is a planned assault on him by the night riders. Cook reported to Gen. Johnston that nightly his house is visited by a band of marauders, and he fears that they will whip or duck him. He is not a tobacco grower.

Complete Plans For New Lock Gates.

Louisville, Ky.—Plans for two new lock gates have been completed here by Assistant United States Engineer S. F. Crecilius. The proposed gates will be used in the Louisville and Portland canal and will be 96 feet in width, with 600 feet between the upper and lower gate. They will cost about $2,000,000.

Mrs. Stephens Missing.

Paducah, Ky.—Detectives are searching for Mrs. Maggie Stephens, wanted on a charge of attempting to bribe Alderman Miller. She is alleged to have left a check for $100 on Miller's office desk in the interest of her husband's application for a saloon license.

Jury Finally Obtained.

Lexington, Ky.—A jury to try the case of the commonwealth against Charles J. Bronston, charged with assaulting Col. W. R. Milward with a revolver, was finally secured. The testimony of the plaintiff and a portion of that of the defense has been heard.

Fat Man, Fat Job.

Louisville, Ky.—Albert Spies, appointed oil inspector by County Judge Peter, qualified. He is a fat man, and his is a very fat office, paying sometimes as high as $8,000. His commission expires in 1912.

Seeks Renomination.

Frankfort, Ky.—Representative Jas. T. Buford, who represented Franklin couuty at the last session of the general assembly, has announced his candidacy for renomination.

Russell Quit the Job.

Louisville, Ky.—It developed that S. Brent Russell, of St. Louis, has resigned as chief engineer of the water company work here. He had some friction of late with President Zorn.

Murderer a Suicide.

Louisville, Ky.—The body of Philip B. Hans, who shot and killed Arthur W. Kraft and badly wounded Mrs. Kraft, was found near the highway a mile from St. Matthews, a suburb. Hans had shot himself through the head.

Judges Appointed To Hold Court.

Frankfort, Ky.—Gov. Willson has appointed Judge M. C. Saufley, of Stanford, to hold court for Judge Gardner at Salyersville, and Judge A. H. Patton, of Jackson, to hold court at Irvine, Estill county, for Judge Adams.

BOX CAR STATION DESTROYED.

Temporary Office of Illinois Central Burned By "Riders."

Hopkinsville, Ky.—A box car set on a siding at Otter Pond, in Caldwell county, by the Illinois Central railway, to be used as a temporary station in place of the building destroyed, was burned by night riders.

The people of Otter Pond are terror-stricken and will give out no further information over the telephone. There are no telegraph communications, the wires having been burned.

Princeton reports that Caldwell authorities will probably appeal to the governor for more troops.

Gano Warders, former city marshal of Gracey, was arrested on a charge of banding together with other persons to intimidate and alarm persons. This is his second arrest, the first being on a charge of banding together with other persons to destroy property, but both of the warrants are the result of the raid on this city on December 7. He is preparing to give bond.

WILL DESTROY 40 ILLICIT STILLS.

Officers Go Into the Mountains to Raid Moonshiners' Stronghold.

Lexington, Ky.—Deputy United States Marshal William Mayr, of Beattyville, and a strongly armed posse, have gone into the mountains of Eastern Kentucky to raid 40 illicit or "moonshine" distilleries. They announce that all will be destroyed.

The region is almost inaccessible and no news will likely be had from the revenue men until their return next week to Beattyville or Jackson.

This is the most pretentious raid ever attempted, so far as can be learned, in Kentucky. Mays says he has full knowledge of the location of the distilleries and anticipates no troubles from the moonshiners or their friends.

Wilson's Power Questioned.

Frankfort, Ky.—The appointment of J. N. Johnson police judge of Lawrenceburg by Gov. Wilson as the successor of the late Judge Breckner, has stirred up a hornet's nest in that city. News reached here that mandamus proceedings had been filed against Wilson to compel him to recognize Shelby Hahn, who was appointed by the board of trustees. Gov. Willson said that he had not been served with court papers, and was not sure whether he had the authority to appoint Johnson. He will investigate the case fully, and if Johnson has the right to serve, will stick to his appointment.

Can Shoot Some.

Frankfort, Ky.—In the practice at the rifle range Sergeant Wilson, of Middlesboro, of Co. H, Second regiment, established a new record for target shooting at 800 yards. He made a perfect score out of a possible 50. He also hit the bull's-eye in two sight shots, making a total of 12 perfect consecutive shots.

Wanted Only the Coin.

Louisville, Ky.—Burglars went into the richest section of the city for plunder. They wanted money only. After ransacking the house of Chairman Ed B. Green, of the board of public safety, Karl Jungbluth, the tuchman and millionaire, they left without disturbing one article.

Boot-Leggers Busy.

Covington, Ky.—Federal Marshal Steve Sharp is in receipt of letters from the deputy marshals, who state there is considerable boot-legging going on. A number of violators are under arrest, and those who are not able to give bond are locked up to await trial.

"Wets" Win By One Vote.

Georgetown, Ky.—Georgetown went "wet" by one vote, thus ending one of the hardest fought local option battles in the history of the temperance wave in Kentucky. The "drys" were confident that they had won, and the result is a great surprise.

Tuttle Far Cooperage Co.

Livermore, Ky.—The creditors of the Rough River Cooperage Co. met at the office of J. A. Bean, of Owensboro, a referee in bankruptcy, and had H. B. Beard, of Livermore, appointed trustee. The assets of the company are $7,500; liabilities, $17,000.

Ex-State Senator Prewitt Ill.

Lexington, Ky.—Former State Senator Caswell Prewitt, of Mt. Sterling, underwent an operation for gall stones here. His condition is serious. He is an uncle of Chairman Prewitt, of the democratic state central and executive committees.

Was Helping the Boys.

Paducah, Ky.—While arranging a springboard for the boys to dive from Joe Krislinger, aged 40 years, watchman on the wharfboat, fell into the river and was drowned. His body has not been recovered.

Convicts Pardoned.

Mrs. Yarnell's health is not very good in this quarter and she believes she will be benefitted by the change, and with her husband and two little daughters expects to bid her Old Kentucky Home good-bye in about three weeks, the delay of departure being occasioned by a desire to sell their house and lot here. Mr. Grubbs, who bought the barber shop is a splendid young man and is in every way worthy of public patronage.

BASE BALL.

Manager Kirkpatrick took his ball tossers to Hebron, last Saturday afternoon, where they engaged in a clubbing carnival, defeating the Hebron team 6 to 2. The real trouble began in the first inning after two men were gone and two strikes on Slayback, who tore off a two bagger. Conner repeated the performance as did Smith, Clore got first on an error at third and Tolin made a hit. Kirk out, short to first—4 runs. In Hebron's half of the first inning, Clore, the first man up made a hit, but the next three were retired. In the second White hit, Allie Walton fanned and Brady hit to short, where a nice double play was started that put the side out. For Hebron Graves made a hit, Ernest struck out, Tanner was hit by pitcher, Goodridge fanned, Phelps Walton made a three bagger, Clore beat the wind—2 runs. In the third inning Slayback got first on error in center field, Conner made a three base hit, Smith out catcher to second, Clore out short to first, Tolin hit safe, Kirk hit to center—result, 2 runs. For the next five innings Walton kept the hits so scattered that no runs were made. Doc Houston pitched the last inning in which the only hit was a tripple by Smith. After the third inning Conner held Hebron to two hits in the remainder of the game. Following is the score:

Burlington	4	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	—6

Struck out—By Conner 15, by Walton 5; Hits by Burlington—Slayback 1 double, 1 single; Conner, 1 double, 1 tripple, 1 single; Smith, 1 double, 1 tripple; Tolin, 2 singles, Kirk, 3 singles; White 1 single. Hits by Hebron—Clore, 1 single; Souther, 1 single; Graves, 1 single; Ernest, 1 single; Walton, 1 tripple. Errors, four on a side. Earned runs—Burlington 4; Hebron 2. Umpire—Souther.

There will be two games of ball at Burlington park next Monday between Hebron and the home club. Morning game called at 10 o'clock, afternoon game at 3 o'clock.

The Erlanger ball team was defeated at Covington, last Sunday 6 to 3. Erlanger will play the Cincinnati Eagles at Erlanger next Sunday afternoon.

Caused By Lightning.

The large stock and produce barn on the river bottom farm of Joseph Chambers in the extreme northern part of this county, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground during the rain and thunder storm that prevailed in that neighborhood about 3:30 p. m., last Friday. H. G. Cropper has the farm rented and had in the barn all of his farming implements and harness, about 15 tons of hay, 6 tons of oats and 50 or 60 bushels of corn and numerous other articles, all of which were a total loss. The barn was about 40x60 feet and was insured in the Boone County Company for $500, about two-thirds of its value. Mr. Cropper places his loss at about $500, and which he had insurance to the amount of $200. W. P. Cropper, who was at his brother's when the barn was struck had predicted the fate of the building not a minute before the lightning struck it. He based his prediction on the fact that buildings in that neighborhood are struck so often.

C. C. Roberts killed a water moccasin about 5 feet in length down at the saw-mill, last Saturday afternoon. He held a postmortem on the reptile and found 45 young snakes, each five or six inches long, and incased in a pocket like arrangement. J. F. Blyth discovered the snake while handling some lumber at the mill, and was soon up in town seeking assistance to put it to death.

The Union & Florence Turnpike Co. has awarded the Argonean Bridge Co., of Lebanon, Ohio, the contract for constructing a 64 foot iron bridge where its road crosses Gunpowder at Rouse's saw-mill. The bridge will cost $945. The same company has the contract to replace the wooden bridge west of Limaburg on the Burlington & Florence pike with a 12-foot iron bridge to cost $90.

CARD OF THANKS—We desire to thank the neighbors and friends for the kindness shown us during the death of our dear father, Chas. Macrander, who died July 7, 1908, also to Rev. Walterick for his consoling remarks. Oh, how could we have endured this had it not been for you, dear friends, who were ever at our side, whispering words of love and sympathy to us. May a merciful God deal kindly with all who were so kind. DAISY.

The following explains itself:

"Dear Sir:—I have been appointed by the State Board of Immigration to secure for the people of our State all classes of help that they may need. If you, or any of your neighbors wish to secure any farm laborers or house servants and will write me, I will be glad to furnish you with blank applications and attend to the work for you free of charge. I will go to New York about August 1st and will be in position to get first class Immigrants for the people of the State.

Respectfully,
E. J. GREEN,
State Immigration Clerk."

The most exciting game of this season here was that played between the Boones and the locals here Saturday. In the first inning Walton for the Boones was thrown out at first, Brady and Slayback got hits, then several costly errors by the locals let both score. McCarty, the first Belleview man up was given a pass, Sandford also reached first. Stuckey fanned, McCarty out trying to steal third, Perkins got a nice singie scoring Sandford, E. Sandford out at first. Nothing more was doing until the 6th when with two men on bases Smith for the Boones got a two bagger, scoring two more runs. In the seventh the locals got two more runs across the plate. In the next inning Slayback fanned, and a nice double play retired the Boones without a tally. The locals in their half managed to get in one more run tying the score. Ninth inning Smith out at first, Kirk hit, Tolin fanned, White out on a fly, C. Sandford got to first on balls, Stuckey hit but was out trying to steal second. Perkins grounded ont then came E. Sandford, pinch hitter with a two bagger, scoring Pat and the fire was out. Result by innings:

Boones	2 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0—4

Base hits—Stucky 3, Perkins 1, Presser 1, Smith 2; two base hit—E. Sandford. Boones—Brady 2, Slayback 1, Clore 2, Kirk 1. Two base hit—Smith. Struck out by Conner 9, Sandford 7. Base on balls, off Conner 4 Sandford 0. Umpire—Pepper Smith.

VERONA.

Clem Readenour has malarial fever.

Ada Waller has been sick the past week.

Very dry and hot and crops and gardens are burning up.

James Waller has had Miss Stella's millinery store repainted.

The public school here has not employed a teacher for the fall term.

The League Institute is looking for a good teacher to fill the place of Miss N. E. Hamilton.

There was no public school election here last Saturday on account of being unable to secure any one to serve.

Miss N. E. Hamilton has made engagements to teach a high school at Richmond, this State the coming season.

The festival here, Saturday night, was a grand success in every particular, receipts amounting to $58 net. It will be used for papering New Bethel church.

The ice cream festival given Saturday evening for the benefit of the Baptist church was a success in every respect. The attendance was large and the people liberal. By 6 o'clock the crowd began to assemble and by 9 o'clock the beautifully lighted lawn of Mr. George Roberts was filled to over flowing. The evening was ideal as was the conduct of those present. It seemed that every one came to be helpful. There was no loud talking, no rude behavior. Even the little children, of which there was quite a number, felt it behooved them to have on their Sunday manners, so scarcely a cry was heard. It takes an occasion like this to reveal to us the rich unselfishness of our people as well as of those of the neighboring towns. The proceeds cannot be accurately estimated yet but will be approximately $60. The church cannot but be thankful for the generosity exhibited by the people.

Uncle Tom Wilson is very sick.

Everybody in this section is wishing for that much needed rain. Pastures are drying up and corn suffering from drouth.

There are many visitors to Judge Lassing's camp. Among the Sunday visitors were B. B. Hume and W. L. Riddell, of Burlington. Hon. Joseph L. Rhinock pays the Judge a brief visit occasionally. The Judge is a good fisherman and has no equals in preparing the finny tribe for the table.

About 300 people witnessed two fine games of ball, Saturday, between Bracht Station and Big Bone, at Big Bone ball park, in both of which the home team was victorous, holding the visitors down to two scores in the morning and six in the afternoon. The Bracht Station boys are a fine lot of young fellows, both in appearance and manners, and are good ball players. It is hard to take Big Bone's scalp in a ball game. The boys were raised together and they play together. Among the other attractions at the park is the cool shade, good dancing floor and splendid music, swing and croquet sets. Come everybody Saturday afternoon August 8th, and see the crack ball team from, Patriot, Indiana, play Big Bone at the Big Bone park. Game called at 2:30. Burlington ball team can have half of the gate receipts and courteous treatment at Big Bone park some Saturday afternoon.

Erlanger has oiled a considerable portion of Pike street, and Saturday afternoon and Sunday its condition was ugly.

The Erlanger fair advertisement appears in another column of this issue. A big fair is anticipated by the management.

A gasoline boat will assist the regular ferry boat Thursday, Friday and Saturday, of the Lawreneburg fair, August 13th, 14th and 15th.

R. W. Clark has been appointed as Burlington distributee of the famous Lott's Steam Washer. Call and examine it. E. K. STEPHENS.

Chas. E. Clore, the Hebron caterer, rented the refreshment privileges, last Saturday for both the Florence fair and the Harvest Home. These privileges rented for more than usual.

Hon. C. E. Nadaud lost a roll of paper money after he left Erlanger for Burlington, last Monday morning. It contained between $16 and $20, and he thinks he lost it on the road between the two towns alse we named. The finder will confer a favor by returning the money to Mr. Nadaud in Covington.

The members of the Boone County Democratic Committee are hereby called to meet at the Circuit Clerk's office in Burlington, at 1 o'clock pm. next Monday to appoint the officers in this county to hold the approaching Congressional primary election. Such other business, if any, as may properly be brought before the committee, will receive attention.

Last Thursday evening Miss Alice Carver entertained with a lawn party in honor of her guests, Miss Ada McAtee and Miss Dora Rouse. About thirty young people were present, several being from quite a distance. The large lawn was beautifully decorated with Japanes lanterns. Ice cream, cake and punch were served as refreshments. Great credit is due Miss Alice and her mother, for the delightful manner in which the guests were entertained.

Earl and Russell Smith made it interesting for a chicken thief, last Sunday night. About midnight their dogs began a fierce barking and the boys got their shot guns and went on a tour of investisation, and their father, fearing they might shoot some calves in the lot near the chicken roost, went to the door and called to them to be careful and not shoot the calves. This frightened the thief who took his departure, and as he was climbing a fence the boys opened fire in that direction, although they did not see the man. Five shots in all were fired. Monday morning a hat that was, apparently, perforated by five or six shot, was found lying by the fence where the man went over. The hat has not been identified, and it is supposed that in exchange for his hat the fellow carried off several shot in his back. It will be remembered that Mr Smith has had over 100 young chickens stolen in the last few weeks.

B. B. Hume and the writer visited Judge and Mrs. John M. Lassing at their camp on Big Bone Island, last Sunday. The following visitors were there also that day: H. D. Brady, wife and two sons, Carl Cason and Harve Smith, of Belleview; J. T. Dempsey, of Mud Lick, and a Mr. Moore, of Gallatin county. A large number of persons have visited the camp, some days the register showing as many as fifteen. The cooking was under the personal supervision of the Judge, and the fish, coffee and corn bread could not have been served in better style. The services of Wm. Huff, of Hamilton, were retained by the Judge during his sojourn on the island, and he proved a valuable assistant. The most exciting scene during the stay on the island was when Master Robert Brady caught and successfully landed a 45 pound cat fish. Dr. Lassing and wife, of Rising Sun, are camping on the island, also, and are visited by many of their friends. Judge Lassing will break camp today, when a most delightful outing will be brought to a close.

BASE BALL.

The Burlington team was defeated again at Belleview, last Saturday 5 to 4. The Burlington boys can not play in the sand. These teams will play at Burlington next Saturday afternoon.

The RECORDER has no space to consume giving an account of two as poorly played games as those at Burlington last Monday afternoon. Each man on the two teams had an off day. The first game was 10 to 5 in favor of Hebron, while Burlington won the second game 13 to 10.

IS THE GAME OF POLITICS WORTH THE CANDLE?

NO! Is the Emphatic Reply of Expert Ernest McGaffey

Are You a Voter? Then You Are "Flirting" With the Flame, Declares Experienced One in Article Telling of Doings Behind the Scenes.

IS IT worth the average man's time to engage in politics? That depends on what you mean by "engaging in political life." Active participation in politics taught me a number of things. It taught me, for instance, that the man who merely votes at each election is only "flirting" with politics. I used to see at the polling places, at each election, dozens of young fellows who came and deposited their ballots and went away immediately, having selected their candidates according to their party leanings, or according to the views of their favorite paper; and who looked upon the "politicians" standing about the place as so many curious specimens of the genus Homo, remote from them to a marked degree. And yet it was the duty of those young fellows to vote intelligently, if at all.

And how can a man judge political measures and candidates, unless he will give some of his time to actual conditions, as they are controlled by the practical politicians of his ward? The people, as a rule, are the ridden portion of the community; the politicians are the riders. This is the fault of the people themselves, for numerically they outnumber the politicians ten to one, but they are willing to let it go at that. Take the average young fellow in a city ward who is on a salary, and who has some aspirations in the direction of "society." He has the dances and parties to attend, amateur theatricals and theaters to consider, calls, receptions, musicales, drives, walks in the parks—dozens of social matters to take up his time and attention. He is ambitious, and yet the "pearl of great price," his right to vote—is either cast to the swine, or unused. He is too "lily-livered" and thin-skinned to mix in with rough "ward politics."

It would be vastly better for him if he did. "It's coarsening," you say? Well, yes, maybe it is a little! But there may be an excess of coddling the feeling of exclusiveness. It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and you never know until you "butt into" municipal politics what a vast variety of people there are in the world. "The noblest study of mankind is man;" and you will have more types to choose from, in this fascinating study, the game of politics, than in any other walk of life. You will get a chance to judge the candidates at first hand, besides. You will have an opportunity to enlarge your knowledge of human nature.—You will hear arguments for and against proposed measures of public policy. You will get a practical inside view of the political arena which will benefit you when you come to pick a candidate. In a hundred different ways you will widen the worldly perspective, and add to your stock of general information.

To get into politics for the purpose of conscientiously and intelligently performing your duties of citizenship is not merely a privilege. It is a trust. It is something on which your own safety may depend, and those on whom your hopes are builded. Make yourself active in politics, and you can make yourself respected by the politicians. The "stall-fed" citizen who simply votes is a mere chessman in the game, to be shoved here and there. If he has acquainted himself with the rudiments of the game and followed this up by a steady course of seeking instruction and keeping up with public movements—if he looks up the personal qualifications of candidates and votes intelligently, he is doing his duty broadly, not narrowly, as a citizen. It is very well worth the while of every man, and particularly the young and active man, to engage in politics in this way. Every young fellow of voting age should attend the ward meetings and join the ward clubs of his ward. He should attend the primaries, and do all that lies in his power to see that good delegates are chosen.

[illegible] of public safety, comfort, morals, and health [illegible] politics. Suppose, for instance, that [illegible] of his ward club, or of an independ[illegible] in the ward. If he goes down [illegible] to have a favor granted to the people of his ward, or to protest against something that he thinks is not for the benefit of the ward, he has something to back him up in his demands. You can depend upon it that the aldermen of his ward will know of him, and will do all in their power to aid him. As spokesman for some voting strength, easily shown by say a good live committee going with him, he commands attention from the mayor and any public official, and he will find the old copy-book adage of his school days confirmed —"in union there is strength."

How can you tell a candidate's fitness by seeing his lithograph on a telegraph pole? Or reading some partisan puff of him in a party newspaper? Get out to the meetings and hear him talk. "Size him up." Get an introduction to him, and sound him personally as to his intelligence and sincerity. Such a candidate has the power, we will say, to speak for you in a matter directly concerning your health and safety. If you went to a doctor, would you go to the first one who had a physician's sign hung out? If you were hiring a clerk, you business man, would you take any one who happened along? Of course not! And yet the laxity of the average voter so far as any knowledge of the fitness or personality of the average candidate is concerned, amounts to almost criminal stupidity.

The spectacle of a goodly number of intelligent, well-dressed and reputable citizens at an average primary, (say the clerks and business men of the district in a body) would be something which would cause a gasp of horror-stricken surprise, in some wards I have campaigned in. And yet that was just what ought to have occurred. You can't stay at home and control the current of political events. Men as shrewd-witted and alert as you can ever dare be are out in all kinds of weather and at all sorts of personal sacrifice, gathering up the reins of power. And preparing to drive, with you trying to "catch on behind." Get busy, good easy citizen, get into politics in this manner, and you will find, from even the low standpoint of dollars and cents, that the game is worth the candle.

If you belong to a card club or a bowling club or any social organization, strive to make that a power in politics. Get the voting strength of the association committed to the best candidate, regardless of party. Party fealty is all right; party allegiance is party discipline; but don't trade the birthright of suffrage for a bowl of party pottage. Make your party put up good men or suffer the consequence. And this applies to all men, young and old. The middle-aged men have no right to sit by the fire in their slippers and let politics go to the devil. They will have to pay for it in as many different ways as there are angles to the winds.

"Neglect will make more breaches than the cannon-balls."

Of course it is the duty of every good citizen to interest himself in politics, but at the same time, if he does, he'll probably get into the game up to his neck and if he doesn't he is called an "undesirable." The average office holder is besieged for donations by every sort of institution and organization which has even a glimmer of hope of extracting any of the coin of the realm.

It's a gay life; it's a hard life; it's a thankless one. Every office-holder makes enemies. He is often "damned if he does and damned if he don't." He cannot expect fair treatment from an opposing press, he cannot hope for justice from the partisans of an opposite party. The changes are sudden and often lasting; the rewards are inadequate and generally brief; the "limelight" of a short-lived notoriety is succeeded by the "ex-ness of a most Chamberlain obscurity. Hawked at by the hooting owls of the press, pestered by cranks and advisers, baited by reformers, betrayed by friends and plotted against by enemies, say, [illegible] is [illegible] world engaging in?

TAFT IS NOTIFIED OF HIS NOMINATION

DAY SETS HIGH-WATER MARK FOR FUTURE PRESIDENTIAL NOTIFICATIONS.

HE RECEIVES PLAUDITS OF ADMIRING FRIENDS

Who Vied With Those Who Came From Afar in Paying Tribute to Him From Dawn Until Festivities Ended in Blaze of Pyrotechnics.

Cincinnati, July 29.—Announcing his high resolve to continue the policies of the administration of President Roosevelt, if elected to succeed him, William Howard Taft, Tuesday, formally accepted the nomination of the Republican party as its candidate and took into his hands the standard of leadership.

In the history of political parties in America there never was a similar duty discharged under more auspicious and inspiring circumstances. The city of the nominee's birth honored itself in honoring him by making the occasion both brilliant and imposing. Partisan politics was effaced by civic pride, and for this particular function the dividing lines of political feeling were buried from sight beneath the garlands of courtesy.

Dressed in holiday attire, the Queen of the West was a generous hostess to all who came bearing their homage to her distinguished son. Graybeards whose recollection of these ceremonies goes back for decades declare that for public spirit, for munificence of display and for numbers, that of Tuesday easily exceeds those that have gone before.

If his fellow-citizens were kind to him nature was nonetheless gracious. The clouds that overhung the city for days were banished by the storm of the preceding night. With them went the torturing humidity that attended their stay, and in the place of both discomforts came sunshine and breeze that made life endurable to the throngs that densely packed the thoroughfares that led to the now historic porch on quiet Jacobus Pike street.

Throughout the great hive of industry the holiday spirit reigned. Work was laid aside for the hour while merchant, artisan and clerk went out to join in the general tribute to one of their number who had been honored in so great a measure in the nation. From the hour that the thunder of the guns and the bursting of bombs ushered in the day of public rejoicing until the midnight bell cleared the streets and the tired crowds went homeward, success attended the consummation of the program laid out with so much care.

Impressiveness marked the greater functions of the day. The first of these was the raising of the American flag upon the staff in the garden of the Taft homestead, which is to denote the presence or absence of the candidate. Entering the stars were the Yale and Woodward schoolmates.

Presented, after a beautifully worded invocation by Bishop David H. Moore, of the Methodist Episcopal church, by Judge Jacob H. Bromwell as the gift of home friends, it was received by Charles P. Taft on behalf of his brother. In his remarks there were sentiments that caused the audience to repeatedly cheer him for their utterance.

Equally inspiring was the visit in a body of the survivors of the civil war, officers and men, to pay their respects to the nominee. At their head was a fife and drum corps of grayhaired soldiers, veterans of many a march and charge. On the right of the line was the Loyal Legion, as a guard of honor. The first squad of fours was a distinguished one, being composed of Gen. Frederick D. Grant, son of the great commander; Lieut. Gen. Henry C. Corbin, U. S. A., retired; Gen. Grosvenor and Gen. Thompson.

Laying aside his purpose to remain indoors until summoned to meet the members of the notification committee, Judge Taft came down upon the lawn and met the halting and hobbling line, bowing to the tattered battle flags that were carried south beyond the Ohio by Cincinnati regiments when he was a lad on the shady streets of Mt. Auburn. With more elastic step came swinging down the street the youthful veterans of the Spanish war and the sons of veterans of the civil war. To these he gave a general greeting from beneath the marquee at the entrance to the grounds.

The climax of the day was reached when as the bells were sounding noon the members of the national committee and their brethren of the notification committee ranged themselves upon the broad veranda, and Senator Warner, dignified and impressive, stood up to deliver his message from the party to the candidate and to await his response.

The ceremony ended, the nominee took his wife's arm, and together they proceeded to the gate, where, with Senator Warner and Gen. Grant, they reviewed the parade of honor.

The finale was the gorgeous pyrotechnical display at night in Eden park and along the shores of the Ohio. Attended by his brilliant escort of distinguished men Judge Taft, the nominee, entered the chartered steamer and viewed the scene that could from no favored place upon the deck. It was full upon midnight when the day of festivities came to an end.

INCOME OF TRINITY CHURCH.

Derives Revenue from Disgraceful and Unhealthy Tenements.

Trinity Church is the holder of one of the greatest estates in New York or in the country, says Charles E. Russell, in Everybody's. It owns in the city property worth, according to different estimators, from $39,000,000 to $100,000,000, from which it draws an enormous revenue, the amount of which is never made public. For many years no investigator has been able to obtain any more definite knowledge of these matters than that this is the wealth of Trinity which she holds for good purposes. How comes it that on the east side of New York have been built in recent years bright, clean, fireproof and sanitary flats, in some numbers that certain regions have been transformed by them, and life for those that dwell in them has been changed from direst misery to something almost suggestive of decency, while Trinity has done nothing of the kind?

How comes it that the Astor estate, owner of hundreds of tenements, has pursued for years one settled policy of improvement for the benefit of the tenants and the Trinity tenants have been left to shift for themselves?

The Astor estate maintains no charities; it has no missions, no hospitals, no beds and no Sunday school excursions; yet I am perfectly certain that the balance of actual good in the world is in its favor. I am perfectly certain that to obliterate one court that breeds tuberculosis is better than to spend $70,000 a year on organ music, and that to provide a tenement with fire escapes is better than to preach a sermon of remote and genteel theology. The management of the Astor estate tenements indicates what even a small measure of civilization can do in the midst of barbarous conditions; the management of the Trinity tenements shows what callous neglect can do to further and aggravate conditions.

To be sure, all tenement houses are bad. I know that; all tenement houses are terrific indictments of the conditions of drab and galn and splendor and shame that we tolerate.

And of the tenement, speaking generally, works all; Trinity's tenements must be a matter of grave concern to us all; Trinity's tenements must work more than common ill, for they are the worst tenements in New York.

Tropical Fish in Northern Waters.

During the last few days an immense school of barracuda, a semi-tropical fish, as well as Spanish mackerel, has appeared in the waters just off the ocean beach near the site of the old Cliff house. Every morning large numbers of these fish swim up to the beach at high tide and when the ebb sets in many of them are unable to get back to deep water and are left on the sand by the retreating waves. During the last week the residents of the beach have been picking them up by the score every morning.

The barracuda frequent the waters of Mexico and southern California in great numbers, but are seldom seen this far north, and the presence of this large school is difficult to account for. It is a fish of silver gray color, often three or four feet in length, with a long snout and a slender body.

It is thought that the barracuda and mackerel are driven inshore by a school of large whales which has been spouting in the vicinity of the seal rocks for some time past.—San Francisco Chronicle.

One of the Essentials

of the happy homes of to-day is a vast fund of information as to the best methods of promoting health and happiness and right living and knowledge of the world's best products.

Products of actual excellence and reasonable claims truthfully presented and which have attained to world-wide acceptance through the approval of the Well-Informed of the World; not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and obtaining the best the world affords.

One of the products of that class, of known component parts, an Ethical remedy, approved by physicians and commended by the Well-Informed of the World as a valuable and wholesome family laxative is the well-known Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

WHY HE WAS WORRIED.

Fly in the Ointment That Was Handed to Good Man.

"Why," asked the good man's wife, are you so thoughtful? You look as if something disagreeable had happened.

"Perhaps," he replied, "I am foolish to feel as I do about it. My congregation has raised a purse for the purpose of sending me to Europe."

"And are you sorry it isn't large enough to enable you to take me with you? Don't let that cause you to feel depressed. It will be very lonely here without you, but I know you need the rest, and I shall be very sensible. I can spend the summer at some quiet, inexpensive place, cheered by the thought that you will return refreshed in mind and body."

"It is very good of you to look at it in that way, my dear. I appreciate your feeling. But the gentleman who made the presentation speech said he was sorry the amount that had been raised was not larger so that I might be able to remain away longer, and somehow it seemed to me that applause was more hearty at that point than anywhere else in the course of his remarks."—Chicago Record-Herald.

An Improved Climax.

They wanted an original closing episode for the great melodrama. Ordinarily the baffled villain walks away with a flippant sneer and the sheriff meets him at the left upper exit. But this was old and crude. So the playwright set his wits to work with the following result:

Just as the villain uttered his farewell curse the low-comedy servant rushed forward and after smiting him over the head with a suet pudding, violently pushed a custard pie in his face.

Waste no sympathy on the wretch, my darling," the hero remarks to the rescued heroine; "he has received only his just desserts!"

WONDERED WHY

Found the Answer Was "Coffee."

Many pale, sickly persons wonder for years why they have to suffer so, and eventually discover that the drug—caffeine—in coffee is the main cause of the trouble.

"I was always very fond of coffee and drank it every day. I never had much flesh and often wondered why I was always so pale, thin and weak. "About five years ago my health completely broke down and I was confined to my bed. My stomach was in such condition that I could hardly take sufficient nourishment to sustain life.

"During this time I was drinking coffee, didn't think I could do without it.

"After awhile I came to the conclusion that coffee was hurting me, and decided to give it up and try Postum. I didn't like the taste of it at first, but when it was made right—boiled until dark and rich—I soon became very fond of it.

"In one week I began to feel better. I could eat more and sleep better. My sick headaches were less frequent, and within five months I looked and felt like a new being, headache spells entirely gone.

"My health continued to improve and today I am well and strong, weigh 148 lbs. I attribute my present health to the life-giving qualities of Postum."

OLE MIS' MOON WITH THEM.

No Chance of the Visitors Being Homesick in the City.

Mme. Fairfax was wont to stand on the porch of her old Virginia home and rejoice on moonlight nights in the beauty says the Youth's Companion. "There's my moon," she would say, as it rose from behind the eastern hills. "Look, Dahlia, see how beautiful it is," and her tiny colored maid, who was ever at hand with shawl or fan for her beloved mistress, would answer, enthusiastically: "Your moon certainly do look pow'ful handsome to-night."

When Mme. Fairfax journeyed to the city to visit her son, Dahlia, looking out of the window with wondering eyes on the first evening of her life away from home, exclaimed, in a voice of mingled astonishment and relief: "Well, I declar' to goodness, if ole Mis' Moon ain't done come along to Washington wif me an ole mis'! We can't be homesick nohow, wif ole Mis' Moon shining on us."

SAVED AT THE CRISIS.

Delay Meant Death from Kidney Trouble.

Mrs. Herman Smith, 901 Broad Street, Athens, Ga., says: "Kidney disease started with slight irregularity and weakness and developed into dangerous dropsy. I became weak and languid, and could do no housework. My back ached terribly. I had bearing down pains and my limbs bloated to twice their normal size. Doctors did not help, and I was fast drifting into the hopeless stages. I used Doan's Kidney Pills at the critical moment and they really saved my life."

The Cold Morning Bath.

The cold morning bath is recommended for those who can stand the cold bath, though countless many cannot. To prepare for it one should first sponge the body with cold water and step into a few inches of water drawn from a warm water pipe. It will not be warm or cold early in the morning. Splash the water over the body and wash hastily, letting the tub fill gradually. If the salt bath is used, do not throw the salt towel in the laundry. Let it collect the salt. In beauty bathhouses each individual has a salt towel that is used countless times, because it gets thoroughly saturated and is more beneficial. A cold bath should not last longer than five minutes.

CHILDHOOD'S HAPPY DAYS.

The Hunter—Ain't it a shame, Fido? It says here dat mountain lions are rapidly becoming extinct. I bet we'll never get a chanst to shoot a single one.

Thrift in the Family.

A little girl was playing with a girl friend of her own age on the porch of her home in West Philadelphia.

An elderly gentleman, her mother's father, and an elderly lady, her father's mother, were sitting on the porch talking pleasantly with each other. The little girl had often wished her grandparents were of the same name, like other children's grandparents.

Presently the little guest remarked: "What a nice grandmother and grandfather you have."

"Oh, yes," she said, with a sigh, "but they don't match."

Hall Caine's Early Life.

Hall Caine is writing his life story. He tells how he first saw life by driving with his uncle at the age of five from the lonely homstead behind Sinefell to what he thought must be "a vast and mighty city." It was Douglas, with its 10,000 inhabitants. His first nickname was "Hommy-beg," the Manx for "little Tommy." His grandmother christened him thus. "I think I must have been much in her company," he says, "for I have the clearest memory of countless stories she told me of fairies and witches and the evil eye. My Manx grandmother was a poet."

Her Face.

Miss Hoamley—He seemed to think he knew me. I noticed him studying my face.

Miss Knox—Yes, I noticed that, too. He's from New England and he probably thought—

Miss Hoamley—Yes, he asked you if I was born down that way, didn't he?

Miss Knox—No; he simply asked if you were "born that way."

Biblical.

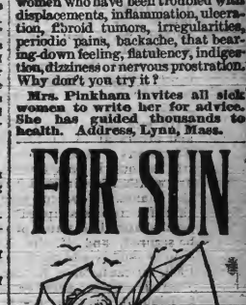
Speaking of cherry pies we are reminded of that Biblical saying, which goes something like this: "It is hard to bite against the stones."

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death.

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured.



"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

The higher court has set aside the $29,240,000 fined assessed against the Standard Oil Co. by Judge Landis, of Chicago, and President Roosevelt is very much out of humor about it.

According to yesterday's Enquirer Congressman Rhinock was given a great ovation at Falmouth, Pendleton county, last Monday, where he delivered a speech to a large court day crowd.

The more school money there is the better will be the pay of the teachers. Small salaries have been a great draw back to the schools in this county for many years, and it is hoped that with the new school law will come better compensation for teachers.

In this issue appears the announcement of Hon. W. W. Cleary, of Covington, as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district. Mr. Cleary is a son of the late W. W. Cleary, who, for many years was Commonwealth's Attorney in Kenton county. He is now president of Covington City Council. He is quite popular among his people. He is now making a speaking tour of the district.

The all absorbing question in this county now is, "What will the price of tobacco be in winter order?" It is being discussed in various ways, but the general conclusion is, 25 cents for good crops, with the average at 18 cents. That the demand will be heavy there is no denying, and already several growing crops have been sold—one at 15 cents and others at 13 to 13½ cents. There was a considerable quantity set out in this county, but dry weather has injured many of the plants. Tobacco men say that if a crop is stripped out in good shape almost any price can be secured, and if the Equity crop of 1907 is sold by January 1, 1909, 30 cents may be reached. There has as yet been no money distributed in the county for sales made in the Society, and it is now believed that a distribution will not be made until the middle of July, but at that time over $2,000,000 will be turned loose.

One significant feature of the report of Commissioner Rankin on the tobacco situation is the fact that the crop in the dark tobacco district will not be exceptionally large as was heretofore expected. Instead of an increase in production the report foreshadows a decrease. This may indicate that when the no crop ban is raised in the white burley district and the growers begin to plant for a 1909 crop, there may not be the enormous increase now generally anticipated. With the crop cut out for one year even, many farmers may learn that they are not as dependent upon the tobacco crop as they have supposed. They may find there are other uses to which their lands may be put. Some growers, having cut out tobacco for a single year, may decide to cease growing it entirely. This is almost certain to be the case in many instances, and it may at least counterbalance the tendency of some growers to increase their production.

A man who has been in the dairy business a few years writes us that he began with some select good grade cows that averaged him $72 a year each, in butter, and 6,500 pounds of skim milk per cow for feeding calves and pigs sweet from the cream separator. Afterwards he says he brought two registered Jersey cows, which were excellent milkers and made him money. Then he bought a lot of very promising Jersey heifers. Now he has a herd that is yielding him $100 per cow in butter and a fine lot of skim milk for feeding, besides a lot of good promising calves. He finds that, while the dairy business gives him persistent and active work to manage, yet it pays him more than any other industry, and is making his farm more fertile and productive every year by the use of the manure. He has come to believe that pure bred registered Jersey cows are most profitable, considering their calves, butter fat and all, and is working into that kind of a dairy herd.—Indiana Farmer.

The city of Boston is having a terrible fight with the gipsy moth. After spending half a million dollars in trying to exterminate the pest from the State, during the last six months it is still multiplying so rapidly in and around Boston that it is feared it will destroy the trees in the parks and gardens.

Personal Mention.

W. T. Black, of Walton, manager of the Consolidated Telephone Co., was in Burlington, last Thursday. He had all his linemen at work on the worst piece of line in the system, and hoped to have it in good condition in a few days. Mr. Lystra Aylor accompanied Mr. Black to Burlington.

In Memory of F. M. Stephens.

Among the calls by the Reaper of Death in the harvest fields of Boone county for the summer of 1908 to the garner of eternity, was Francis Marion Stephens, of East Bend, who died July 9th, at the home of one of his sons, after several years of suffering, being 78 years of age. He was a most remarkable man who, by his great parental influence, perfect discipline and even temper, had raised nine sons, to be men of age and families, and not a dissipated, worthless and indolent one among them. Instead all that a father could ask was proven in their characters, for who can in these times of many temptations, bear such a record, besides, two daughters, whose mission has been to comfort and brighten his pathway to the grave. He was a father of the true Sparten stock, honored and respected by them, whose example is worthy to follow. He was a grandson of one of the three old heroes of life from old Virginia, viz: John, Benjamin and Leonard, whose mother was a Waller. Her family being of the true Baptist faith, was imprisoned in the jail at Richmond by the church of England for preaching the gospel. Yet, like many of his own relatives, was a believer in Universal salvation. In the year 1847, he married Miss Elizabeth Ann Hawkins, eldest daughter of Dr. J. Russell Hawkins, who, for many years, was a physician in that part of Boone, and afterwards moved to Frankfort, where he was clerk of the Senate of Kentucky for 30 years. His wife, also, deserves her full share in his honors true and faithful until God called her to the land of rest, May 12th, 1904, after which he then received his life's paid up policy by his children's love and care. He leaves brothers and sisters with many kindred and friends as he was ever genial and hospitable and dearly beloved by all who knew him. Who has left such an immortal monument as these parents. Can wealth, fame, literature or science be greater and more enduring than are made by the cares, anxieties, sacrafices and joys of these parents? Never, never, boys do one of you desecrate their worthy example, nor ever dishonor their precepts. Let your gratitude be written on the bulwarks of the New Jerusalem, to the praise of God for your parents.

A large barn belonging to C. C. Sleet, of Beaver Lick, was destroyed by fire during the early hours of last Monday night. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Sleet places his loss at $2,500, and has $450 insurance in the Boone county company and $150 in some other company. In the barn were two binders, a large lot of other farm implements, several tons of both straw and hay, 12 new gates and numerous other articles. The barn was about 300 yards for Mr. Sleet's residence, and it took hard work to save that building.

This is a trying time on the heavy teams which are taken from the soft fields and put upon the hard roads with heavy loads behind them. There is usually more or less heavy hauling around this season of the year, and the work teams are called upon to do it. Take it slowly. These big teams will draw heavy loads, but let them have their own time to it. They have become accustomed to a certain gait while doing field work, and it worries them to be urged into a faster walk when out on the road. Keep a close watch of their feet. It is not uncommon to see a horse go lame the first day he is put on the hard roads.
